The Social Realm.

How sweet the moonlight sleeps upon this bank!
Here we will sit and let the sounds of music
Creep in our ears; soft stillness and the night
Become the touches of sweet harmony.
Sit, Jessica. Look how the floor of heaven
Is thick inlaid with patines of bright gold:
There's not the smallest orb which thou behold'st
But in his motion like an angel sings,
Still quiring to the young eyed cherubims.
Such harmony is in immortal souls;
But whilst this muddy vesture of decay
Doth grossly close it in we cannot hear it.

TONS OF DYNAMITE.

Stored in an Unsafe Building at West Quincy.

No License Issued Either to Store or to Sell the Same.

Chief Engineer Williams Interviewed by the Ledger Representative.

Few people, realize that in West Quincy within a few hundred feet of a cluster of houses there is stored 8,000 pounds of that high explosive known as dynamite. The building in which this powerful energy is kept is situated in a pleasant spot surrounded by a growth of young trees. It looks innocent, but should a spark hit one of those harmless-looking sticks there would be an explosion that would send a shower of rocks flying over West Quincy; it would shatter the houses near by and the report would be heard for many miles, as was the case at Lowell.

The building in which it is stored is made of planks with iron sheathing on the outside, and is about half way between what is known as the Bunker Hill and Berry's quarries.

It is the New England storehouse of Harold L. Bond & Co. The dynamite is brought to West Quincy on the cars and then sent up over the Quarry railroad, the car being set on a side track from which teams cart the contents a short distance to the magazine. When or how the contents of this building leave Quincy no one but those in charge know. It is probable, however, that the innocent looking boxes that are seen in an express wagon contain fifty pounds of dynamite.

At present there seems to be no ordinance prohibiting the carting of this explosive through the public streets and no ordinance that will prevent Messrs. Bond keeping any amount of it at their storehouse.

Chief Engineer Williams, who handles considerable dynamite in his contracts, does not consider it dangerous to handle. He says it is not easily exploded and that in order to explode it a spark is necessary.

The City Ordinance says that keepers of gunpowder, etc., shall comply with any directions the Chief Engineer may issue. But he has issued none as he thinks the present ordinance is all that is necessary.

In Quincy there are but two large dealers that are licensed to keep and sell gunpowder. One of these is also licensed to sell explosive compounds, although there is no ordinance that uses the words explosive compounds.

These two dealers are R. J. Teasdale and J. E. Sprague. Mr. Teasdale is the one who has the explosive compound clause attached to his license. His magazine is located off Willard street near the Braintree line. It is a stone building with an iron door. He only keeps a month's supply of dynamite on hand at a time. That is from five to ten cases of fifty pounds each.

He says that dynamite is but little used in the quarries, as it shatters the rock too much. Those that use it are sewer contractors, those laying water pipes, etc. The quarries use gunpowder which is kept in tight tin canisters.

There was a time when all quarry owners had small magazines of their own, but of late years they prefer to get their supply from the dealers as they want it.

John E. Sprague's license entitles him to do business at 73 Goddard street. This is his residence. He does not keep any supply of gunpowder or dynamite at his residence. His magazine is located near that of Messrs. Bond. It is a square stone building and looks more like what a magazine should be than its neighbor, the wooden building.

While it may be perfectly safe to tore so much dynamite in one building, Quincy people, especially those who live in West Quincy would much prefer that it should be kept somewhere else. The question they are asking is, how it is that the City Council will allow this firm to maintain such a store house? Messrs. Bond applied to the City Council April 27 for a license to keep and sell gunpowder and explosive compounds. At the same meeting Councilman Hughes introduced an order amending the ordinance so that not more than one ton of dynamite could be kept in one building.

Three months have passed and the petition and the order are still before the Committee on Ordinances to whom they were referred.

Messrs. Bond probably do not care as long as no one finds any fault, for they keep a magazine full of dynamite just over the hill from the West Quincy depot.

If it had not been for the terrible explosion at Lowell this week, it is probable that the present condition of affairs would have gone on indefinitely. Now that people have become aroused, however, it is believed that some action will be taken at the meeting of the City Council next Monday evening.

LEAGUE GAMES.

No New Out-of-Town Men to Play in the Quincy Nines.

The opening games of the Quincy base ball league will be played this afternoon, when the Wollastons and Merrymounts will meet at the Park, and the Quincys and South Quincys on the Quincy Point grounds.

The management of the league announce that they will not oppose the playing of the out of town men who are at present on the nines, as there are only two or three, but will insist that no new men from outside the city be hired. It will be the endeavor of the management to give the people of Quincy as clean an article of ball by Quincy players as can be produced. For this reason there will be no dickering with professional players who may be willing to play a game for high commission.

Found in Braintree.

The daylight house breaker who has been operating in this and surrounding towns made several breaks in Holbrook Tuesday, and at one place he secured an old army revolver and one of the savings banks which is given out by the Mt. Wollaston bank. These were afterward found near the line at Mayflower Park, both the bank and revolver being smashed.

The sentiment in town now is: When a stranger calls at your home and wants to know if your next door neighbor is in, be wise, and say you'll see, and in the meantime immediately send for the nearest officer.

Kolutoo Outsailed.

The prospects of the Manchester Yacht club securing another challenge cup are not bright. For the second time yesterday at Dorval, Quebec, the Canadian defender Thorella outsailed the Kolutoo, the Manchester challenger. The elapsed time was Thorella, 1 hour, 50 minutes, 17 seconds; Kolutoo, 2 hours, 9 minutes, 53 seconds.

High Ball Salaries To End

The Golden Days of Players Drawing to a Close ⁘ League Officials Agree on a Reduction of Expenses.

The reign of the high salaried ball player is limited to the termination of the present contract under which he is working. This is as sure as the two major leagues are working in harmony.

Not only does the trend of baseball affairs affirm this statement, but it was indirectly acknowledged by an official of a National league club to the writer recently. Upon further inquiry it was learned from a Pittsburg club official that a salary limit was not the only scheme contemplated by the American and National leagues at the conclusion of the present playing season.

PITCHER CHRISTY MATHEWSON, NEW YORK NATIONALS.

The writer was reliably informed by a person connected with baseball that a salary limit would go into effect upon the signing of all men to contracts for 1904 and thereafter. President Potter of the Philadelphia club, President Dreyfuss of the Pittsburg club and officials of both clubs were solicited to deny or affirm the allegation respecting a salary limit, but all professed an ignorance of any such proposition on the part of the National league.

Despite these assertions the writer did draw out of an official of one of the clubs that a national agreement on the lines of the compact that existed between the old American association and the National league would be made by the two big organizations before another playing season rolled around.

Questioned further, the same official admitted that necessary business relations between the two big leagues would bring them considerably closer before another year had elapsed. It is his opinion that the old limit of $2,400 will again be the largest amount that will be paid for players, while the losses of some of the clubs sustained during the war might make the highest figures $2,200.

There is no denying the fact that the players have reaped a harvest. The expansion of the American league was a great boom to them, and today many of them are drawing salaries that are just double in amount what they were receiving when the National had the major field in its monopolistic grasp. It is claimed that but few clubs will make money this year; that quite a few will lose heavily; that the preservation of the game demands that salaries be reduced, and that both organizations see the urgent necessity of such action.

The signing of a national agreement between the National and American leagues will reduce baseball conditions to about the same plane as they were when the American entered the field as a major organization. Its mutual provisions will protect the interests of the two bodies to a greater extent than even the peace agreement did.

Among the high priced players who will have to take less money for their services when their present contracts expire are Joe Kelley, the expensive captain-manager of the Cincinnati reds; Christy Mathewson, the crack pitcher of Johnny McGraw's New York Nationals, who draws $8,000 for his summer services; Willie Keeler of the New York Americans, who receives $6,000 a year; Napoleon Lajoie, Cleveland Americans, $7,000; Patsy Donovan, St. Louis Nationals, $9,000; Jesse Burkett, St. Louis Americans, $5,000; "Chief" Charley Zimmer, Philadelphia Nationals, and almost a score of others.

Henry Chadwick, the veteran baseball authority, recently made the following statement:

"It can be truthfully said that there is nothing in the form of public amusement that is so heavily burdened with 'deadheadism' as professional baseball. Here we are, in the midst of an era of high salaries paid by baseball clubs to their players to an extent previously unequaled in the history of the business, and yet hundreds of well to do people, who can afford to and do pay dollars for admission to race courses, do not hesitate to become the recipients of the charity of baseball magnates in the form of free passes to their ball grounds.

"Let any one stand at the deadhead entrance gate to a professional ball game and watch the class of people who enter on complimentaries and he will be astonished to see how many of them—in fact, the majority—show by their dress and well to do appearance that they are fully able to pay their way in and yet do not hesitate to become beggars for passes.

"Conspicuous in the deadhead community in professional baseball are the ward politicians, who claim to have a pull of one kind or another. Then there are our 'prominent city officials,' who are deadheads ex officio. As a rule, the latter cause a heap of trouble by lending their annual pass books to their clerks, their employees or their 'heelers,' and the latter make themselves a nuisance in the grand stands by their umpire baiting.

"The mischief of it is that these fellows not only do not pay for their seats, but they help to drive the better class of patrons from the stand.

JOE KELLEY, EXPENSIVE CINCINNATI CAPTAIN.

"It is, of course, quite a problem to solve as to how to get rid of the 'deadheadism' abuse, but that it should be at least lessened is a fact not to be denied. Unfortunately the general class of deadheads at ball matches are possessed of the idea that in return for their free passes they have got to act just as the class of claqueurs at the theater do, and that is to 'root' for the home team, fair or foul, and generally they prefer dirty ball methods in their work."

Dreams are prevalent in every city in the country, and Philadelphia is no exception to the rule. But the dreamers of the Quaker City went outside of the realm of dreamland when they sprung the story that the Philadelphia Nationals were dissatisfied with the showing made by Captain-Manager Charley Zimmer.

President Potter is responsible for the statement that Zimmer can manage the team as long as he is the executive head if the veteran desires to do so.

"We got hold of the team after all the promising players of the country had been picked over," said Potter in a recent interview, "and so there was no loose talent for us to strengthen with. We know where the club is weak, and lines are being spread in all directions to secure talent. So far as Zimmer is concerned, we are perfectly satisfied with him, and after we get the right kind of material for him we believe that he will rapidly develop one of the best teams in the National league."

Zimmer believes that he has the material for a good team and hopes to improve his position in the race.

Abbott is doing nearly all the catching for Cleveland. He is batting better than Bemis, the regular back stop.

FOUR AGAINST MACHEN

New Postal Indictments by Federal Grand Jury.

NINE PERSONS INVOLVED

Lorenz and Wife Again Figure In List of Those Charged With Conspiracy and Bribery—Further Indictments Expected Within a Week or Two

Washington, Aug. 1.—The postoffice investigation has developed another sensation, the federal grand jury returning seven indictments, involving nine people for alleged conspiracy and bribery in connection with postal affairs.

August W. Machen, for many years the head of the free delivery service, is named jointly with others in four of the indictments. The other parties are William G. Crawford, who was deputy auditor for the postoffice department from June 12, 1893, to Sept. 15, 1897, and is a member of one of the exclusive clubs of this city; Leopold J. Stern of Baltimore; George E. Lorenz of Toledo, formerly a prominent government official; Martha J. Lorenz, his wife; John T. Cupper, mayor of Lockhaven, Pa.; William C. Long, an Ohio man who has spent much time in this city in recent years and an intimate friend of Machen; Maurice Runkel of New York city and Thomas W. McGregor, a protege of Machen, who was a messenger at the beginning of Machen's administration of the free delivery service and in recent years has been in charge of the supplies for the rural free delivery service.

Crawford voluntarily appeared in court soon after the indictments were returned and furnished $10,000 bail, and McGregor likewise gave $5600 bail. Long was arrested at his home, where Deputy Marshal Springman found him in bed. He was released on $10,000 bond. His was the only case in which a bench warrant was issued, owing to the voluntary action of the others indicted.

Machen was not rearrested under the new indictment, as he gave bonds in $20,000 under his indictment several weeks ago, and the authorities felt this was sufficient to secure his appearance. Warrants have been issued for the out-of-town parties indicted and their arrest is expected today. The grand jury has not completed the work laid before it by the postal investigators and other indictments may be expected later on, possibly within a week or two. It is understood that two additional cases against one of the parties indicted, a former prominent bureau official, are being inquired into by the grand jury, and that the acts of another former high official of the postoffice department already under indictment by the Brooklyn grand jury are being investigated.

Attorney Douglass of Machen's counsel, in speaking of yesterday's indictments of Machen, said that they involved the same general charges as the former indictment, although different alleged transactions, and that the new indictments were designed simply to strengthen the former ones. He said that nothing had yet been decided as to Machen's course under the new indictments. Machen was in consultation with his counsel yesterday afternoon and the demurrer to the previous indictments probably will be filed today.

Postmaster General Payne returned to this city last night from his trip of about a fortnight on the revenue cutter Onondaga, which was making its cruise along the Atlantic coast.

Bridge Scheme Again Defeated

New York, Aug. 1.—By a vote of 41 to 24 the board of aldermen, for the second time, defeated the appropriation of $6,532,000 for the Manhattan bridge, the opposition being to the proposed eye bar construction which had been suggested in place of wire cables. The board approved an issue of $3,868,000 for the Blackwell's island bridge, which, being of cantilever construction, raises no question of eye bar or wire cable construction.

Santiago Scare Proved Loyalty

Havana, Aug. 1.—The chief result of the Cauto district scare has been to increase the confidence of the people throughout the island in the government's ability to cope with such situations and in the readiness of the leaders and others to assist in emergencies. The events in Santiago province have brought out strong evidences of the loyalty of the masses, regardless of their political affiliations.

Train Wreck In California

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—Two Santa Fe trains collided head-on at Mellon and three tramps were killed and several of the trainmen injured. The engines of both trains were crippled, one composite car was destroyed and another badly damaged. The passengers on both trains were shaken up, but all are said to have escaped serious injury.

Continued Obstinacy

New York, Aug. 1.—The Housesmiths and Bridgesmiths' union last night again rejected the employers' plan of arbitration, after the ultimatum of the Iron league, giving the men until Aug. 3 to return to work, had been read.

Wanted at Boston

New York, Aug. 1.—Detectives last night arrested Edward S. Gerry, a bookkeeper of Melrose, Mass., for alleged embezzlement of $2267 from the firm of Hyde & Wheeler of Boston.

BUMPED INTO LAUNCH

Torpedo Boat Craven Meets With Another Mishap Off Newport

Newport, R. I., Aug. 1.—The torpedo boat Craven, which had one of her boiler tubes disabled two weeks ago, scalding a watertender badly, had been at Coddington cove, where the submarine boat Protector was firing torpedoes. On her return run at a 7-knot speed the torpedo launch Breakers attempted to cross her bow. The Craven struck the launch amidships, opening her port side. The Breakers began to fill, but the crew of four men who stood by her caught a rope from the Craven and made it fast, thus enabling the torpedo boat to beach her and prevent her sinking. The McKee went down to Coddington cove later and towed the Breakers to the torpedo station, where she will be repaired. The accident is attributed to the failure of the Craven's reversing gear to work properly.

Crazed by Disappointment

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 1.—The husband of Ellen Roach, 25 years old, had been missing for some time, leaving her with a 5-months-old child, which she was unable to care for. Arrangements were being made to place the child in a charitable institution, and when the mother came home last night and was told that her child could not be admitted she was crazed and jumped from a three-story window, dying almost instantly.

Ericsson's Memory Honored

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 1.—Senator Hoar, Secretary of the Navy Moody, Governor Bates, Lieutenant Governor Guild, Mayor Fletcher and Dr. Andrews of Augustana college were among the speakers last night at the celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of John Ericsson, designer of the Monitor. The celebration was arranged by the Swedish people of the city in honor of the memory of their famous countryman.

Christian Alliance In Session

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 1.—The opening service of the Christian Alliance camp meeting was held last evening. The convention is under the leadership of Rev. Dr. A. B. Simpson, whose reputation as a raiser of funds for foreign missions is world-wide. The meetings will be continued until Aug. 10. The annual missionary collection will be taken the last Sunday in the convention.

Tinkering Cup Defender

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 1.—Reliance has been hauled alongside one of the boat shop piers in preparation for going over everything in detail such as spars, sails and parts of the hull, so that it is likely the craft will not have her departure for New Rochelle delayed beyond Tuesday next. An effort is to be made here to give the boat a better balance.

Has at Least Three Tails

New Haven, Aug. 1.—The astronomers at the Yale observatory have just made photographs of Borelli's comet which show that the comet has three tails instead of the two shown by previous observations. There are faint indications also of the presence of a fourth tail, but this has not yet been definitely determined.

Women In Runaway Accident

Winthrop, Mass., Aug. 1.—Mrs. A. Zion and a Miss Grenberg were thrown from a carriage on the boulevard at Winthrop beach by their horse becoming frightened and running away. Both women were insensible when picked up. Mrs. Zion was badly shocked and alarm is felt as to the result in her case.

Old Factory Changes Hands

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 1.—What is said to be the oldest shoe factory in the country, having been established in 1802 by Thomas Emerson, was sold here to Edward S. Sweetzer for $50. The factory was closed several weeks ago because of inability to compete with modern methods of shoemaking.

Quarrymen's Demands Granted

Stony Creek, Conn., Aug. 1.—The quarrymen who went on strike at Norcross Bros.' quarry several days ago have returned to work. The terms of the men have been acceded to by their employers and they will receive nine hours' pay for eight hours' work. The union has also been recognized.

Caused Loss of Over $1,000,000

Augusta, Me., Aug. 1.—From facts and figures sent to the office of Forest Commissioner Ring the loss to the state by the forest fires of the spring of 1903 practically was 277,495 acres, at an estimated money loss of $1,041,210, which was about 2 percent of the wooded area of the state.

Verdict In Portland Murder

Portland, Me., Aug. 1.—The coroner's jury reports that Giovanni Valento, who died from the effects of a blow on head from a beer bottle, received the fatal injury at the hands of Felice Manganiello. A circular offering $100 reward for the apprehension of Manganiello has been sent out.

A New World's Record

Boston, Aug. 1.—Basil DeGuichard established a new world's record for pace followers by riding 48 miles, 3 laps and 200 yards in an hour in the golden wheel race at Charles River park last night. There were three starters in the race.

Riot Starter Is Dead

Jeffersonville, Ind., Aug. 1.—Robert Lee, the negro who shot Policeman Louis Massey at Evansville July 3 and started the riot that resulted in the death and injury of many citizens, died last evening. Lee's wife was killed by a train a few days after the riot.

CARDINALS' CONCLAVE

Sixty-Two Prisoners Balloting For New Pope

RIVALRY AMONG ITALIANS

Makes the Question of Leo's Successor an Open One—Vatican's Policy May Change to Extent of Allowing Pontiff to Leave Its Precincts

Rome, Aug. 1.—The largest conclave in the history of the Roman Catholic church has now assembled in the Sistine chapel for the purpose of electing a successor to Leo XIII. Sixty-two cardinals, with over 200 clerical and lay attendants, are, to all intents and purposes, prisoners within the Vatican. One of them, Cardinal Herraro y Espinoza, archbishop of Valencia, was prostrated immediately after entering the conclave and lies ill in his cell.

This morning the cardinals entered upon the solemn duty of choosing the new pope by ballot. The general impression exists that within two or three days, possibly, though not probably, today, a new pope will have been chosen. But no matter how long a time may be required the absolute seclusion of the cardinals from the outer world must, according to the church law, continue until a choice is made.

Prognostications as to who will wear the tiara as Leo's successor have little value, as even the cardinals, who last evening entered their cells, seemed to be without definite ideas as to the issue. Cardinals Rampolla, Serafino, Vannutelli, Di Pietro, Gotti and Oreglia continue to be most frequently mentioned as the likeliest candidates, but the moment the name of one of them is mentioned a hundred reasons are supplied to show that he could not possibly be elected. So seldom have the majority of the cardinals now here met each other and so widely do they differ in nationality and personality that no organized movement in support of any one cardinal has thus far been practicable nor, in fact, seriously attempted. This does not apply to the Italian cardinals, who, naturally, are well acquainted with each other. With their numerical strength, the Italians could, if united, practically insure the election of a pontiff of their own choosing. It is the disunion and rivalry among the Italian cardinals which makes the question of Leo's successor an open one.

The rival claims of the leading Italian candidates, so freely ventilated in the local press, are matters which are all important in connection with the decision of the conclave because it is assumed, as a foregone conclusion, that the next occupant of the holy see will be an Italian. The foreign candidates have shown no indication of opposition to this assumption, but it is believed that the serious differences among the Italians must be reconciled before one of them can be elected.

More interesting, perhaps, in a certain way, is the impression which prevails in certain sections that no matter what the verdict of the conclave may be, great changes are impending in the policy of the Vatican and that within a year or two the new pope will no longer consider himself a prisoner in the Vatican, but will, unlike Leo, leave its precincts whenever necessary.

Until the conclave is ended 700 Italian troops will remain in the piazza of St. Peter's and 150 will be stationed in the piazza of St. Mark. Mounted carbineers and policemen will patrol the walls of the Vatican. The gardens and streets adjacent to the Vatican will be watched day and night by four detachments of guards, while an extra force of police will do duty in the streets of the Borgo district and the bridges leading into it. In the barracks will remain 600 troops subject to emergency call. Judging by the small crowds and the perfect order there appears to be little use for these precautions.

Cardinal Steinhuber was in an accident which almost prevented him from being able to join the conclave. While driving rapidly toward the Vatican one of the wheels of his carriage became caught in the rails of one of the tram lines and the carriage was wrecked. The front wheel gave way, but the cardinal escaped with a severe shaking up. A man who was passing surrendered his carriage to the cardinal, who was thus enabled to reach the Vatican before the door was closed.

The Italie declares that the note to the powers drafted by the congregation of cardinals contains a stronger protest against the condition of the papacy than did the note of 1878 and dashes to the ground the hopes of those who have been looking for a reconciliation between the Vatican and the quirinal. Too much reliance, however, must not be placed on The Italie's statement.

Minister Lunches With Admiral

Lisbon, Aug. 1.—Admiral Cotton gave a luncheon on board the flagship Brooklyn to United States Minister Bryan and the members of his family. A number of the officers of the squadron were present. Several of the American officers made a trip to Cintra and took dinner there.

Morgan Takes More Taylor Holdings

New York, Aug. 1.—J. P. Morgan & Co. have purchased the Keene-Taylor holdings in the North American company, estimated at 18,000 shares. A large part of the stock was bought in the open market, following the Taylor failure. The balance was taken in private sale.

A GALLANT RESCUE

Of Thirteen Seamen Who Had Clung to Capsized Vessel For Three Days

Philadelphia, Aug. 1.—After clinging to their capsized vessel for three days, in midocean, the crew of the Italian bark Vermont, bound from Genoa for St. Johns, in ballast, was rescued by the French tank steamer Le Lion and brought here. The shipwrecked crew consisted of Captain Marina and 12 men. The sailors were in an exhausted condition from exposure when picked up.

The Vermont encountered heavy weather after leaving Genoa, but all went well until Thursday of last week, when she ran into a heavy gale. The bark was weathering the storm well when her ballast shifted and she rolled over on her side. The crew had just time enough to secure a bag of biscuits and some water before she careened on her beam ends. The men were about to abandon the vessel when it was decided to stick to her. Then for three days the little band of men clung to the capsized vessel, hoping to be taken off and thus avoid the risk of living in a row boat on the rough sea. On Sunday night the bark turned completely over and the crew took to a small boat. Rockets had been sent up but no one was seen until early Monday morning, when the Frenchman hove in sight.

Captain Ertand saw the distress signal and in response to his call for volunteers the entire crew responded to go to the rescue. Captain Ertand selected four men to undertake the dangerous task, as the sea was very heavy. The volunteer crew reached the shipwrecked men after a struggle and finally got them all on board the steamer.

Engineer Stuck to His Post

Battle Creek, Mich., Aug. 1.—Fireman Butterfield and Engineer Kroll were in charge of a freight engine between here and Augusta when the flue split. Butterfield jumped, but Engineer Kroll crawled through the cab window and clung to the outside of the engine until he could stop the train. With the cab full of steam, the strain on the clinging engineer was terrible. The fireman is in a critical condition, but the engineer is apparently unhurt.

Preachers Are Long Lived

Princeton, N. J., Aug. 1.—A report of the Theological Seminary Alumni association shows that the average minister's life comes close to the three score and ten mark. Of the 41 ministers who have died during the past year one had reached 96 years, 8 months, two had passed their 90th year, five their 80th, 14 their 70th, and six their 60th. The youngest died at 29. The average of the 41 was 68 years.

American Challenger Outsailed

Montreal, Aug. 1.—In a good, strong breeze, Thorella, the defender in the Seawanhaka races, ran away from the Kolutoo, the American challenger. Thorella had shot up into the wind with the race won before the Yankee boat had rounded the leeward buoy on the last turn. Kolutoo came down the last free leg alone, crossing the line 19 minutes and 36 seconds after the Thorella.

Attack on Washington Condemned

Tuskegee, Ala., Aug. 1.—A resolution was adopted here by the Alabama state colored Baptist convention severely condemning the attack made on Booker T. Washington during his address at Boston. The resolution pledges confidence and endorsement of Washington as a "conservative, worthy and safe leader, deserving of the respect and confidence of all men."

Non-Union Men Used Guns

McKeesport, Pa., Aug. 1.—The most serious disturbance of the many that have occurred since the inauguration of the strike at the Port Vue tin mill took place last evening. During the progress of the riot one man was fatally injured and another was shot so that he will be crippled for life. A crowd closed in on two non-union men and they fired into the crowd.

☞Cassius M. Clay was a good specimen of the unterrified southerner. Nothing ever frightened him in all his life. Perhaps he did not always turn his courage to the best account, but he had courage and to spare.—New Bedford Standard.

CHAS. C. HEARN'S ENTERPRISE

Scores a New Mark in Special Price Plan.

When Chas. C. Hearn the popular druggist, induced the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half price introductory offer on their celebrated cure for dyspepsia and constipation, there were many expressions of enviable praise.

Today Mr. Chas. C. Hearn scores a new mark, for he has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to allow him to continue, for a limited time, selling their regular fifty cent specific, sixty pills in a bottle, at half price, 25 cents.

In addition to selling a month's treatment for a quarter of a dollar. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn announces that he will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells, to refund the money if it does not cure.

Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia is not a mere aid to digestion; it is a scientific remedy that makes permanent cures of the worst cases of constipation and dyspepsia. The dose is small, and it is very pleasant to take.

Mr. Chas C. Hearn's enterprise in securing this remarkable reduction from the Dr. Howard Co. has resulted in making their specific the best selling medicine in his store. He hopes any who have not tried it will take advantage of this offer at once, for he does not know how long he will be able to sell the remedy at half price. Remember that if it does not cure, even your half price payment will be refunded.

OUR FASHION LETTER.

Lace Collars Are a Feature of Dressy Tailor Mades.

BLACK AND WHITE COSTUMES.

They Are Now Considered Exceedingly Smart—Debutantes' Frocks of Painted Chiffon—The Summer Millinery Fashions.

The short pelerine or collar of beautiful lace is a feature of the more dressy tailor mades. A smart frock designed recently was of a soft white fabric, a very superior kind of cashmere, with a pelerine of deep ecru point lace. A beautiful panel of the lace was carried down the skirt and formed a deep, full flounce. The rest of the skirt was closely gauged from the waist to the knees.

Ever so smart was a white serge made with a series of seven flounces beginning three or four inches below the waist and very full at the feet. Each of these flounces had a border of black spots of different sizes. These spots also formed a trimming on the smart coat bodice, which was finished with a yoke of beautiful lace having a lining of rose pink. With this was a hat of simple black, the only decoration being a wreath of old rose velvet pansies. The white parasol was ornamented with black spots.

The black and white costume is the very essence of smartness. With all of these dressy costumes a three-quarter coat of black silk is desirable, the latter plentifully enriched with lace.

For uncertain weather a costume of silk and wool crape is smart, light and yet not too cool. Many delicate tones of gray are in favor, and lace is universally employed as the chief trimming, but there are as well all sorts of additions, such as tassels, strappings and little tabs of panne or velvet.

The illustration shows a costume of black and white silk velvet and venetian lace.

ALWAYS USEFUL GOWNS.

Very effective debutante frocks are made of painted chiffon over underskirts of a contrasting color.

A gown composed of pale blue chiffon, painted with a pompadour design of pink rose, was mounted over a fine plaited accordion skirt in pale green, worn with sash of old rose panne, caught up high in the back with some fancy blue enameled buttons. With this was worn a fichu tied together with a bunch of La France roses.

One can never dispense with the useful black gown or something of a dark order. A bright shade of blood red is extremely effective in the evening when it happens to suit. One great advantage of a gown of this sort is that it comes in well for an afternoon reception frock. It may also do duty for quiet dinners and traveling. A dress of this sort may be worn twenty times as often as a paler one.

The cut shows a tailor made dress of deep red canvas.

UTILITY SUITS AND HATS.

Shirt waist suits of foulard continue to be worn. The favorite color is a deep blue black with tiny white markings.

Utility hats of ecru straw tilt up in front and are simply trimmed by the addition of a veil of lace or brown chiffon.

Stamped nets of which the ground is white and the pattern of some delicate color make ideal dancing frocks for summer wear and even for simple occasions in winter.

The gown of black point d'esprit will always be worn by the well dressed woman. It is inexpensive and gives the airy effect of a far more expensive creation. A gown of black point d'esprit banded with chantilly lace—and it need not be expensive lace either—makes an ideal frock worn over a lining of soft, lustrous silk.

Blouses of black chiffon and black antique lace are very smart. The neck and sometimes the upper halves of the sleeves are made transparent, and a waist of this sort worn with a crepe de chine skirt makes a smart demitoilet.

The picture represents a blouse of the above description made of chiffon and embroidered antique lace.

MILLINERY NOTES.

Some very picturesque 1820 hats are being introduced in chip and chiffon, and indeed several are composed entirely of lace. They are very large, with strings, and therefore very closely resemble the picture hat finished with a single feather and a rose.

The best hats are still of the Gainsborough type in fine chip, in black, white and pale shades. Some are simply trimmed with wonderful choux of ribbon and an equally wonderful rosette, while the others have a long, sweeping feather. These hats are very distinctive, but not to be ranked among economical head gear.

An all black hat is a necessity with the up to date woman, but she can relieve the somberness of this if she chooses by applications of ecru lace.

French sailor hats of rough straw are worn with pale tinted veils of chiffon, a delicate blue and lavender being the newest thing.

An exquisite robe is of plisse crepe de chine in a creamy tint, and over this falls a tunic of black chantilly lace, applique with lozenge shaped motifs of ivory d'alencon lace. The bolero—of the black lace—is heavily incrusted with ivory lace, and the neck is cut low to show a transparent yoke of ivory lace, fastened with straps of narrow green velvet and diamond buttons. A broad belt of the velvet shows beneath the short bolero. Several gowns of nut brown crape and chiffon have been seen, one of which had a pronounced admixture of apricot yellow, while another was liberally applied with champagne tinted lace and had slight touches of orchid pink panne.

The dressy hat in the cut is of fine white chip trimmed with black velvet and a white feather.

JUDIC CHOLLET.

HISTORY OF THE VATICAN

Famous Residence of the Pope and His Court.

VAST PALACE OF MANY ROOMS.

Designed to Be the Greatest Christian Structure of Its Kind, It Covers an Area of About Thirteen Acres and Has Eight Grand Staircases—The Pope Has Only Three Rooms, Furnished Very Simply.

Four centuries and a half have passed since it came into the mind of Pope Nicholas V. to make the Vatican the largest and most beautiful palace of the Christian world, says the New York Herald. He planned to include within its walls all the offices of the papal government. Every cardinal was to be housed within its precincts. But little was accomplished by this pope toward the fulfillment of his purpose. All that he saw finished was the Tower of Borgia and a private chapel.

Nearly every succeeding pope has added something to the building of the Vatican until it has become an immense pile of irregular architecture descriptive of the successive pontificates and telling of the individual characters and tastes of the various popes who inhabited the palace long enough to leave some impression of their own. After the popes retired from Avignon they found their former residence on the Lateran hill in ruins and adopted the Vatican in its stead in order to obtain the greater security given by the Castle of St. Angelo, close at hand, a covered gallery connecting the palace and the fortress along the north line of the Leonine wall.

Alexander VI. constructed what is known as the old palace, called the Appartamenti Borgia, and to this part Sixtus IV. added in 1474 the Sixtine chapel. The Belvedere was erected by Innocent VIII. in 1490, and Julius II. united the Belvedere to the palace by the celebrated loggie. To Julius II. the Vatican is indebted for the beginning of the museum, and its foundations were laid in the gardens of the Belvedere under his initiation. After his death Leo X. completed the loggie, employing Raphael to direct the work.

By 1600 the section of the palace was completed which includes the ordinary residence of the pope. It is the most conspicuous portion of the mass of buildings rising above the piazza of St. Peter. The loggie were inclosed in glass by Pius IX., thus protecting from the weather the frescoes of Raphael, and in the course of his long reign he made many improvements in the picture galleries.

The special work by which Leo XIII. left his mark on the Vatican was the decoration of the Gallery of Candelabra with frescoes by Seitz, with a pavement of precious marbles and antique statuary from recent excavations, while he built a reading room for students in the Vatican library and a new wing for printed books, further conferring an immense boon on foreign students by throwing open the Vatican archives and providing them with accommodation.

The celebrated staircase, the Scala Regia, was constructed by Bernini under Urban VIII. Subsequent popes built the range of apartments for the Museo Pio Clementino and the Egyptian and Etruscan museums. The fourth side of the Cortele di San Damaso was closed by Pius IX., who reconstructed the great staircase leading from the arcades of the piazza into the court.

Altogether the Vatican palace covers an area of about thirteen and one-half acres, of which about six are occupied by the twenty courts, and contains perhaps a thousand halls, chapels, saloons and private apartments, the greater part of which are occupied by collections and showrooms, a comparatively small part of the building being set apart for the papal court.

The length of the palace is 1,151 feet and its breadth 767. It has eight grand staircases. The principal entrance to the Vatican is at the end of the right colonnade of St. Peter's, where a door on the right opens upon the staircase leading to the Cortile di Damaso. The famous Sixtine chapel, which figures so prominently in connection with a pope's death and the election of his successor, was formerly hung on festivals with the tapestries executed from the cartoons of Raphael. The upper portion is decorated in fresco by the great Florentine masters of the fifteenth century. On the pillar between the windows are the figures of twenty-eight popes by Sandro Botticelli. The vast fresco of "The Last Judgment" occupied Michael Angelo seven years and was finished in 1541 under Paul III.

Only those strangers admitted to a special audience ever see the small portion of the Vatican inhabited by the pope. The three rooms occupied by the pontiff are furnished with the utmost simplicity. They consist of the bare green saloon, the red saloon, containing a throne flanked by benches, and the bedroom, with yellow draperies, a large writing table and a few pictures by old masters.

From the windows of the Egyptian museum one can look down upon the inner garden of the Vatican known as the Giardino della Pigna, from the famous Pigna, a gigantic fur cone, said once to have crowned the summit of the mausoleum of Hadrian.

The garden was the second great quadrangle of the Vatican, planted with shrubs and flowers under Pius IX., but has been neglected for many years. From the outer courtyard one enters the larger garden, but as this was constantly used by the pope admittance was gained to it only as a matter of the rarest privilege. Pope Pius IX. used to ride here on his white mule.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ There are other towns and cities where high explosives are in use, and the casualty should impress upon the authorities the necessity of caution.—Lynn Item.

☞ Locking the stable door after the steed is stolen does not amount to much, but the moral of the Lowell explosion seems to be: Do not allow the manufacture or deposit of explosive materials in quantities anywhere within several miles of a city or thickly settled region.—Portland Press.

☞ The fundamental remedy, both for the mobs, on the one hand, and for the offenses which provoke the mobs, on the other, is to be found in a better and more thorough education. The negro offenders upon whom the violence of mobs is visited, come, as a rule from the most ignorant and degraded class. It is not true, as is often asserted, that the criminal class of negroes is largely recruited from the better-instructed half of the race. It is the ignorant class, white and black, that chiefly supplies the violent criminal element; and it is the ignorant class, white and black, that is most easily incited to mob violence. The right kind of education will train the children of the more unfortunate classes of our population, not merely in such arts as reading and writing, but also in sound ideas about work and citizenship.—Review of Reviews.

☞ There is a great deal of valuable time wasted in hurrying! This is especially true as regards the man who travels. The tourist who sees "Rome in twenty minutes," and Venice and Florence in a like space of time sees nothing. A week at Niagara will no more than begin to reveal the whole story of the great cataract. It requires a month to really get acquainted with the Adirondacks—and then only in a casual way. New York City and its immediate environment will furnish a year's varied, profitable and fascinating entertainment to a man who is alive to the beauties and realities of life, and who appreciates the historic and the artistic. If you have but a limited time at your disposal do not attempt to see the whole earth in a week. See just a little of it, and see that little well. It is a waste of time to only half do a thing.—From "The World's Progress," in Four-Track News for August.

Souvenir Number.

The Old Home Week festivities at Weymouth were reported at length in the Gazette, some of the addresses being given in full. There were also several illustrations, and it was altogether a newsy number and a souvenir.

Higher Tax Rates.

The tax rate of Somerville is $17.20, an increase of 80 cents; and the Worcester rate is $17.60, an increase of $1.60.

NOT GUILTY.

A Decision Reached in the Intimidation Case.

Judge Avery rendered his finding this morning in the case of Charles L. Bean, secretary of the local Carpenters' Union, who was given a hearing some weeks ago upon a complaint of W. F. Steadman, for intimidation of workmen. The complaint alleged that in consequence of a letter written by Bean two of Steadman's carpenters left his employ.

The evidence at the hearing was that Bean wrote the men a letter, in which the men were requested to leave Steadman's employ unless he signed the bill of prices or agreement. This he refused to do and the men left.

Steadman also testified that in a conversation with Bean, the latter had stated in reply to question that if the men did not do as they had been requested they would be expelled from the union.

The court, in giving its finding, said that there was no evidence to show that Bean had any conversation with the men after the letter was sent, and therefore the letter was the only evidence of a threat. That there was nothing in the letter that came within the legal meaning of a threat.

The court therefore could not find that there had been any intimidation within the meaning of the law, and found Bean not guilty.

WEYMOUTH HIGH.

Reunion a Pleasing Feature of Old Home Week.

It was a happy thought of the Old Home Week committee of Weymouth to have a reunion of High school graduates. Yesterday was special day for this purpose, and the 50th anniversary of the school and a memorable day for many.

The exercises were held at the school building at 4.30. President Charles J. Lincoln of Dorchester gave the address of welcome. Edwin R. Sampson spoke of the advance in High school work, and Supt. Balliet of Springfield spoke of "The Public High School." Music was interspersed.

At 6.30 there was a banquet, and in the evening, election of officers, historical address by John J. Loud, and remarks by others, interspersed with music, and a poem, the latter by Irville M. Davidson.

Dr. John H. Ash of West Quincy was one of the speakers. The new president is Bates Torrey.

Sojourning in Maine.

The following persons, many of whom are well known to our readers, are at Wiscasset, Maine.

Miss Mary A. Stone, South Easton; Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hopkins, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Given and daughters, Geneva and Beatrice, William J. Teel, wife and daughter Mabel, of Hamilton street, Norfolk Downs; Mr. and Mrs. Alva W. Polk and son Hadley, of Beach street, Wollaston; and Mrs. Sarah A. Metcalf of Hamilton street, Norfolk Downs; and Miss Mattie W. Brown, Boston, are sojourning at Mrs. Joseph Sylvester's Wiscasset, on the Sheepscot river, Me.

Capt. W. D. Given and W. J. Teel sailed down the coast in the sloop Beatrice to Wiscasset, leaving Wollaston Yacht Club 8.15 P. M. Friday and arriving at Wiscasset Sunday 10 P. M., anchoring Saturday night two miles off Cape Elizabeth, riding out a thunder squall safely.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Charles Goss, one of the best known citizens of Amesbury, Mass., is dead, aged 62. He was formerly engaged in carriage manufacturing and had served in the legislature.

Reginald H. Ward has been appointed Roumanian consul in London. Ward is a Bostonian and a great grandson of General Artemus Ward of Revolutionary war fame.

Aaron W. Ware, a farmer, was found dead hanging from a beam in his barn at Barre, Mass. He had also taken poison. He had occasional spells of despondency.

Edmund Fitzpatrick, a one-legged cobbler, died at Uxbridge, Mass., from the effects of a dose of poison. He had been fined $10 and was given 30 days to pay in. The time was nearly up and he didn't have the money.

Second Handicap class — Widow, Clarisse, Jacobin, Ann.

Vacation Resorts.

Puzzling indeed is the vacation question to the person who is about to select a resort to rusticate in. New England, of course, is the mecca, but then New England covers a large area, and it is impossible to visit at one and the same time the forests and lakes of Maine, the beautiful sea coast, the delightful White Mountains of New Hampshire or the verdant hills of Vermont and beautiful valleys and meadows of Massachusetts. However, a choice must be made and that right quickly, for the summer does not last long, and the tardy chooser is apt to see a little white frost before he settles on his resort.

Now, before starting, prepare yourself and do it properly. There is just one necessity, one guide, that is all, the "Tourist 1903 Book" published by the Boston & Maine Passenger Department, Boston. This book contains a list of resorts in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Eastern New York and Canada. It gives all the hotels at these resorts, railroad rates, accommodations, etc. This book will be sent free.

If you have not any resort in mind, just consider that section of New Hampshire known as the "Monadnock Region," a charming elysium where mountains and hills and verdant meadows send forth cooling breezes which waft over the valley of the Monadnock like a perfumed breath. Forest covered hills and high mountain tops abound such as "Joe English," Monadnock," etc. Beautiful townships famous for their past history as well as their present beauty. "Hilford," "Amherst," "Ponemah Springs," "Peterboro," "Jaffrey," etc.; enterprising cities but the less desirable as summering sections such as Keene, etc., such is the "Monadnock Region."

An idea of the surpassing elegance of this scenic portion of New Hampshire can be gleaned from the publication "The Monadnock Region." This book will be mailed together with the Hotel Book for two cents in stamps by the General Passenger Department, Boston & Maine Railroad, Boston.

Ericsson Centennial.

A notable gathering assembled in Mechanics hall, Worcester, last evening when the united Swedish Societies of the city celebrated the 100th anniversary of the birth of John Ericsson, the designer and builder of the famous Monitor. It was a most enthusiastic audience and it rose to its feet with hearty applause when the speakers filed upon the platform. This mark of respect was repeated when Senator Hoar, Gov. Bates and Secretary of the Navy Moody were presented. Homes in the city were decorated in Swedish colors in honor of the event.

Lawson in Port.

The seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson, Capt. McLean, from Newport News with 8050 tons of coal, was towed into Boston late last night by the tugs Mercury and Juno, which picked her up off Chatham yesterday morning. She anchored in the lower harbor and will later be docked at Liverpool wharf to discharge her great cargo.

Another Dance Hall.

Next season the Coliseum will be opened again for dancing. We understand that Elmer W. Baker has leased it and besides holding his classes and assemblies there proposes to let it nights when he is not using it for dances, fairs, and entertainments.

The building is very large, 80 by 180, and the dance hall at present is 58 by 112 feet, with large wings for seats, and a large smoking room. A supper room, ladies' and gents' parlors and check room. The floor is well laid and takes a good polish. There are a great many of the older dancers who remember all about the hall and what large parties it has accommodated. The present occupant, W. G. Shaw expects to be in his new quarters about the first of September.

A CHILD LIFE EXPOSITION.

To Be Held Next Fall Under Royal Auspices In Russia.

Through the Russian Consul General Lodygensky announcement was made recently of an international exposition to be held next fall in the imperial palace of Tauride at St. Petersburg, says the New York Post. The undertaking is to be called the Child's World and, according to Consul General Lodygensky, will be under the patronage of her majesty Dowager Empress Mary Fedorovna. Associated with the organization is Privy Councillor Timiriazeff, assistant minister of finance, as well as Commissioner General Billbassoff and his assistant, Zeime.

Consul General Lodygensky has asked the American Institute of Social Service to assist in the organization of the American committee, which is to co-operate in the undertaking.

There will be assembled at the Child's World everything from the various countries concerning the moral, physical and intellectual education of childhood and youth. There will be a complete picture of child life from birth to school days—nourishment, dress instruction, physical and moral education and in fact all the surroundings of the early years of life.

The President to Play Cricket.

President Roosevelt is about to take up cricket as an antidote for listlessness, says the New York World. The sport offers peculiar attractions to a man devoting the time and attention he does to sports. For some time back he has studied overhand bowling and guarding of wickets, and the Huntington (N. Y.) Manor club, near the president's home, will see his debut on the cricket field. Several of his friends have been instructed by a British professional and the first match between picked teams of the home club is being looked forward to by the president and his neighbors. President Roosevelt is credited with being a good player for a beginner.

—Chairman S. Newton Cutler, of the school board, in a recent address to graduates, quoted some interesting figures in regard to education and earning power. Every child in Massachusetts, he said, receives an average of seven years' schooling, while each child in the United States at large receives only four and three-tenths years of school instruction. The average earning power of each man, woman, and child in Massachusetts is seventy-three cents per day, while for the whole United States it is only forty cents. This excess of thirty-three cents per day means $100 a year for each person, and $275,000,000 a year for the whole state, or twenty-three times the annual expense for the support of the public schools, or eighteen times the annual expense for support and buildings.—Somerville Journal.

THE SLUMP IN STOCKS

Wall Street Situation Summarized by Horace White.

FALL WAS INEVITABLE, HE SAYS

Well Known Writer on Financial Topics Believes Bull Movement Mystified All In the Stock Exchange Until Men Responsible Were Revealed—Then Every One Tried to Buy.

Horace White, a well known New York writer on financial topics, who has a summer cottage at York Harbor, Me., was asked the other evening as to his opinion of the cause of the recent slump in stocks, says the New York Herald.

"Looking back at the bull movement," he said, "which carried prices of securities to such a height that a corresponding fall became inevitable at some time, it will be remembered that Wall street was for a long time completely mystified by it. Nobody knew who was under the market till months afterward. It was eventually discovered that the lifting power was supplied chiefly by J. P. Morgan and J. J. Hill on the one side and by E. H. Harriman and Kuhn, Loeb & Co. on the other.

"The movement began with an attempt on the part of the former to acquire the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad as an annex to the Northern Pacific and Great Northern roads by purchases in the open market. That move, though it failed in its main object, supplied a great lifting power to the market. The operators and the public generally, being ignorant of the purposes which lay behind it and not knowing who furnished the steam for it, concluded that it was a sign of general prosperity and hence that it was a good time to buy stocks. So they turned and bought also. It was impossible to boom St. Paul in such a fashion without booming other properties more or less.

"This was only the beginning of the boom, however. When Morgan and Hill found that the control of St. Paul could not be bought in the open market they turned their attention to Burlington and adopted better tactics. They went to the large holders of the stock, mostly Boston men, and negotiated with them. At the same time the buying of Burlington shares was continued on the Stock Exchange.

"The upward movement of the latter excited the suspicion of the Union Pacific people—Harriman, Schiff and others. They soon found out what was in the wind and, as it was too late to prevent Morgan and Hill from getting control of Burlington, they set out to acquire Northern Pacific. The speculators and the public generally were as ignorant of the causes of the upward movement in Burlington and Northern Pacific as they had been of that of St. Paul. They ascribed these also to the general waste of prosperity and were confirmed in their opinion that it was a good time to buy stocks.

"The word was passed around that you couldn't make a mistake in buying anything. This was really believed by many of the old and most cautious operators on the exchange. Advantage was taken of the speculation craze to launch swindling projects on the credulous investing people or lift prices to an abnormal height in swindles previously launched.

"When the Northern Pacific corner broke the stocks that had been bought at the prevailing prices were mostly in strong hands. They did not fall to their former level, but it was pretty certain that they would do so some time. That time seems to have come.

"The fact that certain railroads of the first rank, such as the Pennsylvania, the New York Central and the Burlington, have negotiated or are seeking vast loans seems to me to be the immediate cause of the recent tumble in prices. Whatever money they take out of the boom market they take from other borrowers, and chiefly from those who are carrying stocks on margins. The banks must take care of their mercantile customers first, and, when it becomes necessary to choose between different classes of borrowers they will first call on the speculators to pay up.

"The railroad demands mentioned are deemed essential as being a part of the country's growth, already too long neglected. The general business of the country, too, must be kept going. Those who are carrying more stocks than they can pay for must accordingly suffer if there is really a shortage of loanable funds.

"These are inferences which I draw from reading the course of events in Wall street, but I do not pretend to have any special knowledge."

As to the business outlook of the country generally Mr. White said:

"The general business of the country is in my judgment sound. I think it will not be affected by the decline in stocks."

Leo Sleeps.

Rest came, as to an infant tired with play,
Most calm and sweet. Sublimer the repose
Of Leo than of other kings whose sway
Left marks of blood; for virtue's shining snows,

Falling through busy years, did him invest
With reverent distinction, such as grows
Upon the eye when, looking down the west,
It sees one sunlit peak outsoar the rest.

A lion he, but lamb steadfastly mild;
Fearless and patient through the harried years;
How worn he must have been! His love endears
Him to the world. That bier with honors piled
Has still a place for our deep grief, our tears.
Sleep on, O Leo, even as a child.
—Lawrence MacDonald Sarsfield in Pittsburg Dispatch.

WORK AND LOOK YOUNG.

You Will Succeed if Your Heart Is In Your Labor.

Is it hard work that makes people grow old or is it because they do not have enough to do, or, rather, do not find the thing they are best fitted to do?

The hardest worked people in the world are the actresses, yet some of them, without mentioning names, are sixty and some play the parts of lovers and boisterous young tomboys at an even greater age.

The Americans are the hardest worked people in the world, yet foreigners call us a young looking nation. Nothing makes a people look so young as liberty. There is none of the cramped, caste restricted blight upon our people that is seen in Europe. The oldest looking people in the world are not those who have worked hardest, but those who have not worked at all. If one would see them he wants to go to the fashionable watering places. There he will see comparatively young men and women who have never worked, either with body or mind, driven around in bath chairs or hobbling about on canes, while men absorbed in business are often quite robust at seventy.

Where hard work ever killed a man laziness and inaction have killed a score. It is the class that feels above work that nature has little use for. Work and look young!—Boston Globe.

The Rock That Moses "Smote."

The famous "Rock in Horeb," anciently called the "Rock of Massah" and at present known throughout the orient as the "Stone of the Miraculous Fountain," being the identical rock which Moses struck with his rod in order to give water to the children of Israel, is religiously preserved and guarded even down to this late date. Dr. Shaw in his book "Shaw's Travels" says, "It is a block of granite about six yards square lying tottering and loose in the middle of the valley of Rephidim and seems to have originally been a part of Mount Sinai."

The action of the waters of that miraculous fountain, as related in the seventeenth chapter of Exodus, hollowed a channel about two inches deep and more than twice that broad across the face of the rock, this not upon unsupported testimony, but upon the word of such men as the Rev. Dr. Shaw, Dr. Pocock, Lieutenant Clogher and other eminent scholars and travelers. M. Beaumgorton, a German nobleman who visited the "Rock of Horeb" in the year 1507, declares his belief in the generally accepted story of it being the rock of Moses' famous fountain.

Famous Moated Houses.

The moat which so often surrounded halls and castles in the old days is now generally dry and filled up, but some remarkable specimens still remain. Perhaps the finest example of a moated house is Helmingham Hall, the seat of Lord Tollemache, in Suffolk, about eight miles from Ipswich. The drawbridge still remains, and it has been raised every night for more than 300 years, the ancient precaution being observed even though the need for it has long passed by. The moat which surrounds Leeds castle, near Maidstone, is so wide that it may almost be called a lake. The ancient Episcopal palace at Wells is surrounded by walls which inclose nearly seven acres of ground and by a moat which is supplied with water from St. Andrew's well. A venerable bridge spans the moat, giving access through a tower gateway to the outer court.—London Standard.

Life After Death.

A German biologist has been investigating the question of the activity of animal bodies after death and has published some suggestive conclusions. It appears that death is not instantaneous throughout the physical organism, for it has been observed that many of the different tissues continue active for a considerable period after the time when the animal is assumed to be dead, particularly in the case of the lower animals. Cells from the brain of a frog, for example, have been kept alive for over a week when held in certain solutions, and the heart of a frog has been known to beat for many hours after being removed from the dead body. The hearts of turtles and snakes will beat for days or even a week after death.—Harper's Weekly.

One Was Enough.

"You love my daughter?" said the old man.

"Love her!" he exclaimed passionately. "Why, I could die for her! For one soft glance from those sweet eyes I would hurl myself from yonder cliff and perish, a bleeding, bruised mass, upon the rocks 200 feet below!"

The old man shook his head.

"I'm something of a liar myself," he said, "and one is enough for a small family like mine."

His Bad Memory.

"I suppose," said the condoling neighbor, "that you will erect a handsome monument to your husband's memory?"

"To his memory!" echoes the tearful widow. "Why, poor John hadn't any. I was sorting over some of the clothes he left today and found the pockets full of letters I had given him to mail."

Heated.

Jones—Wonder what made Mrs. Sutton look so heated when she picked up that photograph from her husband's office desk?

Jaynes—Good reason for becoming heated. It was one of his old flames, you know.—Boston Transcript.

Betting Philosophy.

"Do you think that betting is wrong?"

"It depends on circumstances," answered the town oracle. "If you can't afford to lose it's wrong; if you can it's merely silly."—St. Louis Lumberman.

THE ADVENTURE OF A HOODOO

By Howard Fielding

....Copyright, 1902, by C. W. Hooke....

MR. WESTCOTT'S white hair had the effect of a wig that has not been put on straight. The parting was twisted around over his left ear; there was a tangled mass across his forehead, and in the region of the right ear the hair came down smoothly, as it usually does on the back of a man's head.

He was tall, thin and angular; his face was long and narrow, but he had a way of shutting it up like an accordion when he compressed his lips. Yet he was a kindly man, and most people in the little city of Millbridge did him justice in this particular. He was president of the Westcott Manufacturing company, which made all sorts of things out of aluminium.

To him in his office entered Frank Miller, just off the train from New York. He was twenty-eight years old, of good height and figure and handsome in a somewhat melancholy, light blond fashion. He had been a boy in Millbridge, and his father had been a long time friend of old Sam Westcott.

The instant that Miller appeared Mr. Westcott began to get out of his chair awkwardly, like a figure made of strips of wood jointed with pegs.

He made quite a business of taking the young man's overcoat and hanging it up on one of a line of pegs, remarking as he did so that the strap which was upon the garment for that purpose looked as if it might break at any moment.

"It will hold," said Miller with a quick downward glance. "The floor's clean."

Westcott had turned and was about to sit down. He stopped suddenly as if the pegs in his wooden joints had stuck, and thus he remained for some seconds suspended over the chair in a seemingly impossible attitude. Then he gently subsided, laughing silently.

"That's your father all over again," said he. "The strap is waiting until it finds a dirty place to drop the coat; then it will break. Well, he was right; he was right. His luck was just as bad as he said it was. I knew him fifty years."

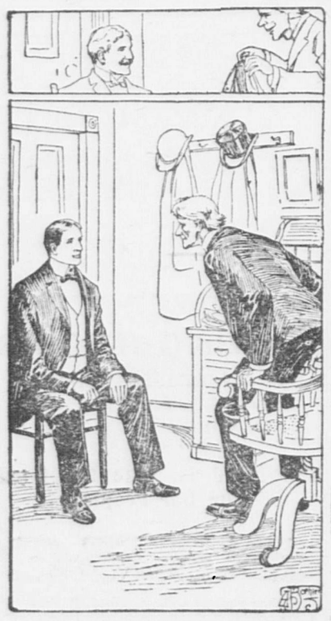

"It passed on to me," rejoined Miller. "I wish I might have inherited his virtues also."

There was a long silence, during which the lean old man stared steadily, though dreamily, at his visitor.

"Well, well," said he at last. "Let's get down to business. You have looked into this patent? You've seen the thing work, eh? You've investigated the men?"

"Yes, sir," replied Miller firmly, "and I'm prepared to say that it's a good thing."

"I think so myself," said Westcott, with his elbows on the arms of his big chair and the tips of his fingers pressed together. "I think so myself. By the way, they've promised you a stock interest, I suppose?"

HE REMAINED FOR SOME SECONDS SUSPENDED OVER THE CHAIR.

Miller flushed, but he answered without hesitation that such was the case.

"Contingent upon my putting up the money, of course," said Westcott.

"Do you believe," said Miller earnestly, "that I—that my father's son—would be led by such a consideration or by any consideration whatever to recommend an investment to you unless it seemed absolutely sound?"

"No, sir; I don't," responded Westcott, bringing his lips together so firmly that his countenance was shortened by at least 40 per cent. "If I had, you never would have heard about this thing."

The thing referred to was a patented process for the extraction of aluminium from clay. It had been brought to Mr. Westcott's attention by his cashier, John Tower, whose brother in New York had secured the control of it. If the process was worth anything at all it was worth a good deal of money, and Mr. Westcott had immediately begun an investigation which was necessarily hasty because Reginald Tower, the brother referred to, had only an option on the patent, which must be made good by the payment of the purchase price in full before a certain date.

"I knew that you'd studied chemistry," continued Westcott. "You were connected with a chemical concern in New York, and, moreover, my son, I heard that you were honest, thoroughly honest and reliable, like your father. When this thing came up and had to be decided in a hurry I couldn' think of a better man than yourself. That's why I wrote to ask you to look into it."

"I'm not an expert, and, as for my connection with a chemical company, I'm only the office cashier at twenty bones a week. I might as well be in a dry goods store for all the chemistry I see. However," he added, "I got a leave of absence for a few days and looked into this business for you as well as I could. I've got a careful written report on it."

"If this goes through," said Westcott, "and proves to be a good thing you ought to be fixed for life. I'll see that you get the stock that has been promised you, and it ought to be a nice big block. It's no small thing to get $150,000 capital into a business proposition at twenty days' notice."

"I'm glad you look at it that way," returned Miller. "It's time the luck turned in my favor. I've had a hard struggle so far. The golden apples turn to dust as soon as I touch them."

Westcott shook his head very slowly.

"The longer I look at you," he said reflectively, "the more clearly I perceive your resemblance to your father. But that's neither here nor there," he added. "I'm glad you've got a report in writing. Leave it with me, like a good fellow, and come in again this afternoon. You're staying at the hotel, eh? Well, well; you ought to have gone right to my house."

"I'm at a boarding house," replied Miller. "Tower recommended it to me. He met me at the station."

"So you've seen Tower?" said the old man. "I wasn't aware that you knew him."

"I didn't. He introduced himself."

"What did you say to him about your investigation?"

"Nothing," replied Miller shortly. "My business was with you."

"That's right; that's right," said Westcott. "That's like your father. He had a very clear head in such matters. But it never did him any good. He died a poor man."

These repeated references to his father made Miller somewhat uneasy. He did not like to see Mr. Westcott's mind turning upon misfortunes, failures and the great mystery of bad luck.

"If he takes me for a hoodoo," said the young man to himself, "he won't go into this thing. And it's my only chance. I'll never get another."

He reproached himself for his foolish remark about his coat, which had started this train of thought in Mr. Westcott's brain.

When he reached his boarding house he found several people seated on the doorsteps, probably waiting for the dinner bell. Among them was a dark eyed, pretty young woman, an alert and vital creature of a most fascinating presence. Tower had introduced him to her that morning, for she had chanced to be standing by the gate when they came up. Her name was Estelle Wright, and she was a widow.

Having a great need of cheer, Miller entered at once into a sprightly conversation with Mrs. Wright. The experiment was a notable success. He presently forgot that his only chance in life hung upon the decision of cranky old Sam Westcott and remembered only that it is the first duty of man to please a pretty woman. This particular woman was witty and well bred. She seemed to have an original view of everything. She waked the young man's mind to the most agreeable exercise, and when the dinner bell rang there was no gloom anywhere in his vicinity.

About 3 o'clock he went down to the office of the Westcott Manufacturing company.

"I've chewed your report," said Mr. Westcott, "and I want a day or two for digestion. Amuse yourself meanwhile. You're living at my expense, you know. That's understood, and I'll stand a liberal bill."

Miller smiled and went away. In the outer office he stopped for a minute to speak with John Tower, against whom he had taken an unreasonable prejudice.

"Well, what luck?" said Tower.

"I don't know," responded Miller.

"I hope you gave the thing a good send off."

"I told the truth as nearly as I could learn it," said Miller, walking away.

A chance meeting with Mrs. Wright upon the street put him in a good humor, and after a long walk with her he felt that life still held a few joys worth the trouble of striving for. He was still more convinced of this truth after an evening in the charming young woman's company, and when he was alone in his room, smoking by the open window, he asked himself a very important question, "Is it my fate to fall in love with Stella Wright?"

The next day he had many troubles. Mr. Westcott was still digesting the report. John Tower was importunate; he strove to urge Miller to more strenuous action.

"There's a big stake in this matter for you," he insisted. "This thing is going to be a gold mine. You're letting the chance of your life slip by. I had a talk with the old man this morning"—

Miller interrupted him with a groan.

"Don't have another," said he. "Let him alone. You don't seem to understand the man that you are dealing with."

His mind was greatly perturbed as he left the office, and he sought relief in the society of Stella Wright. Her beauty and vivacity were utterly charming.

He swore a deep vow that he would prove himself a man of power by completing the deal with Westcott, and in pursuance of this resolution he wrote a supplementary report during the evening, which contained some forgotten facts in favor of the scheme in contemplation. When he took it to the office next day he met Tower, to whom by way of encouragement he mentioned the report.

"Why do you waste time with reports?" demanded Tower. "Why don't you go and talk it into him?"

Miller's opinion was somewhat shaken, and, to be brief about it, he was led to lay the matter before Stella Wright, who strongly urged action. A rapid and exciting conversation occurred between them, and it left a very confused impression on Miller's mind, but after a long period of meditation late at night he decided that the love of his life depended upon old Samuel Westcott's decision; that Stella would marry him if he carried the day. Thus urged to action, he went down to the office next morning and had a long and earnest talk with Westcott, who in reply said only this: "I didn't know you were so desperate about it. I'll look into the matter a bit deeper, I guess."

Miller went away, with fear in his heart. When he returned to the office late in the afternoon and inquired for Tower the assistant cashier, a round faced, round eyed youth, drew him into a corner.

"WAIT FOR ME."

"Tower's gone," he whispered. "There's been an awful row of some kind. I don't know what it is."

"All's over," said Miller to himself. "I return to New York a beaten man."

He had not the courage to face Westcott then. Instead he went in search of Stella Wright. He had a wild idea of offering his hand to her in the midst of this great wreck of his hopes. If she should speak one kind word to him, then he would feel that he could face the world.

He met Stella in the hall of the boarding house. She had a little black bag in her hand.

"Wait for me," she said, pointing to the parlor. "I'll be back in a jiffy."

Impulsively he raised her hand to his lips. Then he went into the parlor and waited, but Stella's "jiffy" was a long time. The supper bell rang and still she had not come.

"I wonder what has happened to Mrs. Wright?" he asked of the landlady, who came sailing through the parlor in her supper time gown.

"Mrs. Wright's gone," said that lady.

"Gone!" echoed Miller.

"Her trunk was taken this afternoon," was the reply. "She had a telegram from the east."

"She has left town? It can't be possible!" exclaimed Miller.

"I guess it is, though," said the landlady as she bustled away toward the dining room.

"Mr. Westcott wants to see you," said a voice.

Miller turned and saw a boy employed in the office of the manufacturing company. Dazed, he followed this boy to Westcott's house.

"My young friend," said the old gentleman, "I owe you a deep debt of gratitude."

"I don't understand!" gasped Miller.

"I was going into this thing," said Westcott. "I'd made up my mind to it. Then you came out here, and I said to myself: 'If this was a good thing would Frank Miller be in it? Would his father's son ever strike anything that had money in it?' And I took a new streak of caution all on your account. I communicated with a man in New York, and today I got my answer. The whole thing is a fake. I'd have been skinned alive; I'd have dropped at least $100,000. It was a neat game. But I don't blame you; indeed, I praise you. You were perfectly honest; you merely laid the facts before me as you understood them. So I'm going to reward you. I'm going to put you in Tower's place"—

"Tower has gone, then?"

"Gone!" echoed Westcott. "Well, I should say he has. He's run away with that woman, Stella Wright, that he's been so infatuated with. She's in the game, too, I guess."

"Stella gone!" cried Miller. "Gone with him!"

Westcott looked at him long and closely.

"Your luck ain't so bad, after all," he said. "You want to thank the Lord; that's what you want to do. This man Tower has gone and left a job that you can have for life, and I'll pay you well. He's gone and taken that woman. So much the better, as I clearly perceive. If there'd been any way in which he could take the job with him and leave the woman behind you'd have been in hard luck on both sides. Yes, sir; in that case you'd have shown a touch of the real old Miller hoodoo. As it is, I begin to have hopes of you."

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 2—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from Paul: How we may overcome our hindrances.—II Cor. xii, 7-10; x. 10.

Paul's life is well worth prayerful and thoughtful study on the part of all Christians, and especially so to young Christians, who need the inspiration of noble lives and the lessons that come from those who have had a broad and deep religious experience. Such a man was the great apostle of the gentiles. He was a great leader, well calculated to inspire the young with enthusiasm for noble deeds; but, more than that, he was a sincere, devout follower of the Master and had a Christian experience that for richness and depth has scarcely ever been equaled.

Paul particularly was not without hindrances in his life. As a missionary his way was beset with trials and difficulties. He was "in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren." Then, too, he had his personal deficiencies and afflictions. He himself tells us that it was said of him that his "bodily presence is weak and his speech contemptible." He had, too, what he called "a thorn in the flesh," some physical defect which some have supposed was some kind of weakness of the eyes. These deficiencies must have been serious afflictions to the great apostle, who must have desired to possess all advantages, physical, mental and moral, that he might the more powerfully preach the gospel of Christ.

In these hindrances and afflictions the great apostle was not unlike all disciples of Christ. All have their share of difficulties to overcome. We are not "carried to the skies on flowery beds of ease." "Man is born to trouble as the sparks fly upward." Nor is the Christian exempt. Christ definitely declared, "If any man will come after Me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow Me." Since hindrances and afflictions beset our way in the Christian life, how are we to overcome them? That they must be overcome goes without saying. It is to those that overcome that Christ offers the crown of eternal life.

Paul teaches us that prayer and faith are the means of overcoming our hindrances and afflictions. "There was given to me a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet me, lest I should be exalted above measure. For this thing I besought the Lord thrice that it might depart from me." First of all Paul brought his affliction unto God in prayer, and God answered his prayer, although not in the way he desired. "And He said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee." Paul believed that and became resigned to the will of God and was so gloriously sustained by God's grace that he could say, "I take pleasure in infirmities, in reproaches, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake, for when I am weak then am I strong." Realizing his own weakness, he trusted in God, and God became strength to him, and he thereby overcame. And God "is our refuge and strength, a present help in time of trouble." Therefore in prayer and in faith we should come to Him, and His grace will be sufficient for us, and by His strength we will be enabled to overcome.

A Christian Endeavor Sign.

A little grocery store in the suburbs of Washington, D. C., has a sign which unwittingly advertises Christian Endeavor. It appears that in painting the word "Groceries" the first "e" was omitted and the mistake subsequently corrected by inserting this letter inside the "c." However this may be, the sign bears the C. E. monogram in its midst and looks like this:

GROCRIES

Pen Points.

The dead line in Christian Endeavor is reached when we cease to grow.

The training school idea should never be lost sight of in Christian Endeavor.

Every convention ought to aim at some definite accomplishment—and hit it.

The Endeavor society that is not moving forward is surely slipping backward.

Any Endeavorer is made more loyal to his own church by reason of his loyalty to Christian Endeavor.

Our motto is "For Christ and the Church," which can in nowise be construed as "putting the society first."

The workman lays down his labors. They may be seemingly unfinished, but God has another in reserve. His great training school never closes.

It is remarkable how quickly duty will change into desire when God's purposes are behind it. The secret of the success of the Christian Endeavor pledge finds emphasis here.—John R. Clements.

UNEXPLODED DYNAMITE

Found at Scene of Riverside Park Explosion

NO NEW DEATHS REPORTED

Belief That Fatalities Will Not Exceed Twenty—Subscription List Is Growing—Question of Responsibility Uppermost In Mind of Public

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 1.—There are few developments at Riverside park, the scene of Wednesday's terrible powder magazine disaster. No more bodies have been found, but ghastly pieces have been discovered which as yet have not been identified. Small pieces of unexploded dynamite were found at the scene of the explosion, although what at first appeared to be a can of that explosive turned out to be a harmless substance. A regular military post has been established at the park, and the regimental flag was raised over it this morning. Colonel Darling of the Sixth regiment has arrived here to look after the troops. Some sickness has broken out among the militiamen.

The funerals of several more of the victims took place yesterday. In the case of James L. Grady all that could be found of him was an arm and part of one shoulder, and these fragments were buried.

No further deaths among those who were injured have occurred and the belief is more general that the death list will not exceed 20, although the hospital officials admit that two of the victims may not recover.

The subscription list for the destitute is steadily growing, and it is hoped that most of the money may be made over into a fund to enable householders to establish themselves. Many poor people lost all they possessed, but their present needs are being cared for by the selectmen of Tewksbury and philanthropic citizens. Should Tewksbury find itself unable to continue the extension of assistance to all, the city of Lowell stands ready to aid.

The question of placing responsibility for the calamity is still uppermost in the minds of officials and citizens. It is anticipated that much interesting evidence will be forthcoming when Judge Hadley opens his hearing.

Judge Hadley announces that he will order a deposition taken from Clarendon Goodwin, now in the hospital, as soon as he is considered able to talk. Goodwin is the man who is reported, though he denies the story, to have poured something from a jug on the smoking substance in the first magazine and thus to have caused the explosion. Goodwin is regarded as the most important witness in the investigation into the cause of the disaster.

Move In Goebel Murder Case

New York, Aug. 1.—Colonel T. C. Campbell, who has had charge of the prosecution of Goebel's alleged assassins and who for three years had lived in the Kentucky mountains preparing the evidence against the conspirators, has left for Frankfort, Ky., to obtain from Governor Beckham a request to Governor Durbin of Ohio to deliver Taylor to the Kentucky authorities. In case this demand is refused a mandamus will be sought before the supreme court of the United States. Should one be granted and disobeyed contempt proceedings will be begun.

Cigaret, Gas and Explosion

Newcastle, Pa., Aug. 1.—As a result of a leakage in the artificial and natural gas mains in the downtown districts an explosion in a manhole of the municipal conduit system which is being constructed caused serious injury to five city officials. The gas was ignited when John Morrison, superintendent of construction, struck a match to light a cigaret. Two of them were taking measurements in the manhole. The other three men were leaning over the hole when Morrison struck the match to light his cigaret.

Shaky Bridge Gave Way

Portland, Ore., Aug. 1.—A section of a bridge which spans the Willamette river collapsed, precipitating more than 100 people 40 feet into the water. Three people are known to have been drowned and it is feared that the list of dead will be larger when all are accounted for. Many fell on two small boat houses moored to a pier of the bridge. About 25 were injured either by striking on te boatouses or by falling timbers.

Asks Pardon For Bribery

Budapest, Aug. 1.—The bribery commission assembled last evening and after Deputy Papp, who charged that ex-Deputy Dienes had attempted to bribe him with 10,000 kronen to desert the obstructionist party and leave Budapest, had given his evidence, Count Szapary confessed that he was the author of the whole affair. He asked pardon for his act, which, he admitted, had injured the dignity of parliament.

Work of Expert Thieves

Chicago, Aug. 1.—While the jewelry store of Louis Weber was full of customers last night, robbers entered the basement of the place and, cutting holes through the floor and the raised platform between the outer and inner show windows, stole two trays of diamonds valued at $5000. The thieves sawed a hole in the floor back of the show window large enough to permit a band to be passed upward to where the jewels lay.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Inflated Prices of Cotton the Most Disappointing Feature

New York, Aug. 1.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of of Trade says: Further evidence of the solid basis upon which legitimate trade is established has been furnished by the equanimity with which commercial and financial institutions regard the recent speculative collapse. There is no indication that the brokerage failures or the severe decline in prices of securities were extensively felt outside of Wall street. Much more harm has been done to the country's manufactures and trade by the inflated prices of cotton than by the depression in stocks.

As a rule retail trade in summer fabrics has continued heavy and jobbers report fall business opening well. Agricultural news is favorable, not more than the customary reports of damage by weather and insects being received. Foreign trade is maintained, both exports and imports from this city showing gains over the corresponding week last year. Moderate improvement is noted in the tone of the iron and steel industry.

Textile industries are still waiting for readjustment or evidence of permanence in the present position of prices for raw material. That there is no confidence in the maintenance of current quotations for cotton is clearly demonstrated by the attitude of cotton goods buyers. Orders are placed only upon condition of prompt delivery.

Footwear factories are crowded with work, orders coming in briskly for fall goods, and western jobbers have placed additional contracts for next spring.

Tariff Tip From France

Paris, Aug. 1.—A rather plain official intimation has been given that if reductions are desired in the new French tariff on the duties levied on American assorted meats, they will be accorded only for reciprocal tariff concessions in the case of French goods entering the United States. The new law affects a number of articles, including salted meats, the main American product, the rate on these meats being about doubled. A large French trade in these meats has grown up. Practically all the salted meats used in France come from Chicago and other American packing centres.

Sing Sing For Treasurer Murphy

New York, Aug. 1.—Lawrence Murphy, former treasurer of the Journeymen Stone Cutters' union, charged with embezzling $12,000 from the organization, and convicted of grand larceny, was sentenced to five years and six months in state prison. The prisoner's counsel asked for clemency for his client, but Judge Newburger scored the prisoner severely, saying that he had spent the funds of the union in riotous living, and that his total stealings amounted to $27,000. Murphy, in charge of two deputy sheriffs, was taken to Sing Sing prison last night to serve his term.

Jumped Too Late

Buffalo, Aug. 1.—Stella Uppel of Providence and Teresa Mahony of this city, both 14 years old, were drowned in Casenovia creek. The girls were playing in a boat with two younger girls. The boat started to drift into the centre of the stream. The younger girls jumped into shallow water and waded ashore. The other girls waited too long and jumped into deep water.

Crowds Greet Royal Couple

Galway, Aug. 1.—King Edward, Queen Alexandra and their party left Galway by train for Kenmare, where they met with an enthusiastic reception. They afterwards proceeded to Beechaven and embarked on board their yacht, bound for Queenstown. The weather was beautiful and peasants and landlords turned out in full numbers and gave every evidence of loyalty.

New Field of Journalism

New York, Aug. 1.—Seven well known New York physicians have formed a company for the publication of a daily medical journal and the announcement is made that the initial number will appear Oct. 1. The paper will be six pages and will report the medical happenings of the world. It will also publish daily a review of the current medical literature of the world.

An Alleged Forged Will

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 1.—Mrs. Gertrude Briggs, who sought to gain the fortune left by Salem Charles of Massachusetts, or Charles Hill, as he was known in Los Angeles, by introducing a document alleged to be Hill's will in favor of her daughter, Grace, has been bound over to answer in the criminal courts to a charge of forgery. Bail was fixed at $3000.

Says Mrs Fair Died First

Paris, Aug. 1.—Madame Tremblay, who alleges that she witnessed the automobile accident by which Mr. and Mrs. Charles L. Fair lost their lives at Pacy sur Eure, last August, positively declares that Mrs. Fair was killed on the spot and that her husband's legs continued to twitch for some seconds.

Ready to Begin on Campaign

Cleveland, Aug. 1.—Senator Hanna returned to Cleveland unexpectedly from Newport to be present at a meeting of the Consolidated street railway directors. It is understood that he will devote much of his time during this month to preliminary work in the state campaign.

Women Scullers.

Feminine Aquatic Stars to Again Row For the World's Championship.

The third race for the woman's sculling championship of the world will be rowed on Creve Coeur lake, near St. Louis, during the month of August, according to arrangements recently completed between St. Louis promoters and Miss Tillie Ashley, who has been claiming the title of woman champion.

Miss Ashley has already been thrice beaten by Miss Rose Mosentheim of St. Louis, who is the legitimate holder of the championship. In an interview Miss Mosentheim stated that Miss Ashley had no claim to the title whatever, but that she would be willing to meet Miss Ashley at short notice when the plans of John J. Schaab and others in making the match were completed.

It is claimed in some parts of the country that Miss Ashley is a much improved oarswoman since Miss Mosentheim defeated her and that a race between the two would show up the eastern woman to advantage. Miss Ashley lives at Hartford, Conn., and is constantly on the water.

The race, if arranged, will be one of few instances in sport where really capable oarswomen have contested. In all the world there are at present probably not half a dozen women who make professional claims to skill at single sculls.

Of all sports possible to femininity rowing is perhaps one least in accord with the possibilities of woman's supposed characteristics. It requires not only strength, constant practice, fearlessness and determination, but stamina.

Miss Ashley tells her own story of her experiences as follows:

"Have you ever sat in a single scull?

"If you haven't you should. When you first get into one you feel as though you were trying to sit on top of a bubble of quicksilver. A single scull is little more than a line. It is about sixteen inches wide at its greatest beam and is something in the neighborhood of thirty feet long. It is very shallow and would upset in a minute if it were not in motion or balanced by an experienced hand at the oars.

"Riding a bicycle for the first time may be compared to your first experience in a shell, only the bicycle does not offer the same element of danger. Before trying a single scull it is necessary to know how to swim.

"The best oarsmen in the world sometimes get upset if the water happens to be bad. Since I first got into a single scull I have had good fortune. That was eight years ago on Creve Cœur lake and I have never been in the water from an upset yet.

"Of course I had been rowing all my life before that. I was perfectly at home in the water and was not nervous, therefore, as to what would happen if I were upset. I went at it with confidence.

"One of my rowing club friends asked me to get into his shell one day as a joke and was somewhat frightened when I took him up. At first it was awkward. The long outriggers for the oars, instead of the oarlocks I had been used to, the long light oars with the spoon blades and the extreme lightness of the boat were very strange.

"I caught a few 'crabs' at the start, but I was careful not to work hard, so that when I missed a stroke I did not shoot back and sway the boat. The sliding seat made matters worse until I caught the swing of it. It seemed to diminish the resistance to my stroke until I found that there was a real positive advantage accruing from it."

BRAINTREE.

Miss Flossie Dexheimer is out again after her recent illness.

Two distinct shocks of the explosion at Lowell Tuesday morning were felt here. The sound closely resembled the discharge of cannon yet came in quicker succession than the salutes are fired from our guns.

Mr. G. F. Hussey starts for California Thursday, Aug. 6, and Mr. W. H. Cronin Saturday, Aug. 8. Mr. Hussey will spend a month there and Mr. Cronin about two months.

The annual picnic of the M. E. Sunday school was held Tuesday at Highland park.

Ground is broken for L. O. Crocker's residence on Liberty street and work on the cellar has commenced. Waldo Turner of East Weymouth is the builder.

Mr. C. H. Delano, who is working in New Hampshire, spent Sunday with his family on Pond street.

Mrs. Margaret McGlincy with her interesting family will leave early in the month to rejoin her husband, Bernard McGlincy at Cheyenne, Wyoming, where they will in future make their home. With their sturdy, manly little sons the West opens up a vast field for prosperity and future happiness and the good wishes of a host of friends go with them and will rejoice in all good that enters into their future lives.

Charles L. Perry who committed suicide by shooting last Saturday, in Brockton, was a native of Braintree, where he was born about fifty-six years ago. His father for many years kept a grocery store in the north part of the town. After Mr. Perry's marriage he resided for many years on Tremont street. He leaves a son and daughter.

Word has been received of the safe arrival of Miss Mary Cassidy at her mother's home after a delightful sea voyage.

Mr. Nat Wales and party have returned from a cruise along the coast in Mr. Wales' new launch.

Mr. M. A. Minchin having enjoyed a two weeks' vacation has now resumed his duties as postmaster.

At the Union church during August there will be no sessions of the Sabbath school, and the midweek prayer meetings will be discontinued. If there is to be any preaching service on any of the Sundays you will hear the church bell ring.

Mrs. K. Williams, grand coresponding secretary of the Odd Ladies, paid her first official visit to Crescent lodge and congratulated its members on their success and informed them that the grand lodge had granted them a dispensation. The grand officers will institute this lodge of about forty members August 27.

Mrs. John Orr and children are guests of Mr. William Orr and family of Front street.

Fore River Lodge, I. O. O. F., M. U., at last meeting conferred degrees on several members. It was voted to attend church on the second Sunday in September with the Odd Ladies Lodge.

The King's Daughters will hold a special meeting Thursday afternoon,

Mrs. E. G. Annis is sojourning in Rockingham, Maine.

The second annual outing at Nantasket Point, of the J. P. S. A. was held Thursday afternoon. Twenty five members and friends of the association sat down to one of Mr. Wade's choice shore dinners and enjoyed the various sports and amusements. It being the field day at the Point of the Hull celebration, several extra attractions were on the afternoon program. Altogether it was a very successful and enjoyable outing.

A Month's Mind Mass for the late Mrs. Margaret Preston was celebrated Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock in the Church of Sacred Heart. Miss Galbraith of Boston, a friend of the deceased, sung "Plains of Peace" and also Panis Angelicus" at the Offertory.

The ordinance of the Lord's supper will take place at the Baptist church, Braintree, on Sunday morning, in stead of evening, on account of the union meeting in the Methodist church in the evening.

Those who witnessed the seven inning game between the fire-laddies of Hose 1 and H. & L. 1, of East Braintree, on White's field last Saturday were given a good treat. No grass was left on the base line after the Hooks had touched the plate for twenty runs and the Hose left the diamond almost shoeless in their attempt to recover the sphere which was kept in the air most of the time.

After many avoidable delays Rev. Matthew McDonnell, pastor of St. Francis' church took possession of his new home on Tremont street, on Wednesday evening.

From Thursday evening's Globe, we learn that a new office has been created by the operating officials of the N. Y., N. H. & Hartford railroad company that is to be known as that of transportation inspector. This honor falls on Edward J. Eagan, a native of Braintree and one of the most popular conductors on the Providence division. During a service of more than thirty years, he has by his upright life and fidelity to duty gained a host of friends who sincerely rejoice with him in this added proof of his employer's confidence in and esteem of him.

Mrs. Catherine Fennell died at her home in East Weymouth Sunday. She was wife of Mr. John Fennell, sexton at the church of the Immaculate Conception of that town, and mother of Miss Alice Fennell organist of that church and Mr. John F. Fennell a very popular young man who has many friends in this town.

SAVED HIS FINGER.

The Faithful Brahman Felt, However, That He Had Lost Caste.

One day a Brahman accidentally touched some unclean object with his little finger. The Brahman thought that now, his little finger having become unclean, any substance which it would touch would be also rendered unclean and thus make him an unclean man. Seeing no other way to get out of the scrape he resolved to get the offending member amputated. Forthwith he went to a carpenter and explained to him that unless the finger was cut off he (the Brahman) was unable to take food. The carpenter tried to dissuade the devotee and urged that an application of some drops of water from the sacred river Gunga would make the finger once more holy, but the Brahman persisted. He said that the finger was of no use to him any longer and that he would not rest until it was severed.

As a final recourse the carpenter resolved to play his awkward customer a trick. He told the Brahman to put his finger on an anvil and to look to the sky while the wound was inflicted. The Brahman did so. The carpenter took up a hatchet and gave the finger a smart blow with the back of it. This elicited a cry of pain from the patient, who at once put the finger in his mouth to allay the agony. The carpenter, laughing, explained to the Brahman that the blow had missed and the little finger was still entire; and, worst of all, the Brahman had defiled himself by putting the finger into his mouth. The obliging operator, moreover, offered to perform the operation once more, but the Brahman had had enough pain for the nonce and declined with thanks. —Golden Penny.

Some Mustache History.

What is the history of the mustache? In Greece and Rome no mustaches were worn without beards, but in the conquering days of the Roman empire several half civilized races who had come partially under the influence of the Romans and who wished to be rid of the name of barbari, or wearers of beards, attempted to shave in imitation of their conquerors; but, as they had very imperfect implements for the purpose and as the upper lip is notoriously the hardest part of the face to shave in the case of any one poorly skilled in the art, they were unable to make a clean job of it and left a quantity of hair on the upper lip.

This mark was characteristic of several nations on the confines of Roman civilization, of the Gauls in particular, of the Daciens and some others. The Latin language has no word for mustache. This barbarous accident was unworthy of the honor of a Roman name.—Exchange.

DOWIE'S NEW TEMPLE.

Imposing Features of Proposed Tabernacle For Zionists.

IT WILL SEAT SIXTEEN THOUSAND

Two Hundred Persons Can Be Baptized at Once In the Basin, Which Will Be Filled With Flowing Water Coming From a Waterfall. Building to Cost $500,000.

John Alexander Dowie, head of the Christian Catholic Church in Zion, near Chicago, has planned for his capital on the shore of Lake Michigan what he says will be the largest tabernacle in the nation devoted exclusively to the worship of God. The structure will cost half a million dollars and seat 16,000 persons. It will occupy a ground space of 330 by 340 feet and will be oriental in architecture.

Leaves of Healing, the official organ through which Mr. Dowie talks to his followers and to the world, gives the following description of the tabernacle in part:

"The great feature of the interior will of course, be the auditorium. The construction will be in the shape of a horseshoe and must solve many difficult problems in the arrangement of so many thousand seats, in ventilation and, most difficult of all, in acoustics. The choir gallery will be made to seat 1,600 persons. The speakers' platform is to be elliptical in shape, fifty feet long and eighteen feet wide.

"The seats in the choir and officers' galleries will be arranged at an angle sufficient to show the face of every one distinctly to the audience. Back of the choir and in line with the center of the building a great pipe organ will be built. The organ will be so placed that the organist will face the auditorium.

"Two large galleries, in the shape of a horseshoe, will be built in such a manner that the public finding seats there will be able to see plainly the face of every one sitting on the platform. These galleries will seat about 8,400, the ground floor about 6,000, the choir and officers' galleries about 1,600, giving a total seating capacity of 16,000 persons.

"Elevators will be provided at the main entrance to lift the people to these galleries. On the east side of the galleries will be four stairways, three on the south side and three on the north side; one stairway at each one of the four corners of the building and two more in the rear of the choir gallery. These sixteen stairways connect directly with the outside and as exits will be of inevitable use in emptying the vast auditorium quickly and in an orderly manner should the occasion ever require.

"The dome of the auditorium is to be constructed of steel and covered partly with glass and partly with sheet metal and at the highest point will be 160 feet from the ground floor. On the interior the dome will measure 192 feet in diameter, varying in height from 100 feet on the sides to 135 feet from the floor to the center.

"Electricity will be used in lighting the tabernacle. Thousands of incandescent lamps will be required.

"One of the most unusual and attractive features of the new Shiloh tabernacle will be the baptistry. On either side of the basement, directly under the choir gallery, robing rooms for the candidates for baptism will be arranged, on one side the women, on the other the men. Both rooms will be 70 by 58 feet in size.

"On leaving the robing room the candidates go directly to the riverlike baptistry by way of separate corridors, one for men and one for women, entirely hidden from public view until the large stairways leading into the baptistry proper are reached. Two hundred persons may be baptized at one time, and so complete will be the arrangements that 1,000 can easily be baptized in one hour.

"Candidates will enter the baptistry from one corridor and pass through another on the other side to reach their robing rooms after the ceremony.

"The baptistry basin will be twenty feet wide and sixty-five feet long. It is to be arranged with flowers and shrubbery, while the water will come from a waterfall under the speaker's platform. The water will fall in full view of the public, flow through the entire length of the baptistry and pass out of sight under the floor of the auditorium.

"The building throughout will be a harmonious and symmetrical combination of great convenience and beauty."

Studying Witchcraft Awheel.

George L. Burr, professor of the department of mediæval history in Cornell university, at Ithaca, N. Y., is taking a trip on a bicycle through New England in search of information on witchcraft, says the New York Tribune. For several years Professor Burr has been deeply interested in the Salem persecution of witches and similar movements in the early settlements. By visiting the places where witchcraft is said to have been practiced he expects to gain large additions to the lore in his possession.

The "Towing Cure."

An eminent London doctor whose nervous system had suffered severely through overwork recently took a trip from Staines to Oxford, having himself towed all the way, says London Truth. He is now advising every patient whose nerves are unstrung to undergo the "towing cure." The quiet there is in a boat which is being slowly towed, the gentle ripple which follows the boat and the soothing motion, together with the fresh air, are said to have a wonderful effect upon the nerves.

SPIRITS TO LIVE IN PLANETS

New Theory of Evolution by Professor Moore of Columbia, Mo.

Dr. W. T. Moore, dean emeritus of the Missouri Bible college at Columbia, Mo., recently completed the manuscript of a book which will cause a sensation among theologians and scientists, says the St. Louis Republic.

Dr. Moore is a theistic evolutionist, though his new definition of evolution will be quite satisfactory even to conservatives. He traces man in his origin, history and destiny, and in the concluding chapter of the book, entitled "Death and the Other Side," he attempts to show the meaning of the numerous worlds which now roll in space without inhabitants.

Dr. Moore's theory is, in brief, that man will go on progressing through the cycles of eternity and that when he assumes his spiritual body at the resurrection he then will be prepared to inhabit some of the planets or stars which are now uninhabited.

He concludes that the infinitude of space and the almost infinitude of worlds become intelligible from his point of view. He believes that the spiritual man will be the inhabitant of all these worlds and that, as emigration from this earth is the future evolutionary process by which these worlds are to be inhabited, the inhabitants of the whole universe will be of the same family and constitute a great spiritual brotherhood for all the ages of the future.

Dr. Moore thinks that the numerous worlds now uninhabited are in a state of preparation for glorified man, as the present earth was a long time in preparation for original man. Dr. Moore is a theologian and journalist of reputation both in America and Europe. He was for many years a resident of London and is still editor of a leading religious magazine published there. His wife is president of Christian Female college at Columbia.

MONSTER FREIGHT DEPOT.

Cincinnati to Have the Largest of Its Kind In the World.

Ground was broken recently in Cincinnati for what will be the largest building in the world devoted to the uses of a freight depot or warehouse, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. The new structure will be erected by the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern railroad on the north side of Second street, extending from the Chesapeake and Ohio bridge to Mill street, a distance of about three ordinary blocks, the full length of the building being 1,227 feet, with a width at the first floor of fifty-six feet and forty-eight feet above that story. The building will be as nearly fireproof as it is possible to make it, with speed elevators to carry the heaviest kind of freight to any of the five floors. Brick and steel will be used in the construction. Besides this immense depot and warehouse the Baltimore and Ohio Southwestern is erecting on an adjoining lot a combined round and power house, 130 feet in length and three stories high. The first floor of this building will be occupied as a roundhouse, with six stalls, boiler and engine room, for furnishing heat, power and light to the big warehouse and passenger coaches and for the storekeeper's headquarters. On the second floor the superintendent of the dining car service will have his rooms, including refrigerators and storerooms. The Pullman company also will have a yard office on this floor, as will also the car repairers. The third floor will include twenty rest rooms, where belated trainmen may find lodging. There will be reading rooms, shower and tub baths and other modern conveniences in connection with these rest rooms. The entire cost of the new buildings will be about $650,000. The ground upon which they are being erected cost nearly $200,000.

August Magazines.

The Household-Ledger for August has some bright stories and articles on "The Sport of Yachting," "Celebrities of Today," "The Well Dressed Man, and The Care of the Teeth, Mouth and Lips." The music of the number includes vocal and instrumental pieces.

There is a wealth of suggestive material bearing on the latest phases of the American labor movement in an article contributed by John R. Commons to the Review of Reviews for August. Professor Commons is thoroughly informed on the relative strength and weakness of the various trade organizations throughout the country, and his article summarizes very clearly and compactly the progress made since the era of prosperity set in. By way of contrast, "The Plight of the English Worker" is described by Mr. Frank Fayant, who devotes special attention to results of British trade-union policy in the restriction of output.

Foremost in The Engineering Magazine for August is the paper on the study of alloys, by Prof. Henry M. Howe. one of the leading metallurgists of the world. Captain Hart's account of the engineering work already done or waiting development in the Philippines is well illustrated. Joseph S. Shultz writes on floating dry-docks, and M. Emile Guarini on the use of electricity in the mines of the continent.

Everybody's Magazine for August, in addition to the usual well-balanced and inviting Table of Contents, carries two picturesque and distinguished features. The publishers have seized the opportunity offered by the universal interest in the selection of a successor to Pope Leo XIII, and have secured a remarkable article upon the subject from no less important a writer than the Pope's official biographer, F. Marion Crawford. In this article he reveals some of the inside workings of the most perfect organization in the world. He tells what credentials the new Pope must have. He discusses the available candidates intimately.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The play chosen by the Castle Square Theatre management for next week's attraction at this house is the stage version of Elizabeth Knight Tompkins' romatic story "Her Majesty," made by Mr. J. I. C. Clark, which was the success of Grace George's season of 1900-'01. The play proved immensely popular and deals with the experiences of the pure hearted, quick witted and ingenious Queen of Nordenmark. The love story is cleverly told and the interest in the plot is skilfully maintained to the end of the play. Some elaborate scenic and costume effects are called for in this production and the original staging of the play, which has only been seen in this city at the Tremont Theatre, will be followed in the coming Castle Square presentation.

"Her Majesty" is billed for only a single week at the Castle Square and at the Monday matinee the usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Isabell Urquhart in that bright little comedy "Even Stephen," will be the leading new attraction for the week of August 3 at Keith's and the word new is significant in view of the great popularity of the Fadettes Woman's orchestra, which seems to increase in favor each week. Miss Urquhart has proved one of the most succesful actresses that the legitimate stage has given to vaudeville and in the present piece she is seen at her best. Other strong features are Rae and Broesche in "A Woman of Few Words"; James Thornton, the monologuist; Wilton Brothers, comedy acrobats; Russell and Buckley, novelty musicians; Collins and Hart, acrobatic comedians; Charles Ernest, the entertainer and the Lucados, weight balancers.

—President Roosevelt has asserted his independence of labor unions in a manner that as usual, leaves no doubt as to his position in regard to the matter. NO CHOICE YET MADE

Fruitless Ballots For Selection of Pontiff

HIGHLY IMPRESSIVE SCENE

Presented by Feverish Anxiety of Tens of Thousands Assembled In St Peter's Square to Watch For Signals From Sistine Chapel

Rome, Aug. 3.—No successor to Leo XIII. has yet been chosen. From the smoke which issued from the little chimney on the Sistine chapel last night a vast multitude gathered around St. Peter's learned that the second day of the conclave had been fruitless. The conclusion is drawn that the strength of the leading candidates remains unbroken and that no compromise candidate has yet appeared.

And there is no indication of how long this condition of affairs will continue. The prolongation of the contest has aroused tremendous public interest, if, indeed, it cannot be called excitement. Every trace of that apathy which followed the death of the late pope has vanished and, instead, there now exists a burning interest in everything pertaining to the election of his successor. Last night this culminated in the appearance of a great crowd which packed the great square of St. Peter's and presented a spectacle seldom seen.

The impenetrable seclusion which shrouds those engaged in determining who shall be at the head of the Roman Catholic church heightens the feverish curiosity of those who await their decision. Princes, princesses, archbishops, bishops, monsignors, priests, well-to-do business men, in short people from every walk in life talk of nothing but the smoke from the burning ballots. Both Sunday morning and last evening this was the lodestone which drew tens of thousands to the square of St. Peter's. There for hours, with strained eyes and craned necks, they waited in the hope of seeing a tiny stream of smoke, so insignificant that it was almost impossible to realize that a great issue was involved in its fleeting appearance.

The scene of St. Peter's last night was by far the most impressive that has occurred in Rome since the late pope became ill. After the fruitless morning ballot a belief spread that a new pontiff would surely be elected by evening. The regular Sunday leisure was forgotten in the anxiety to see the new occupant of the holy see. The streets converging into St. Peter's became black with the thousands who entered the square. From the barracks came large reinforcements of troops, who marched across the piazza and lined up at the foot of the steps of the basilica, leaving only small spaces between the companies in order to prevent a sudden rush to get inside St. Peter's to witness the new pope give his blessing to the Catholic world. A strong force of cavalry was picketed near by in case of riot and over 2000 soldiers were posted in the square.

But the troops made only an insignificant, thin blue line compared with the vast multitude around them. By 6 o'clock it was estimated that 50,000 people occupied the vast amphitheatre. From the steps of the basilica, which were black with those standing or sitting, across to the opposite side of the square there stretched, far as the eye could see, an undulating sea of humanity with every face riveted on the Sistine chapel, waiting for the smoke of ballots.

When the hour of 6 struck a tremor of expectancy ran through the multitude, because, according to Saturday's program, the burning of the ballots or the announcement of an election would come within a few minutes

As the hand of the clock on St Peter's approached the half hour a rumor that a selection had been made developed, in the minds of many, into a certainty and each one momentarily expected some favored cardinal to be announced as the new pontiff. Another quarter of an hour passed and the anxiety grew more intense. Not a breath of air relieved the sultry heat of the evening and scarcely a sound came from the vast multitude. Suddenly, at 6.40 p. m., a sharp cry arose "Ecco Ecco." Instantly the cry was taken up by 50,000 throats and grew and grew until the immense piazza fairly roared with "Ecco Ecco." Then the silence fell like a spell, while the thousands watched from the tin smokestack of the Sistine chapel a tiny stream of light gray smoke curl lazily downward. With no wind to carry it away the smoke hung heavily in the hot air and then gradually disappeared. For a moment the crowd believed that the signal meant an election, for there is a tradition that the cardinals are allowed to send up a little smoke as a notification of an election and much smoke in the case of a disagreement. Any such hopes, however, were almost immediately dissipated when a cloud of very thick smoke emerged and continued for five minutes.

With many ejaculations of disappointment the populace watched the last trace of the ballots disappear and then dispersed, although it was a lon time before the square of the basilica resumed its normal quiet appearance.

STABBED TO DEATH

Man Attacked by Three Italians Near His Own Home

Canton, Mass., Aug. 3.—Hiram H. Poole, one of Canton's best known citizens, who conducted a bakery, was stabbed and almost instantly killed last night not far from his residence by one of a party of three Italians whom he encountered while driving his cow home from pasture. His assailants fled after the murder and none of them has yet been apprehended.

Mr. Poole, who pastured his cow in a pasture about half a mile from his home, has been accustomed to driving the animal home very late at night, and it was nearly 10 o'clock last night when, as was half way home, he met the three Italians. There were no witnesses of what transpired save the principals themselves. It is certain that there was a dispute of some kind and residents of the neighborhood were startled by Poole's cries for help.

He was stabbed in three places, twice in the neck and once in the breast, but managed to stagger a distance of 500 feet and fell exhausted in the street directly in front of the public library. His cries were answered by many citizens, some of whom caught a glimpse of the fleeing Italians, but were unable to effect their capture. Poole died in a few minutes.

War Game About to Begin

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 3.—The war game begun this morning at daylight, when the "enemy," consisting of the battleships Indiana, Texas and Massachusetts and the torpedo boat destroyers Lawrence and Whipple, in command of Admiral Sands, sailed from here to lose themselves out on the broad Atlantic. On Wednesday the great fleet of battleships, cruisers, scout ships, training ships and torpedo boat destroyers will leave and take their respective stations along the coast to watch for the approach of the enemy. Admiral Barker is in supreme command.

Stabbed to the Heart

Hartford, Aug. 3.—Seraphim Perreault, 33 years old, was stabbed shortly before midnight Saturday night and he died before he could be taken to the hospital. The post mortem examination showed that the knife had cut through the heart. Mrs. George Benedict says she saw Perreault struck and she gave the police a description of the man. Fred Rydish, an Italian, was arrested for the crime and Mrs. Benedict identified him. Rydish denies the crime. He is foreman of a gang of Italians on sewer work.

Two Shooting Scrapes

Clinton, Mass., Aug. 3.—George Imporatore fired five shots at Caitano Tisscraterras last night and then because he could not hit him that way, threw a big stone, which knocked out several of Tisscraterras' teeth. While the police were chasing him three shots were heard on a nearby street and the officers found there Rafaello Loiero with a bullet in his neck, but not fatally hurt. John Taranelli was accused of the shooting and was arrested. Imperatore has not been located.

Lives With Severed Windpipe

Litchfield, Conn., Aug. 3.—Patrick Tucker, a prisoner in the county jail here, attempted to commit suicide by cutting his throat. He severed the wind pipe, but prompt medical assistance saved his life. Tucker was awaiting trial on a charge of burglary. He is charged with entering the house of Mrs. Morse and securing $72 after threatening to shoot and burn the feet of two women who were alone in the house.

Three Deaths by Drowning

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 3.—Arthur Keefe, 30 years old, was drowned while bathing in the harbor here. He was seized with cramps. Thomas J. Dinnan, 8, son of the captain of the steamer Maid of Kent, while waiting for his father's boat to come into port, fell overboard and was drowned. John Farrarree, 9, was drowned in the Myannis river. He had probably been seized with cramps.

Farmer Mysteriously Disappears

Kingston, Mass., Aug. 3.—More than 200 men have scoured the woods in the vicinity of Indian pond in search of Stephen M. Tyler, a farmer who mysteriously disappeared from his home Saturday afternoon, but no trace of the man has been found. Tyler's relatives fear he suffered a sunstroke and while his mind was deranged ended his life by drowning.

REFORMERS CHECKED

Liberal Minded Chinese Get a Terrible Warning

MAN FLOGGED TO DEATH

Journalist Who Boldly Proclaimed His Principles Has Flesh on His Body and Limbs Torn to Pieces—Beaten With Bamboo Rods

Pekin, Aug. 3.—China is witnessing a return to the conditions which followed the coup d'etat of 1898. Political discussions among the Chinese, which increased during the imperial court's recent policy of friendliness toward foreigners, has suddenly stopped. The plan of the dowager empress to terrify the reformers by the execution of Shen Chien, a journalist of this city, has been successful. All the liberal Chinese, particularly those who have been associated with the reformers, are in the greatest fear of arrest and it is difficult to find a Chinaman who is willing to mention politics or the Shen Chien tragedy, although the latter is almost the only topic of conversation among trusted friends. The officials are particularly dumb.

The affair is disappointing to the foreigners, who had hoped that the empress dowager's association with the ladies of the legations would have a civilizing influence. Prince Su, the most liberal of the Manchu princes, who in March last issued a proclamation against incense burning to military idols because it was the chief rite during the "boxer" troubles, is reported to have risked his office by opposing the execution of Shen Chien.

According to the official report of the execution Chien was beheaded, but it became known that this report was false and that the condemned man was beaten to death in accordance with special instructions issued by the dowager empress, who desired to make an example of the journalist with which to terrify other reformers.

The incident is declared to be the most horrible that has occurred in China since the massacre of 1900. The killing occurred in the court yard of the yamen of the board of punishment. The victim was beaten with bamboo rods for two hours, from 4 to 6 in the afternoon, the flesh on his back, arms and legs being torn to ribbons. After life had apparently become extinct the executioners, fearing that Chien had merely fainted and might revive, twisted a rope tightly around his neck and left the body in this condition until morning. No one except officials was permitted to see the prisoner after his arrest, his friends being denied an interview with him and all information regarding his condition being withheld.

The evidence at the trial was so weak that Chien would probably have been acquitted had he not boldly proclaimed his principles throughout and his willingness to die for them. He frankly admitted the charge that he had attempted to organize a rebellion at Hankow in 1900 and boasted that he had always advocated the assassination of the Manchus in order to rid the country of the dynasty.

Despite the precautions taken by the officials the prisoner smuggled from his cell a farewell message in the form of a poem, in which he glorified reform and exhorted his colleagues to continue the work.

Chien was 40 years of age and had many friends among the foreign residents of the city, who describe him as an educated, high minded man. The affair has created intense feeling in the foreign community and a strong sentiment against surrendering the Shanghai reformers to Chinese jurisdiction.

Power's Third Trial Begun

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 3—The third trial of Ex-Secretary of state Powers as accessory before the fact to the murder of Gov. Goebel begun here today before Judge Robins. All the other trials of Powers, Howard and Youtsey, who are now serving life sentences, for conspiracy, were before Judge Cantrill. Powers has been convicted twice and sentenced for life both times.

Three Killed by Lightning

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 3.—The pleasure yacht Floradora was struck by lightning off Point Clair, a resort in Mobile bay, and Ledgard Scott, formerly professor in the Imperial university at Kagasima, Japan; Bruce Lincoln, a wealthy young Englishman visiting Mobile in connection with some investments, and William Brewton, a pilot of the yacht, were killed.

Alleged Murderer Jailed

Charlotte, N. C., Aug. 3.—Wilford Roseboro, the negro who is charged with having assaulted Mrs. Beavers in Iredell county, then murdering her and throwing her body in a well, is in Charlotte jail. He was brought here for safe keeping. When captured, Roseboro had two pistols and a razor on his person.

Bu Hamara Again Reported Dead

Tangier, Morocco, Aug. 3.—It is reported that the pretender to the throne of the sultan, Bu Hamara, is dead as the result of wounds.

Bu Hamara has been reported dead or killed a number of times since he first raised the standard of revolt Oct. 31, 1902.

Twenty-One Strikers Killed

St. Petersburg, Aug. 3.—There are reports that there have been fresh collisions between the troops and strikers on the trans-Caucasian railway near Tiflis. The troops were ordered to fire upon the rioters, who were using revolvers, with the result that 21 workmen were killed. The removal of a rail by the strikers wrecked a trans-Caucasian train and two people were killed.

Kansas Towns Under Water

Salina, Kas., Aug. 3.—A cloudburst flooded the lowlands and valleys from a point near Lindsberg to Ellsworth, doing much damage. The valley northwest from Lindsberg is all under water, and in three towns the water is from one to two feet deeper than during the recent flood. Much damage to crops will result.

Verdict In Evansville Riot

Evansville, Ind., Aug. 3.—Coroner Walling, in his verdict in the cases of the 10 persons who were killed in the recent riot, finds that they came to their death from rifle balls fired by some unknown persons during a riotous attack on the county jail and militia defending the same.

Her Burden Too Heavy

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 3.—Despondent because she was unable to earn enough to support her nine fatherless children, Mrs. Emma J. Merrill ended her life by drinking carbolic acid Mrs. Merrill was 46 years old and had been a widow for a little more than a year.

Police Not on Friendly Terms

Trieste, Aug. 3.—Il Piccolo prints reports of serious insubordination among the police of Kischineff since the recent massacres. One policeman attacked the head of the police force with a sabre because the latter reproved him for neglect of duty.

A Kick From Curzon

Simla, Aug. 3.—Viceroy Curzon has telegraphed a lengthy protest to the home government against saddling India with the cost of the South Afri can garrison.

—A Berlin physician states that out of 1000 girls who played the piano before the age of 12 years he found 600 cases of nervous diseases, whereas out of the same number of children who did not play this instrument he found but 100 cases. The author of these experiments states that the piano should never be used by a child before the age of 16 years, and only two hours a day at the maximum.

USED BAD LANGUAGE

Resident of Oyster Bay Insults President and His Wife

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 3.—Profane and abusive language was directed toward President Roosevelt and his family as they were driving up to Christ church here to attend service. The offender was a resident of Oyster Bay named McCann. He was hustled away from the church unceremoniously by the secret service operatives.

Accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt and two children, the president had driven to the village from Sagamore Hill to attend church service. Directly in front of Christ church McCann was walking along the roadside, pushing a bicycle. As the president's carriage was about to turn into the driveway leading into the church grounds, it passed McCann. Without provocation the man, with an offensive oath, demanded to know whether they wanted the whole road. This was followed by abusive and profane language.

As the carriage stopped at the church door the president alighted and directed the attention of the secret service officers to McCann and ordered that he be compelled to leave the vicinity of the church. McCann hesitated when ordered to move on, but as an officer was about to stimulate his movements he sprang on his wheel and rode away rapidly. While the incident was annoying to the president and his family it is his desire that no action be taken against the man.

Sight-Seers Out In Force

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 3.—Trolley cars on all lines running to this city brought crowds Sunday to view the ruins caused by the explosion last Wednesday. It is estimated that at least 50,000 people revisited the scene of the disaster. Police and militia kept the line moving through the wrecked district and no one was allowed to loiter. Boxes were placed at intervals for contributions to the relief fund and hundreds of dollars were received in this way. During the day a skull and other fragments of bodies impossible to identify were found.

Counterfeit on Boston Bank

Washington, Aug. 3.—A new $5 counterfeit has been discovered on the Fourth National bank of Boston, check letter A, series of 1882; Tillman, register; Morgan, treasurer. This note is a photographic production on ordinary bond paper, bearing a few red ink lines in imitation of the silk fibre of the genuine paper. The numbers on the note have been colored with a pen. Otherwise the note is a straight photograph.

Convicts Successfully Retreat

Placerville, Cal., Aug. 3.—The convicts who escaped from Folsom prison are still at large. The five who engaged in a fatal fight with the guards at the Grand Victory mines Saturday night have not been seen and apparently have made a successful retreat. The dead bodies of Festus Rutherford and W. C. Jones, the two militiamen who were shot by the outlaws, were found where they had fallen.

Jerome Accused of Cowardice

New York, Aug. 3.—District Attorney Jerome is accused by members of the Central Federated union of being guilty of moral cowardice because of his tardiness in prosecuting certain labor leaders against whom he has made charges. Resolutions were adopted calling upon him to act promptly and demanding equal rights for all citizens, whether they are capitalists or wage earners.

STRICTER RULES.

Needed Relative to Storage and Sale of Explosives.

That Quincy is a little lax in regard to the amount of dynamite or other explosive compounds that may be kept in any one building is very evident.

The City of Boston has very strict laws as to the amount that may be kept in any one place, and the officials of the fire department keep a careful watch to see that the law is lived up to.

Dealers who handle gunpowder can not carry more than 100 pounds in their store, and this must be kept in a copper case not more than six feet from the main entrance.

The great bulk of powder and other high explosives is kept in a boat anchored off South Boston.

Dynamite is a very high explosive but not near as dangerous as nitroglycerine from which it is made.

Manufacturers and those who are accustomed to handle dynamite claim that it is perfectly safe to handle. That neither shock nor fire alone will cause it to explode. It takes a combination of the two.

The method in general use to explode it is to use a fulminate cap and battery. This cap which is about the size of an ordinary pencil and about an inch long is placed in the stick of dynamite. From this wires run to a battery a safe distance away.

When ready for the explosion the operator pushes a rod which causes an armature to revolve in a permanent magnet, which sends a current to the cap and explodes it. The explosion of the cap in turn explodes the dynamite.

The force of dynamite is naturally downward rather than upward. It shatters and is therefore used largely for excavation purposes.

While it may be some relief to know that the four tons of dynamite at West Quincy cannot be easily exploded the citizens nevertheless feel that amount to be far too much to be stored in any one building.

If the City Ordinances as they stand today are not strict enough to regulate the amount that may be kept by a dealer, then the City Council should lose no time in passing an ordinance that gives protection.

Council Business.

A regular meeting of the City Council will be held tonight.

The Finance Committee will report on the orders for $100 for damages to Mary Donovan by changing grade of Chubbuck street; authorizing the City Treasurer to credit the amount received from the State for repairing Adams street, to the appropriation for streets; on the orders for $200 for building a part of Independence avenue, and $1500 for additional rooms at the Willard school buildings.

In the calendar on the orders granting the street railway an extension of time for building on their location in City Square, $1,000 for assessors' plans, and order granting the Telephone Co. a relocation of poles on Palmer street.

OPENING GAMES IN LEAGUE.

The Wollastons Defeat the Merrymounts and Quincys Win from South Quincy.

AT QUINCY POINT.

A Pitcher's Battle with Honors Well Divided.

The largest crowd of the season was in attendance at the Ward Two playground on Saturday at the opening of the Quincy League games, the rivals being the Quincys and the South Quincys, the latter being known as juniors last year. Both clubs had their admirers, and South Quincy fans were enthusiastic when their boys led 3 to 1, but at the end of the fourth inning the score was tie, and then the Quincys pulled away and won 8 to 3.

It was a pitchers' battle throughout and honors were well divided. Both struck out 11 men. Off Dunn, however, there were only four safe hits, one for two bases, while off Paterson there were 8 safe hits including a double and a triple. Several balls were batted almost into Dunn's hands which increased his assists by five, a total of 16, while all the other Quincy players had but 5. Paterson also fielded two balls making his total assists 13.

By way of ceremony in opening the league the first ball was pitched by Park Commissioner Plaffmann. The game gave promise of being a good one when Paterson struck out Eldridge, the first Quincy man. An error of Austin gave Dunican a lift and he stole second. Flynn's third strike was at a wild pitch, and as the catcher did not hurry for the ball he nearly made the circuit, but was caught out between third and home. Meanwhile Dunican scored. A strike out closed the innings.

Only one Quincy man reached first in the second, Dorley on a safe hit, and he was left on second, and it was three straight in the third.

The South Quincys got a man as far as second in the first, Moyle hitting safely to the right. In the second it was three straight. In the third after two were out, Spargo got base on balls, stole second, and scored on errors. Two men were left on bases.

The fourth inning was an exciting one. Austin's fly to centre was gathered in. Baron got first on what should have been a strike out, stole second, and scored on an error. Collins struck out, while Paterson, Smith and Spargo hit safely. Paterson scored, and Smith after a grand two bagger was caught out on the home base.

Quincy also scored 2 runs and tied the score, Mullane, Duffy and Pitts hitting safely, the last for two bags.

In no innings after that did the Quincys send four men to the bat, but Austin did get as far as second on a base on balls and a passed ball.

The Quincys however scored in each innings until the last when all three at the bat struck out.

There was almost a riot in the fifth innings when Austin of the South Quincys was hit by a stone and disabled. This occurred at a critical time, when Dunican had hit a long fly to left field. It was good for two or three bases, but the ball was fielded into the crowd when Austin was hurt and Dunican scored.

Dunn was the only Quincy man who did not strike out, while Austin and Baron had a similar record for the South Quincys. Four long flies by South Quincy boys were gathered in by Dunican at centre.

AT THE PARK.

Ten Innings and a Grand Good Game.

The Merrymounts were picked for a winner in the opening league game at the Park on Saturday, but Dean of the Wollastons evidently was not taken into consideration. Dean was, however, very much in evidence; he made three hits, all three baggers, and scored three of the five runs for his nine, the one in the tenth winning the game.

Wollaston, however, out batted and out fielded the Merrymounts, making 14 safe hits to 8, and 2 errors where the latter made 6. Fountain of the Wollastons struck out 12, while Kolson struck out only 2. Fourteen on each nine retired at first.

Double plays were numerous in the game, there being five in all. A feature of the game was the hot one which Kolson captured direct from the bat.

Ten innings were necessary. The full score:

Other Games.

The Wollaston Park baseball team was defeated Saturday by the Manhattans of Cambridge by a score of 4 to 2. The victory was due to the Manhattan's umpire who was unfair to the Wollaston Park boys, who played a superior game. There will be a return game played with the Manhattans on Labor Day at three o'clock, on the lower field of Merrymount Park.

At Atlantic on Saturday the Atlantics defeated the Ashmonts 10 to 6.

Dorchester, 3; Hyde Park 1.

Lynn, 6; Wellington, 2.

Consolation Tennis.

A tournament in singles was opened by the Quincy tennis club on Saturday for members who have not won prizes with ten entries. The scores follow:

PRELIMINARY ROUND.

G. B. Dewson beat Holden 6—4, 8—6,
W. Sampson beat McConnell 6—1, 6—2.
Bates beat Price 6—4, 6—8, 6—0.
Bunker beat Hall 6—1, 12—10.
Miss Dewson beat Albee by default.

SEMI-FINALS.

Sampson beat Dewson 6—3, 6—4.
Bates beat Miss Dewson 6—3, 6—3.
Burke beat Sampson 6—4, 6—3.
The finals will be played Saturday at 3.30.

Duties of Clerk of Court.

An interesting and important question of law was argued in the District Court this morning by Lawyer McAnarney. It involves the right of the clerk to issue precepts in mechanics liens. The right of Clerk Churchill to do this has never been questioned, and he has exercised it ever since assuming office. If Mr. McAnarney's contentions sustained it will mean a curtailment of the powers of the clerk, but it will probably not affect his salary. Judge Avery took the matter under consideration and will hand down an opinion in a few days. The case in which the question arose was that of Johnson vs McDonald for labor.

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony, and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

Too Much of a Load.

An express wagon load of men and women from Brockton held an outing on Sunday at Quincy woods. They brought plenty of liquid refreshments with them and by the time they started for home the men were feeling very happy. They had no row for the reason that they were too drunk to fight. When near the Adams farm on the way home one of the shafts broke and the team was held up. Word was sent to Quincy and Officer Goodhue went down with the wagon. He found that most of the crowd had left by the cars, but Michael Ford and Dennis Cummings had been left behind. These the Officer scooped in. The driver of the team was sober enough to drive home and he was allowed to depart.

Troupe—Spratt.

A pretty wedding was solemnized Thursday evening, July 30, when Mr. George S. Troupe of this city, and Miss Abbie A. Spratt of Carmel, Me., were united in marriage by Rev. J. E. Perry of Allston. The wedding took place at 34 Cranch street, the future home of the married couple. Guests were present from Quincy, Allston, Charlestown, Melrose, and Cliftondale. Mr. and Mrs. Troupe were the recipients of many beautiful, as well as substantial presents.

CARD OF THANKS.

In behalf of the relatives of the late Miss Annie E. Underwood, I wish to thank through the press all those who gave their sympathy and comfort during her last illness; to her Post Office associates who so unanimously showed their affection and to all friends for their help and little kindnesses in this our sad hour of bereavement.

Hers was a life for others, and to her nearest of kin, so many miles away, the quantity of flowers and large attendance at the ceremonies, will ever stand as a monument, showing that her life was not ill spent, but a most worthy one.

Had she been with us on Sunday afternoon she could well have said "I am satisfied."

For the relatives,

GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

Cnas. C. Hearn Offers Chance to Save Money, Which Does Not Come Often.

When one can buy gold dollars for fifty cents, it is natural to think they are counterfeit. But when a reliable business man tells you that if any one refuses the dollar, he will return what you paid for it, confidence is established at once.

It is in just this way that Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, is selling Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, offering the regular fifty cent size of this celebrated remedy at half price, and agreeing to return the money if it does not give perfect satisfaction and do all that is claimed for it.

This is your opportunity, and one which does not come often. Do not neglect it. Dr. Howard's specific will cure constipation, will regulate digestion, will restore the liver to natural action. If it did not, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn could not afford to offer to refund the money unless it performed just what he claims for it.

So great is the demand for this specific that Mr. Chas. C. Hearn has been able to secure only a limited supply, and you should take advantage of this opportunity today and call upon him or send 25 cents, and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price offer, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

BEAUTIFUL FLOWERS

At the Funeral of Miss Annie E. Underwood.

Rev. Edward Norton officiated on Sunday at the funeral of Miss Annie E. Underwood, and in his opening remarks said: A few days ago there was buried upon the banks of the Mississippi a man well known and loved. Instead of filling the grave with the earth, the friends as they passed by each dropped a flower for the loved one departed, and the grave was filled to overflowing. If the friends of this loved one just departed should do the same, I have no doubt but what her grave would be equally filled.

In passing by such a life as this, it seems fitting that a few words should be said in regard to our sister, her loving and untiring attendance upon an aged mother for years, while at the same time she attended to her daily duties at the Quincy post office unfailingly. Since she departed incidents of her life have come out which showed her attention and unselfishness to duties. She had been requested time and time again, by all with whom she was associated at the office to return home when they knew she was not really able to work. But no, remain she would, although suffering more than anyone knew, and faithfully she attended to and discharged her duties, until about nine weeks ago she was compelled to give up and take to her bed.

During her last moments still uncomplaining her thoughts were still of her friends and loved ones, and those who were prevented from being with her. She appreciated also the attention of friends.

Music was furnished by the Apollo quartette who sang "Only Remembered," "Passing out of the Shadow," and "Looking this Way." The services were very largely attended and there were many flowers. The burial was at Mt. Wollaston cemetery. Many will long remember the little acts of charity of Miss Underwood.

The floral offerings included:

From Quincy Postmaster and office clerks, pillow of pinks and roses.

From Branch No. 129, National Letter Carriers, gates ajar.

From ex-Postmaster James F. Burke, wreath.

Los Angeles friends, mound, cross and crescent.

Mr. J. W. Hall and family, pillow marked "Annie."

Underwood and Lamphier families, galax leaf wreath.

Mrs. Lamphier, dahlias and sweet peas.

Mrs. Christina Erickson and Mrs. Carl Edgren, passion flowers.

Mr. Quincy Torrey and Mrs. C. Torrey Couchier, white asters.

Mrs. John D. Fogg, purple asters.

Mrs. Winthrop Tracy Case, pinks and gilley flowers.

Miss C. S. Hubbard, flat boquet.

Mrs. G. L. Gill and Mrs. C. Richardson, roses and passion flowers.

Mrs. E. P. French and Miss Annie French, flat bouquet.

Mrs. Fred Winneberger, asters.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Crane, asters.

Miss Ella L. Stetson, pinks.

Also several other bouquets and cut flowers from friends.

In Appreciation.

On July 4 the house occupied by John Hannon on Hillside street, West Quincy was damaged by fire to the value of $800. During the fire George O'Brien mounted to the roof while the crowd cheered him on and rescued an American flag. In appreciation of his bravery and honor for the flag, Paul Revere W. R. C. 103, last week presented Mr. O'Brien with a large silk American flag. The ladies chosen to deliver the flag were received with more than a cordial greeting.

Mr. O'Brien after his surprise thanked the corps, saying he only done his duty as all should who are loyal to the flag.

WIND WAS LIGHT

For Races of the Quincy and Wollaston Yacht Clubs.

A light northwesterly breeze, that at times was almost lifeless, was what greeted the Quincy Yacht club race Saturday afternoon. It could hardly be called a race; a drifting match would be nearer. Some of the boats finished within the time limit. The second class, however, did not get in until after the judges had packed their grips and gone home. Some of the club members, however, took the time.

The one-design class got a little puff of wind at the finish which served to change their positions somewhat at the last. Up to that time the Ella H. had led the fleet and the Marjorie A. was the tail ender, Betty B. having withdrawn. When the puff came these two boats changed positions, the Marjorie A. finishing first and the Ella H. last.

In the first class the Ariel finished first, the Strideway second and Usona third. As some of these boats have not been measured their corrected time can not be given.

The Ariel finished seven seconds before the expiration of the time limit which gave the balance of the class an additional hour in which to finish.

There was quite a spirited contest among the power launches especially between the Aleppo and Marjorie. Last year the Marjorie beat the Aleppo and Capt. Tilley has felt sore ever since. Saturday the Aleppo beat the Marjorie by nine seconds, and Capt. Tilley is happy. Capt. Taber of the Marjorie lays his defeat to the fact that he was bothered in turning the stake boats. The Zweena won the race.

Wollaston Championship.

A light westerly breeze was what the Wollaston Yacht club experienced at its second club championship race Saturday.

In the first class the Neptune took the lead after rounding the first buoy, and held it throughout the race. When off Half Moon Island the Snohomis' centerboard got caught in the eel grass and held her up for several minutes.

There was but one starter in the third class, the West Wind, which sailed over the course alone.

AN UNKNOWN MAN

Killed on Railroad Near Wollaston Depot.

Evidently a West Quincy Workman.

The Body Given in Charge of Undertaker Fay.

The body of an unkown man was found on the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, about 5.30 Sunday morning, near the Wollaston depot by the crew of the newspaper train.

His head was smashed in and his face badly disfigured. One arm and one leg had been cut off. In his pocket was a ten-cent piece and a ticket from Boston to West Quincy, issued Saturday.

He was a man apparently between 25 and 35 years of age, 5 feet, 9 inches, tall, and weighed about 185 pounds.

He was dressed in a brown sack coat, of the herring bone pattern, steel gray soft felt hat, size 7 1-8, dark grey striped trousers, blucher shoes and a celluloid collar, size 15 1-2, and a made teck tie with a white figure that looked like the letter "W."

He had blue eyes and brown hair cut short at the back, and a smooth face. He was evidently a laboring man.

Medical Examiner Jones was notified, and gave the body in charge of Undertaker Fay.

TEN INNINGS.

Required in the Fitchburg---West Quincy Game of Saturday.

Only nine safe hits were made in the game of the Has Beens and West Quincys at Fitchburg on Saturday, although ten innings were played. The visitors were defeated in the tenth innings 3 to 2.

It is reported to have been the best game of the season at Fitchburg. Most of the batsmen on both sides either struck out or retired at first. Only three of the West Quincy out fielders had chances, but Duffy took all three. Eight of the West Quincy retired on flies to out field.

The only two-bagger in the game was made by Fahey of the home team.

An Appeal Taken.

Charles L. Prescott has taken an appeal from the finding of Judge Cook in his suit against Henry H. Faxon, which was heard two weeks ago in the district court.

The suit was from action of contract to recover $21.15, the amount which Mr. Prescott claimed was due him for cleaning cesspools and vaults of Mr. Faxon. The court gave a verdict to Prescott for $16.20.

Mr. Prescott's ground for an appeal was that if he was entitled to anything he was entitled to the whole amount.

Runaway Accident.

Amos, the 11 year old son of William J. Childs of 19 Elm place was seriously injured Sunday at Houghs Neck. He was in a carriage with his father, and they were driving down Great Hill, when part of the harness broke letting the carriage into the horses legs. This frightened the animal who ran down the hill. At the bottom of the hill the carriage collided with another and the boy was thrown out. He received a number of injuries including a fracture of the skull near the base of the brain. He was removed to the City Hospital and placed on the dangerous list.

WORLD'S FAIR GATEWAY.

It Will Be Three Hundred Feet Long and Seventy Feet High.

Chief Designer Masqueray is engaged on plans for the main gateway to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, to be held in St. Louis, which will be at the north end of the grand court. The structure will be 70 feet high, 300 feet long and 60 feet wide, says the New York Tribune. It will be in the shape of a capital U, with the open side toward the Cascade gardens, at the opposite end of the court. The center of the U will be a double colonnade of Doric columns, coupled and surmounted by a monumental architrave and attic. Visitors to the fair will pass between the columns to enter the court.

The wings of the structure will be given up to toilet, restaurant and other conveniences. These wings will be two stories high, and on both floors there will be concessions. The gate will cost between $30,000 and $50,000.

Yellow Glass Tests For Gun Sights.

The United States army is going to make experiments with yellow tinted glass in gun sights and field glasses, based upon the favorable comment which has greeted the innovation in armies in Europe, says a Fort Riley (Kan.) dispatch to the Kansas City Star. The ordnance department has been the first to take the matter up and is already fitting range finders with this colored glass. The signal corps has already announced its intention of experimenting with field glasses. Experiments in the Russian army have shown that batteries using the yellow tinted glass have made about one-third more hits in practice than those using sights without the yellow glasses. It is said in favor of this color that it gives a softer light to the eyes, especially in a brilliant sunlight, and even in cloudy weather or twilight the object fired at can be seen plainly without straining the eyes.

Electricity the Future Medicine.

Electricity will be the sole medicine of the future, according to Mr. d'Arsonval, a well known savant of the Psychological institute of Paris, says the New York World. At a recent meeting of the institute he made an exhaustive address on "The Action of Electricity Upon Human Beings." He showed that electric treatment is excellent for certain maladies of the skin and that electricity has a powerful effect on microbes and accelerated circulation and respiration without fatigue to the person operated on. Moreover, what is most important, he said it acts strongly on cellular vitality.

KING THANKS IRELAND

For Loyalty and Affection Shown Toward Him

GIVES SOME GOOD ADVICE

Showing How National Well-Being May Multiply From Year to Year In the Green Isle—Newspapers See Opening of New Era of Prosperity

London, Aug. 3.—In replying to an address presented to their majesties at Queenstown Saturday the king said that the queen and himself "looked forward to renewing in future years the happy experience of the present visit." This promise of another visit to Ireland has given the greatest satisfaction throughout the country and the morning papers here all pay tributes to the inestimable service which the king has rendered the realm by his tactful conduct.

The visit is commented on as a great success, which will open up a new era of prosperity for Ireland, and the address issued by the king at Cowes is welcomed as a felicitous ending of a memorable journey. Even the Irish papers are enthusiastic, declaring if only the king will pay a yearly visit or send the Prince of Wales, if he cannot come himself, that Ireland's troubles will soon begin to disappear.

Before leaving Queenstown the king summoned Horace Plunkett, vice-president of the department of agriculture and technical instruction of Ireland, aboard the royal yacht and complimented him on his work in Ireland's behalf, conferred the honor of knighthood and presented him with a knight commandership of the Victorian order, saying: "I wish you to take it as a personal gift from myself."

The king further commanded the lord lieutenant of Ireland to announce that his majesty had received from Lord Iveagh (Edward Cecil Guinness) $250,000 to be devoted to the Dublin hospitals, Catholic as well as Protestant, in memory of the king's visit.

The royal yacht Victoria and Albert reached Cowes last evening and King Edward immediately ordered the issue of the following address:

"To my Irish people:

"I desire, on leaving Ireland, to express to my Irish people how deeply I have been touched by the kindness and good will they have shown to the queen and myself. Our experience on previous visits had indeed prepared us for a traditional welcome of a warm-hearted race, but our expectations have been exceeded. Wherever we have gone, in town or country, tokens of loyalty and affection, preferred by every section of the community, have made an enduring impression upon our hearts.

"For a country so attractive and a people so gifted we cherish the warmest regard, and it is, therefore, with supreme satisfaction that I have so often during our stay heard the hope expressed that a brighter day is dawning upon Ireland. I shall eagerly await the fulfilment of this hope. Its realization will, under divine providence, depend largely upon the steady development of self-reliance and co operation, upon better and more practical education, upon the growth of industrial and commercial enterprise and upon that increase of mutual toleration and respect which the responsibility my Irish people now enjoy in the public administration of their local affairs is well fitted to teach.

"It is my earnest prayer that these and other means of national well-being may multiply from year to year in Ireland and that the blessings of peace, contentment and prosperity may be abundantly vouchsafed to her."

Copies of the address will be posted throughout Ireland.

Claims to Be Shaved Down

Havana, Aug. 3.—The total of the claims of the persons listed as revolutionary soldiers and as civilians entitled to pay for services rendered during the recent revolution in Cuba is $51,589,000. The claims will be considerably reduced by the auditing commission and some doubtless will be disallowed.

Thieves Got $80,000 Worth of Gems

SLASHED WITH RAZOR

Man Kills a Woman and Himself on a Street at Marlboro, Mass

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 3.—A special to the Telegram from Northboro says that Frank Foss, while on his way home last night heard screams on School street. Hastening in that direction he nearly stepped on two bodies lying close to the sidewalk in T. F. Sawyer's yard, next to Grange hall. In 15 minutes two police officers and Dr. Stanley were on the scene, but both were dead. The man and woman were F. P. Egan and Mrs. Sadie Booth, both of Spencer.

Mrs. Booth was 28 years old and a sister of Mrs. Edward A. Logan of Northboro. She has been living with Mrs. Logan for a month, while working in a factory in Marlboro. Her husband, from whom she had been separated, lives in Palmer. Mrs. Booth's injuries consisted of a deep cut starting under the right ear and extending more than half across the throat. This was inflicted by a razor found under her body as she lay on the ground. One of the large blood vessels of the neck was severed and death was instant.

The man has a cut almost a duplicate of that on Mrs. Booth's throat, but not quite so deep. There is also a slight cut higher up and one on the middle of his left wrist. The theory of the police is that the man cut the woman's throat, then slashed himself with the razor.

Egan called on Mrs. Booth at Logan's house five months ago when she was there on a visit, but his calls were not encouraged. Egan is known as a traveling shoemaker who has worked in Spencer.

A Memorable Voyage

St. John, Aug. 3.—The New Bedford, Mass., schooner Hattie and Lottie, Captain Silver, left the Cape Verde islands 64 days ago, bound for St. John with ballast cargo of salt, a crew of 14 negroes and 34 Portuguese, who want to settle in Canada or the United States. When a few days out she sprung aleak and pumps had to be kept going. Five days ago the schooner met a hurricane. Big seas swept the craft and damaged her hull, cabin and deck, while the leak became a source of terror, and for five days all hands had to lend their aid to keep the schooner afloat, pumps going with continuous bailing. The schooner will repair here.

Colima People Scared

Mexico City, Aug. 3.—A dispatch from Colima states that the Colima volcano is in eruption. It is believed that another outflow of lava has occurred, but the dense smoke about the mountain makes it impossible to determine exactly what has happened. The outbreak has been accompanied by loud detonations. Many people in the nearby villages have left for other districts.

RUSSIA IN AFGHANISTAN

A Plan to Increase Her Influence In That Country.

FRIENDLY ADVANCES TO AFGHANS

Distrust of the Muscovite Said to Have Acquired a Less Restrained Acerbity Under Present Ameer's Policy—Brilliant Move of Czar's Agents to Obtain Representation at the Afghan Capital.

According to a late arrival from India with large trading connections in the northern provinces, it is interesting to notice how the Russians in spite of their preoccupations in north China are doing the utmost that lies in their power to permeate Afghanistan with their influence and subvert that hitherto exercised by Great Britain in the country, says the Pall Mall Gazette.

Their opportunity undoubtedly came when death removed the Ameer Abdurrahman, who, jealous as he was ready to show himself of every fancied British encroachment, was nevertheless an inveterate opponent of the aggressive power on his northern borders, whose offers of amity he so well knew how to estimate at their true value. When he died the dread and hatred of the Russian to a great extent lost that vitality in Afghan policy with which it had always been inspired by Abdurrahman's intimate personal acquaintance with the methods and aims of his former jailers.

Consequently those points of discussion with the Indian government which were always subordinated to the supreme distrust entertained for the Muscovite have under his successor acquired a less restrained acerbity. Proportionately, too, the increasing friendly advances by the Russians, to the Afghan government in particular and to the people generally, have not of late encountered anything like the same uncompromising attitude as in former times.

Everywhere in the bazaars of India, those mysterious receptacles of news, there is talk at the present moment of increasingly strained relations between the Indian government and the ameer. And there is now little doubt in official circles that the recent seizure and detention of Colonel Yate was due to direct inspiration from Kabul or that the incident forms a very unpleasant indication of the disposition of the present ameer toward the Indian government.

While this feeling of hostility has been developing fortune has proved signally favorable to Russian attempts at closer intimacy. The recent increase of famine in the northern districts of Afghanistan afforded an excellent opportunity, which the Russians have not allowed to pass, of posing in the guise of generous benefactors of the people in their hour of need.

They have thrown open their stores of grain to the starving people and provided them with the necessities of life free of all charge. That such highly politic action will go unrewarded by a corresponding inclination of Afghan sentiment is highly improbable. The gratitude of hungry men is not largely swayed by considerations of high policy which they do not altogether understand. And Russia may congratulate herself on an achievement which is likely to bear excellent fruit.

But this is not all she has been doing in this direction. For some time she has persistently endeavored to obtain representation at the Afghan capital. Hitherto she has failed, but that by no means implies an abandonment of the attempt. Russia abandons nothing. The desire to establish a Russian embassy in Kabul, apart from the suspicion with which it was always regarded by the late ameer and in a second-hand fashion by his son, is a project which England could never permit. But that by hook or by crook her agents should go to Kabul, whether officially accredited or not, Russia was fully determined. Accordingly she has set about it in her own characteristic way.

Carefully selecting her men some months ago, she sent them, to the number of five, in the guise of ordinary travelers through the country to the capital. Here for a short time they were placed under a sort of arrest. It was not long, however, before they obtained their freedom. Their next brilliant move was to embrace Mohammedanism and become subjects of the ameer, after which no further restrictions were placed on their going and coming among the Afghan people. They have approved themselves most sedulous and devout followers of the prophet, and, with the judicious backing of the Russian government to assist them, this surreptitious crusade has been prosecuted under the happiest auspices.

There is much, therefore, affecting the present relations of India with Afghanistan which in nowise can be said to tend toward the continued maintenance of the close connection which has subsisted since Lord Roberts marched from Kabul to Kandahar and discovered thousands of pounds in Russian gold, even in those days a conspicuous element in Afghan politics.

While the ameer is, through his people, accepting Russian hospitality in the north and is himself admitting Russians to residence in Kabul, he is arresting and imprisoning British officers on the Indian border line. It is an unpleasant conjunction of circumstances which cannot but presage a fresh departure from the settled order of things in this direction which in so many parts of the world has borne witness of late to the instability of human affairs.

Cup Hunter Beats Pacemaker In Forty-Mile Race

CONDITIONS AGAINST HER

But She Outdid Herself Both In Light Winds and In Freshening Breeze Which Favored Old Challenger—Exhibition of Superiority

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 4.—With all the luck against her, Shamrock III. has again proved herself a splendid racer in light winds by beating her pacemaker, Shamrock I., 9m. 57s., in a 30-mile windward and leeward race off Sandy Hook. That the challenger is a wonderful boat for windward work in light winds all her admirers know, but yesterday she outdid herself.

Beating out to the mark she gained a big lead only to lose a portion of it by a slant of wind which temporarily enabled the old boat to outpoint her. Though Shamrock I. had the better of a freshening breeze in the run to the finish line, the challenger more than trebled the distance of her lead over Shamrock I., but the yachts were sailing so much faster at the finish than at the turn that the challenger's gain in time was much less than in distance.

The course was 15 miles south, a beat to windward and run back. The wind was not better than five knots when the boats crossed the line in this order: Shamrock III., 11:12:17; Shamrock 1., 11:12:37.

The boats got away on different tacks, Shamrock I. heading off shore, while the challenger started toward the Jersey coast. The new boat came about after a few minutes and followed the other seaward and to windward, astern of her. After a half hour both tacked for a long leg along the Jersey coast. From a position on the old boat's lee bow the cup hunter, by outpointing the other, worked up to windward until an hour after the start she was nearly a mile ahead, though not to windward. The new boat seemed to be minutes ahead. They passed within three miles of Long Branch and Elberon in that order.

Off West End Shamrock III. made a short tack off shore and then fetched to a point off Ocean Grove. Shamrock I., carrying a more favorable slant and thereby gaining materially, was not forced to tack until off Ocean Grove, and then both boats headed for the mark with the challenger leading. Shamrock I., from a windward position, fetched the turn, but Captain Wringe had to make two short tacks.

Both boats broke out spinnakers and jib topsails for the run back to the finish line. All the way home the challenger ran like a witch in a freshening breeze. Rarely before had she given such a splendid exhibition of superiority in running before the wind. Shamrock I. was more than a mile astern of the challenger at the finish. The summary:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Shamrock III.	11:12:17	4:11:00	4:58:43
Shamrock I.	11:12:37	4:21:17	5:08:40

Reliance Ready For Business

Bristol, R. I., Aug. 4.—Completely fitted out for her great contest with Shamrock III., Reliance has left her builders' works for Newport. It is possible that she may return later in the week for an hour or two, in order to bend on one more new mainsail, a part of one of the dozen suits of sails which have been made for the yacht this year. If Reliance does not come back the sails will be sent to New York.

Prize For Twentieth Baby

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—A check for $100 has been received from President Roosevelt for Theodore Roosevelt Signet, the boy born to Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Signet of McKeesport some weeks ago, and which is the 20th child born to them. The money has been placed in a bank to the credit of the baby, the interest to accumulate until he is 21 years of age.

Little Damage From Earthquake

San Francisco, Aug. 4.—Reports received from different portions of California say that but little damage was done by Sunday night's seismic disturbance, although it was quite severe. The tremor was centered at San Jose, where numerous windows and much crockery was broken. The shock lasted from 20 to 30 seconds and was from east to west.

Famine as a Result of Strike

London, Aug. 4.—Correspondents of The Times report the continued spread of labor troubles and prolonged suspension of traffic on the Baku-Tiflis railway, with the result that the intervening towns between Baku and Tiflis are partly famine-stricken. Even Tiflis has been deprived of meat for some time.

Sold Government Secrets

Belgrade, Aug. 4.—A Servian officer has been arrested here on the charge of selling the mobilization plans to a foreign power. It is believed that he has several accomplices. A rigorous investigation is proceeding.

Roosevelt Approves Cuba's Action

Havana, Aug. 4.—President Palma has received a letter from President Roosevelt expressing complete satisfaction with the treaties negotiated and approving Cuba's action in relation thereto.

Textile Workers Sought Peace

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—The fact that the industrial branch of the National Civic Federation has made an effort to settle the textile strike in this city and failed is made public. The textile workers agreed to return to work on a 55-hour a week basis and also agreed not to ask for higher wages until a reasonable time had elapsed. The Civic Federation communicated with the manufacturers, but the employers would not accept the offer.

Delaware Lynching Threatened

Smyrna, Del., Aug. 4.—Constable Wright of Clayton was shot and fatally wounded at that place last night by Fletcher Hollis, a negro, aged about 20, whom he was trying to arrest. The negro escaped, but several hundred armed men started in pursuit of the slayer with the intention of shooting him. Whether Hollis will get away or be lynched remains to be seen.

Set Upon by Thugs

Boston, Aug. 4.—Simon Sidikivar, living at 7 Stillman street, was late last night set upon and brutally beaten within five yards of his home by a gang of North End thugs. Robbery was apparently the object of the gang. The men were scared away, however, by the screams of several women who saw the assault. Sidikivar's skull is probably fractured.

Honolulu Invites Immigration

Honolulu, Aug. 4.—The citizens of Honolulu are determined to do all within their power to promote immigration to the islands. With this end in view, the Merchants' association and the chamber of commerce will advertise the advantages of Hawaii to the outside world, beside the catering to the comfort of visitors who arrive here.

Little Reliable News of Conclave's Proceedings

MAY MAKE A SACRIFICE

For the Sake of Relieving Aged Cardinals, One of Whom Has Received Last Communion—Factions May Allow Election of a Foreign Pope

Rome, Aug. 4.—After three full days of deliberation, during which six ballots have been taken, the members of the conclave still remain shut up in the Vatican without having selected a successor to Leo XIII. The futility of both the ballots taken yesterday was evidenced by the smoke which arose from the Sistine chapel. This mute signal last evening was watched by another large crowd which partially filled the square of San Pietro and which it was estimated numbered about 15,000. Great disappointment was manifested and when the little puff of smoke appeared there were loud cries, not only of disappointment, but even of derision.

Rome is becoming extremely impatient over the delay in the selection of the new pope, concerning which there appears to be no definite explanation owing to the rigid secrecy with which the proceedings within the conclave are being guarded. Practically the only news which came from the Sistine chapel yesterday was that of the extremely grave illness of Cardinal Herrero. It is presumed, however, that the other aged cardinals are also suffering from their prolonged incarceration and the intense heat. Among the ambassadors and ecclesiastics there exists a general opinion that, if only for the sake of relieving the aged cardinals, much may be sacrificed within the conclave to arrive at a speedy conclusion. On the other hand, there are those who are pessimistic enough to believe that the hostility among the factions in the sacred college is so bitter that the struggle may be continued for several weeks. This view, however, finds little credence.

Those who are superstitious are saying that as the conclave opened on St Ignatius Loyola day it will probably close today, the day of St. Dominic, one of the fighting saints in the calendar, thus fulfilling the prophecy of St. Malachi, who predicted that the motto of the next pope would be "Ignis Ardens."

There are those who profess to believe that a pope has already been elected, but that the fact is being kept secret. They recall that in August, 1740, Cardinal Lambertini (Benedict XIV.) was elected pope in the evening, but that the conclave postponed the proclamation of his election until next morning, keeping the fact of the election secret even from the conclavists. On that occasion the head which was to wear the crown was uneasy. Cardinal Lambertini could not sleep and his conclavist, bearing him moving restlessly several times, inquired the cause of his nervousness. At last the cardinal, no longer able to contain himself, shouted: "I am pope. Now can you sleep? Just try."

Out of all the rumors and gossip which is afloat concerning what is happening in the conclave the most persistent report is to the effect that the Rampolla and Serafino Vannutelli factions have remained compact and that the attempt of one faction to press forward a new candidate in the hope of breaking the strength of the other has failed. The Italia says that matters have reached a point which presages the possibility of the election of a foreign pope, and that Cardinal Kopp, bishop of Breslau, who is most frequently mentioned in this connection, has the support of the German emperor. If this is true The Italia interprets it as a move on the part of the Rampolla faction to win over the Austro-German cardinals from Serafino Vannutelli.

Le Osservatore Ramona, the organ of the Vatican, officially announces that Cardinal Herrero y Espinoza, being gravely ill, has received the last communion. Mgr. Marin, the vicar-general of the archdiocese (Valencia) was admitted to the conclave, the door being opened for that purpose with all the prescribed precautions. Outside were the governor and marshal of the conclave, assisted by captains of the guard. The apostolic prothonotaries and two sons of Prince Chigi acted as witnesses. Inside the door, when it was opened, were Mgr. Merry del Val, secretary of the consistorial congregation; Mgr. Roggi, prefect of ceremonies, and Mgr. Marzolini. The record of the admittance of Mgr. Marin was officially recorded in a formal document which will be placed in the archives.

Double Tragedy on Farm

Renssalaer, Ind., Aug. 4.—Charles M. Edworth, a farmer living near Mount Ayr, was murdered by his farm employe, known only as "John." The murderer set fire to the house and the bodies of both were found in the ruins. They had quarreled over a settlement.

Woman and Baby Burned to Death

Milwaukee, Aug. 4.—Mrs. John Knebel, aged 24, and her baby girl were burned to death at her home The fire was caused by the woman pouring kerosene into the kitchen stove when she supposed the fire had gone out.

LEAVES STEEL CONCERN

Philadelphia Paper Says Schwab's Resignation Will Be Accepted

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—The Public Ledger says: Charles M. Schwab, president of the United States steel corporation, will sever his official connection with that concern today, his resignation as president now being in the hands of the executive committee. This information came to The Public Ledger from one of the directors of the company. For months Schwab's resignation has been rumored, but each time the rumor appeared it was denied by Schwab himself, as well as by the corporation directors. The executive committee will meet today and recommend its acceptance. The recommendation will then be turned over to the directors, who will meet later in the day and formally approve it. Mr. Schwab will also, it is announced, resign as director, thus completely severing his connection with the company.

W. E. Cory, who on July 1 was appointed assistant to President Schwab to perform the active duties of the president of the company, it is stated, will be elected Schwab's successor, but his duties will be practically the same as those he is now performing—the physical operation of the various plants comprising the corporation.

Mob After Negroes, Sheriff After Mob

Hartford City, Ind., Aug. 4.—George Hearshy, an invalid, aged 19, while hunting squirrels on his father's farm near here, was approached by two negroes. They grabbed the boy, searched his clothing for money and, finding none, tore his clothing from him and mutilated him with a knife. The boy succeeded in reaching home and his father gave the alarm and called for volunteers to wreak vengeance on the fleeing negroes. Two hundred men and boys joined in the chase and the country was scoured without result. Sheriff Moriget with a detachment of deputies and police followed the mob to prevent a lynching if possible.

Each Side Makes Big Claims

Pittsburg, Aug. 4.—There is no change in the builders' lockout. No meetings or conferences have been held and the situation may be said to be hanging in the balance. Both sides of the controversy admit that the estimated number of men who are out has been exaggerated. The Builders' league secretary states that 12,000 men have been locked out, while the secretary of the Trades council contends that not more than 8000 have quit work, that being the number working on jobs controlled by members of the Builders' league.

Teller at Granite Bank Makes Discovery.

Are There Others in the City?

Boston Teller Makes the Discovery at Same Time.

At the same time that a bank teller in Boston discovered a counterfeit on the Fourth National Bank of that city, last Friday, a similar discovery was made on the same bank by Miss Ellsworth of the National Granite bank of Quincy. The Record gives the credit to the Boston man as follows:

Through the clever work of W. C. Pratt, teller for the U. S. Trust Co., a new $5 counterfeit has just been discovered.

The note is on the Fourth National Bank of Boston, check letter A, series of 1882, Tillman register, Morgan treasurer and is a photographic reproduction on ordinary bond paper.

The paper bore a few red ink lines, in imitation of the silk fibre in the genuine paper, while the numbers on the note were also inked in together with a number of others.

The note was passed in to the teller of the U. S. Trust Co. by a depositor. It is a very clever counterfeit except in the color, and it was this that led to its discovery. It is much lighter than a genuine bill, while the numbers appear suspiciously bright.

I. A. Ratshesky, treasurer of the U. S. Trust Co., expressed himself as greatly pleased with Mr. Pratt's work in detecting the bill. "It is very interesting case," he said.

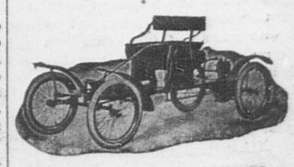

"The bill was passed in with a package of bills by a depositor. As soon as Mr. Pratt saw the bill he told the depositor that he thought it was counterfeit, and the gentleman said that if it turned out so he would make it good.

"At noon Mr. Pratt took the bill down to the Fourth National Bank and called upon the president and treasurer. You know that the law requires the president and treasurer of a bank issuing a note to sign it.

"When they saw the note they at first did not consider the idea of its being counterfeit. They positively identified the signatures as genuine, and from that supposed that the bill was perfectly good. Mr. Pratt was rather crestfallen at this, but was still unconvinced, so he took it to the sub-treasury.

"The clerk there even could not recognize it as counterfeit, but as soon as

Good Afternoon

There is hope for Quincy: in a list of 176 candidates admitted to the bar this week not one hailed from this city. There is fear, however, that one of the new lawyers may decide to locate here.

Evidently, the Negro problem, is nearer home than many of us realized, since the advent of the burglar last night. Every effort should be made to capture the fellow, as he will cause terror until he is arrested.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Piazzas are popular institutions whether a person or a family is at home or at the shore resorts. Just sitting on a piazza in the cool of the evening, and doing a quiet and complete loaf, comes as near to paradise as most persons expect to get in this life.—Brockton Enterprise.

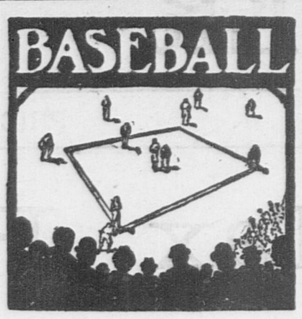

☞ The happy gathering of the descendants of Priscilla Alden at Duxbury today will be quite enough to make the shade of Myles Standish groan with envy as it reflects on what "might have been" but for a superabundance of modesty that stood in the pathway to happiness.—Herald.

☞ According to the Boston Advertiser the state wanted a test made of the coal dealers' license law and the officials were disappointed because all of the Boston dealers took out licenses. There need be no grievous disappointment at that, for the state need not be raked with a fine-toothed comb to find plenty of coal business going on in absolute disregard of the law.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The explosion at Lowell is causing the authorities of other towns and cities to inquire how they are fixed as to explosives. It is a proper case for inquiry. Wherever there is a quarry high explosives are in use, and such towns as Quincy are naturally anxious about them. It would be well for every town to take steps to ascertain just how much powder is stored and where it is located, and if in a hazardous locality, to see that the public is protected.—Lynn Item.

☞ We are masters of our fate. Let us not believe that the worst appetite or passion may not be beaten in the long fierce contest by a determined and relentless purpose. The soft and emasculating tendency of excusing evil because some forefather or foremother was addicted to like irregularities has penetrated society very deeply. It has caused a kind of mania of sentimentalism toward certain classes of criminals from the point of view that they are victims rather than responsible agents, and as such worthy of a tenderness dangerous to the social order. We cannot weaken without peril the supports of free will and personal responsibility. We cannot stretch the principle of heredity very far without breaking down the props of character.—Christian Register.

—Attempts on the part of labor organizations to cripple the government by interfering with its power to employ men on its own terms come near the line of treasonable action. It is not such a wide step from unwise meddling to unlawful opposition to constituted authority. — Practical Politics.

C. E. Union.

The meeting of the East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union was held in the Braintree Baptist church Monday evening was largely attended.

The meeting opened with praise service followed by prayer, and an address of welcome by Mr. E. M. Stetson president of the union. The Scripture reading was by Rev. McAlaster of Randolph.

Mr. W. Allen Stoddard, the musical director of the evening, rendered a very fine solo.

Rev. N. Newton Glazier of Sharon gave a very helpful address on the subject, "Conformity to Christ."

At the close of the meeting there was a social time with refreshments, which were enjoyed by all.

Little Tot Falls Into Water.

The two and one-half year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Duffy of Jersey avenue, Braintree, while playing on the River street bridge Monday afternoon, fell into the Monatiquot river and nearly lost her life. Mr. Jones, gateman at the River street crossing heard the child's playmates scream and as he was unable to leave his gates his call for help brought John Griffin to the rescue. The child had floated down stream about 200 feet when Mr. Griffin reached her. Had she been in the water a few seconds longer she would have drowned.

Karo Corn Syrup.

Corn as a food product heads the list of grains in nutritive value. The successful extracting and retaining of the strengthening food properties found in this cereal resulted in the manufacture of Karo Corn Syrup—different and better than any syrup made.

This new table delicacy is found excellent for every home use. For candy it is far superior to any other syrup. The children all love it and thrive upon it. As an energy and strength producer, it's an ideal food for infants and invalids, fit for any stomach.

Karo Corn Syrup is not a molasses, but a pure, wholesome, nutritious syrup, absolutely free from adulteration. Its reasonable price appeals to the prudent housewife. Sold only in air-tight, friction-top tins, which preserve its purity, insure its cleanliness and guarantee its goodness. At all grocers, 10c., 25c. and 50c.

—A violent fit of sneezing accomplished for Samuel Veale of Hazelton, Pa., what a number of physicians had failed to do—restored his hearing. For several years he suffered from an affliction of the head which finally closed the ear-drums and practically made him deaf. He sneezed the other day and heard what sounded to him like a miniature explosion, after which he could hear.

General Debility

Day in and out there is that feeling of weakness that makes a burden of itself.

Food does not strengthen.

Sleep does not refresh.

It is hard to do, hard to bear, what should be easy,—vitality is on the ebb, and the whole system suffers.

For this condition take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

It vitalizes the blood, gives vigor and tone to all the organs and functions, and is positively unequalled for all run-down or debilitated conditions.

Personal estate,		327,050.00
Resident bank stock,	(Loss)	162.00
Net Increase,		$859,338.00

Quincy's tax rate this year is $17.30 against $17.40 last year. Each year since 1899 there has been a steady decrease, a total of $1.90 for the four years.

The city is growing! It is growing fast! Faster than most people realize! The valuation assessed is $23,036,880.00 an increase of $859,338.00 over the figures of last year, and a gain of $13,278,920 in the fifteen years Quincy has been a city, practically a million dollars a year.

The items of the valuation of 1903 and 1902 are given above, showing an increase of $532,450.00 in real estate, and $327,050.00 in personal estate, while there is a slight reduction in resident bank stock.

With three exceptions all the items of the levy of 1903 are larger than 1902, but the increase in estimated receipts and polls makes the total levy $2,459.21 smaller than last year. This with the increase in valuation makes the decrease of ten cents in the tax rate.

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

An unusually newsy Ledger today.

Mr. Robert Thomas of Memphis, Tenn., has been visiting his family on Granite street.

Miss Abbie Feltis, clerk at Hartwell's news agency, has gone to Newport, R. I., on a two weeks' vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. James W. Connell, of Franklin street, are spending a two weeks' vacation in the White Mountains.

Inspector McKay with Officers Larkin, Burrell and Donovan raided the premises of Daniel S. Baxter at Quincy Point Monday night, and seized several cases of beer.

The rainfall for July was a little below the average, being 2.99 against an average of 3.54. The accumulated excess since January 1, however, is 3.19 inches.

Officer John P. Reddington of the permament police force has been suspended for intoxication and charges have been preferred against him to Mayor Bryant.

Harry La Duke a foreman at the new railway power station at Quincy Point fell from a staging Monday and broke his left leg and injured his back. He was removed to the City Hospital.

The members of the Swedish Lutheran church will give a reception tonight to Dr. Gustave Andreen, president of Augustine college, Rhode Island. Dr. Andreen will make an address and there will be music and refreshments.

Among the list of flowers at Miss Annie Underwood's funeral the following were omitted from the published list: 60 pinks signifying her age, given by Mrs. Henry O. Studley; also a flat bouquet of roses and pinks by Mrs. Lewis Cain and Miss Newcomb.

The case of Eugene H. Sprague and Eugene F. DeNormandie for assault on Arthur H. Doble came up for trial in the district court this morning. All of the morning was occupied with the complainant's side of the case and it will be late this afternoon before the case is finished.

Fire at Summer Residence.

The summer residence at Cottage City of William H. Rand of Milton was damaged by fire on Monday, the loss being about $2,000. The house of G. R. Weed near by was also damaged $1,000.

A NEGRO BURGLAR.

He Is Caught and Floored in a Wollaston House.

Draws Razor and Murderously Assaults the Captors.

Negro Escapes While One of the Men Is Not Expected to Recover.

Charles W. Clifford and his boarder, Arthur Heald, had a savage fight with a Negro burglar early this morning at Mr. Clifford's residence at 225 Newport avenue.

It was about 2 o'clock when Mrs. Clifford awoke and discovered that the light which was usually left burning in the lower hall had gone out. She also thought that she heard someone moving about down stairs. She awoke her husband, who in turn aroused Mr. Heald, and the two started down stairs with a lamp to investigate.

As they approached the door leading to a back room they saw a Negro evidently waiting their approach.

Setting the lamp down they grabbed the fellow and threw him to the floor and got on top of him. At this the Negro drew a razor and began to slash upward at the men. Mr. Clifford received a number of slashes on the face, and Mr. Heald a long deep slash on the back of the neck.

Both men soon became blinded by blood, and releasing their hold, the Negro threw them off and ran out of the back door, which had been left open and dissapeared.

Mr. Clifford's face was badly slashed and he bled profusely. His wounds are not necessarily dangerous. Mr. Heald's wound is a dangerous one, and Dr. Record and Dr. Adams, who were summoned, have serious doubts as to his recovery.

Officer Kelliher, who is on duty at Wollaston, says that he saw a man run unto the railroad track and he gave chase. The electric street lights had gone out, and it was so dark that he could see but little. After he had chased the fellow a short distance the sound made by the fellow running, stopped and the officer lost all trace of him.

This was half an hour before he was informed of the affair. Had the street lights been burning he would probably have captured the fellow.

Later, or about 8 o'clock, a man's vest and trousers were found in Sheppard's coal yard on Granite street. Examination showed them to be covered with blood, and it is thought they were thrown there by the Negro. The fellow left a soft felt black hat in the Clifford house when he ran.

Where the fellow got his change of clothing is as yet a mystery, but the entire police force are out at work upon the case.

Although the police had been on duty all night they volunteered their services, and the woods at Merrymount Park are being searched and a house to house inquiry is being made along the line of the railroad track to see if it can be learned where the Negro got a change of clothing.

It was nearly an hour after the affair before the police were notified, and by that time the fellow had made good his escape.

It is thought that he went in the direction of Brockton, and the police at that place as well as in Boston, Milton and other places have been notified.

The conductor of the train that is doing the filling for the new freight yard says that his train met a Negro near Mayflower Park at 6.50 this morning, that the fellow stepped off the track into the bushes to let the train pass. He, however, can give no description of him.

Upon examining the clothing left by the burglar it was found that the trousers measured 29 inches, so that the fellow must have been a short man. In the pocket was a brass chain, and a key ring containing two small keys. There was also an enamel pin which has since been identified as the pin worn by members of the Butchers' Union.

On the face of the pin there is a butcher's knife, steel, cleaver and saw. Around this are the letters A. M. C. & B. W. of N. A., A. F. of L.

Entrance to Mr. Clifford's house was made by a back window, the fellow standing on a barrel to open the window.

When discovered the back door was open and he could have easily escaped without a tussle had he so desired.

All that Mr. Clifford has missed is $3 in money taken from his clothing in his bed chamber.

The only description that Mr. Clifford can give of the fellow is that he was short and stout, about 5 feet 7 inches tall.

LATEST!

Dr. Record who with Dr. Adams was called to attend the wounded man says that Heald's injuries are the more serious as he had what is called a cut throat. This was probably the first cut he received. It is under the chin and three inches long.

His other wounds consist of cuts on the arm, leg and back of the neck.

Mr. Clifford was cut on the forehead and down the cheek, also on his arm.

Dr. Record says that Mr. Healds condition if critical but unless secondiary hemorrhage should set in he will recover Mr. Clifford will recover but his face will be disfigured.

This noon a calmer version of the affair was obtained from Mr. Clifford. This was, that when he and Mr. Heald came down stairs the Negro secreted behind a door, and before he had time to put the lamp down the Negro jumped for them and then came the tussle.

This took place in a back room. A window in the room was open as was also the rear door although there was a screen door.

What puzzles the police is, why the fellow did not make his escape as he had ample opportunity to do.

COUNTERFEIT $5.

the expert saw it he stamped it as bad at once.

"Mr. Pratt was naturally much pleased to find that he was right, and brought the bill back to me. I sent it to an agency in New York, whose duty it is to keep subscribers informed in regard to counterfeits. They sent back a very nice reply, giving Mr. Pratt all the credit for his good work.

"It was the first they had seen of it, and they at once called the attention of the authorities at Washington to it."

Some minutes after Miss Ellsworth made the discovery in Quincy, the attention of Cashier Claflin was called to it. A little later he called up by telephone the Fourth National bank, and asked them if there was a $5 counterfeit on their bank out.

The reply was: Had you asked us half an hour ago we should have said no, but our attention has just been called to one.

The discovery was therefore simultaneous in Quincy and Boston, and shows that the City of Presidents has wide awake bank officials and clerks, as well as Boston.

CITY COUNCIL.

License to Keep and Sell Dynamite Refused.

No Report on High School Plans.

A Vacation of Five Weeks Voted Nevertheless.

There was not much of an explosion over dynamite at the meeting of the City Council Monday evening. The Council, however, did refuse Harold L. Bond & Co. a license to keep and sell dynamite. An effort to get light on the plans for the High school enlargement failed, and a vacation was voted.

Councilmen Diack, Cleverly, Hadlock and Nickerson were the absentees.

NEW WEIGHER.

The Mayor announced the appointment of Thomas Robertson as a public weigher. Confirmed.

SPEED OF CARS.

The Mayor in a communication called attention to Chapter 143 of the Revised Laws, which provides for regulating the speed of cars and the use of tracks in the city, and recommended action be taken. To joint Committee of Streets and Ordinances.

PETITIONS.

Several petitions were received for minor licenses. Referred.

CONDUIT WANTED.

Petitions were received from the New England Telephone Co. for permission to lay underground conduits on the State Highway on Washington street, and from the end of the State Highway to the Point bridge. Laid on the table until later, when an order was offered.

The New England Telephone Co. petitioned to change its wires on Willard street. Laid on the table.

TAX TITLE.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on order refunding a tax title of $18 to John H. Dinegan. Rules suspended and order passed.

TO ENLARGE WILLARD.

The joint Committee on Finance and Public Buildings reported favorable on the order for $1500 for additional rooms at the Willard school. Rules suspended and order passed.

HIGHWAY CREDIT.

The Committee on Finance reported favorable on the crediting to the Highway appropriation the $1,700 received from the State for repairing Adams street. Rules suspended and order passed.

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

The Committee on Finance reported reference to the Executive department on the petition of Mary Donovan for $100 damages by changing grade of Chubbuck street.

A STREET LOAN.

The Finance Committee reported favorable an order for $200 for building a portion of Independence avenue to its full width. Order referred back to the Finance committee as no way was provided for raising the money.

Later the reference was withdrawn and Councilman Piper offered an amendment relative to borrowing money.

Councilman Whiton did not know the order had been before the Finance Committees. He thought there would be trouble selling a $200 bond.

President Alden said, ordinarily this would be charged to unexpended balances, but there were none. It was not uncommon to borrow $200.

Councilman Bass felt it would be a disgrace to the city to borrow $200. He felt that $200 could be raked out of the Highway appropriations of $25,000.

Commissioner Knowlton said the Highway appropriation was for maintenance and repairs. This work seemed to be outside of that. All the money in that appropriation is absolutely needed for repairs.

Councilman Nichols—this is a permanent improvement. If the City Treasurer finds he has any unexpended balance he will not borrow.

The amendment was adopted and the order passed, Councilmen Bass and Whiton voting no.

TAX TITLES.

The Committee on Finance reported an amendment to the order refunding Harlow H. Rogers $75 tax title, making the amount $76. Rules suspended and order passed.

The Finance Committee reported ought not to pass on order refunding $74.89 tax title to Harlow H. Rogers. Accepted.

LICENSE REFUSED.

The Committee on Licenses reported leave to withdraw on the petition of Harold L. Bond & Co. to keep and sell gunpowder. Accepted.

DOUBLE TRACKING.

The Committee on Ordinances reported favorable on order extending time of Old Colony street railway to July 1, 1904, for double tracking in City Square. Order passed, Councilman Bass voting no.

ARC LIGHTS.

The joint Committee on Finance and Streets reported favorble on the order changing the incandescent lights on Hancock street, between Adams street and the Neponset bridge to arc lights.

Motion made to suspend rules.

Councilman Whiton opposed. There were many things needed more than to have this street better lighted. It would cost $800 to make the change. He wanted time to look into it.

Councilman Thompson said it was only a matter of $300. It would take some time to get the new lights in.

Councilman Whiton—It is a question of $300 for changing, and $500 for maintenance.

Councilman Nichols—This order is the result of a communication of the Mayor. This is a public thoroughfare and is insufficiently lighted. His committee had found streets not frequently used lighted with arc lights, and main thoroughfares lighted with incandescents. The money provided by the budget was sufficient to put in all the lights petitioned for and to make this change and maintain them.

Rules suspended and order passed by a vote of 15 in favor and three against, Councilmen Bass, Johnson and Whiton voting in the negative.

MOTIONS, ORDERS, ETC.

Councilman Hughes offered an order refunding Harlow H. Rogers tax titles of $14 and $52. To Finance Committee.

Councilman Walsh offered an order changing the incandescent light on the north corner of Rogers street and Hall place to the south corner. To Street Committee.

A VACATION.

Upon motion of Councilman Langelier rule one was suspended and it was voted when the Council adjourn it be until Sept. 8.

Councilman Nichols requested that the Finance or Public Building committee give some information as to progress on the plans for the additions to the High school.

Counciman Langelier. The joint committee wanted some definite information in figures and it was voted to place the matter in the hands of the Commissioners of Public Works to get estimates from two reliable builders. The committee has not heard from him.

Councilman Whiton did not know why the matter was held up. Two plans were submitted, one with a bond of what architect could do. The other did not know what he could do.

Councilman Thompson raised a point that the speaker was out of order.

Councilman Whiton — That shows where the Councilman stands. He has given himself away.

Commissioner Knowlton said he had received the figures for carpenter work but had not got information about heating and plumbing.

Councilman Thompson, replying to Councilman Whiton, said if he had attended to his business he would know that the notice received from the School board was that some reliable information should be obtained of the cost under the two plans.

CALENDAR.

The order granting the New England Telephone company a relocation of poles on Palmer street was passed.

The order for $1000 for Assessors plans took another reading.

Adjourned 8.33.

THE UNKNOWN.

Identified as Wicktor Luoma Who Figured in Crobac Case.

The unknown man found on the railroad track at Wollaston Sunday morning has been identified as Wicktor Luoma of West Quincy, a Finn.

Luoma was the man arrested with Crobac for the murder of Fred Peterson. It was shown however, that he was not implicated in the affair.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Henry Oldham, 53 years old, a respected resident of Duxbury, Mass., committed suicide by drowning. No cause is assigned for the act.

The Venezuelan government has established a military academy for the training of officers for the Venezuelan army.

Fred C. Pierce of Fitzwilliam, N. H., aged 73, shot himself, walked down stairs from his bedroom, went through the kitchen to the hallway, where he fell on his face and died. Despondency is given as the cause.

The Lewiston, Me., board of aldermen voted to grant the petition of the Northeastern Telephone company for the right to enter the city. This right was given with certain restrictions.

Mexican Sugar Planters' Scheme

Mexico City, Aug. 4.—The Sugar Planters' organization is to formulate a scheme for promoting the exportation of surplus sugar to England and the continent. It has been agreed to export 20 per cent. of the product and not to sell sugar for the local market until a supply for export has been manufactured.

Thirty-Two New Witnesses

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 4.—The commonwealth announces itself ready to try ex-Secretary of State Powers for the third time on a charge of complicity in the Goebel assassination. The state will call about 50 witnesses. Among the defense witnesses are 32 who have never taken the stand before in this case.

WILL HAVE TO HURRY.

Delay Means Loss of Money to Chas. C. Hearn's Patrons.

The readers of the Ledger who want to get a fifty-cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price (25 cents), will have to hurry.

After a great deal of correspondence Chas. C. Hearn succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co to make this special price so that his customers could obtain sixty doses of the most remarkable medicine ever discovered for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at just half price, 25 cents. It is the regular size, the same that has been sold in such quantities in the large cities for years at 50 cents.

Whether you will be cured of your constipation or dyspepsia for a trifling sum, or continue to suffer, depends on you. Many have taken advantage of this offer. Nine tenths of the people suffer from constipation or dyspepsia. Now is the time to cure yourself.

If you have tried so many remedies without relief that you are discouraged, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn will give you an opportunity to test Dr. Howard's specific without any cost unless it cures, and will agree to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Everybody wants to be well—to be free from headaches, constipation, indigestion. Here is your chance for complete and permanent cure at trifling expense, with a reliable local druggist's guarantee that the treatment will not cost you anything if it does not cure. Take advantage of this offer at once. 4-7-11-14

Dr. Emmons'

Monthly Regulator has brought happiness to hundreds of anxious women. There is positively no other remedy known to medical science that will so quickly and safely do the work. Longest and most obstinate irregularities from any cause relieved immediately. Success guaranteed at any stage. No pain, danger, or interference with work. Have relieved hundreds of cases where others have failed. The most difficult cases successfully treated by mail, and beneficial results guaranteed in every instance. No risk whatsoever. We treat hundreds of ladies whom we never see. Write for further particulars and free confidential advice. Do not put off too long. All letters truthfully answered. Remember, this remedy is absolutely safe under every possible condition and positively leaves no after ill effect upon the health. Sent by mail, securely sealed, $2.00. Money letters should be registered. DR. J. W. EMMONS CO., 170 Tremont St., Boston, Mass.

TO CURTAIL OUTPUT

Addition to List of Cotton Factories Which Will Close

Boston, Aug. 4.—In addition to the list of mills which propose to stop part of the time during August, as announced last week, the Hamilton cotton mills of Amesbury have decided to curtail production. The mills of the Russell cotton manufacturing company at Middletown and Higganum, Conn., have closed for an indefinite time on account of the raw cotton situation.

The Libby & Dingley company of Lewiston, Me., is closed this week. The Nashua and Jackson companies of Nashua, N. H., will close their mills the last week of August and the first week in September.

The extent of the curtailment in Fall River this week is 755,000 spindles in the Durfee, Cornell, Stafford, Border City, Davol, Union, Chace, Narragansett, Robeson and Weetamoe corporations. The Troy and Richard Borden mills may stop in the middle of the week, or they may not stop until Saturday, when they will remain idle for a week or two. The yarn mills will stop Thursday night and parts of other corporations will also be stopped.

The Exeter (N. H.) Manufacturing company's cotton mills will close next Saturday and 400 hands will be thrown out of work. The Pittsfield, N. H., mills will also close next Saturday, affecting 500 hands.

Won't Name His Assailant

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—John Dempsey, a hostler, 24 years of age, and an unknown man were seen engaged in an argument on Third street, and presently they turned into an alleyway. While they were there it is said that Dempsey kicked his companion, upon which the other man plunged a knife into Dempsey's left lung. He then hurried up the street and disappeared. Dempsey was taken to a hospital, where his wound was pronounced serious, though not necessarily fatal. Dempsey refused to give the name of his assailant.

Old Fortress to Be Utilized

Portland, Me., Aug. 4.—The old fortress at Fort Georges has been fitted up as a searchlight station for the war maneuvers. An immense light has been stationed on top of the structure at a point which will command nearly every section of the inner harbor. The fort will be occupied practically the greater part of the time until the close of the maneuvers. This is the first time the Stars and Stripes have floated over Fort Georges since the civil war.

Held For Death of Poole

Canton, Mass., Aug. 4.—Rosario Di Sano is confined in the Dedham jail under a charge of having caused the death of Hiram H. Poole, who was stabbed to death almost within a stone's throw of his home on Sherman street. The police believe that Di Sano was temporarily made a madman by a blow on the forehead in a fight with other Italians at a christening in Canton.

Little Girl's Terrible Death

Rochester, N. H., Aug. 4.—Leona Lord, 8 years old, left her home and a few minutes later was heard crying in a field near by. Her father rushed out and found her clothing in flames. The child's body was completely burned over, the flesh dropping off in many places. She died in terrible agony. It is thought that she went in the field with matches.

Will Please Wool Men

Boston, Aug. 4.—By order of the United States government the embargo placed on New England wool last December, on account of the prevalence of the foot and mouth disease among cattle, has been removed. This raises the prohibition which affected not only the wool clip of New England, but also on all western wool clipped in New England.

Militia Relieved From Duty

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 4.—The three local companies of militia have been relieved from guard duty at the ruins of the powder explosion. The state police have also left and the Tewksbury officials believe they can themselves preserve order now without difficulty. The relief fund has now reached $7166.

Used Revolver at Close Range

Marlboro, Mass., Aug. 4.—Thomas Howard is under arrest on the charge of assault upon John Falvey. While talking in the former's yard about money matters Howard fired a revolver at Falvey, burning the latter's face. He was araigned in court and held in $300 bail.

Mind May Be Unbalanced

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 4.—Mrs. Katherine Stahl, 65 years old, who has been living at a local hotel, has been taken back to Rochester, N. H., by officers from that place, who state that Mrs. Stahl left that city 10 weeks ago. Her friends there believe that her mind is affected.

Thieves In Sheriff's Home

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 4.—Some time during the night the residence of Sheriff Pennell was entered, all his private papers ransacked and some valuables taken. Pennell and family were not at home at the time of the robbery.

Says His Head Was Affected

Kingston, Mass., Aug. 4.—Stephen M. Tyler, for whom a diligent search was made by more than 200 people, has reappeared suddenly, claiming that his head had been affected by the sun and that he had wandered off into the woods.

FIGURES FROM GOMEZ

Relating to Cuban Soldiers Entitled to Pay

HIS OWN SHARE $20,000

While Revolutionary Privates Will Receive in the Vicinity of $900 Each—Loan Not More Than Half Sufficient to Meet the Total Claims

Havana, Aug. 4.—General Maximo Gomez, chairman of the commission dealing with the matter, has just completed a list of the revolutionary soldiers entitled to pay. General Gomez says the list contains about 50,000 names. He believes the pending loan will not cover more than half the claims, and anticipates that the Cuban congress will provide for the payment of the balance in some form of due bill, payable with interest, after a considerable interval and probably discountable and transferable.

General Gomez said the rate of wages allowed to an ordinary soldier is $1 a day during the periods of his service. Sergeants and commissioned officers are separately computed, the amounts allowed ranging from a few hundred dollars to $20,000, the latter sum being allowed to himself as commander-in-chief. The pay of many generals and colonels is fixed at $10,000 and upwards. The majority of the privates will receive in the vicinity of $900, indicating 2 1-2 years' service. General Gomez said the total altogether exceeds the commission's expectations, but the claims were reviewed so carefully that there is no doubt as to their justice. No allowances have been made on account of disabilities and injuries incurred.

The decidedly unpopular idea entertained by the soldier element that the army will be paid in full does not find much credence in administration circles. The total amount of the claims has caused some surprise, and the matter is at present in an indefinite shape, but it is not believed that the government will consider it advisable to go beyond paying the veterans proportionately to the full extent of the loan.

According to present indications the amount of the loan will not meet more than 50 to 60 per cent. of the total claims. Nevertheless it is expected that the patriotism of the Cubans will acquiesce in ending the matter by paying off the obligations to the extent of the government's present ability, without hampering the nation with a further load of debt. The $3,000,000 paid by the United States through Major General Brooke, former military governor of Cuba, to the Cubans who turned in their arms, is not reckoned upon in the soldiers' pay list.

Miners' Strike Not Sanctioned

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Aug. 4.—The strike at the Red Ash colliery may develop into a protracted struggle. The miners have been out for 12 days and the leaders of the United Mine Workers have informed them that they could not sanction their course and for that reason they could not give them any support. Notwithstanding this state of affairs the strikers propose to continue the strike upon their own responsibility.

Prelate For Irish Privy Council

London, Aug. 4.—According to The Chronicle it is not impossible that the king's Irish visit will result in the appointment of Archbishop Walsh of the diocese of Dublin to the Irish privy council. Hitherto no Catholic prelate has been on the council, but it is said to have been a cherished dream of Lord Beaconsfield to have on the council a prelate possessing the confidence of the Irish people and of the pope.

Kansas Flood Not Serious

Kansas City, Aug. 4. — Kansas streams, raised by cloudbursts at two points and steady downpours in other parts of the state, are practically at a standstill and no further serious rise is expected. The biggest of these streams, the Kaw river, is rising slowly at Kansas City and for a short distance west of here, but at no place along its length is the water near the danger line.

Union Fires Business Agent

Montreal, Aug. 4.—The Longshoremen's union has discharged J. G. O'Neill, its business agent, who led the men in the strike last spring and then accepted the position of business agent. O'Neill, in the terms of settlement, agreed that walking delegates should not approach men working on the wharves. The men contend that agreement destroyed his usefulness.

Had No Knowledge of Fraud

Hatchogue, L. I., Aug. 4.—Justice Smith has filed a decision relative to the Anglo-American Savings association, recently defunct, exonerating the former directors of the association from having guilty knowledge of the mismanagement of the association and from fraudulent statements that were issued concerning the association.

New Cotton In the Market

Albany, Ga., Aug. 4.—The first bale of the new cotton crop of Georgia to be marketed here was sold by Deal L. Johnson, a negro farmer, for 15 cents a pound. The bale weighed 368 pounds and was classed as fully middling. It was shipped to Savannah, Ga.

EXPULSION OF MINERS

From a Colorado Town Endorsed by Citizens' Alliance of Denver

Denver, Aug. 4.—At the meeting of the Citizens' Alliance, called for the purpose of endorsing the action of the Citizens' Protective league of Idaho Springs, in expelling from that city 14 members of the local miners' union the day after the blowing up with dynamite of the converter house of the Sun and Moon mine recently, resolutions were adopted commending the course of the alliance of Idaho Springs and the law officers of Clear Creek county, "which, while involving a technical deviation from the letter of the law, became nevertheless necessary owing to the exigencies of the case."

The preamble of the resolutions charge that within the organization of the Western Federation of Miners "there exists a secret body oath-bound and pledged to commit personal violence, murder and destruction of property at the behest and mandate of their leaders, who in turn are a law unto themselves and recognize no rights of others, and by unlawful means seek to control some of the most important interests of the state."

Sailors Quit Revenue Cutter

Philadelphia, Aug. 4.—Because of dissatisfaction among the sailors in the crew of the United States revenue cutter Onondaga 23 of them were paid off at their own request upon the arrival of the vessel at this port. It is possible that the firemen will make a similar demand. The grievance of the men was that the food is not up to the standard, and that under a new regulation of the treasury department a certain sum of the seamen's monthly wages was held back.

Laid Her Husband Out

Mattewan, W. Va., Aug. 4.—William Adair, a prosperous farmer and timber dealer, had been in Cincinnati and returned here rather unexpectedly and found his wife away from home. Finding her in the home of a neighbor he became jealous and fired three shots at her, all of which went wild. Mrs. Adair ran into her house, seized her husband's Winchester and shot him dead just as he was entering the gate.

Canadians Seize French Steamer

Sydney, C. B., Aug. 4.—The French fishing steamer Marie was seized near here by one of Canadian fishery cruisers on a charge of smuggling and also for setting trawls within one mile of Bird rock. The steamer was taken into a port on the Cape Breton coast and will be held there until instructions are received from Ottawa as to what will be done with her.

Spanish Strike Movement Fails

Madrid, Aug. 4.—Rioting is reported at Seville and Saragossa, where several factories were stoned and damaged by strikers. The police were compelled to charge to disperse the rioters. Reports from the provinces generally, however, tend to show that the strike movement has failed, owing to the energetic measures of the authorities.

Politics Will Be Cut Out

Chicago, Aug. 4.—James H. Eckels, who extended the invitation to ex-President Cleveland on behalf of the Commercial club to be the club's guest next October, has received a letter of acceptance from Mr. Cleveland, who writes that "in what I say at the club's dinner not a single word of politics will cross by lips."

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony, and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

VOTE WAS UNANIMOUS

Which Made Sarto, Patriarch of Venice, Pope Pius X

RESEMBLES BISHOP BROOKS

In Personal Appearance, and Is Noted For His Charity, Culture and Piety —Associated With No Factions and Is Friendly With House of Savoy

Rome, Aug. 5.—Guiseppe Sarto, patriarch of Venice, now reigns at the Vatican and over the Catholic world as Piux X. His election and the assumption of his holy office were marked by a striking demonstration and impressive ceremonies at the Vatican, which only ended last evening. Today the new pope, clad in his full pontifical robes and with all the ritualistic ceremony, received the members of the diplomatic corps, the cardinals and the bishops, who then offered their official homage, this notwithstanding the fact that twice yesterday the cardinals and many high officials of the Vatican went through a similar ceremony. The date upon which the coronation of Piux X. will occur has not yet been officially decided, but the impression prevails that it will occur Aug. 9.

Although the election was over at 11 o'clock in the morning, and was announced to the world 45 minutes later by the appearance of the new pope at the window of St. Peter's, the conclave was not formally dissolved until 5.30 last evening. The cardinals then returned to their various apartments in Rome, with the exception of Cardinals Oreglia and Rampolla, who temporarily retain their official suites in the Vatican, and Cardinal Herrero y Espinoza, who is too ill to be moved. It was to the sick cardinal that the new pope paid his first visit after being formally proclaimed pontiff. Should the coronation be fixed for next Sunday the cardinals are not likely to return to their respective homes until after that ceremony. With the exception of the Spanish cardinal Herrero all the others are now in fairly good health.

The election of the patriarch of Venice was unanimous. After Monday's ballots it was a foregone conclusion that he was the only candidate sufficiently acceptable to all to secure the necessary two-thirds which the laws of the church require.

One of the cardinals said last night that he believed Piux X would follow the broad lines of Leo's policy, although not likely to accentuate it. This voices the general feeling here, which is one of satisfaction. The new pontiff is a man of simple origin, and although not a prominent candidate, he had been frequently mentioned as one of the many cardinals who might be taken up as a compromise. In several respects he resembles his venerable predecessor, notably in his reputation for culture and piety. Having been associated with no factions this fact alone won him much favor from foreign cardinals, who were without an especial candidate.

Piux X was humorously described as "a country mouse, who could not possibly find his way about Rome." Venetians who know the new pope well say that he will soon be as much beloved as pontiff as he was as the beloved patriarch of the poor of the Adriatic.

In appearance Piux X is a handsome man. He has a fine, erect figure, despite his 68 years, his face greatly resembling that of the late Phillips Brooks, the eminent Boston divine. When he pronounced his first benediction at St. Peter's his voice rang out with splendid resonance. In every way yesterday he showed beyond a doubt that he has dignity and personality in keeping with the best traditions associated with the famous pontiffs, who for centuries have ruled the Vatican.

Sarto in Italian means "tailor," and Pius X, when a young seminarist, being rather elegant in his priestly robes, his companions as a joke said he evidently knew the business. He began his education at a seminary at Treviso, and continued it at Padua, the seat of the famous university.

Pius X was only 23 when he was consecrated a priest at Castelfranco, acting afterwards for nine years as coadjutor to the parish priest of Tombolo, a village of 2950 people, who were the first to appreciate his virtues. His kindness was untiring. He gave freely of his small means, until he often went without meals himself, but he kept many a poor family from starvation.

In 1867 he was appointed parish priest at Salzano, a village of 3341 souls. The peasants, when he left, made a most enthusiastic demonstration. In 1875 he was elected chancellor of the bishopric of Treviso, then spiritual director of that seminary, judge of the ecclesiastical tribunal and finally vicar general.

Pope Leo, who had highly appreciated his cleverness, piety and modesty, appointed him in November, 1884, at the age of 49 years, bishop of Mantua, where he remained until 1893, when he was made a cardinal and appointed patriarch of Venice.

In the Queen of the Adriatic he distinguished himself as a thorough reformer, suppressing all abuses, restoring the dignity of the clergy and the earnestness of religion. To him is due the revival of the Gregorian Chant in the beautiful churches overlooking the Lagoons, and to him is due the strict return to liturgic rules.

From his appointment rose heated polemics between the holy see and the Italian government. The latter, as heir to the ancient privileges granted by the pope to the republic of Venice, held that it had the right to choose and appoint the patriarch. The government, however, after having long refused its exequatur, eventually granted it to Sarto who, meanwhile, succeeded in gaining general esteem, including that of the government officials.

The Italian cabinet has no feeling against Sarto personally. In fact, he might quite well have been their choice if the papacy had not wished him, but it was a political question on which, however, they gave way. Sarto soon became the idol of the Venetians.

Pius X has modest tastes, having retained almost the same habits as when he was a mere curate at Salpazo. He is severe, but was just with his clergy. There is nothing he dislikes so much as publicity, detesting the praise and compliments of courtiers. Frankness is another of his principal qualities, although he is somewhat timid.

The relations of Sarto with the house of Savoy are well illustrated by what occurred two months ago, when the King of Italy went to Venice to open the international art exhibition. King Victor Emmanuel gave orders that the patriarch be given precedence over all the local authorities, but Sarto having arrived while the king was speaking to the prefect, who is the highest government official in the province, refused to be announced and said he would not disturb the king. He remained in an ante-chamber, affably conversing with the generals and admirals gathered there. When the king learned of his presence he came to receive him on the threshold of the chamber and kept him in conversation, accompanying him afterwards in a gondola, while all the soldiers and guards rendered Sarto military honors. Naturally this does not mean that Sarto, once pope, will fundamentally change the policy that the church has adopted towards the Italian state, but certainly his personal feeling will be favorable to moderation.

Pius X admires the progress of Catholicism in America and considers the United States a most fertile field for religion.

Did Not Want Rampolla

Vienna, Aug. 5.—The election of Cardinal Sarto as pope has occasioned some surprise here. In official circles satisfaction and even pleasure is expressed at the result of the conclave. Pius X enjoys the reputation of being a moderate man of a very conciliatory character. Cardinal Rampolla was the only candidate whose election would have been distinctly displeasing to Austria, as apart from his opposition to the triple alliance, he had taken the side of the Slav bishops against Austria.

As Viewed at London

London, Aug. 5.—The London papers publish long and friendly reviews of the new pope's career. They generally think that the election augurs well for better relations between the Vatican and the Quirinal. It is deduced that Pius X is likely to depart from Pope Leo's policy of rigorous confinement in the Vatican.

Satisfactory to Germany

Berlin, Aug. 5.—Replying to the question whether the election of Cardinal Sarto was acceptable to Germany, a representative of the foreign office answered: "Unqualifiedly so from an official viewpoint. Sarto is a mild-mannered man and has never been active politically."

Loubet's Congratulations

Paris, Aug. 5.—President Loubert and Foreign Minister Delcasse have sent dispatches of congratulations to Pius X. This step is regarded as giving definite official expression to the feeling of satisfaction which the choice of Sarto has caused in governmental circles.

Heavy Attachment Against Railway

New York, Aug. 5.—The sheriff has received an attachment for $119,000 against property of the Centre and Clearfield Street Railway company in favor of Edwin A. Weed on an assigned claim of Weed & Williams of New Haven for services for underwriting bonds of the corporation.

NEWS IN BRIEF

William A. Ray of Auburn, Me., aged 58, committed suicide by shooting and hanging. The cause for the deed is supposed to be insanity.

Ex-Sheriff Hill of Auburn, Me., while working in his barn, was accidentally hit by a pitchfork, one of the tines penetrating his left lung. Hill has been sheriff two terms and a member of the Maine legislature.

The Colorado and Northwestern road, operating between Boulder and Ward, a distance of 26 miles, will be sold within the next 90 days under a decree of foreclosure.

The third reunion of the Alden family, now styled the "Alden Kindred of America," was held at the old homestead at Duxbury, Mass., 500 representatives being present.

The strike of reed workers at Kelly Bros.' chair factory at Gardner, Mass., has been settled. The men get practically all they asked for.

The sub-committee of the royal commission on London street traffic, which was appointed last month to study American street railroad systems, will sail for New York Sept. 18.

Frank L. Hughes died suddenly at his home at Ashland, N. H., aged 57. He had held many offices in the G. A. R. and represented Ashland in the legislature.

Charged With Robbing Employer

Boston, Aug. 5.—Miss Ida A. Harvey, 38, a saleswoman for John W. Goddard, 329 Washington street, was arrested upon a warrant charging her with the larceny of watches and jewelry valued at $275 from her employer. Over $700 worth of diamonds, which are said to have been stolen, have been recovered by means of pawn tickets.

Killed by Mowing Machine

Ellsworth, Me., Aug. 5.—Henry Fox, aged 70, while mowing with a pair of horses at Wyman Park, fell from his seat directly in front of the knife and died within a few minutes of injuries received. Death apparently was caused by a finger bar of the machine penetrating back of the ear to his brain.

IN WORKING ORDER

Harbor Defenders Watching For Hostile Fleet Off Portland

Portland, Me., Aug. 5. At this port everything is in readiness to repel any attack. The different searchlight stations are in working order and in case of alarm can be turned at short notice to locate the fleet if it should make an attempt to gain an anchorage in Portland harbor.

The batteries at Fort McKinley have engaged in target practice, and exceptionally fine shots were made. The target, a fairly good-sized piece of canvas erected on a raft, which was towed by one of the government's gasolene launches, was hauled across the open bay in the rear of Great Diamond island at a distance of about a mile off shore. Both of the smaller batteries of the fort have been given practice in shooting and in signalling and proved themselves exceptionally good at long range work.

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 5.—This town is deserted, all the sailors being aboard the fleet, as the defense squadron sailed at midnight to commence the defense of the New England coast from Eastport to Gloucester. Admiral Barker's defense squadron consists of the first-class battleships Kearsarge, Illinois and Alabama, the cruisers Olympia and Baltimore and about 20 smaller vessels.

Hill Found to Be Innocent

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 5.—The national bank examiner has completed the examination of the books of Howard J. Hill, who was charged with making false entries in his books of the Vergeenes National bank and extracting funds of the institution. The examiner found that there was no embezzlement and, upon his report being submitted to the district attorney, Hill was discharged from custody. The examiner places the false entries upon John W. Ketchum, a former clerk in the bank, now serving a sentence for embezzlement of the bank's funds.

DOBLE VS. SPRAGUE.

An Interesting Case in the Quincy Court.

Complaint Alleged an Assault.

Resolves Itself Largely into a Question of Law.

The case of Eugene H. Sprague and Eugene F. DeNormandie for assault on Arthur H. Doble occupied the attention of the district court for the greater part of the day on Tuesday. J. W. McAnarney, Esq., appeared for the complainant and Wallace Wilson, Esq., for the defendants.

The evidence for the complainant and for the defendants did not differ materially and the alleged assault resolved itself into a question of law, whether a man has a right to use force in obtaining his property, and if he does use force does he commit a breach of the peace.

The story of the events that led up to alleged assault, is as follows: During the later days of Mr. William N. Eaton he made his ice business over to Arthur H. Doble. Along about the middle of June, Eugene H. Sprague bought the business of Mr. Doble and took possession about June 17.

The individual accounts of the Eaton Ice company up to this time were kept on score cards in the houses of customers. To avoid the confusion of having a collector of Mr. Doble visiting these places and collecting the accounts that had accumulated up to June 17, Mr Sprague offered to purchase them of Mr. Doble, to which the atter agreed.

The drivers were instructed to bring in the score cards, and from these a table or sheet was drawn up showing just what outstanding accounts were due Mr. Doble.

On Sunday July 12 Mr. Doble visited the office of the company to settle up the matter. There were present at the time, Mr. Sprague, Mr. DeNormandie and Mr. Doble.

The paper drawn up showed that there was something like $660 in accounts due Mr. Doble. He and Mr. Sprague then began a dicker as to the purchase of the accounts. Sprague made several offers for them, the last of which was seventy or seventy-five percent. Mr. Doble refused to accept this offer and asked to see the paper showing the account. This was handed him by Mr. Sprague who said you may look at it.

Mr. Doble took the paper, and putting it in his pocket refused to give it up. Sprague told him he could not leave the office until he gave it up and Doble replied he could not have it unless he took it by force.

An argument ensued which resulted in Sprague throwing Doble to the floor and sat astride of him.

Mr. Doble claims that Sprague lifted him and banged him against the floor several times. This Sprague denies, and is backed up by DeNormandie.

Doble asked to be let up and he was allowed to. He then started to use the telephone but was prevented.

Another argument followed and ended by Sprague again taking hold of Doble and taking the papers from him.

Mr. Doble's clothing became somewhat soiled during the scrimmage, he lost his collar and had a button ripped off his coat. He also claims that he received an abrasion on the cheek which the defendants denied having inflicted. This ended the conflict.

After the evidence the court said that the papers unquestionally belonged to Mr. Sprague, and as there was no evidence to show that DeNormandie had taken any part in the affair he was found not guilty and discharged.

As to Sprague it was a question if, under criminal law, a man can use sufficent force to recover his property, and, if he used more force than necessary.

In civil cases a man may testify that he used no more force than necessary, but could not so testify in a criminal case. It was a question of what constitutes a breach of the peace in a man's private office.

Lawyer McAnarney argued that after the party had taken the papers peacefully the defendant can not take them forcibly from him.

Lawyer Wilson had no doubt but what Doble could be proceeded against for attempt at larceny. There was no evidence that anyone had a right to these papers but Sprague. There was no attempt to commit a criminal act. He was wholly right in using force necessary to obtain his property. The matter of force depends upon the conduct of the complainant.

Lawyer McAnarney—The most favorable view is, that Doble was in peaceful possession of the papers and without any assault on the part of Doble, Sprague did make an assault.

Lawyer Wilson—Doble had no right to the papers except upon the terms which they were offered to him.

The court said, if it was a breach of the peace, then Sprague is liable to the Commonwealth. The complaint implies that there was a breach of the peace. If there was any force that amounts to a breach of peace then the defendant was liable for assault.

Lawyer McAnarney—A man cannot take the law into his own hands. Legal methods are open to him.

Lawyer Wilson submitted several cases to support his contention, and the court said as there was a doubt as to the law it would continue the case until next Monday for judgment.

The Alden Kindred.

Quincy was largely represented at the gathering of the Alden kindred on Tuesday at the old Duxbury homestead. Over 500 descendants were present. They were welcomed by George W. Alden, the president. Addresses and reminiscences were given by Vernon A. Field, Mrs. Sarah F. Arnold of Andover, Henry M. Puffer of Shelburne Falls, Hon. George D. Alden of Brockton, Mrs. Cynthia W. Alden, and others. Miss Edith C. Alden of Brockton gave piano selections.

A goodly sum was collected for the erection of a memorial to John Alden, whose grave is but simply marked. Miss A. Ella Alden of North Middleboro was given a complimentary life membership in the organization for suggesting the formation of the society.

These officers were elected: President, George W. Alden of Brockton; vice-presidents, John W. Alden of Duxbury, George A. Alden of Boston, Augustus E. Alden of Boston, J. F. Alden of Middleboro, Ralph P. Alden of Springfield; secretary, Mrs. A. H. Sweet of Norton; treasurer, Charles L. Alden of Hyde Park.

Among those from Quincy were: Mrs. Elizabeth Alden, Charles H. Hardwick, Amelia L. Bumpus, Mary S. Bumpus, Alice G. White, Mrs. Granville Pratt, Lucretia Pierce, Ellen Hersey, Mrs. Thomas F. Fenno, Houghton Shumacher Alfred Hayward, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. French and Arthur W. Newcomb, Dora G. Bent, Garfield Pierce, Laura G. Pierce, Mrs. Delia W. Goldwaite, Grace M. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Bass, Miss Almira Simmons, and Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Blanchard.

Larger Water Main.

The two-inch water main leading from Hancock street to the cesspool and vault dumping station has been replaced by a four-inch main. After the station was built it was found that it would not take care of the vault matter as the force of the water was not sufficient to break it up so that it would pass through the cage, so that the dump has not been used for anything but cesspool matter. It is believed that the four-inch main will give the force necessary.

Another Burglary.

The barber shop of Peter B. Mottles on Washington street, near the corner of Canal street, was entered by burglars last night and 22 razors stolen.

☞ Tech's new naval architecture building will be all ship-shape by next Saturday, five weeks and three days ahead of the specified time. This fine looking three-story building, though not designed to be a permanent structure, has been put up in eight weeks, which is ever so much less time than it has taken to get six feet off the top of Westminister Chambers.—Boston Herald.

—The Protestant families in New York average 1.85 children to the family, the Catholic 2.03 and the Jews 2.54.

CLIFFORD IS NOT SURE.

Negro Arrested Resembles His Midnight Intruder.

A Chain of Evidence Which May Fasten Crime on Scott.

Inspecter McKay and the Quincy Force Have Done Excellent Service.

A Negro who in every way answers to the discription of the burglar wanted for committing the murderous assault on Charles W. Clifford and George Heal was taken into custody at Stoughton late Tuesday. He gives his name as Samuel Scott.

Tuesday Ipspector McKay made up his mind that the man who committed the assault had gone toward Brockton and he directed his line of search in that vicinity: He with Officer Heaney of Randolph and Officer Crooker of Holbrook, after searching all day, found Scott under a railroad bridge in Stoughton.

He was thought to be the man wanted and was brought to Quincy. His description tallies with that given by Mr. Clifford. He is short and stout and 5 feet, 7 inches, tall.

When questioned by Inspector McKay, he said that he was a reed worker by trade, 27 years of age, and that his home was in Brooklyn, N. Y.

When further questioned as to his whereabouts on Monday night, he said that he had been at work in Boston and that Monday night he slept on a dump somewhere south of Boston; just where he did not know.

When arrested he had on a straw hat, an undershirt and blue sweater, and a coat and trousers similar to those found in Sheppard's coal yard.

He had no outer shirt or vest and there was a blood spot on his pants.

When he was brought to the Police station the hat found at Mr. Clifford's house fitted him, as did also the vest found in Sheppard's coal yard. He had one or two cuts on his hand, but says he got them while working at his trade.

Scott denies any connection with the assault at Mr. Clifford's house.

It was too late Tuesday night when Inspector McKay arrived in Quincy with his prisoner to have Mr. Clifford see him, but today he will be given that opportunity.

The view that Mr. Clifford and Mr. Heal had of the fellow before their light was extinguished was a brief one and they possibly may have difficulty in recognizing the fellow.

This morning Scott was arraigned for being a tramp, and the case was continued until tomorrow morning.

When the case comes up again he will probably be confronted with a more serious charge. In the meantime he will be held at the Quincy police station.

The credit of finding the clothing in Sheppard's coal yard rightly belongs to Officer Murray. E. Frank Mitchell one of Mr. Sheppard's clerks saw the clothing early in the morning near the three posts that mark the path leading from the coal yard to the depot. He thought that they were some old clothes thrown there by one of the workmen on the railroad and did not give them a second thought.

Later, in the morning, Officer Murray who was walking along the railroad track, looking for evidence, came across them and promptly recognized them as an important piece of evidence.

While Scott was in the cage at the court room waiting to be taken back to the police station what may prove an important clew in connecting him with the assault was developed.

Among those who were present in the court room was James O. Sypher of Braintree. Mr. Sypher positively identified Scott as the Negro whom he met about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning on Meadow road, Braintree. Scott at that time was walking toward East Braintree.

Michael Branley was with Mr. Sypher at the time and their attention was attracted to the Negro because he had a handkerchief on his head in place of a hat.

The handkerchief was tied with four knots so as to hold it in place.

When the Negro saw the men looking at him he shouted, "You don't see a coon here very often."

To this Mr. Sypher replied, "Yes, there is one down the road and he is a plagued good fellow." The man Mr. Sypher had in mind was Jim Lofter, who works for a Mr. Libby.

Mr. Branley, who was with Sypher at the time, has not seen Scott as yet, but he will come to Quincy sometime today and take a look at him.

The police now believe that the straw hat, sweater coat and pants that Scott now has on came from Lofter's.

Lofter will also be interviewed today to see what he knows about the affair.

Another man who will take a look at Scott today is Charles Nelson. Mr. Nelson discovered a Negro lying near the railroad track opposite his house at 10 o'clock Monday night; he woke him up and sent him along. He will see if Scott is the man he awoke.

After court this morning Inspector McKay took Scott to Wollaston to see if Mr. Clifford or Mr. Heal could identify him. They thought that Scott looked like the man with whom they had the encounter but could not positively identify him as the party.

Both Mr. Clifford and Mr. Heal, the two men who had the encounter with the burglar, passed a comfortable night and are doing well as could be expected. Today they were reported the same, and unless something new sets in they will probably recover.

Deputy Collector Missing

Boston, Aug. 5.—Collector Gill of the internal revenue department is interested in the present whereabouts of Orrin N. Towne, Jr., who was formerly a deputy collector of internal revenue, and who, according to the collector, is guilty of the embezzlement of several thousand dollars from the government. Towne was dismissed from the employ of the government because of his excessive drinking habits and his alleged peculations did not come to the attention of the collector until some time later.

Met a Terrible Fate

Athol, Mass., Aug. 5.—Mrs. John M. Adams, aged 33, for several weeks had been so weak she could not leave her bed, but by a supreme effort she managed to creep from her bedroom to the sitting room, poured three pints of kerosene oil onto her nightrobe and touched a match to it. A servant put out the flames, but not before the woman was burned almost beyond recognition, although she lived nearly five hours. She was mentally unbalanced.

Moose Out of His Bearings

Leominster, Mass., Aug. 5.—Clyde Gilghrist and Herbert Burgess, each aged 14, while fishing in a canoe in a tributary of Leominster park lake, two miles below this town, encountered a large moose that advanced upon the boys in the water. They emptied the contents of a revolver at the animal to protect their lives and by vigorous use of their paddles made their escape. It is the first time that a moose has been reported in this part of the state

HEROIC SELF SACRIFICE.

Courage With Which a Young Naval Officer Greeted Death.

"Speaking of heroism," said a navy officer at his club a few evenings ago, "it is rare that such an example is seen as that of Hynson, who was a passed midshipman at Vera Cruz in 1846. It was really more than a bit of heroism; it was fortitude, passive courage, that confronted a peculiar danger, a self sacrifice, that was most conspicuous.

"Our fleet was off the harbor on blockade duty when one day a Spanish merchant vessel managed to slip in without being discovered. Hynson conceived the idea of capturing the vessel by a night attack, and he succeeded in doing so. But as he could not take the vessel out of harbor, for the reason that she was under the close range of the enemy's guns, Hynson set fire to the vessel. In doing so he burned both his arms so badly that he carried them in slings for several days. While in this disabled condition a terrific squall came up and played havoc with several of our little vessels, and the one on which Hynson was serving was capsized. Hynson and one of the other officers managed to get hold of a floating spar, but as it was not sufficient to keep them both afloat Hynson let go his hold and in a few moments sank to his death."—New York Tribune.

Weight of a Growing Child.

The weight of a growing child is the most important index to its general health. The standard of weight for growing children, that usually given by authorities in the matter, is that at five years of age a child should weigh about as many pounds as it is inches high. As a rule, this will not be much over or under forty pounds. Children who come of large parents should weigh something more than that. The rate of increase should be about two pounds for every inch of growth, with a tendency for the weight to exceed this standard proportionately rather than to fall below it. When a child is rather heavier in proportion to its height than this standard it is a sign of good health. If the child is growing rapidly it should not be allowed to fall much below it without being made to rest more than has been the custom before. A deficiency of weight in proportion to height is always an unfavorable sign. Any interruption in the progress of increase of weight, especially during the continuance of growth, must be a danger signal that should not be neglected by those interested in the patient.

Why He Only Ate the Yolks.

An American woman traveling in England stopped one day at a little country house. Chatting with the visitor, the woman of the house told of her difficulty in getting along and of an experience she had had with a boarder.

"The first morning this man stopped here," she said, "he began to eat boiled eggs very greedily. Egg after egg he ate—three, four, five, six—and it was only the yolk of them that he swallowed; the white he didn't bother with at all.

"When he dug his spoon into the seventh egg my temper got the better of me, and I said in a severe tone:

"'Don't you ever eat the white of the egg, sir?'

"'Surely not, my woman,' he answered. 'The yolk is the bird; the white is the feathers. Would you have me make a bolster of myself?'"

Where It Always Rains.

There is a group of islands to the south of New Zealand called the Sisters, or Seven Sisters, which are reputed to be subjected to a practically constant rainfall. The same may be said of the islands and mainland of Tierra del Fuego, save for the difference that the rain often takes the form of sleet and snow. On a line running round the world from 4 degrees to 8 or 9 degrees there are patches over which rain seldom ceases to fall. This is called the "zone of constant precipitation," but at the same time there are several localities along with it with very little rainfall.

Lightning Pranks.

"The most beautiful display of lightning or atmospheric electric currents which it was my good fortune to witness," says a resident of Quebec, "was out on the Beauport flats, near Quebec, when two electrically laden clouds, as though two trees, their heads toward each other and their longer branches interwoven, kept on for more than ten minutes, interchanging horizontal flashes of beautifully colored fire, not one of which ever reached the earth, while occasionally a flash would shoot upward as if toward some cloud in that direction."

An Experiment.

"You see," said Corntossel, "a phrenologist once told us that our boy Josh had a remarkable head."

"So you sent him to college?"

"Yes. Now we're waiting to see whether his head is goin' to turn out to be a congenial residence fur brains or jes' a garden fur football hair.—Washington Star.

Her Method.

West Quincy Games.

The West Quincys and Wellingtons of Dorchester are to play a series of three games, the first on Saturday at Dorchester, the second probably at West Quincy a week later, and the third on neutral grounds.

As there seems to be an impression throughout the city that the West Quincy ball team is composed mostly of out of town players, the manager would like to correct it by stating that of the ten regular players on the team eight are residents of Quincy.

Negroes Mobbed Without Reason

Lewisburg, Tenn., Aug. 5.—A mob made its appearance at the home of a negro preacher named John Millikin, who made his exit through a back door. He was brought down by a volley, dying almost instantly. John Hunter, a son-in-law of Millikin, was made to accompany the mob on a fruitless search for another negro, and in an attempt to escape was fatally shot in the back. The wife of Millikin was struck over the head with a gun and badly injured. No cause is assigned for the killing.

A McKinley Memorial Lighthouse

Honolulu, Aug. 5.—The proposal to establish a public park as a memorial to the late President McKinley will probably be abandoned. Instead of this tribute to the chief executive, during whose administration the people of Hawaii became citizens of the United States, it is now planned to erect a McKinley memorial lighthouse at the entrance of Honolulu harbor.

The Dinner Hour.

It is a curious fact that with almost every generation the dinner hour has undergone a change, the principal meal of the day being eaten at different periods, from 10 o'clock in the morning until 10 o'clock at night. The author of "The Pleasures of the Table" points out that in England 400 or 500 years ago people took four meals—breakfast at 7, dinner at 10, supper at 4 and livery at 8. In France in the thirteenth century 9 in the morning was the dinner hour; Henry VII. dined at 11. In Cromwell's time 1 o'clock had come to be the fashionable hour and in Addison's day 2 o'clock, which gradually was transformed into 4. Pope found fault with Lady Suffolk for dining so late as 4. Four and 5 continued to be the popular dining hours among the aristocracy until the second decade of the nineteenth century, when dinner was further postponed, from which period it has steadily continued to encroach upon the evening.

—W. W. Astor has not yet made his peace with the Anglers' society of London. Before his time respectable fishermen were welcome to fish at Cliveden. When he bought the estate he withdrew that privilege, and he has prosecuted several fishermen for trespassing. Yet he is said to be puzzled by his unpopularity.

The result of this over-capitalization and the extensive sale of shares has been to increase immensely the number of persons who are hurt by a decline in quotations, and this is not a beneficial change. The failure of one or two or three great houses for millions is no such menace to the business of the country as the fact that a hundred thousand persons find themselves a good deal poorer than they imagined and less disposed to invest and to buy merchandise—Philadelphia Record.

HELD IN $25,000 BAIL

Bank Cashier Sherwood Arraigned at Hartford

EMBEZZLEMENT OF $100,000

Is the Charge Preferred Against Him, to Which He Pleads Not Guilty—Does Not Appear Distressed Over the Matter and Expects Bail

Hartford, Aug. 5.—Oliver T. Sherwood, cashier of the Southport National bank, who is charged with embezzling funds of the bank to the amount of $100,000, was arraigned before Judge Platt in the United States district court last night on a bench warrant. Through his counsel, Arthur L. Shipman, he entered a plea of not guilty and was bound over to the August term of the court under bonds of $25,000.

Sherwood arrived at New York from Panama on the Seguranca yesterday, and he was immediately brought to this city for arraignment. Had he pleaded guilty he would have been sentenced at once, but as he failed to do so he is now at the Hartford county jail, where he will remain until his trial unless he procures bail. He came into the United States without extradition papers. Although he has no money with him he expects to get bail.

When Sherwood, accompanied by a secret service agent and a United States marshal, arrived here, he was kept, while awaiting Judge Platt's arrival, in a room adjacent to the court, where he chatted quite freely with those present. He was dressed in a white crash suit, the typical garb of the Panama gentleman, and he talked freely of his trip to Panama and his stay there. He would answer no questions, however, having a bearing on his case.

Asked if the report was true that he had been practicing medicine while in Panama, he admitted that he had, and that he enjoyed his work very much. What impressed his interviewers most was the coolness of the man, his indifference to his immediate surroundings and his utter nonchalance.

When Sherwood was brought into court he, through his attorney, waived the reading of the indictment against him, thereby shortening the proceedings materially. He informed his counsel that he expected his brother to call upon him, when the question of procuring bail will be talked over.

Sherwood was indicted at the May session of the United States district court in this city, a true bill being found against him, which alleged that he fraudulently, unlawfully and feloniously embezzled and converted to his own use funds and credits of the Southport National bank to the amount of $100,000.

Female Note "Raiser" Caught

New York, Aug. 5.—Mrs. Annie E. Sharpley of Philadelphia, aged 45, was arrested in the general postoffice here charged with systematically "raising" postal notes. Her method was, it is said, to purchase small postal notes, usually for 25 cents, erase the figures with acids, raising them to sums from $5 to $100, and induce hotelkeepers or tradesmen to cash them. When arrested half a dozen such "raised" notes were found on her. Postoffice inspectors say she is the cleverest "raiser" of notes that the department has ever had to deal with.

THE CRACK KEARSARGE.

Dimensions of the Record Breaking Battle Ship.

The Kearsarge, which has broken all records for speed of battle ships sustained for long distances and which won the admiration of Emperor William of Germany and the Prince of Wales and several admirals in England, was launched from the yards of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company, Newport News, Va., at 10.02 a. m., March 24, 1898, and at 11.32 her sister ship, the Kentucky, glided into the James river, says the New York Tribune. The dimensions of the two vessels are identical—water line length, 368 feet; beam, 72 feet 2½ inches; draft, 23 feet 5 inches; freeboard, forward, 14 feet 3 inches; freeboard, aft, 3 inches; displacement, 11,525 tons.

The speed requirements were 16 knots. On her preliminary trial the Kearsarge made 17¼ knots, and the Kentucky on her trial the same. Some doubt exists as to which ship is the faster. The Kearsarge ranks as one of the most formidable fighting ships in the world. She is armed with four 13 inch and eight 4 inch breechloading rifles and fourteen 5 inch rapid firing guns. There are twenty 6 pounders, six 1 pounders, four Colt rapid fire boat guns and four 18 inch torpedo tubes.

Convention of Postmasters

Boston, Aug. 5.—The opening session of the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Postmasters was held at Hotel Brunswick, postmasters from all over the United States being in attendance. CHAS. C. HEARN'S ENTERPRISE

Scores a New Mark in Special Price Plan.

When Chas. C. Hearn the popular druggist induced the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half price introductory offer on their celebrated cure for dyspepsia and constipation, there were many expressions of enviable praise.

Today Mr. Chas. C. Hearn scores a new mark, for he has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to allow him to continue, for a limited time, selling their regular fifty cent specific, sixty pills in a bottle, at half price, 25 cents.

In addition to selling a month's treatment for a quarter of a dollar. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn announces that he will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells, to refund the money if it does not cure.

Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia is not a mere aid to digestion; it is a scientific remedy that makes permanent cures of the worst cases of constipation and dyspepsia. The dose is small, and it is very pleasant to take.

Mr. Chas. C. Hearn's enterprise in securing this remarkable reduction from the Dr. Howard Co. has resulted in making their specific the best selling medicine in his store. He hopes any who have not tried it will take advantage of this offer at once, for he does not know how long he will be able to sell the remedy at half price. Remember that if it does not cure, even your half price payment will be refunded.

CHALLENGER AGAIN WINS

In One of the Prettiest Races Yet Sailed by the Shamrocks

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 5.—Captain Wringe of Shamrock III and Captain Bevis of Shamrock I got into a hot contest in a race of the twin boats off Scotland lightship and the masterly fashion in which the clever skippers handled the big racers delighted Mr. Lipton and his guests, as well as all the Erin's company.

Captain Wringe sent the challenger over the line with the old boat under her lee for a 10-mile beat to windward and a run home in a rattling 12-knot breeze from the southeast. The conditions were the old boat's best chance. Seven tacks they made in three minutes, each time Shamrock III holding the old boat under her lee. At the seventh Captain Bevis got headway on his boat while the challenger was filling away and Shamrock I slipped through the challenger's lee and got her wind clear, but she had not the heels to hold it. Shamrock III was still to windward and soon overhauled her pacemaker, so that the latter had to tack again. Captain Wringe did not follow, but gave his attention to getting to the turning mark. Up to that time the old boat had held her own well, but afterward she rapidly dropped astern and was beaten by 2m. 17s., elapsed time, at the turn.

Running home to the finish line in such a breeze as the old boat ought to be at her best the cup hunter added almost 5 minutes to her victory. It was one of the prettiest races yet sailed by the Shamrocks and gave evidence of the keen, but good natured rivalry between the two skippers and proof that the challenger's victories are won without favoritism and solely on her merits. Summary:

	Start.	Finish.	Elapsed Time.
Shamrock II	11:09:17	1:34:19	2:25:02

Schwab Relieved of Presidency

New York, Aug. 5.—The resignation of Charles M. Schwab as president of the United States steel corporation was tendered and accepted at a meeting of the directors. William E. Corey was unanimously elected his successor. The new president was for years one of Andrew Carnegie's ablest lieutenants and is now president of the Carnegie Steel company, one of the subsidiary concerns of the United States steel corporation. Schwab will continue as a director of the steel corporation and a member of its finance committee.

Dynamite Outrages

Salonica, Aug. 5.—A railroad bridge at Ekishon and a railway storehouse at Bonitza have been dynamited. The telegraph line between Salonica and Monastir has been cut. The greatest uneasiness exists here and a renewal of the bomb-throwing outrages is apprehended. Several nihilists of an extreme type are known to have arrived recently, and it is feared that a serious outbreak has been planned for Sept. 1, the sultan's fete day. The authorities are taking extraordinary precautions.

An Alleged Cigar Smuggler

Savannah, Ga., Aug. 5.—Judson Brinson, alleged to be at the head of a conspiracy to defraud the government of revenues by means of smuggling cigars from Cuba, has been held under bond of $10,000 to appear before the next term of the United States court. Brinson denies the charge of smuggling, asserting that he and others bought the cigars in question in this country and resold them. More than 1,000,000 cigars are alleged to have been brought in by the "combine."

Death of James Norcross

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 5.—James A. Norcross, one of the founders of the Norcross Bros. company, contractors, died at his home here. He was born at Winslow, Me., in 1831. He learned the carpenter trade at Salem, Mass., and in 1864 formed a partnership with his brother, Orlando W. Norcross. This was the beginning of the Norcross Bros. company. They established their principal office in Worcester in 1866, and Mr. Norcross has made his home here since that time

To Waive Formality of Trial

Pekin, Aug. 5.—The Chinese government has addressed a note directly to the foreign ministers requesting the extradition of the editors and staff of The Supao, the Chinese reform organ at Shanghai, who are charged with seditious writings. The demands state that the prisoners are wanted for execution. A trial is not mentioned. All the newspapers published at the treaty ports exhort the ministers to refuse the demands.

Lynching on the Tapis

Lewiston, Ida., Aug. 5.—William Hamilton, aged 24, has confessed to the murder and mutilation of Mabel Richards, 11 years old, whose body was found near Anatone. The child was waylaid by Hamilton. Hamilton is in jail at Asotin. In all probability he will be lynched. The dead girl was a daughter of Sheriff Richards of Asotin county.

Strikers Abandon Hope

Pittsburg, Aug. 5.—The 10 mills of the Port Vue tin plate works at McKeesport are in operation today, with three crews to each mill. Only about 40 of the original strikers are now out. The strikers have called in their pickets and apparently have abandoned hope of winning.

Arson and Theft of $14,000

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 5.—The warehouse of Blasini Bros. at Ponce was set on fire and robbed last night. The safe was forced and $14,000 stolen from it.

WORST IN MANY YEARS

Mill Tie-Up Extends Because of Cotton Status

QUARTER OF SPINDLES IDLE

Throughout New England the and South—Print Clothes Selling Below Price—Healthy Demand For Cotton Products Expected In the Fall

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 5.—The present generation of cotton manufacturers has never faced a situation like the present one. For five weeks there has been an average curtailment of 720,000 spindles, not counting in a shutdown for two days a week of the local yarn mills, the stopping of many looms in fine and fancy goods mills, and the consequent stopping of machines in departments preceding the weaving processes.

During the Civil war years cotton was exceedingly high and hard to get, and market prices fluctuated wildly. It is related that the Granite mills of this city bought a cargo of cotton at New Orleans in those days at $1.26 a pound, and before it was delivered the price had dropped to 40 cents. But that same year, through the extraordinary demand and fabulous prices for cloth, the corporation cleared 75 per cent of its capital.

Now the mills are closing because they cannot get cotton at figures that will warrant them in making cloth at current cloth prices, and they see no prospect of an increase in demand great enough to lift prices to a profitable point. The dulness in the demand is regarded by some manufacturers as the most serious feature of the situation, because if cloth could be sold at cost several mills that are closing would continue to run and await the advent of new cotton in September and October.

The curtailment is affecting fully a quarter of the spindles of New England and the south, according to returns made to brokers here, and unless there is a sharp revival of interest among buyers in the next three weeks it will become more general, because it seems to be conceded that the incoming crop will be from two to three weeks late and comparatively high. The selling price of printing cloths is about 2 1-2 cents per pound below cost, on the current bases of cotton, labor and supplies.

While buyers generally are not well supplied with goods for the next month, they are following a waiting policy, hoping that the manufacturers of the country will change their present attitude toward the prices offered. This policy is so well settled among the large buyers that some manufacturers are convinced that there is an agreement among them to buy nothing until the cotton syndicate faces the new crop.

The stagnation is not confined to a few lines, but in nearly all lines of cotton manufacture, trading is slow, and the mill men are proceeding on the most conservative lines. Fully 50 per cent of the fine goods looms in operation are said to be at work on staple fabrics, the plain lawns, sheetings and more common convertibles that can be stored with safety.

The general trend of opinion here seems to be that, in view of the world-wide curtailment, there must come a healthy demand for all kinds of cotton products as soon as the price for the raw material becomes more stable. The oldest and most experienced manufacturers are trimming their sails for all the fall business in a hopeful frame of mind.

Locally, the curtailment has begun to affect trade a little. There has been an average of about 7000 operatives more or less idle every week. They have not endured any great hardship, because they have been employed regularly for a long period at the highest wages in a quarter of a century, and the mills as a rule have not stopped for long periods. The exceptions have been in the cases of mills making extensive repairs on their motive plants, but the general rule has been to stop a week or two and run a week or two, thus giving the workers an opportunity to get wages to carry them along.

Russia Driving a Close Bargain

Berlin, Aug. 5.—The papers print a statement to the effect that Russia will insist on two conditions as indispensable to the new German commercial treaty with Russia. First, a heavy reduction in the duties on meat and animals; second, to confine the minimum duties on grain to states entering into treaty relations with Germany, to the exclusion of the United States and Argentina.

An Advocate of Order

Havana, Aug. 5.—Juan Pupo, who, it was alleged, had followed his brother's example in attempting to organize revolutionary bands in the Cauto district, has entered Victoria las Tunas and informed the commander of the rural guard that he advocated order and declared his adherence to the government.

Chile Against St Louis Fair

Santiago, Aug. 5.—A strong movement against the participation of Chile in the St. Louis exposition has been initiated. The principal papers oppose any official representation at the fair, and the commission of deputies considering the matter is also unfavorable to it.

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony, and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

THRUSTS FROM BRYAN

Says Democrats Played Confidence Game

"BUNCO STEERER" AT HEAD

Who "Accepted Suffrages of Five Millions of People and Then Led Them Into Wall Street to Be Betrayed—Hot Contest Likely In Ohio

Urbana, O., Aug. 6.—Four leading Democrats opened the Ohio campaign here, two weeks in advance of the Democratic state convention. William J. Bryan had been engaged to address the Urbana Chautauqua assembly, and the Democrats of Champaign county held their convention on the Chautauqua grounds during the day, at which addresses were made by Mr. Bryan, John L. Zimmerman, Mayor Tom Johnson of Cleveland and ex-Congressman Lentz.

The addresses all attracted attention because of the direct references to certain men as well as to politics on which there are differences within the party. Bryan referred to ex-President Cleveland repeatedly. Zimmerman referred to the fathers of democracy and the eternal principles of the party. Then came Mayor Johnson and ex-Congressman Lentz in emphatic declaration that this was no time for "dead issues."

The "keynotes" of the last two speakers were not in accord with those of Zimmerman, whose managers had secured the Champaign county delegates for the nomination for governor before Johnson reached the tabernacle. This is Zimmerman's home county, and the convention stood 130 to 50 for Zimmerman.

Mr. Bryan received the greatest ovation when he said: "The Democrats in 1892 played a confidence game on the people, and put a bunco steerer at the head of the party. I want to say to you, my friends, that the disreputable man who stands on the street curbing and leads the unwary traveller into a game where he loses his money is respectable compared with the man who accepts the suffrages of five millions of people and then leads them into Wall street to be betrayed.

"Don't be deceived when they tell you it was the silver question that drove people out of the party.

"Those who left the Democratic party are divided into two classes—those who left because they understood the issue in the campaign, and those who left because they were deceived in the issue of the campaign. Those who understand the issue and left because they understood it can never return to the party until they repent and show that their hearts and sympathies are changed. The fight will continue in this country until one side or the other is triumphant."

He said he had more respect for a Republican than for anyone calling himself a Democrat, "who would put his principles on the auction block or in a junkshop."

The speech of Mayor Johnson was accepted as indicating that he was a receptive candidate for governor, but that he was not a candidate for Senator Hanna's place. His address on what the party should advocate was accepted as indicating his expectation at the state convention, and his friends were enthusiastic in saying the nomination for governor would come to him without the aggressive canvass that is being made by the Zimmerman organization. Johnson intimated that if he ran for governor his platform would be reduced fares on all railroads, in addition to his well known views on taxation.

While Lentz was the only senatorial candidate present there was some talk also of Melville E. Ingalls, Charles W. Baker and Allen W. Thurman. It appeared evident that there will be a contest at the coming state convention for senatorial endorsement.

Mr. Bryan will speak at the Ohio state fair at Columbus after the state convention, and it is stated that he will make several speeches in the Ohio campaign in anticipation of Mayor Johnson being made the candidate for governor.

Porto Rican Riches

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 6.—Dr. John C. Gifford is exploring the new Luquillo forest reserve in Porto Rico on behalf of the bureau of forestry at Washington. He reports the discovery of new gold streams, the soil of which is crudely panned by a few natives, and huge aromatic gum trees of an unnamed species. The reserve contains fine water power and the only dense tropical growths in Porto Rico.

Promoter on $250,000 Bail

London, Aug. 6.—Whitaker Wright, the promoter and director of the London and Globe Corporation, Limited, who was arrested in New York on the charge of having falsified the accounts of the company and subsequently extradited, was arraigned in police court and remanded after formal evidence of his arrest had been taken. He was then released on bail of $250,000.

King's Creditors Lose Nothing

Vienna, Aug. 6.—The Servian government is arranging to pay the debts of the late King Alexander and Queen Draga out of their estates. The debts amount to $80,000, while the aggregate value of the estates is $140,000. The surplus will go to their heirs.

Minister Bryan's Entertainment

Cintra, Portugal, Aug. 6.—United States Minister Bryan gave a garden party at his villa here in honor of Admiral Cotton and the American naval officers, who came out by rail from Lisbon. The summer palace of King Charles is here. The function was elegant. The saloons and gardens of the villa were thronged. The band of the Brooklyn furnished the music. A luncheon was served, and the affair did not end until late last night.

World's Fair Grounds Damaged

St. Louis, Aug. 6.—One of the heaviest storms of the year swept over St. Louis, the furious wind tearing through the world's fair grounds, killing one man, probably fatally injuring another and seriously injuring seven others, besides causing damage to world's fair buildings and other property generally throughout the city to the extent of $10,000.

Mosquitoes Bother Shamrock's Men

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 6.—The trials of the two Shamrocks will end Saturday, after which the time remaining before the first of the cup races on Aug. 20 will be devoted to getting the challenger in her best condition. The crews of the boats will be glad to escape from the mosquitoes of Sandy Hook, which have poisoned them badly.

Seven Hundred Lives Lost

Berlin, Aug. 6.—A despatch received here says 700 persons were drowned in the disastrous floods which occurred at Che-Foo, China, July 27. Two thousands of the inhabitants are left without means of subsistence.

COAST WELL GUARDED

Against Attack From Vessels of Hostile Fleet

WEATHER FAVORS LATTER

But They Have Not Been Able to Slip Past Defenders, Which Have Advantage of Being Equipped With Wireless System of Telegraphy

Portland, Me., Aug. 6.—At midnight last night that portion of the New England coast from the British boundary to Cape Ann had been theoretically threatened by a hostile fleet for a period of 12 hours, but so far as known the "enemy" had not taken advantage of the northeast storm and thick weather to slip past the defending fleet and establish himself in any harbor.

The attacking fleet has been at sea for three days, and will have until Saturday to win the game planned by the naval experts in Washington by occupying any of the harbors on this portion of the coast for a period of five hours without being discovered.

The defending fleet, under the command of Rear Admiral Barker, sailed from Bar Harbor yesterday morning, and by night the various ships of the squadron were well distributed along the coast, and the work of patrol had begun. Many of the ships are equipped with a wireless system of telegraph, so that a majority of them can be concentrated at any point within a short time.

Several vessels of this fleet were sighted during yesterday at various points along the coast. Three of them appeared off West Quoddy head, Eastport, about the middle of the afternoon, and three hours later were sighted some distance to the westward off Liboy island, Machiasport.

It is expected that the attacking fleet will head for some of the many harbors to the eastward of this port, as those to the westward, especially to the New Hampshire and Massachusetts coast, are comparatively few.

Reward For Timely Warning

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 6.—Three hundred dollars have been deposited with the Binghamton Trust company by Manager Earl of the Ilion baseball team for Harry Wheeler of Binghamton. The money cannot be drawn till Wheeler is 21 years old. Wheeler saved the lives of several members of the Ilion team by shouting a warning of an approaching train as they were about to cross a railroad track in a carryall. The money was raised by the team as a reward to the boy.

Samoa Bad Off Agriculturally

Washington, Aug. 6.—Lieutenant Commander Minette has returned from Samoa, where he has just completed 14 months' service aboard the Wheeling, the station ship at that place. He reports the political situation in Samoa as entirely satisfactory, though agriculturally the island is not in a good condition owing to several cyclones last winter and the consequent destruction of crops, which made it necessary for the governor to import rice for the natives.

Admiration Not Appreciated

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 6.—In a driving rain storm a brass band composed of colored boys from the Jenkins orphanage at Charleston, S. C., marched from the village to Sagamore Hill, about three miles, to serenade President Roosevelt and his family. The band did not reach the president's residence, being turned back by the secret service officer on duty.

Not Eligible to Promotion

Washington, Aug. 6.—Colonel Lippincott of the medical department, who was among those designated to be appointed a brigadier general and placed on the retired list, will not be promoted. Under the direction of the president those officers to be promoted must have a civil war service of one year, and Colonel Lippincott does not come within that proviso.

Exploding Boiler's Long Journey

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Aug. 6.—The boiler of the Tuscaloosa Light and Power company exploded last evening, instantly killing two men, severely injuring two others and wrecking the plant. The boiler was carried two blocks, passing through three brick walls and landing in a department store 300 feet away. Several stores were badly damaged.

BAD TRAIN WRECK

Engineer and Fireman Crawled From Beneath Engine Unhurt

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 6.—A Charlton special to The Telegram says a Boston and Chicago special was wrecked at Charlton depot in a collison with an eastbound freight. The freight engine, after taking water, was recrossing the main track when the express bound for Boston came along at a 45-mile clip with all signals set for a clear track. Both engines were wrecked and two cars of the express derailed. The damage is estimated at over $30,000.

Passengers on the derailed cars escaped through the windows. The engineer and fireman of the express crawled out of the ruins unhurt. The passengers in the Pullmans were badly shaken up and tumbled out. The tracks were not cleared for several hours.

Thirty-Four Liquor Men Raided

Bangor, Me., Aug. 6.—County Attorney Smith, acting upon information which he believed to be reliable, swore out 39 warrants in the municipal court against men who were supposed to be openly violating the prohibitory law. These warrants were placed in the hands of Sheriff Gilman, who hastily summoned in his deputies from out of town and enlisted the service of nearly the entire police force of Bangor. The raids were begun at 7 o'clock last night, and within an hour evidence had been secured against 34 men. Only enough liquor was seized in each place to serve as evidence.

Astonished Police Officials

Boston, Aug. 6.—Some of the measurements of Alexander Cheatham, a negro, who was a subject of the Bertillon system, surprised the men of Chief Inspector Watts' office. The record of the office was broken as regarded the length of outstretched arms, the latter being 6 feet 9 inches; length of forearm and length of foot. The man was more than six feet tall and was abnormal in several respects. He was arrested at the South End, charged with the larceny of clothing from some person or persons unknown to the police.

To Preserve Alden Homestead

Duxbury, Mass., Aug. 6.—The old John Alden homestead in this town, 250 years old, erected by a grandson of the original John and Priscilla Alden of Pilgrim times, will soon be placed on the market, and the Alden kindred of America will endeavor to purchase the property. President Alden of the organization has started a fund for this purpose. John and Priscilla are believed to have passed their last days at the present homestead.

End of Waterbury Strike in Sight

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 6.—At a meeting of the union last night an extraordinary effort was made to declare off the strike of the trolleymen which has been on in this city since last January. There was a majority vote in favor of this action, but owing to the fact that a number of the strikers were absent, the final action was deferred until this evening.

Weary of Young Husband

Boston, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Louisa Pierce Barnes has brought suit against her husband, Dr. Charles H. Barnes, asking for absolute divorce. She also has filed a writ of attachment against her husband's property for $5000 damages. Mrs. Barnes was married to Dr. Barnes in 1900, at the age of 75. Her husband was 32 years old.

To Enforce Pure Food Law

Concord, N. H., Aug. 6.—The state board of health announces that it will at once take up the pure food laws of the state and endeavor to secure their enforcement. It is promised that from time to time lists of goods found by analysis to be adulterated will be published.

Instantly Killed by Fall

Boston, Aug. 6.—While working at the Constitution wharf storage warehouse Frank Silva, 28, in reaching from a fourth story window for a bale of goods that was being hoisted, slipped and fell 50 feet to the pavement and was instantly killed.

NO SILVER LINING

Visible In Clouds Over Wall Street, Where Two More Failures Occur

New York, Aug. 6.—Two more Stock Exchange failures, making a total of six in the last 11 business days, were recorded when Sharp & Bryan and Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. announced their inability to meet their obligations. Neither failure occasioned surprise, as both had been discounted. The failure of Sharp & Bryan came shortly after the market had recovered from its demoralized opening. That of Hurlbutt, Hatch & Co. was announced just as prices throughout the list were tumbling lower than at any time before.

The day's business can best be summarized by the statement that almost four score of stocks, fully two-thirds of the active list, touched the lowest record reached during the present movement, which had its inception last September.

At the close of the day some of the solid interests spoke reassuringly. They declared that the financial atmosphere was being clarified, but for all that Wall street as a whole could see no silver lining in the clouds, much less a golden one. Other failures were confidently predicted and the names of several important firms were mentioned as among those in financial straits.

A sharp break in sterling exchange during the day was coupled with the suggestion that at least one international banking house had been making desperate efforts to borrow money abroad. Officers of leading local banks and trust companies decline to discuss the situation except to express confidence as to the sound condition of financial institutions.

Branching Out In Boodle Inquiry

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 6.—Governor Dockery, Secretary of State Cook, Treasurer Williams and Auditor Allen were summoned before the Cole county grand jury that is investigating charges of executive boodling. The governor was the first to enter the jury room. He was followed by Cook, Williams and Allen. Statements have been made in certain newspapers declaring that the state officials should be investigated, and it is probable that the grand jury called these to give them an opportunity to testify regarding boodling and to deny any accusations that may have been made against them.

Good Afternoon

At St. Louis Wednesday the temperature was 94. Which extreme do you like?

The city of Fitchburg reports a reduction in the assessed valuation this year. Should Quincy ever suffer a reduction there would be a big jump in the tax rate.

The city of Marlboro ought to be thankful for a reduction of forty cents in the tax rate as it was $20 per $1000 last year and has been higher. The valuation is as follows: Real estate, $7,917,776; personal estate, $1,443,315.

If the Quincy police have caught the right man who entered the Wollaston house, they have done a very prompt and clever piece of work. The whole force entered into the search with a will, and looked everywhere for clues. It was a time when the police signal system paid all it cost, and also emphasized the need of well lighted streets all night.

The talk of lynching in the city of Quincy should be deferred at least until after the right Negro burglar is under arrest. The privilege of lynching the wrong man is exclusively southern and duly copyrighted.—Boston Advertiser.

Only one Boston paper has intimated that there was a talk of lynching because of the Wollaston burglary, and such a rash act has not been considered. We have a law abiding people, and if the right fellow is caught he will get his deserts.

Mayor Bryant and the taxpayers are to be congratulated upon the low tax rate this year. Probably the Assessors have "scrimped" the city in unappropriated money by estimating the "receipts" so high, $8,371.56 more than last year, and by raising such a small sum as $4,070.78 for overlayings. Last year the abatments on taxes amounted to $3,777.25, and the collections for the years 1895, 1896, 1897 and 1898 were so small, that it looks as if a very large sum must ultimately be abated.

Outside of water and sewer appropriations there seems to have been a desire on the part of the present administration to keep down the appropriations, which however are pretty near the limit, and the loans of 1903 under the municipal debt have thus far been lower than in recent years. The demands are great, and the greatest problem is where to curtail on improvements.

Drift of Opinion.

☞What a property-owning woman can't understand is why there shouldn't be bargain days in taxation.—Beverly Times.

☞Congressman Thayer of Massachusetts has not been known as much of a joker, but when he said, in a recent speech at Brockton, that Massachusetts had seen but three first class governors since he began to vote—the three being Gaston, Butler and Russell—the suspicion is excited that he was trying to see how much a Brockton audience would stand. Mr. Thayer knows better than that.—New Bedford Standard.

THE RIGHT FELLOW.

Police Believe Sam Scott, the Arrested Negro, to be Guilty.

He tells a Story Implicating a Pal Which Should be Taken with Salt.

Two Important Discoveries by the Quincy Police Near the Scene This Morning.

There was another large crowd at the court room this morning, anxious to get a look at Sam Scott, the man whom the police believe to be the party who made the murderous assault on Charles W. Clifford and George Heal at Wollaston on Tuesday morning.

Inspector McKay who has been hard at work upon the case, swore out a new warrant this morning which charged Scott with breaking and entering the house of Charles W. Clifford with intent to commit larceny. He pleaded not guilty.

The court asked him if he desired a hearing in the lower court.

He pleaded not guilty.

The court asked him if he desired a hearing in the lower court.

Scott replied: "That is for the court to say. I am not guilty."

Inspector McKay then asked for a continuance until next Thursday, which the court granted, and held Scott in $3000 until that time. Unable to procure bail he will be taken to Dedham jail.

After Scott's confession to the police at midnight, published below, that it was his chum Joe Bailey who did the job, the police are more firmly convinced that they have the right man. They believe that Scott and Bailey are one, and the same man. It would not be surprising if in the end Scott confessed that he did the job.

The police department are entitled to a great deal of credit for their prompt apprehension of the suspected man, especially so when similar crimes have recently been committed in some of the larger cities and the parties have successfully got away.

NEW DISCOVERIES.

The shoes and shirts worn by the burglar who made the murderous assault on Charles W. Clifford and George Heal have been found.

It has also been ascertained where Sam Scott obtained the coat and straw hat he wore when arrested.

These things were brought to light this morning after Scott was arraigned in court. When Scott made the confession to the police last night, implicating his chum Joe Bailey, he said that he thought he could show them where Bailey threw the knife with which the cutting was done.

CHIEF HAYDEN.

Shortly after 10 o'clock Chief Hayden, Inspector McKay and the Negro entered one of Bisson's carriages and drove towards Wollaston. They drove to Clifford's house where Heal took a look at Scott to see if he could identify him.

Mr. Heal is still dangerously ill, and while he could not positively identify the man, he felt quite sure that he was the party.

From there the police started up the railroad track toward Wollaston, and Scott pointed out where he thought the knife should be.

The knife, however, was not found, but while searching in the bushes the police found shoes, and also two shirts, all covered with blood, which are undoubtedly those worn by the burglar Tuesday morning.

A more careful search will be made for the knife later.

The place where the shoes and shirts were found was in the bushes along side of the railroad track north of the Wollaston depot and a short distance from Mr. Clifford's house.

Upon being further questioned, Scott said that the straw hat and coat he wore when arrested were given him by a woman in Braintree. He volunteered to show the police the house and the team was headed for Braintree.

They found the place all right and the woman proved to be Mrs. Ellen Brown, who resides on Middle street.

NEGRO RECOGNIZED.

Mrs. Brown readily recognized the Negro and the coat and hat.

Mrs. Brown, in conversation, said that the Negro came to her house Tuesday morning bareheaded and without any outer shirt on, and asked for something to eat. She noticed that he was shaking and acting nervous but attributed it to the fact that he was scantily clothed.

She then gave him the coat and hat, and the Negro started in to saw some wood while she entered the house to prepare him something to eat.

She came out with the food a few minutes later, and was surprised to find that the Negro had gone.

She fully identified Scott as the man.

It was nearly 1 o'clock before the return was made to Quincy, and the prisoner turned over to Officer Butler of Weymouth, who was acting as court officer.

Officer Butler took the fellow to Carlson's, near the depot, and gave him a lunch, and then took him to Dedham jail, where he will remain until next Thursday.

The developments this morning convince the police more thoroughly than ever, that Scott and Bailey are one and the same person, and that Scott will eventually break down and make a full confession.

STORY OF A PAL.

Scott's confession is as follows: Was travelling in company with another negro, named Joe Bailey, who lives on the east side of New York city. He says he had been going about the country with Bailey for the last five years. He says Bailey was a thief, but he worked for his living. Monday night he and Bailey lay down by the side of the railroad track and went to sleep.

Scott says he was awakened by the sound of a pistol shot, and looking around, in a few minutes saw Bailey come running out of a house in Wollaston. Bailey ran up the track at pretty good speed, while Scott followed at a leisurely pace. Yet he managed to catch up with Bailey in a short time.

Bailey told him he had had a fight in a house and that he had used a blue steel dirk. In describing it more fully, Scott said it was a dirk which had a hinge in the back.

At this time Bailey wore two pairs of trousers. Soon after Bailey took off the outer pair of trousers, which were covered with blood. He also took off his coat, vest and shoes, all of which were bloody.

Bailey asked Scott to trade shoes, and, to oblige him, Scott gave Bailey his own shoes and put on Bailey's, although they were bloody. Then Bailey threw away the bloody coat, vest and

There was a large crowd at the district court this morning anxious to get a look at Sam Scott, the Negro arrested on suspicion of having made the assault at Wollaston on Tuesday morning.

A horse attached to an open buggy owned by Daniel Desmond became frightened while left alone on Quincy avenue this noon and started off on his own hook. He ran down Hancock street, eluding all efforts to stop him and was captured near Wollaston.

The Quincy League.

The Quincys and the Wollastons, the two leaders in the Quincy base ball league with an unbroken record will meet Saturday afternoon at Merrymount park, and a good struggle is expected. It will be the only league game.

It has been suggested that it would be more interesting if Atlantic and West Quincy were represented in the league, and that the Atlantics and Copeland club would give the other nines a rub. It is not too late for them to enter, and they could play their first game together.

Struck by Electric.

The delivery wagon of F. H. Sylvester was run into by a Braintree electric car at the head of Station avenue, East Weymouth, Wednesday morning and the horse was killed. George Dyer, the driver, was injured.

MILTON.

George Ellis went on a fishing trip last Sunday with two friends. The boat capsized and all got a ducking. Mr. Ellis had a roll of $2 bills in his pocket and Monday his clothes line was used to dry them while he kept watch that no clothes line thief should make off with his valuable wash. His friends tell him that he should remember the fourth commandment.

D. W. Bearse, station agent at the East Milton depot, and Mrs. Bearse, have gone to the Cape for a brief visit.

Rev. Mr. Woodsum of Norfolk, Va., will preach at the mission of Our Saviour on Sunday evening.

The Thursday Evening club will hold its annual fishing trip Thursday, Aug. 13, on the steamer Philadelphia. The committee having the affair in charge are James Gibbs, George Simpson and William Barron.

Herbert Murray, a well known East Milton young man, returned from New York this week. According to his story he left home four weeks ago with twenty cents in his pocket. He got to New York and return by jumping freight cars. While in New York he visited the Bowery and other interesting sections and says that he had a good time.

No License at Neponset.

The board of police of Boston have done the No-license city of Quincy a favor in rejecting on Wednesday the application of Michael Crowne & Co., grocers, at 373 Neponset avenue, Dorchester, for a grocer's liquor license.

On Tuesday a strong protest from the people of the district was filed with the board against the granting of this license. The leading persons in the protest against the granting of the license were the Rev. Fr. Murphy of St. Ann's Roman Catholic church, which is near the store in question; Mr. W. W. Whitmarsh, treasurer of the Putnam Nail Company, and Mr. Laban Pratt of the Boston park commissioners.

trousers by the side of the track, and they walked on together.

Soon after the shoes began to pinch and Scott says he took them off and threw them into an empty freight car, but by good luck found an old pair of shoes in the cars which he put on. He was wearing these shoes so opportunely found when arrested.

Scott says he gave his own coat and vest to Bailey, who wanted to get away quickly. Scott then continued on to Braintree, according to his story, minus coat, vest and hat. He says Bailey gave him a quarter for his trouble, and that Bailey seemed to have $3 or $4 with him.

Scott says he sawed wood for a person in Braintree and was given a straw hat and coat for his work. In the meantime Bailey had got safely away. Bailey had thrown away the dirk as they walked along the track, but thinks he might be able to locate the place by daylight if given a chance.

The police are not inclined to put much faith in the story Scott tells. They confronted him with the bloody coat and trousers, and he said they were ones Bailey had thrown away. When asked about the union button found in one of the pockets, he said that Bailey had carried it for nearly five years and that it was the button of the meat cutters' union of America.

There is a strong suspicion in the minds of the police that Scott and Baily are one, and that the statement made tonight is to prepare the way for a final confession.

AN AUTOMOBILE YACHT.

Its Inventor Expects to Explore Florida Swamp In Novel Craft.

Destined for service both on land and water, the much discussed "automobile yacht" will soon be prepared to make its journey to the south, says the New York Herald. As far as both marine and terrestrial architecture are concerned the amphibious craft is not a thing to delight the eye, for it has lines which have never been considered beautiful.

Its inventor, Anton Schmidt, a cabinet maker of Newark, N. J., who built it, says that he is sure that it will do all that is required of it either in the water or on dry land and that soon he will make his arrangements to go to Florida, where he has been invited to explore a swamp. Near Ocala, he has been informed, there is a morass which incloses a more or less active sulphur volcano. Rank vegetation abounds on the outskirts of the region, and in the center there is an unexplored spot believed to abound in sulphurous fumes and salamanders.

The vessel has had a trial trip in the waters near Newark, and when all the machinery is placed in it he believes that within a few weeks he will reach the region which awaits his investigation.

This land and water craft, as Mr. Schmidt calls it, is forty-five feet in length, eight in beam and has a draught of three feet. Its total height is only a trifle more than six feet, just enough to permit a man to stand up inside. It has five wheels in all, two large ones at the side and one at each end and a small one beneath, which serves as a support when the craft is on dry land and as a means of propulsion when it is immersed. The greater part of the power will be applied to the side wheels.

The inventor thinks that the craft may easily proceed at the rate of six miles an hour on land and eight in water.

MELONS ON A PEACH TREE.

Uncle Billie Somers' New Idea For Annual Garden Freak.

If Uncle Billie Somers, who has a small truck farm at Churchtown, near Pennsville, N. J., does not surprise his neighbors each season in growing something of the freakish nature he puts it down as a poor season, says the Philadelphia Press. Growing watermelons in boot legs, citrons in bed springs and squashes with inscriptions on them is his hobby, but this year he has succeeded in filling a peach tree with watermelons.

Surrounded with blushing peaches in one large tree several nearly ripe watermelons are hanging, or, rather, propped up, and the sight is a remarkable one.

Uncle Billie has always had watermelons at Christmas time. He has a knack of keeping them in good condition and generally invites his friends to the feast. He says when the time comes that he can't beat his neighbors with something new he is ready to quit.

A New Plan For Huckleberry Pickers

William Gilbert, near New Paris, Ind., is running his twenty-five acre huckleberry marsh on a novel plan, says the Indianapolis News. Instead of giving the pickers a share of the berries Mr. Gilbert has invited the public to pay 25 cents admission to the marsh and pick as many berries as they can during their stay. At the opening of the marsh there were forty-six teams and 125 people awaiting entrance. People are flocking thither from all directions and are taking away immense quantities of berries, which are fine and plentiful.

DIXEY AND WHISTLER.

The Actor Recalls Incidents In Connection With His "Sitting."

When Henry E. Dixey was in London playing "Adonis" he sat for James McNeill Whistler, the American artist who died a few days ago, and the two men became friends. Dixey's recollections of the eccentric painter are interesting at this time, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

"He sent me word one day," said the actor recently, "that he would like to come to my dressing room and watch me make up my face for the impersonation I was giving of Henry Irving. He came and stood behind me, watching the process of the transformation in the mirror. He acted like a delighted child all through the operation. With the addition of every new line and effect he would utter an exclamation of pleasure and then confront me and examine more closely the counterfeit countenance. When the task was completed he pronounced the resemblance 'marvelous,' even at close range.

"He invited me to luncheon the next day and asked me to permit him to paint me in my white and blue costume. I sent for it, and he stood me on a pink mat and before a lavender background. Then he discarded the monocle, put on a pair of big spectacles, and, really, the man underwent a complete change of manner the moment he began to mix his colors. I never saw inspiration so clearly depicted on a face in my life. He talked half to himself as he worked.

"'Oh, we'll do something fine this time,' he would say. 'Wait, wait, wait; hold that pose, please. Oh, this will be all right—you'll see.' When I thought he had finished my figure at least I looked at the canvas and found he had made nothing but the outlines. When I expressed my surprise he explained: 'Ah, my boy, I don't work as many others do. I commence at the background and work out to my subject.'

"After an hour's time his cook summoned him to dinner, but he still painted on. To my surprise the cook, a healthy, middle aged woman, began lecturing him in French and actually took the brush out of his hand and compelled him to stop. The artist endured this just as a child might and allowed his dominating cook to lead us to the dining room.

"I sat for him several more times, but I had to leave England before the picture was finished. I received letters from him telling me of the progress he was making, but when I last saw him, two years ago in London, I was much disappointed to learn that the portrait was in Paris.

"I have met a great many famous men," continued Mr. Dixey, "but I can recall none so striking in character as my departed friend Whistler."

MILES AND THE PRESIDENCY

A Story of the General's Ambition Recalled by His Retirement.

Apropos of the retirement of General Nelson A. Miles from the command of the United States army, an interview is recalled which occurred some years ago, in which the general told a story to illustrate his attitude on the question of being a candidate for the presidency. He was then stationed on a western frontier, and was approached by the representative of an eastern paper, who said:

"They say in the east that you are aiming for the presidency."

"Do they?" the general replied. "Well, we won't take much time for an interview on that subject. The thing reminds me of an experience that a scout had in the old days when we were fighting the Cheyennes in 1875. That scout was a clubfooted Frenchman, a plucky, good fellow too. He had to make his way from Fort Keough to a cantonment on the Missouri, and the Cheyennes were after him. They pushed him like Satan, and after a time his horse gave out, and he had to hoof it. Well, it was a rough, bad country, and his poor clubfeet slipped and stumbled and slid so that his trail must have been something awful to contemplate. An Indian can read marks in the ground as well as you and I can read a book, but they had never dogged a clubfoot before. He got into the cantonment all right, and pretty soon the Cheyennes came along. They pointed to the trail and asked our people to look at them. 'We can't make out which way that fellow was going,' said they. Now, that's the case with these people who busy themselves about me. They don't know anything about me, and they can't find out."

After a pause General Miles turned his head and spoke a few words over his shoulder. "My only ambition is to command brave men," said he, "and I've been doing that for thirty years."

New Society Sport In Paris.

The sport of the hour in Paris is taking place in a modern drawing room, says the Gentlewoman. The hostess, a well known woman of letters, invites two scientists, academicians, litterateurs of opposed views, acquaints them with a subject for discussion and seats them in the center of the room. The guests crowd around at a respectful distance and assist at the fight with many marks of encouragement. Bets are made, although it is not easy to decide which is the victor.

Women In the Orchards.

Women and girls are wanted in California to harvest the fruit crop, says the New York Evening Journal. A representative of the fruit growers is in the east looking for help. The men are paid on an average $2 a day for picking fruit. The women and girls are paid $1 to $2.50 a day for cutting and drying the fruit, while the men and women who work in the packing houses receive sometimes as high as $3.50 a day.

MAN MISSING.

Was Last Seen at the Wollaston Depot Several Days Ago.

The family of Harry C. Hammond are much disturbed over his sudden disappearance last Saturday. As he has been somewhat dispondent of late over business matters his family fear that during a temporary fit of melancholia he has done himself bodily harm. He left home last Saturday, shortly after noon, his man driving him to Wollaston where he was to take the 2.15 train for Boston.

The man says they arrived at the Wollaston depot about 2 o'clock and that Mr. Hammond left the carriage and entered the depot. That is the last that has been seen or heard of him.

Mr. Hammond was about 48 years of age and has a wife, three sons and four daughters. He was engaged in the teaming business in Boston.

Going Like Hot Cakes.

A Ledger news agent writes: "Please send me 100 more Magic Square games, as they are going like hot cakes."

About a thousand games have now been distributed by the Daily Ledger, requests having been received from Maine, New Hampshire, New York, New Jersey, Ohio, and Michigan as well as Quincy and vicinity. Everybody is trying to get square or make squares.

Another game, which will be more elaborate, is being printed specially for Daily Ledger readers.

Lutheran Reception.

There was a very large attendance Tuesday evening at the Swedish Lutheran church at the reception tendered to Dr. Gustav Andreen, president of the Auguseana college. Dr. Andreen gave a talk on his recent visit to Sweden, where he went to raise funds to carry on the work of the college. Dr. Andreen was born in this country, and this was his first visit to Sweden, and his description of the places visited was very interesting. During the evening there were violin solos by Miss Streiferd, baritone solo by Carl Welstedt and piano solos by Miss Jacobson. Refreshments were served.

Camp of the Fifth.

On Saturday the 5th infantry, MVM, will go into camp at Duxbury, under command of Col. Williams H. Oakes, a most desirable spot having been selected on the coast for the tour, and in every way adapted for a military camp. Aug. 12 will be Governor's day, and the South Shore people are enthusing over the visit of the soldier boys.

Mullens Leaves Hospital.

Joe Mullens, one of the men who was badly used up in the fracas at Quincy woods two weeks ago, and who since that time has been in the City Hospital, returned to his home this morning.

A Fling at Tennyson.

In the "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle" is a letter to her husband in which occurs the following amusing little fling at Tennyson:

"Did you know that Alfred Tennyson is to have a pension of £200 a year, after all? Peel has stated his intention of recommending him to her gracious majesty, and that is considered final—'A chacun selon sa capacite!' Lady Harriet told me he wanted to marry; 'must have a woman to live beside; would prefer a lady, but cannot afford one, and so must marry a maidservant.' Mrs. Henry Taylor said she was about to write to him in behalf of their housemaid, who was quite a superior character in her way."

Teeth.

Small, chalk white teeth are a sign of a weak constitution. Strong, normal teeth are large and yellowish white. Sometimes an enthusiastic novelist in depicting the charms of his heroine will give her two rows of pearls between her ruby lips. The truth of the matter is nothing could be more ghastly or unnatural or unbecoming than teeth made of pearls. It is only "store teeth" that possess a high polish.

☞The city of Quincy has refused permission to a local firm to sell dynamite in that city. Four tons are now stored away by the firm. Since the Lowell explosion (which was distinctly felt in Quincy) rolled up such a frightful death roll, Quincyites think it is extending an invitation to danger and death to allow this amount of dynamite to be stored up a rod away from private dwellings.—Boston Advertiser.

Doubt Regarding Patriot's Skeleton

Dublin, Aug. 6.—At the instigation of Dr. Robert Emmett of New York an examination was made of the grave supposed to be that of the patriot, Emmett. A skelton was found, said to be that of a man six feet high, whereas Emmett was only five feet seven inches. The skull, instead of being found lying prone and attached to the trunk, was in an upright position, which, as Emmett was beheaded, may strengthen the theory that the remains were his. But the matter is still regarded as doubtful.

Davitt Wants Lynch Released

London, Aug. 6.—Michael Davitt, in a long letter published in The Daily News this morning, reproaches King Edward for his failure during his visit to Ireland to exercise royal clemency and liberate Colonel Lynch, the only remaining Irish political prisoner. He declares that no other monarch in Europe would have neglected such clemency in similar circumstances, and says that when the more or less manufactured enthusiasm has died away the Irish people will remember the omission.

Military Fighting Rioters

Paris, Aug. 6.—The morning papers report a riot in progress at L'Orient, on the coast of Brittany, where labor troubles have been brewing for several days. Last night the rioters attacked the military club. They also stoned and broke shop windows. The military was called out, but the rioters put out street lamps and erected barricades. The cavalry charged, and the troopers rode down the mob, striking men with the flat of their swords. It seems probable that the rioting will continue.

Temporary Successor to Miles

Washington, Aug. 6.—The president has designated Lieutenant General Young to command the army from Aug. 8, the date of the retirement of General Miles, until Aug. 15, when the general staff law goes into effect and the office of commanding general of the army is dispensed with. General Young thus becomes the last commanding general and the first chief of staff, although he will hold the positions only a short time.

HONORS TO AMERICANS

First Foreigners to Convey Homage to the New Pope

WENT TO ROME TO SEE LEO

Lingered Until Pius Was Elected and Had Prepared to Start For Home When Reception Was Arranged Through Cardinal Gibbon's Efforts

Rome, Aug. 6.—The spirit of "the King is dead, long live the King," which has been repeated through all the long ages upon a change of sovereigns, is the dominant note at the Vatican among those gathered there, not to acknowledge an earthly sovereign, but to accept without reserve Pope Pius X as their spiritual king. Not only had America enjoyed the honor of first announcing the accession of the present pontiff to the chair of St. Peter, but Americans enjoyed the far greater privilege and honor of being the first among those of many other countries who were to follow to convey to the new pope the homage of the nations.

The American pilgrimage, conducted by John McGrane of New York and Father Lynch of the Niagara University (Buffalo), which left the United States for its pious journey to Rome to receive the blessing of Leo XIII, arrived while the conclave was sitting. Its members lingered until the moment when the election of the new pope was announced, and then decided reluctantly to leave yesterday. But it was with tears of disappointment at not having been able to see the pope that the pilgrims packed and strapped their luggage and sent it to the station. While the desolate band were eating a hurried luncheon, preparatory to leaving, Mr. McCrane burst in, waving a paper. "You shall see him, you shall see him," he cried. "Our cardinal has arranged it."

Cardinal Gibbons had been appealed to to try to arrange for the reception of the Americans, and had promised to do his best, at the same time explaining how unprecedented it would be for a pope, the day after his election, to receive a foreign pilgrimage when there were scores of high dignitaries who had not yet been admitted, including even the diplomatic body. Nevertheless he used his immense influence with the happiest result, and secured the consent of the pope to receive his fellow countrymen.

Their luggage was hastily brought back from the station in order that they might appear in proper apparel, and at 5.45 last evening all were at the bronze doors of the Vatican. There they were met by Mgr. Kennedy, rector of the American college, whose presence was quite sufficient to make the Swiss guard step back, present arms and give entrance to all. They trooped up the high stairway and on through the corridors, bending their heads to pass through the openings in the walls, which had been erected for the conclave. Bricks were still lying about on the flagstones. Through the beautiful loggia of Raphael they passed to the unique hall of inscriptions, where a halt was called. Every heart was fluttering, every pulse was beating highly as they waited, moment after moment. But still the pope did not come. Guards gathered and strangers passed to and fro. Cardinal Gibbons, Mgr. Kennedy and Mgr. Bislett disapepared. The pilgrims, who numbered about 100, waited on as though they had been abandoned. Suddenly there was a murmured "Hush, Hush," and they saw two Swiss guards enter from a corridor. Before they could quite realize it the pope stood among them.

Pius X is a little taller than Cardinal Gibbons, giving, however, the impression of being a much larger man, as he is inclined to stoutness. He has abundant gray hair, with no sign of baldness, dark clear eyes, handsome features and a magnificent soft voice, to which is added a peculiar grace, due to his musical Venetian accent. His whole person emanated great benignity and cordiality.

He walked slowly, but with the firmness of a young man, down the long kneeling line, accompanied by Cardinal Gibbons and Mgr. Kennedy, and giving to each of the pilgrims as he passed his hand to be kissed. He spoke a few words to almost every one. Piux X was arrayed completely in white, without a gleam of color except that which sparkled from the huge emerald on his finger. Cardinal Gibbons was on his right in red robes, and Mgr. Kennedy on his left in purple. They were preceded by Swiss guards with halberds, and followed by members of the Noble guards. The moving group was set off by the kneeling women, who were all in black, with black lace veils hanging from their hair. The men wore dress suits and the priests black gowns. Pope Pius X appeared to be very much interested when Father Lynch presented to him a box containing a white zucchetto, saying: "We would be extremely gratified if your holiness would accept this gift in exchange for the one you wear."

"I will cheerfully do so," the pope replied. Thereupon Mgr. Bisleti lifted the zucchetto, which the pope wore, from his head, and replaced it with the one which had been presented by Father Lynch. Mr. McCrane handed to the pope the offerings which the pilgrims had hastily put together yesterday after lunch.

When Pius X reached the persons who waved two American flags Tuesday at St. Peter's, and who were carrying them yesterday, he exclaimed: "Cara, Cara, America, dear America—forty-four stars, eh."

When he reached the last person in the line he turned and while all the pilgrims knelt he gave the apostolic blessing, ending with the words: "I recommend myself to your pious prayers."

It was a moment of most intense emotion, and scarcely an eye was dry. Cardinal Gibbons upon leaving the Vatican said that he had been delighted to present the American pilgrimage to the new pope under such happy circumstances.

Gift of $2,500,000 to Dumferline

London, Aug. 6.—Andrew Carnegie has made known his intention to donate $2,500,000 in United States Steel Corporation bonds to Dunfermline, Scotland, his birthplace, to be employed in keeping up the estate of Pittenorieff, which he recently purchased as a pleasure ground, and to be used for the maintenance of a theatre, the encouragement of horticulture among the working classes and the advancement of technical education in the district, which is the centre of the linen industry.

Move by Canal Opponents

Washington, Aug. 6.—Advices from Bogota say that the opponents of the canal treaty, fearing to allow the treaty to come to a definite vote in the two houses and not wishing to assume direct responsibility for its rejection, have decided to filibuster until it is too late for ratifications to be exchanged, which must be by Sept. 22. Officials here are confidently expecting a request from President Marroquin to have the time limit for the exchange extended.

Lottery Feature Objectionable

Kansas City, Aug. 6.—Postmaster Harris has held up the mail of the Monarch Investment company, an Oklahoma town site company, on a fraud order issued by the postmaster general upon the ground that it was doing a lottery business. The company sold $90,000 worth of lots and disposed of them at a drawing, and had advertised another drawing of lots. There was no fraud alleged, but the government objects to the lottery feature.

Queer Defense of Auto Scorcher

Paris, Aug. 6.—Baron Henri de Rothschild appeared before the police court on the charge of automobile scorching. His defense was that he had a permit from the ministry of interior as a doctor allowing him to disregard the police regulations. The case was postponed until Aug. 24.

No Attempt on King's Life

Madrid, Aug. 6.—In consequence of the rumor that an attempt had been made on the life of King Alfonso, the government has issued a statement omcially contradicting the report, and also denying that the king is indisposed.

Unexpected Mutton Barbecue

Louisville, Ky., Aug. 6.—Fire caused by lightning last evening destroyed the Bourbon stock yards and two buildings adjoining. Four hundred and fifty head of sheep were burned. The loss is about $250,000.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

Cnas. C. Hearn Offers Chance to Save Money, Which Does Not Come Often.

When one can buy gold dollars for fifty cents, it is natural to think they are counterfeit. But when a reliable business man tells you that if any one refuses the dollar, he will return what you paid for it, confidence is established at once.

It is in just this way that Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, is selling Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, offering the regular fifty cent size of this celebrated remedy at half price, and agreeing to return the money if it does not give perfect satisfaction and do all that is claimed for it.

This is your opportunity, and one which does not come often. Do not neglect it. Dr. Howard's specific will cure constipation, will regulate digestion, will restore the liver to natural action. If it did not, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn could not afford to offer to refund the money unless it performed just what he claims for it.

So great is the demand for this specific that Mr. Chas. C. Hearn has been able to secure only a limited supply, and you should take advantage of this opportunity today and call upon him or send 25 cents, and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price offer, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

ASCENT OF MOUNT RAINIER

Dr. Betts and H. M. Sarvant Prove Mountain Still Surmountable.

Dr. W. R. Betts of New Orleans and H. M. Sarvant of Tacoma, Wash., have made a thrilling ascent of Mount Rainier, says the New York Times. Dr. Betts read in newspapers that the mountain had not been ascended for four years on account of great breaks in the ice walls about Gibraltar rock. Old guides had gone to Gibraltar rock for several seasons past only to turn back without reaching the top.

Dr. Betts was determined to disprove the theory that the mountain is insurmountable. Reaching Tacoma a few days ago, he started at once for Paradise valley, on the southern slope. Descending from Pinacle peak of the Tatoosh range, both men took a perilous slide of half a mile down steep snow fields. After previously carrying food to Camp Muir the climbers started on a Sunday evening to make the ascent. They camped at Muir until daybreak, but the weather was bitterly cold, making sleep impossible. At 3 a. m. they discarded all unnecessary clothing, taking only alpine stocks and cameras, and started.

Reaching the glaciers about Gibraltar, they were compelled to use ropes and to cut 500 steps in the ice with a hatchet in making a zigzag journey up ice slopes and around crevasses. They found that avalanches had carried away a great rocky ledge above Gibraltar on which previous climbers had depended in ascending one of the steepest places. The summit was reached at 11 a. m. They visited three peaks. Investigation showed that there had been no recent volcanic activity, as was supposed, though steam and sulphur fumes still rise in the craters.

They reached Paradise valley at 8 o'clock the next night, twenty-five hours after commencing the ascent.

No Change In Glass Blowers' Wages

Atlantic City, N. J., Aug. 6.—No change will be made in the wages paid to the glass blowers and the scale paid last year will continue during the coming season. This was decided at the conference between the Glass Bottle Blowers' association and the Bottle and Vial Manufacturers' association. The wage scale, which is the full net list, is the highest ever received by the men.

Get-Rich-Quick Scheme Nipped

Philadelphia, Aug. 6.—Mrs. Annie E. Sharpless, who was arrested in New York charged with systematically "raising" United States postal orders, was given a hearing here and committed to prison to await trial. A warrant had been issued for the woman in this city on the specific charge of raising a postal order from 25 cents to $95.

Renounces Allegiance to King

Chicago, Aug. 6.—John Alexander Dowie, general overseer of the Christian Catholic church, was made a citizen of the United States upon renouncing in the superior court his allegiance to the sovereign of Great Britain and Ireland.

"Faith," said the man in clerical garb, "will move mountains."

"Great mackerel!" exclaimed the Kansas man; "its worse than cyclones, isn't it?"—Chicago Evening Post.

A CONCESSION TO ITALY

Pope Coronation Ceremonies to Occur In St Peter's

RECEPTION TO DIPLOMATS

They Are Surprised at Pius' Knowledge of Affairs of the Divers Countries—Promise of New Era of International Cordiality at the Vatican

Rome, Aug. 7.—The attention of Rome is now centered upon the solemn coronation ceremony which is to occur on Sunday and for which great preparations are being made. The throne of St. Peter which Pius X will occupy will be surmounted by a canopy 40 feet high. The function will consume five hours. The pope has informed the Vatican officials that he wishes to be received on the threshold of the basilica by Cardinal Rampolla, who, as arch-priest of the church, will address the formal greetings to him.

At the conclusion of the ceremony the pope will confer his blessing upon the people, but it has not yet been decided whether he will do so inside the church or from the balcony looking out upon the piazza, where many hoped he would bestow his benediction on the day of his election. It is said that Pius is favorable to the latter plan, but that the influence of the Vatican officials is against it, on the ground that it might be interpreted as a recognition of the present state of affairs in Italy.

The holding of the coronation ceremonies in St. Peter's itself represents a concession, as in the case of Leo it occurred in the sistine chapel. Although it is expected that 60,000 tickets will be issued for the event the demand for them is already very great.

In the consistories to be held Monday and Thursday next the pope will confer the red hat upon Cardinals Ajuti, Taliani, Katschthaler and Herrero y Espinosa, who were raised from the purple June 25, but who have not yet received these symbols of rank because of the illness and death of Leo. It is believed that Cardinal Herrero will not be able to be present at the coronation ceremonies.

During one full hour yesterday there seemed to be nothing but vibrating sound, so penetrating were the strokes of the bells of about 500 churches, which were all ringing together, absorbing all other noises. The ringing was in honor of the election of Pius X, a welcome unique of its kind, and ordered by Cardinal Resphigi, vicar of Rome, who issued special instructions therefor. All the churches contemporaneously celebrated masses for the event, the intoning of the oremus combining with the harmony. The bells involuntarily served another purpose, that of ringing in the great ceremony of the reception of the diplomatic body, accredited to the holy see.

Rome has lately been surfeited with Vatican functions, but that of yesterday was so striking that it held its own with the others. The members of the sacred college gathered before the hour set for the ceremony and held a meeting of quite informal character, the conclave, short as it was, having brought them cordially together. A procession was then formed. First came the Swiss guard, which gives a peculiar mediaeval splendor to all papal gatherings, then the palatine guard, followed in irregular ranks by the whole pontifical court, in its multi form and multi-colored costumes, the cardinals in all the gorgeousness of their scarlet robes, and the bishops, scarcely less striking in their purple.

The pope, in spotless white, and surrounded by the noble guard, who always remain near his person, went on foot just before the others. The procession having gained the hall of the throne, where the members of the diplomatic body were gathered, Senor d'Antas, the Portuguese ambassador and dean of the corps, read the collective greeting of his colleagues, presenting their homage to the new pope and assuring him of their fidelity. Pius X answered with great cordiality, thanking them heartily for their good wishes. All then kissed his hand, and the pontiff took the opportunity of speaking personally to each one, showing a knowledge of the politics of the divers countries which surprised the diplomats, the pontiff being credited with taking small interest in affairs outside Italy. It was another surprise to them to hear him speak French, if not fluently, at least with a certain readiness. Altogether the whole audience gave promise of a new era of international cordiality at the Vatican.

Train Piloted Through Water

Florence, Colo., Aug. 7.—As the result of heavy rain a wall of water several feet deep came rushing down Hard Scrabble canon, carrying away 50 feet of a bridge east of this city. Previous to this W. A. Watkins, a porter on a passenger train, piloted the train safely into the yards in this city, walking ahead of it a distance of five miles through water.

Trolley Car Telescoped

Sharon, Pa. Aug. 7.—While returning from a picnic a trolley car ran into a car ahead, killing one man and more or less seriously injuring 20 others. The rope holding the trolley on one car broke. It was while repairs were being made that a special crashed into the car, completely telescoping it.

FAVORED BY WEATHER

But Hostile Fleet Has Not Yet Attacked Coast

MAY WAIT TILL LAST DAY

In Order to Give Defending Squadron Plenty of Practice In Patrolling—Information Difficult to Obtain, Owing to Cipher and Wireless

Portland, Me., Aug. 7.—With thick and stormy weather along the entire coast it would seem as if the attacking fleet under Rear Admiral Sands had the best possible conditions in which to win the war game by evading the defending squadron under Rear Admiral Barker and establishing itself in some one of the numerous little harbors of the eastern Maine coast. But at midnight nothing had been heard from the "enemy," while the reports from the defending squadron were somewhat meagre. Several of the swift torpedo boat destroyers ran into Penobscot Bay during the day and a naval tug came into Bar Harbor for the mail. The main portion of Admiral Barker's fleet, however, kept well off shore, and it is believed continued the work of patrolling the coast between Eastport and Cape Ann.

A foreign liner brought in the last word of the attacking squadron, the entire fleet being sighted several hundred miles off shore on the evening of Aug. 4. At that time the fleet was steaming in an easterly direction.

The search problem is not proving to be very spectacular or interesting to people within the war belt, excepting to those army and navy officials who are directly interested. Now and then glimpses are caught along the coast of parts of Admiral Barker's squadron in and out of the harbors, but efforts to secure information from them regarding the movements of the squadron have been unsuccessful.

Inasmuch as the navy is engaged in the testing of the patrol and wireless telegraph systems in the work of guarding the coast and a thorough trial of this scheme is desired, those who pretend to know anything about the movements of the two squadrons believe Admiral Sands will not make an effort to get within any harbor until the last two days of his allotted five.

Lighthouse keepers and the life saving service men all along the coast, together with the wireless telegraph stations, have been ordered to watch for ships with information which presumably is being transmitted to Admiral Barker over the telephone and telegraph systems. As this is all done in cipher, no information as to the movements has leaked out. It is known that anywhere from 50 to 100 miles off the Maine coast a patrol line has been established and some vessels of the defensive squadron are constantly in touch with one another.

Enough has been learned here to know that the wireless station at Cape Elizabeth, which is the furthest east of any, is working to the satisfaction of the officers interested in the development of this system.

Here in Portland the attention is focused on the coming army and navy maneuvers to begin the week commencing Aug. 24, and every train brings in army and navy officials assigned here for some duty in the joint maneuvers. The regulars at the forts are constantly augmented by other companies.

Preparations are being made to put the city in a state of defence within the 48 hours allotted after midnight of Aug. 25, when the joint maneuvers actually begin. The harbor entrances will then be mined and searchlights which have been erected at every available point along the shore at the islands and cape will be in readiness for the operations and the many miles of sub-marine cables connecting the various signal points with the fortifications will be tested.

FIVE LIVES LOST

By the Sinking of a Barge During Heavy Storm Off the Coast

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 7.—Barge Florrie, in tow of tug Boswell, while on her way from Norfolk for Providence, foundered between Barnegat and Fire Island during a heavy northeast storm. Captain Cobb of the barge and one of the deckhands were saved, but the captain's wife, a 10-year-old son, a boy named Jones, who was making the trip with the captain; the engineer and cook of the barge, whose names are not known, went down with the vessel and were lost.

The Boswell sailed from Norfolk, towing the barges Emilie and Florrie, coal laden, the latter being the stern boat. On the way up the coast a heavy storm was encountered, and at 11.30 o'clock at night the deck house aft was swept away by one of the big seas. The barge managed to signal the tug and the tow was slowed down, but the seas broke over the stern of the little vessel, filling her very quickly, so that she went down stern foremost. Captain Cobb had just time to seize the two boys, one under each arm, who stood beside him in the pilot house. Mrs. Cobb, the engineer and cook were all below and were carried down with the sinking barge. The waves tore Captain Cobb's hold from the two boys, who were swept away. Captain Cobb and the deckhand clung to a hatch and were rescued in about half an hour by the tug.

Discussion Over Non-Union Band

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 7.—At a meeting of the Central Labor union last night the principal topic discussed was the proposition made by the Weavers' association to hire a non-union band of New Bedford for the Labor day parade here. A protest against such action was entered by the Musicians' union. The weavers said that they had tried to get a union band, but were unable to do so. A heated discussion was held, after which a committee was appointed to confer with members of the non-union band and endeavor to persuade them to join the New Bedford union.

Schooner Got Beyond Control

Lubec, Me., Aug. 7.—While speeding at an eight-knot rate under full sail the new schooner Robert C. Haines ran into the wharf of the Passamaquoddy Ferry company, carrying away bowsprit and all forward gear, crushing in portions of the bulwarks and doing considerable damage to the wharf. The force was so great as to break timbers 12 inches square like pipestems. The accident was caused by the patent steering gear becoming fouled. The crew received no further injury than a severe shaking up.

AN EASY WINNER

Cup Hunter Administers Another Defeat to Her Pacemaker

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 7.—Twenty-two and a half minutes in a 20-mile race, which occupied a little more than three hours in the sailing, was the beating administered to Shamrock I by the new cup candidate. No shift of wind nor calm helped or hindered either boat. The challenger's victory was without a flaw.

The boats went off on different tacks, but Shamrock III soon tacked and both headed eastward. The challenger quickly demonstrated that it was the kind of weather in which she was at her best. The old boat hardly gave her a race. When they made the first tack together Shamrock III had won the race. After that the only question was as to the number of minutes.

Narrowly Escaped Lynching

Beverly, N. J., Aug. 7.—A negro named Frank Jordan was seen coming out of the house of Samuel Llewellyn. Llewellyn investigated and found that his house had been robbed. He gathered together a number of farmers, who run down the negro. He would not surrender until after a rifle ball had shot off a piece of one of his ears. A rope was put around his neck and the other end of the rope thrown over a tree. He refused to confess until he was almost lifted from the ground. The rope was then taken from his neck and he was marched to this place and lodged in jail.

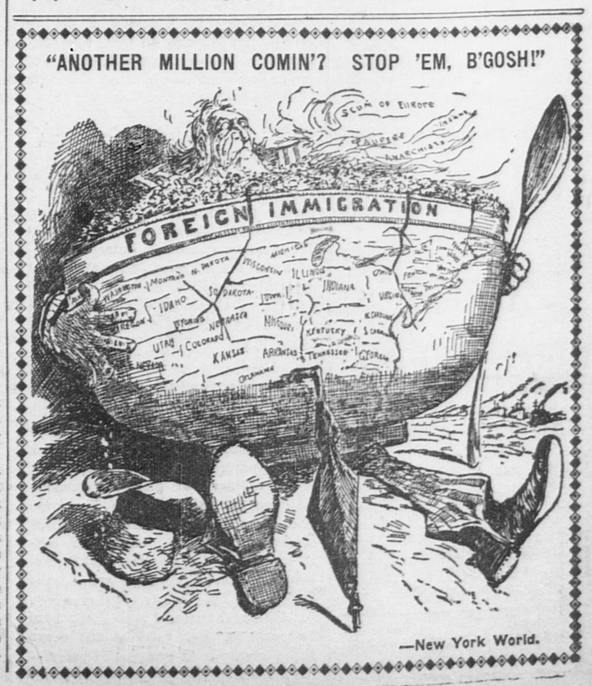

Morgan Helped Great Britain

London, Aug. 7.—The papers this morning express contentment with the agreement between the International Mercantile Marine company and the British admiralty, saying that it fully protects British interests. It is pointed out that the Morgan combine has been indirectly the means of strengthening Great Britain's naval and commercial marine by precipitating the Cunard agreement, and it is predicted that the audacious enterprise of buying up British lines is not likely to be repeated for some time.

Railway Seeks Damages

Santiago, Aug. 7.—Some engineers who were surveying a site for a terminal of the Cuba Eastern railway on the United States naval reservation at Guantanamo bay were warned off by the American officers there, but refused to go. Admiral Coghlan thereupon notified the Cuban government and President Palma sent a revenue cutter, which forcibly ejected the trespassers. The railway, having acquired the land, claims heavy damages.

Inspector McKay is receiving praise on all hands for his management of the burglary case. It was a clever piece of work, and worthy of it all.

Abington is trying to keep her neighbor, the city of Brockton, company. She has a tax rate of $22.60. It is not always safe to take Brockton as a model.

The most captious critic cannot blame Egypt for objecting to the so-called "Egyptian dances" at the St. Louis fair. They are a slander, even on Egypt.

Since hearing his remarks anent Ireland it would surprise no one to learn that Edward VII kissed the Blarney stone in the course of his travels.

"It is deeds, not words, that count." The recent indictments in the post-office case may be made up of words, but they look very like deeds to the indicted officials.

Chief Chemist Wiley says there is danger in saffron colored butter because of the analyne dyes used to color it. If this kind of thing keeps up, no kitchen will be complete without an expert analytical chemist.

It is typical of the President that he would not even cause the arrest of the curmudgeon who swore at the presidential party last Sunday. Had Mr. Roosevelt been alone and the circumstances propitious the cad would doubtless have received summary justice from the presidential fists, however.

It is pleasing to note that a Quincy firm has been awarded the contract for furnishing the new ten-room Washington schoolhouse. The enterprising firm of Henry L. Kincaide & Co. is sure to give the city all that the contract calls for, and there will be no delay on their part in getting the new building ready for occupancy.

The abnormal increase of $1,814,046.80 in the valuation of Brockton did not prevent a big jump in the tax rate. It is $21.80 this year, an increase of $1.90. Quincy never had a higher tax rate than $19.20, and in excess of $18.00 but three years. The Enterprise admits that the assessors of Brockton did everything possible to keep the rate down. Perhaps the aldermen and council in the past did all they could to put it up.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Times have changed, and navies have to change with them. It is less than a hundred years since our faster warships were the wooden sailing craft of our old navy of glorious memory. Now our battleships of the Kearsarge class make time across the ocean which some years ago would have been considered good for a commercial "greyhound" of that day. It is well for the former to have a fair speed capacity, but their real business is to shoot hard and straight, not to beat the ocean flyers engaged in pursuits of peace.—Troy Times.

DELEGATE'S REPORT

On the Young People's Missionary Movement Conference.

C. K. Blanchard, the delegate from Bethany church, sends the following report which is of interest:

The fourth conference of the Young People's missionary movement has just been held at Silver Bay, Lake George, N. Y., from July 21 to 31. This is an interdenominational movement for the systematic study of the Bible mission biography; the field, home and abroad; and various problems fundamental to the evangelization of the world.

At its four conference; over 900 of the choicest young people in the various church societies have been gathered together.

At the conferences just held there were 377 delegates present, representing eighteen different denominations from twenty one states, as well as Canada and the District of Columbia.

The morning session of each day was divided into three parts. The first hour was occupied by a Bible study, class conducted by Mr. Harry Wade Hicks. During the second period Mr. Vickery had a missionary institute, in which plans were brought forward and discussed for the advance of missionary interest, and work in our churches and young peoples societies. A part of this institute was led by Dr. Sailor. The third and last hour was occupied by mission study classes of which there were three. One treating on the home, one on the foreign field and one for normal courses of study.

The entire afternoons were devoted to recreation. Base ball and basket ball games, water-sports, mountain climbing, trips to Fort Ticonderoga, Paradise bay, and other points of interest along the shore.

A well addressed vesper service was held each evening, after which the conference broke up into denominational groups to discuss plans especially needed in the different churches.

One of the most helpful things in the whole conference was the missionary exhibit. Here, one could get sample copies of nearly all the missionary literature in the way of pamplets, etc., which are published by our various boards. Pictures of the missionary works in all parts of the world were here, and it was agreed by all the delegates that a more helpful or interesting display would be hard to find.

The conference was addressed by some of the most prominent missionary workers in this country, and there is no doubt but that they left an impression on the delegates.

The one thing which seemed to impress the members of the conference greatest was the universal and unceasing use of prayer, and on this more than anything is the success of the convention placed.

Great results are expected by the executive committee, and their expectations are already being fulfilled, for, before the end of the conference, sixteen young men and women consecrated their lives to foreign missionary work.

Engineer Chandler Hurt.

John W. Chandler of Edwin street, Atlantic, engineer on the B. & A. R. R., left Boston, Wednesday morning on the No. 7 "Albany Special" and met with a serious accident on his route. Just before the train reached Newton, Mr. Chandler was found by the firemen in an unconscious state by the engine window. It was thought at first that he was dead, but investigation showed that while leaning out of the train Mr. Chandler had been hit on the head by some object, and had suffered a fracture of the skull. He was removed to the Newton hospital. Up to date he had not regained consciousness.

Quincy Firm Successful.

Commissioner Knowlton has awarded the contract of furnishing the desks and other furniture for the new Washington school to Henry L. Kincaide & Co. The fact that this firm submitted better samples warranted the Commissioner in making the award, although one other firm was a few dollars lower.

TODAY'S COURT.

Antonio Daddarri and Francisco Daddarri were arraigned for assault on Gravoni Santero at Quincy. Cases continued until next Tuesday.

William H. Lake, Stephen E. Lake and William Kelley were found guilty of drunkenness at Quincy and their cases were continued until next Tuesday, when they will have to pay $3 each.

Frank Hullman and Gustav Nyberg were fined $3 each for disturbing a meeting of the Salvation Army at Quincy.

Alfred Knight and Thomas Walsh were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Weymouth.

Salt Rheum

You may call it eczema, tetter or milk crust.

But no matter what you call it, this skin disease which comes in patches that burn, itch, discharge a watery matter, dry and scale, owes its existence to the presence of humors in the system.

It will continue to exist, annoy, and perhaps agonize, as long as these humors remain.

It is always radically and permanently cured by which expels all humors, and is positively unequalled for all cutaneous eruptions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

MECHANICS WIN

In the Revere Road Apartment House Case.

The Decree of Judge Fox

Gives Them Building With Mortgage of $3,300 and Interest.

After weeks of waiting, and a cessation of work over a year ago, the mechanics who put in material and labor on the Revere road apartment house have secured a favorable decree. The concluding paragraph of the decree of Judge Fox of the Superior court of Suffolk in equity reads:

"I find that the plaintiffs (the mechanics) are entitled to a decree giving their second mortgage a priority over the advances made by defendant Golding to Rochford upon the first mortgage after its assignment to him."

It seems there was originally a first mortgage of $8,000 on the building, which however was reduced to $3,300. That after the assignment of the second mortgage of $4,500 to the mechanics the first mortgage was increased without their knowledge to $6,500.

To complete the building will require an outlay of $4,500 more and it was a question at law whether the first mortgage should stand at $3,300 or $6,500.

Now that the mechanics have received a favorable decree, which is all they expected, it is thought that they will complete the building, and that it will be a high grade apartment house rather than an eye sore and menace to the neighborhood.

James L. Edwards, Esq., was attorney for the mechanics, and the plaintiffs are much pleased over his success.

Q. Y. C. Ladies' Night.

It was not a very good night for the ladies' night of the Quincy Yacht club Thursday evening. Yet in spite of the rain which fell all the evening there was quite a party of young people for whom rain had no terror. The storm of course kept some away, but for all that there was a goodly number present. The entertainment provided was a good one, and well repaid those braving the elements. The talent for the evening was the Technology male quartette and Miss Virginia Beach, and their program occupied fully an hour. Dancing was then in order for the remainder of the evening, music being furnished by the Braintree Orchestral society.

FAMOUS WOMAN SCOUT.

How "Calamity Jane" Got Her Name. One of Her Daring Feats.

The late noted female character "Calamity Jane," who had been known on the western frontier since 1870, was christened Calamity Jane in 1872 by Captain Egan, then commander of the army post at Goose Creek, S. D., whose life she had saved, says the New York World. Captain Egan was shot from his horse by an Indian. The woman scout killed the Indian and, picking up the wounded officer, she placed him across her saddle and rode off to the fort under the fire of other Indians. When Captain Egan, who was unconscious at the time, learned the circumstances of his rescue, he said to his preserver:

"You are a good person to have around in time of calamity, and I christen you Calamity Jane, the heroine of the plains."

Buffalo Bill (Colonel Cody) tells the following story of Calamity Jane:

"In 1876 Jane, by a daring feat, saved the lives of six passengers on a stagecoach traveling from Deadwood, S. D., to Wild Birch, in the Black Hills country.

"The stage was surrounded by Indians, and the driver, Jack McCaul, was wounded by an arrow. Although the other six passengers were men, not one of them had nerve enough to take the ribbons. Seeing the situation, Jane mounted the driver's seat without a moment's hesitation and brought the stage safely and in good time to Wild Birch.

"Jack McCaul afterward recovered, and some time later, while in Deadwood, he assassinated Wild Bill, one of Calamity Jane's best friends. The murder was a cold blooded one, and it was the general opinion that lynching was only too mild for him. Calamity Jane was in the lead of the lynching party, and it was she that captured the desperado. She had left her rifle at home, but with a butcher's cleaver she held him up, and a very few minutes later McCaul's body was swinging from the limb of a cottonwood tree and his soul had passed over the great divide."

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

Fair and warmer.

Eighty degree weather today.

It just poured this morning.

W. S. Weaver, station agent at Atlantic has resigned.

James H. Cunningham, Overseer of the Poor, is in Maine on a vacation trip.

The union service on Sunday at Atlantic will be held at the Memorial church.

The moon will "full" early tomorrow morning. Will the change bring pleasant weather?

Miss Mary Davis has returned from a pleasant vacation with her friend, Miss Nellie Greaney of East Weymouth.

Auctioneer Johnson will have a furniture sale at Miller's old store tomorrow afternoon. A piano is included.

The Misses Alice and Julia Thomas have been visiting Mrs. Luther H. Parrott for a few days at Hampden circle.

Miss Delia Burke, Miss May Florence McGilvray and Miss May McKay are spending their vacation at Centre Harbor, N. H.

Capt. Lyman Hewitson of the yawl Sheila with William Patterson, Fred White and William Jones are cruising along the coast of Maine.

Walter E. Burke of this city has purchased for development a nine or ten acre track on Waltham street, Newton, with a frontage of 1200 feet.

Mr. Charles H. Sayward and Mr. Albert S. Sayward have taken cottages at Fort Point, where they will reside with their families during August.

Among those present at the annual reunion of the 3d Massachusetts Regimental Association at East Bridgewater Thursday was E. T. Crofts of Quincy.

The postponed lawn party at the residence of Mrs. Gragg, Crescent street, will be held Saturday evening. Ice cream and refreshments will be for sale.

The Wollaston Congregational Church has been thoroughly cleaned and Sunday will be spend for the union service with the Baptist society, conducted by Rev. Mr. Chase.

F. T. Mackedon has gone to the Carney hospital. Some days ago he was doing a repair job and was hit in the eye with a screw, which has grown worse instead of better.

Miss Helen, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Barnes, who has been suffering with an attack of appendicitis, is very much better, and it is hoped an operation will not be necessary.

The Sparrow house, Winthrop avenue, which was recently purchased by Mr. Russell of Dorchester, has been thoroughly renovated inside and out, making it a handsome residence.

The Wollaston Yacht Club is well represented in Casco Bay. Anchored off Peak's Island is the Claytonia, Commodore Wiley; Romance, Capt. Burgess, Brant, Capt. Fenno; Sheila, Capt. Hewitson; and Shamrock 3d, Capt Will Givens.

Miss Marion Barker of Farrington street, for the past year assistant of the first grade at Wollaston school, has accepted a position with the Shredded Wheat Company which is at present located at Chautauqua, New York. She is demonstrating the uses of shredded wheat.

No License Meeting.

There will be a No-license meeting on Sunday evening, at 7.30 o'clock, at the Quincy Point church with speakers from the Morgan Memorial, Boston.

IS DEAN ELIGIBLE.

A Protest Against His Playing in Wollaston Team.

Shall Dean, the man who undoubtedly won the game for the Wollastons last Saturday in the match with the Merrymounts, be permitted to play in the Quincy league? This is the question that is now up for consideration.

After the game last Saturday manager Kent of the Merrymounts protested the victory on the ground that Dean was a Hyde Park man and therefore not entitled to play in the Quincy league.

A meeting of the club managers was held Thursday night to consider the protest. The president and secretary of the league were not present, but there was a warm discussion. No decision was reached other than it was agreed that the Wollastons should play Dean, if they desired, in the game tomorrow with the Quincys and that a meeting should be held next Tuesday evening when the question of his further playing shall be decided.

Powers Defense Loses First Round

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 7.—In the third trial of ex-Secretary of State Caleb Powers for complicity in the Goebel murder, Judge Robbins overruled a motion of the defense, challenging the jury panel which was provisionally accepted. It was alleged that of the 95 jurors only two were Republicans. The ground for overruling the motion was that "political affiliation" is not a disqualification for jury service at law.

Electricity Caused Explosion

Fairmont, W. Va., Aug. 7.—An explosion of powder at Monongah mine No. 2 resulted in the injuring of eight miners, three of whom cannot recover and probably two others will die. The men were in a mine car and one man carried some cans of powder strung from a coal auger. A short circuit was formed when he accidentally touched the electric trolley wire over his head with the auger and the powder exploded.

President's Aid Sought

New York, Aug. 7.—Resolutions deploring the increase of lynchings throughout the country and the existence of poonage in the south and calling upon President Roosevelt to influence congress to remedy these evils were adopted at a mass meeting of negro citizens held under the direction of the Colored Literary league of Greater New York last night. The resolutions will be forwarded to the president.

Labrador Expedition Sets Sail

St. John's, Aug. 7.—Steamer Virginia Lake sailed for Labrador last night with an expedition aboard headed by Willard Glazier of Albany, which intends to explore the interior of the peninsula. It will proceed inland, if possible, as far as Grand Falls, which are said to surpass the falls of Niagara. The expedition expects to spend two months in Labrador.

Charged With Being a Trust

New York, Aug. 7.—Criminal proceedings have been begun by the firm of Hastings & Miller of this city against the Eastman Kodak company of New Jersey. The specific charge is that the company is party to a conspiracy, and is a trust, in that it restricts trade and commerce by refusing to sell goods to dealers who will not agree to handle its wares exclusively, and by holding back a portion of their profits, so as to compel adherence to the agreement.

Verdict In Lynching Case

Spokane, Aug. 7.—Death by strangulation from having hanged over a guy wire by masked men unknown to the jury is the substance of the verdict returned by the coroner's jury at Asotin at the inquest over the body of Will Hamilton, lynched for the murder of Mabel Richards. Hamilton's body was buried by his father and three other men. No funeral ceremonies were held.

Paris, Aug. 7.—"Major" Taylor last night won the final in the international Criterium cycle race after a fine struggle. Grogna was second, Meyers third and Ellegard fourth.

☞Well doing always requires an effort. Ill-doing can be done without self-denial or endeavor. Upward movements are ever toilsome, but slipping down or falling is an easy matter. Having a hard time is not in itself proof of well-doing, but well-doing is always accompanied by what seems at the time to be a severe strain on one's powers. With the world as it is, and with ourselves as we are, the best way in life is ever the hardest; therefore let us not be surprised if, when honestly striving to do our duty, we seem to have a severer time than when we are not so careful.—Young Peoples' Weekly.

GOOD EVIDENCE.

The Negro Sam Scott was at Clifford House.

A Handkerchief Taken Recognized.

Other Things That Point to His Guilt.

That Scott and Bailey are one and the same man there seems to be but little doubt. By diligent work the police are rapidly weaving a net about him whose meshes are so small that it seems next to impossible for him to escape his just deserts.

When Scott unburdened himself to Ispector McKay Wednesday night in the presence of Officers Barry and Holloran, in his endeavor to shield himself, by throwing the crime onto somebody else, he drove the first nail in his coffin. The officers told him that what he said would probably be used against him in court; he did not hesitate but told the story which is believed to be a fairy ta'e.

Another nail has been driven by Mrs. Clifford, positively identifying the handkerchief that Scott wore on his head when seen in Braintree, and which was taken from him when he was arrested. Mrs. Clifford says it belongs to her and was taken from the house by the burglar.

While the officers and the prisoner were in the sick room at the Clifford house, Inspector McKay took the handkerchief from his pocket and was showing how Scott had the handkerchief tied about his head when Mrs. Clifford turned to the Negro and exclaimed:

"Where did you get that handkerchief?"

Scott shivered as though the shaft had struck home, but quickly recovered himself replied that he had bought it.

"You did not buy that one! That's the handkerchief that was taken out of my husband's pocket at the time the money was taken. I know it because I did the hemstitching myself."

Mrs. Clifford then produced the mate to the handkerchief.

The handkerchief taken from Scott was spotted with blood and had a piece torn out of it, which he had used to bind his cut finger with.

Mrs. Clifford's words did not seem to phase Scott any; he merely said: "That doesn't prove anything."

Thursday night the police received word from several parties who saw a Negro answering Scott's description on Monday, and in every case they said he was alone.

Mr. Davis, a livery stable keeper at Dorchester, also called at the station on Thursday, and identified Scott by photograph as the fellow who had applied to him for work on Monday.

Mr. Davis said the Negro appeared to have on more than one pair of trousers, and the outside pair were similar to the blood stained trousers found by Officer Murray in Sheppard's coal yard.

During one of Scott's conversation with the police on Thursday, he asked permission to write a letter to New York. He wrote two letters. Both he addressed to women. One in Shelbyville, Ky., and the other in Chicago.

The import of these letters was that Joe Bailey had made a target of him and that he wanted the women to tell their friends to send him $5 each to help him out. The letters concluded with these words: "I have generally had plenty of money but this time I have been up against the craps hard and am dead broke. Send, O send me money, for I need it badly."

The police do not attach much importance to the pair of shoes and two shirts found near the railroad track on Thursday. In the first place the spots on the shirt, supposed to be blood turned out to be iron rust. There is also in this immediate vicinity a quantity of other wearing apparel and it looks as though this was a dump for cast off clothing.

On the way to Dedham Scott was taken to police headquarters in Boston and measured by the Bertillion system and photographed.

The Boston police were unable to identify him. His measurements and photograph, however, will be sent to the police of the principal cities of the United States to see if some of the departments can not identify him.

Scott arrived at Dedham jail late in the afternoon and will remain there until next Thursday when he will be brought to Quincy for trial.

ANNUAL CRUISE.

Yachts of the Quincy Club Sail for Marblehead.

The fleet of the Quincy Yacht club was to start this morning from Houghs Neck for the annual cruise, but owing to the heavy rain at that hour Commodore Sheppard decided to postpone the start until the weather was more favorable.

The weather had cleared by noon and at 12.45 the fleet got under way. The plan was for them to pass in review of the flagship, but the wind was so light it was only possible for the boats to drift out with the tide.

Captain Frank Pray, the club janitor, fired a salute from the club battery as the fleet got away. When out a short distance a little puff of wind sprung up, the sails filled and the skippers headed their craft for Marblehead.

To the yacht making the best corrected time on the run the Commodore will present a silver cup, and a first, second and third pennant to yachts making best actual time.

Today and Saturday will be spent at Marblehead witnessing the Midsummer series of the Corinthian club.

Sunday the fleet will leave Marblehead at 10 A. M. and run to Salem Willows, returning to Quincy in the evening.

Tonight and Saturday night there will be social calls among the fleet, and a good time is sure to result.

It was not a large fleet that left but they will be joined by other yachts.

The starters were:

Flagship Folly,—Commodore Eben W. Sheppard.

Moondyne,—Capt. W. B. Shaw.

Ida J.,—Capt. C. C. Collins.

Hustler,—Captains Whittemore and Robbins.

Carita,—Capt. E. E. Davis.

Kittywake III,—Capt. W. H. Dean.

Launch Aleppo,—Capt. W. J. Tilley.

Brockton's Tax Rate.

Brockton has been heard from. The Enterprise says: "The tax rate for Brockton is $21.80 on $1000 this year, a jump of $1.90 from that of last year at $19.90.

"But once in the history of Brockton and North Bridgewater has this figure been equaled or exceeded. That was in the year 1865, following the close of the Civil war, when the old town of North Bridgewater was called upon to pay extra war taxes and bounties, and the rate was $29 flat on $1000 for that year.

"But twice before has the tax rate reached $21 in the history of the place, aside from the year of 1865 referred to. One time was in Mayor Low's administration in 1899 when the rate went up to $21.60 and again in 1872, before Brockton was a city, when the rate was $21 flat.

"The increase in personal property valuation and also in the total increased valuation of the city this year is the greatest ever known. Where the increase in personal property a year ago was $246,703.25, this year it is $1,226,791.80, nearly $1,000,000 more than for last year.

The increase in the valuation of real-estate is nearly $100,000 more this year or $587,255, making a total increase in valuation of over $1,800,000, against a gain last year of $783,000. Despite this handsome increase in valuation, and the hard work of the assessors to meet conditions with a view to keeping the tax rate down, there has been an abnormal increase on the other side of the ledger that has knocked the most conservative estimates askew.

The valuation for this year follows:

Real estate,	$29,935,360.00
Personal estate,	5,298,243.30
Total,	$31,233,603.30
Total 1902,	$29,419,456.50
Total gain,	$1,814,046.80

Mission del Alamo.

The Daughters of the Republic of Texas are raising funds to save the old Mission del Alamo, only a part of which is now owned by the state. The spot is sacred to the hearts of all Texas. Contributions are sent to Miss Clara Driscoll, P. O. box 121, San Antonio, Texas.

—People of Washington are having a hot time of it. It has been decided that restrictions shall be placed about the District Auditor's office so that no more $73,000 embezzlements shall be allowed. Government franked envelopes are no longer to be used for private purposes, and automobiles are now required to be numbered, so that speed violators cannot escape the cops. And then there is the Post-Office matter. With any more restrictions, public office holding and pleasure seeking won't be worth while attempting.—Rockland Standard.

—A few newspapers in the state, the Gazette among them, censured the proposed bill for licensing coal dealers before it was adopted by the authorities at the state house this year. That they were correct in their condemnation is becoming daily more apparent and the opinion is becoming general that the bill as it stands is the biggest piece of freak legislation passed in many years. —Taunton Gazette.

HOUGHS NECK.

This week has been a dull one at Houghs Neck, and there have been few visitors outside of the regular cottages. On warm pleasant days there are hundreds of daily visitors, and business at the booths is good. On stormy days, however, everybody keeps indoors and things are very quiet.

There has been but little complaint this year on account of the dust, and that petition for having Sea street watered has been pigeon-holed until sometime in the dim future. For the past few days Sea street from the new fire station to Bay View avenue has been covered with several inches of mud. Along near the residence of W. J. Tilley there is a pond in the middle of the street almost deep enough for Mr. Tilley to sail his launch Aleppo. This is due to a hole in the street left by the sewer contractor which has never been filled. A few loads of gravel would not be out of place at this spot.

G. H. Wade and family of Hyde Park are in the Shaw cottage on the hill.

Brewers Implicated In Graft

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 7.—The grand jury is investigating a report that an attempt was made to secure money from brewers to effect the passage of the beer compromise bill, by which brewers were released from paying fines for violation of the beer inspection law, on the condition that they pay a stipulated sum into the state treasury and obey the law in the future.

Building Operations Held Up

Minneapolis, Aug. 7.—A thousand laborers employed in building trades of Minneapolis are on strike for a raise in pay from 20 to 25 cents an hour. The walkout has suspended operations on several large buildings. Skilled laborers who are dependent on the men who are out have been forced to quit work.

Bank Teller Under Arrest

Cleveland, Aug. 7.—Criminal proceedings have been instituted here by attorneys representing the City National bank of Canton against Albert W. Delbel, teller of the institution, on the charge of embezzling about $22,000 in funds and falsifying the bank's books. Delbel is under arrest at Canton.

Blanche Walsh Gets Divorce

New York, Aug. 7.—Justice Dugro has signed the final decree of divorce in favor of Blanche Walsh, the actress, in her suit against Alfred Hickman, to whom she was married in 1896.

☞Necessarily, this concentration of aliens in a few eastern centres, which has been under way all the time since the heavy inflow began, is calculated to bring evils. It congests the labor market, causes suffering and crime, and is a burden to the taxpayers. For many reasons it would be better if the bulk of the immigrants would scatter through the west. There is room enough there for them to make homes, to prosper and to become Americanized quickly. If assimilation is to be easy and safe, the incomers must diffuse themselves through the country. It is obviously impossible for the north Atlantic seaboard states to absorb the bulk of the heavy immigration without injury to themselves, to the immigrants and to the country. Horace Greeley's advice about going west is the counsel which should be impressed on the minds of America's big swarm of new settlers.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

WILL HAVE TO HURRY.
Delay Means Loss of Money to Chas. C. Hearn's Patrons.

The readers of the Ledger who want to get a fifty-cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price (25 cents), will have to hurry.

After a great deal of correspondence Chas. C. Hearn succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co to make this special price so that his customers could obtain sixty doses of the most remarkable medicine ever discovered for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at just half price, 25 cents. It is the regular size, the same that has been sold in such quantities in the large cities for years at 50 cents.

Whether you will be cured of your constipation or dyspepsia for a trifling sum, or continue to suffer, depends on you. Many have taken advantage of this offer. Nine tenths of the people suffer from constipation or dyspepsia. Now is the time to cure yourself.

If you have tried so many remedies without relief that you are discouraged, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn will give you an opportunity to test Dr. Howard's specific without any cost unless it cures, and will agree to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Everybody wants to be well—to be free from headaches, constipation, indigestion. Here is your chance for complete and permanent cure at trifling expense, with a reliable local druggist's guarantee that the treatment will not cost you anything if it does not cure. Take advantage of this offer at once. 4-7-11-14

THE RUSSIAN STRIKES

Have Extened Over a Vast Industrial Area

FOUR HUNDRED MEN HURT

By Being Trampled Under the Feet of Horses Ridden by Cossacks, After Having Been Driven Into a Solid Mass on Governor's Order

London, Aug. 7.—The Daily Mail's Nikolaieff correspondent fully confirms the Times correspondent's accounts of strikes in South Russia. The correspondent says that 250,000 men are affected, and that simultaneous strikes occurred over a vast industrial area. He says that the amount of studied organization and well concealed preparations was unprecedented in the troubled annals of Russian labor. Prices of the necessaries of life are rising by leaps and bounds.

The strikers, on the whole, have preserved exemplary order, but this, however, has not saved them from savage attacks, directed by General Arsenioff, governor of Odessa. Groups of men who assembled with the intention of holding a meeting were driven into a solid mass of 500 Cossacks, backed by two lines of infantry with fixed bayonets. About 2000 strikers being thus enclosed by a double cordon, the Cossacks rode through them, striking right and left with heavy whips, the fallen men being trampled under the horses' feet.

When the living mass had been thoroughly kneaded to the governor's will, continues the correspondent, numerous men were arrested as suspected agitators. The infantry then marched off and the strikers scattered in a dozen directions, with Cossacks at their heels. It is reported that 400 strikers were more or less seriously injured, and that from six to a dozen succumbed. The whole affair is a typical piece of administrative savagery.

The extraordinary feature of the movement at Odessa is that the police and gendarmes belonging to one depot threatened to throw off their uniforms and risk all the terrors of insubordination unless the miserable pittance of 11 to 14 pence, which they are allowed daily, was increased and the hours of labor reduced. Siberia is losing its terrors even for Russian policemen.

The epidemic of incendiarism is spreading through Russia. Scarcely a day passes without news of conflagrations. At Baku alone destruction has been colossal. Tens of millions of gallons of naphtha have been burned. In 24 of the largest towns the damage by fire during the past month is estimated at from $30,000,000 to $35,000,000. The object of the bulk of the fires is to get insurance money. Many of the incendiaries are Jews, and the insurance companies in some cases have raised premiums 50 per cent. Public opinion in Odessa is entirely on the side of the striking sailors and stokers. A wealthy company which has been employing men for years has only paid sailors at the rate of 25 shillings a month.

Hailstones "Ten Inches In Length"

Denver, Aug. 7.—Details of the storm which prevailed along the eastern slope of the Rocky mountains in Colorado and southern Wyoming show that in some sections the hail fall was unprecedented. Chunks of ice measuring in some instances 10 inches in length fell and the damage wrought was immense. Sheep were struck dead in the corrals, and cattle and horses were severely injured. Farm houses and barns were wrecked and crops utterly wiped out of existence.

Naval Officers Draw Color Line

New York, Aug. 7.—The chief petty officers on the receiving ship Columbia at the Brooklyn navy yard have refused to mess with a negro who has just been sworn in as chief carpenter's mate. They have asserted their unwillingness to associate with him in any way, or to receive or carry out any orders that may come to them through him in the line of duty. Isaac Miller, the chief carpenter's mate, has been in the navy many years and has a good record.

Romance of Many Years

Spokane, Wash., Aug. 7.—Twenty-five years ago Welden B. Heyburn met Miss Gherantine Yeatman of Pennsylvania, and they became friends. In 1884 the young lawyer came west and settled in Idaho. He became a leader of the bar, acquired wealth and last winter became United States senator. Senator Heyburn has left for the east and it is announced that his marriage with Miss Yeatman will occur next Wednesday.

Over a Year on One Voyage

Portland, Ore., Aug. 7.—After a voyage lasting more than a year the French bark Grand Duchess Olga, with a general merchandise cargo, has arrived here from Antwerp. But for the fact that she had been frequently spoken her name would probably be long ago have been placed among the lost. The Olga encountered numerous storms after leaving Antwerp.

A Coal Land Deal

Chattanooga, Aug. 7.—Deeds have been filed recording the transfer of 60,000 acres of coal land in Cumberland county in favor of the North American Coal company. The consideration is $1,000,000.

Receiver Is Disgusted

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 7.—The Southern Car and Foundry company's troubles have culminated in the resignation of J. M. Elliott, Jr., as one of the receivers, on the ground that legal proceedings instituted by conflicting interests would prevent the recumption of the operation of the plants of the company.

Treaty Opponents' New Excuse

Colon, Aug. 7.—Advices from Bogota state that the adversaries of the Panama canal treaty claim that acceptance by the Colombian congress of the Hay-Herran treaty would be unconstitutional, because congress did not sanction the last canal project, and for other techincal reasons.

Senator Money to Be Returned

Vicksburg, Aug. 7.—Returns indicate that in the Democratic primary election in Mississippi Senator Money received the nomination for the United States senate and James K. Vardaman the nomination for governor of the state. Governor Longino was Money's opponent.

PRIVATE SETTLEMENTS

Have Probably Saved Many Brokers From Going to the Wall

New York, Aug. 7.—Following a very weak opening, the stock market suddenly reversed its course yesterday, substantial gains being registered by practically all the better class securities. The average of net advances were about 2 per cent. In some instances gains were much greater. New York Central led the active list with a net gain of 3 3-8.

The change of front, which occurred in the early afternoon, was doubtless due to several reasons, the most potent of which was the "good" buying which seemed to emanate from high quarters. There is little room for doubt that stocks were purchased freely by insiders—the banks, banking houses, financial institutions generally and wealthy individuals because they seemed cheap. No justification could be found for the report that the Vanderbilts, Rockefellers and Harrimans with their hosts of followers had entered upon a plan to lift prices. As a matter of fact no little part of the improvement was undoubtedly due to extensive covering, many on the short side regarding the market as being very much oversold.

Despite the marked improvement further talk of trouble and probable failures was heard on every side almost to the close, which was really buoyant. Old time traders are still of the opinion that more dead wood remains to be weeded out. Reports current in trustworthy circles, however, suggest that several firms and individuals whose affairs were found to be in bad shape have been permitted to make private settlements, thus saving themselves such sacrifices as would inevitably have been made had their holdings been thrown upon the market. The day's business was slightly less than 1,000,000 shares.

Survivor Tells Queer Story

Allentown, Pa., Aug. 7.—Eugene Bloch and Mrs. Kate Falzinger were found last night in the latter's apartments with their throats cut. The woman was dead, but the man may recover. Bloch declared to the police that the deed was committed by a stranger while he and Mrs. Falzinger were in bed; that the woman pleaded for her life; that he was wounded in trying to prevent her murder, and that helplessness from loss of blood prevented him from making an outcry. Mrs. Falzinger was estranged from her husband. Bloch is divorced from his wife.

Thieves Had Great Nerve

Seattle, Aug. 7.—Robbers removed the safe from the bar of the Washington hotel and rolled it down the side of a steep hill. Passersby saw the men, but paid no attention to them. The robbers drilled the safe and planted dynamite and stepped out of the way. While several people were looking on the safe exploded. The safe crackers made a dash to get the contents of the safe but were frightened and bolted.

Opposition to Land Bill

London, Aug. 7.—The committee stage of the Irish land bill has been reached in the house of lords. There was an unusually large attendance of Irish peers. In the division on the first amendment the government escaped defeat by one vote. In the following division the government was defeated by three votes. Neither amendment was vital to the bill, but notice has been given of 34 pages of amendments.

To Be Left to Umpire

Pottsville, Pa., Aug. 7.—The conciliation board appointed to adjust the differences between the anthracite miners and the operators have failed to agree on certain grievances, and have made an appeal to the judges of the United States court for the appointment of a seventh man or umpire. The questions in dispute will be referred to this umpire, whose decision will be final and binding on both parties.

Alleged Misapplication of $53,000

New York, Aug. 6.—Detectives have arrested Joseph Cowan, a broker, who lives at Metuchen, N. J., on a charge of larceny of $53,000. The complainant is Blanche H. Smith of Milwaukee, who was said to have entrusted the money to Cowan to invest for her benefit.

American Cricketers Win

London, Aug. 7.—The Philadelphia cricket team defied Surrey county's best bowlers at Kennington oval. They batted the whole day, making the excellent score of 348 runs, and at the close of play still had three wickets to fall.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Fifty delegates representing provincial chambers of commerce have sailed from Liverpool to participate in the international meeting at Montreal.

The treasury department has purchased 75,000 ounces of silver at an average of 55 1-5 cents for Philippine coinage, delivery to be made at San Francisco.

General Gillespie, chief of engineers, will be designated president of the board of ordnance and fortification on the retirement of General Miles.

Governor Taft reports that the census of the Philippines has about been completed. The books and schedules will be sent to Washington.

Charles Knight, aged 33, was drowned at Manchester, Mass., while trying to swim ashore from an overturned boat about 100 feet from land.

Resolutions protesting against the closing of life saving stations during the summer months were adopted by the Portland, Me., board of trade.

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

Then wherefore, in these merry daies,
Should we, I pray, be duller?
No, let us sing some roundelayes,
To make our myrth the fuller.
And, while thus inspired we sing.
Let all the streets with echoes ring;
Woods and hills and everything
Bear witness we are merry.

TWO DEFENDANTS

George H. Brown Entirely Exonerated.

In Revere Road Apartment Case.

The Finding of Judge Fox on this Point.

The decision in the case of Harkins vs. Rochford, in the Revere Road apartment house matter which was referred to in yesterday's paper was also in favor of George H. Brown, one of the defendants. There were two defendants, Mr. Barown, former owner of first mortgage and a Mr. Golding, of Boston the present holder of the mortgage. Mr. Brown advanced $3300 upon the mortgage and Mr. Golding bought it of him and advanced about $3,000 more. The mechanics claimed that Mr. Brown had promised them not to sell his mortgage and had broken that promise by making the sale to Mr. Golding.

Judge Fox found that Mr. Brown had not made any such promise, and entirely exonerated him from any blame in connection with the matter, saying "The allegations of the bill so far as they point to a legal promise on the part of Brown, and to the breach of said promise are not sustained by the evidence."

The Judge found however, that when Mr. Golding took the mortgage from Mr. Brown he knew how much Mr. Brown had advanced on account of it, and that Mr. Golding had no right to advance any more money on it or to hold it for any larger amount than Mr. Brown did.

The decision was thus in favor of Mr. Brown, but against Mr. Golding.

PISTOL SHOTS.

Alarm the People of Adams Street This Morning.

And Cries of Murder and Help!

Police Secure an Italian Who is Probably Insane.

Cries for help, cries of murder and sounds of pistol shots early this morning aroused people on Adams street and on Central avenue, Wollaston, and to think that a tragedy was being enacted.

The people of this vicinity are now at a fever heat owing to the recent affair at the Clifford house, and these cries and shots were rather unnerving.

The shots were first heard about 3 o'clock, and when later the shots were renewed the coachman for Harry L. Rice telephoned the police and the patrol wagon was sent down with Officers Holloran and Cahill.

Upon their arrival they found that the sounds came from the woods in the rear of the residence of Harry L. Rice. The place was a difficult one to get at, and the officers had to climb over stone walls and through bushes.

They finally came upon a man lying on the ground. Near him was a revolver. As the officers approached, the man reached for the revolver and would probably have used it on the officers had not the officers been too quick for him.

The officers secured the revolver, and found it to have been a fire short one. There were four empty shells and one chamber that contained a ball cartridge. Between the man's legs was an open razor. Examination of the man's clothing disclosed the fact that there was a hole in his hat.

The man was an Italian and could speak but little English. He however gave his name as Carmino Alessandro. He was arraigned in court this morning for disturbing the peace, and the case was continued until next week. In the meantime he will be examined as to his sanity.

CIRCUS TRAIN WRECKED

Michigan Accident Causes Twenty-Three Deaths

CARS WERE TELESCOPED

Railroad Officials Blame Engineer For the Disaster Although He Claims That Air Brake Refused to Work—Elephant and Camels Killed

Durand, Mich., Aug. 8.—The death list, as a result of a collision in the Grand Trunk yards between the two sections of Wallace Bros.' circus train, stands at 23, seven of whom are in the morgue unidentified. Coroner Farrer impanelled a jury, which viewed the remains and adjourned until Aug. 14, when the inquest will be held.

Three cars of the stationary first section were telescoped and the engine and five cars were demolished. The rear car of the first section was a caboose, in which the trainmen were sleeping, and the next two were filled with sleeping circus employes. The greatest loss of life was in the caboose.

One of the wrecked cars of the second section was occupied by five elephants and several camels. One of the elephants and two camels were killed outright, while the other animals and their trainer escaped. With the exception of this car none of the menagerie was wrecked, the other demolished cars containing canvas or wagons, and there was comparatively little excitement among the wild animals. As soon as they recovered from the first shock the trainers rushed among the cages quieting the few beasts that were excited. The elephants in the wrecked car behaved with surprising calmness, and were lead out of the wreck without trouble.

In discussing the question of responsibility for the horror, the railroad officials unhesitatingly lay it to Engineer Probst of the second section of the train. Probst says that the air-brake on his train refused to work, but the officials declare that he could have stopped the train in time to have avoided serious consequences.

General Manager McGuigan says: "Probst knew that he was coming into a yard where trains usually stand and take on coal and water. The rules say plainly that engineers shall approach such yards with their trains under control. A brakeman sent back by the first train warned him of the danger three-quarters of a mile before he got to the standing section. For nearly half a mile before he got to the first train the track is straight and clear and he should have been able to see the red light on the back of the train ahead in time to stop his train. Of course he, like any one else, will try to avoid such a dreadful responsibility."

The official report on the accident, issued by Supt. Brownlee, declared positively that the air brakes have been tested since the accident and found to be in perfect condition, and there is evidence that they were not applied.

One of the officials in discussing the accident and its causes said he believed that Engineer Probst had exhausted his air in checking his train several times between Lansing and Durand and failed to again charge his tank. The head brakeman and fireman, who were on the engine, bear out Engineer Probst's statement that the brakes refused to work.

The bodies of the dead have been placed in caskets and are being shipped to their homes as rapidly as possible. The injured who are still here at the temporary hospital in the Hotel Richelieu are those suffering from lesser hurts, the seriously wounded being removed to Detroit.

Partisan Jury Claimed

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 8.—In the third trial of ex-Secretary of State Powers for complicity in the Goebel murder, the defense entered a motion to discharge the entire venire that was summoned from Bourbon county. It was charged that the men were selected by partisan agents, who pointed out to the deputies those wanted, and that other discriminations was shown. The motion was overruled.

To Return to Haverhill

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 8.—It is stated that as a result of efforts by the Haverhill board of trade and the officials of the Shoe Workers' Protective union, Fred M. Hodgdon will remove his shoe manufacturing plant from Derry, N. H., back to this city. Hodgdon moved from Haverhill to Derry after having trouble with the local labor unions.

Caldwell Wins Close Race

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 8.—Harry A. Caldwell beat William Stinson in a 15-mile motor-paced race here last night, covering the distance in 19 minutes 59 2-5 seconds. Caldwell tried to pass Stinson in the last mile, but failed to do so and the contestants crossed the tape with barely a length between them.

Machinists' Strike Threatened

Boston, Aug. 8.—The machinists of the Boston and Albany railroad employed at the Allston shops, at a largely attended meeting last night, voted to strike unless the demands for a nine-hour day with 10 hours pay are granted by the company, in sympathy with their fellow employes at Springfield.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

General Conditions Not Demoralized by the Decline In Stocks

New York, Aug. 8.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: It has been an eventful week in the stock market, more failures occurring, while prices fell to the lowest point since January, 1901. Yet there has been no corresponding demoralization in trade or industry.

Trade advices from nearly every section continue to show as favorable conditions as a year ago, and in many lines the volume of transactions has increased. Jobbers report fall business opening with excellent prospects and manufacturing plants are well occupied, with the exception of cotton mills.

On the whole, news from the farms is less favorable, but no serious curtailment is assured and many sections make very bright reports. A decline of 1.5 per cent. in the cost of commodities during July is evidence that prices are less inflated, since the change was mainly in meats and other food which have been ruling at an abnormal position.

Insolvency returns for the month of July appear ominous when considered in the aggregate, especially if comparison is made with previous months or the corresponding month in preceding years. Liabilities of all bankrupt concerns reached the exceptionally high sum of $16,751,245, far exceeding any other July for a decade.

Preparing For Coronation

Rome, Aug. 8.—St. Peter's is closed while the preparations for the coronation are proceeding. Pope Pius X has expressed a desire to have as many of the humble members of the faith as possible admitted and 50,000 tickets are being distributed. The remainder of the seats will be reserved for distinguished guests. Only two galleries have been erected, one for the diplomatic body and one for the Roman aristocracy. The body of the church will be divided into compartments with separate entrances.

Finns Exiled by Russia

St. Petersburg, Aug. 8.—Orders have been issued for the expulsion from Finland of Baron Von Trail, Michael Linden, chairman of the city council of Ekenaes; Count Gustav Kreitz and his family of seven and some other prominent Finlanders. The vice-provincial secretary of Vasa province has been dismissed because he opposed the military ukase. The Finnish cadet school has been abolished because the graduates refused to enter the Russian military service.

The President's Callers

Oyster Bay, Aug. 8.—Senator Millard of Nebraska, Senator Heyburn of Idaho and Ernest H. Abbott of New York were among the guests of President and Mrs. Roosevelt at luncheon yesterday afternoon. Both of the senators came to see the president on matters connected with appointments in their respective states. To the senators President Roosevelt stated his desire respecting financial legislation at the approaching session of congress.

Canal Treaty's Fate Not Known

Panama, Aug. 8.—It is reported that the senate committee made a favorable report on the canal treaty. The confirmation of the report is lacking. A correspondent writing from Bogota says that the government made a big mistake in not sending the treaty first to the house of representatives, where it has a big majority. Had it gone there the treaty would have surely been ratified.

Capitalized at $5,000,000

Trenton, Aug. 8.—The Cash Buyers' Union First National Co-operative society, with an authorized capital of $5,000,000, was incorporated here to conduct department stores and to transact kindred business. The charter provides that the company may enter into contracts with its officers and stockholders and with any other company in which it may have an interest.

Serious Outbreak Improbable

Vienna, Aug. 8.—The foreign office is absolutely without information regarding the fresh outbreaks in the Balkans and is not inclined to believe that the situation is really dangerous. The diplomats are convinced that so long as Austria and Russia maintain their present attitude any serious outbreak is improbable.

Inactive Liquor Raids

Bangor, Me., Aug. 8.—In spite of the sensational and wholesale raid on Bangor liquor saloons, there is no sign of a drought, nearly all of the places being run wide open. A few of the larger saloons are doing an immense business. At one saloon extra bartenders have been engaged.

Thousands of Families Homeless

Barcelona, Spain, Aug. 8.—A terrible fire has totally destroyed the quarter of Esparraguera occupied by the working people. Three thousand families were rendered destitute and some workmen perished in the flames. Esparraguera is 14 miles from Barcelona.

Contest of Hand Tubs

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 8.—Neptune No. 2 of East Manchester, a new comer in the hand tub game, took first money in the muster in this city, playing 217 feet 2 1-2 inches. The second prize was taken by Warren of Pepperell with a stream of 210 feet 2 3-4 inches.

Reformers Fall Into Net

Pekin, Aug. 8.—Five reformers have been arrested in Pekin, one being the brother of the viceroy of Wu Chang. Police have been stationed at all gates to prevent men suspected to be reformers from leaving the city.

AND STILL NO ATTACK

Fleet of the "Enemy" Sighted Off Bar Harbor

SOUND OF HEAVY FIRING

Probability That It Was Only a Feint on the Part of Hostile Fleet—Weather Conditions Now In Favor of Vessels Guarding the Coast

Portland, Me., Aug. 8.—What is believed to have been the first gun in the present game of mimic war being played off the eastern New England coast between two fleets of the navy was heard last night at Bar Harbor in the direction of Mt. Desert Rock. The "enemy" at that time had theoretically been threatening the coast for a period of about 2 1-2 days, but up to yesterday none of the vessels of the attacking fleet had been sighted.

At an early hour yesterday several vessels thought to be a part of Admiral Sands' fleet were sighted some distance off shore but disappeared shortly after. At 10.15 o'clock last night the inhabitants of Bar Harbor were startled by the sound of heavy firing off at sea. At that time the weather was clear and the moon was shining brightly, so that observation off shore was possible for some miles. It hardly seemed as if the "enemy" would choose such conditions to run the gauntlet of Admiral Barker's patrol, and as the firing only lasted about five minutes, it was the general belief in Bar Harbor that the attack was in the nature of a feint.

The conditions up to noon yesterday were favorable to the attacking fleet, as the weather was very thick all along the coast, but a strong northwest breeze set in soon after that time, and within a few hours the fog had been driven to sea, and at sunset a good observation could be obtained for many miles. Similar conditions are predicted, so that the "enemy will probably have a hard task to evade the defending squadron, make a harbor and hold it for five hours. If he accomplishes that he will win the game.

End of Odessa Strike

Odessa, Aug. 8.—General Arsenieff, governor of the district of Odessa, and the mayor of Odessa, together with a committee of influential citizens, have induced the tramway strikers to resume on the distinct understanding that their grievances will be considered and concessions granted. All the trades have now resumed work and the strike is practically ended, but the city will remain under martial law for at least another 10 days.

To Circle Earth In Fifty-Five Days

Seattle, Aug. 8.—According to a cable just received J. W. Sayer, who is travelling around the world in an effort to break the best previous record, sailed yesterday from Germany, and will reach Seattle in just 55 days after he left. If he makes it in 55 days he will have broken the world's record of 60 days, 16 1-2 hours, made by Charles Fitzmorris before the completion of the trans-Siberian railway.

Indicted Man Gives Bail

New York, Aug. 8.—Maurice Runkel, who was jointly indicted by the District of Columbia grand jury with August W. Machen and Thomas W. McGregor, in the postoffice investigation, surrendered himself before Commissioner Shields and gave $5000 bail for his appearance when wanted. The charges are made in connection with supplies and equipments for the free delivery service.

A Record-Breaking Run

Los Angeles, Aug. 8.—At 1.06 o'clock yesterday afternoon the special train bearing Henry P. Lowe, chief engineer of the United States Steel Corporation, arrived here, having completed a run from the Atlantic to the Pacific, a distance of more than 3200 miles, in the fastest time on record. Lowe left New York on Tuesday at 2.45 p. m., and arrived in Los Angeles 70 hours and 21 minutes later.

Law Regulating Automobiles

London, Aug. 8.—The house of commons, after a discussion extending from noon yesterday until 2.30 this morning, passed through the committee the government's new bill for the regulation of automobiles. It fixes the maximum speed of motor cars in the open road at 20 miles an hour, and in towns at 10. It compels drivers to be licensed and cars to be registered.

Despondent Man Took Poison

Berlin, Mass., Aug. 8.—Marcus Williams, aged 50, was found in his room unconscious from the effects of chloral taken with suicidal intent. Williams' young wife and baby were buried 10 days ago. Some years ago he buried his first wife and two children within a week. There is little chance of his recovery.

Pushing the Land Bill

London, Aug. 8.—The Irish land bill passed the committee stage in the house of lords late last night after a lengthy discussion and amendment. In the course of the division the government was three times defeated.

American Cardinal Laid Up

Rome, Aug. 8.—Cardinal Gibbons is suffering from intestinal trouble, due to excessive heat and over fatigue. His illness is not regarded as serious.

MANY MILLS TO CLOSE

There Will Be 612,000 Idle Spindles In Fall River Next Week

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 8.—The mills that will be wholly closed next week are the Davol, Stafford, Cornell, Flint, Chace, Robeson, Weetamoe, Osborn No. 1, Border City No. 1, Sagamore No. 2, Wampanoag, about 612,000 spindles in all. The Hargreaves and Parker will continue running the spinning four days a week, the Barnaby will continue running five days a week, the yarn mills four days a week, and toward the latter part of the week some other corporations will close for short periods.

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 8.—All the New Bedford cotton mills have sections of looms stopped, and are curtailing in certain departments. Whether they will be compelled to shut down entirely will probably be decided by the end of this month. Few of the mills are at present seriously handicapped by the cotton famine, but the orders which have been received are few and far between.

Springfield, Mass, Aug. 8.—The Springfield Knitting company has been forced to curtail production somewhat on account of the high price of cotton. Some 200 hands are employed by the concern, and 25 per cent are affected.

Rochester, N. H., Aug. 8.—The Gonic mills in the village of Gonic shut down today. It is announced that operations will be resumed on Aug. 24.

Postmaster's Sudden Death

Hingham, Mass., Aug. 8.—More than 200 delegates to the National Postmasters' association convention came from Boston to Nantasket to enjoy a harbor excursion and dinner at the seashore. After dinner Postmaster William S. Wallace of Norwood, Mass., one of the party, was seized with a fainting spell. A doctor was called, but Wallace was dead before the doctor's arrival. Death was pronounced due to heart trouble. Wallace had been postmaster for 16 years.

Robbers In the Toils

Boston, Aug. 8.—Wholesale looting of stock of the Webster Thomas company, wholesale grocers, has been going on for several months past, and three of the trusted employes of the house are under arrest on charges of larceny; two others also have been arrested charged with receiving the stolen goods, knowing them to have been stolen. Chief Inspector Watts says that each of the accused has confessed his part in the transactions.

Won't Comply With Union Request

Boston, Aug. 8.—The officials of the Boston coastwise steamship lines have jointly refused the request of Longshoremen's union, No. 302, that the wages of men on the wharves be increased, and that an agreement be entered into with the unions giving preference to union men and the establishment of union working rules. Other regulations regarding computing overtime, holidays, waiting time, etc., were incorporated in the document.

Kicking Against Assessment

Meriden, Conn., Aug. 8.—At the meeting of Silver City lodge, A. O. U. W., last night a committee was appointed to confer with other lodges in the Connecticut jurisdiction with a view of seceding from the supreme grand lodge and organizing an independent body. This action was taken after a lengthy discussion of the new assessment plan proposed by the supreme lodge for the relief fund of the western lodges.

Peace Disturbers Sentenced

Boston, Aug. 8.—All three of the negroes charged with disturbing the meeting in the Columbus Avenue African Methodist Zion church, at which Booker T. Washington spoke, were sentenced by Judge Bennett. Granville Martin and William M. Trotter were sentenced to 30 days in jail, from which they appealed and were held under $200 bonds each for the grand jury. Bernard A. Charles was fined $25.

Heavy Suit Against Plunkett

North Adams, Mass., Aug. 8.—A writ of attachment in action of tort against William B. Plunkett of Adams for $110,000 was filed here by D. B. Wesson of the firm of Smith & Wesson of Springfield. It is understood that the suit that will be brought under this attachment grows out of matters connected with the organization of the White Mountain Pape company, which is now in the hands of receivers.

Shot Comrade Through Heart

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 8.—James Sandella, 14 years old, an Italian, was shot and almost instantly killed last evening by Dominic Fornino, also an Italian, 15 years old. Young Fornino was showing a crowd of boys his ability with a revolver. While preparing to shoot at a target the revolver in his hands was prematurely discharged and the bullet entered young Sandella's heart.

Can't Afford to Remain Idle

New London, Conn., Aug. 8.—A movement to return to work is reported among the married men of the locked out force at the Brown cotton gin shop. Several of them have notified the officials of the machinists' union that they cannot afford to stay away from work longer, and will go back Monday.

Victory For Leander

Boston, Aug. 8.—George Leander was the victor in the last night's riding of the Golden Wheel race for pace followers at Charles River park, making the 48 miles 692 yards in one hour. Leander appeared as a substitute for Basil De Guichard, who was unable to ride.

PERILS OF THE X RAY.

Edison Says He Is Afraid of the New Light.

HIS EMPLOYEE LOST HAND AND ARM

Famous Inventor Tells How Clarence Dally Was Injured by the Rays—Has Abandoned Search For Fluorescent Lamp, Finding His Sight Impaired by Experiments. Will Have Nothing to Do With Radium.

That impaired sight, cancerous disease and even death may come to him who is continuously exposed to or inexperienced in the use of Roentgen rays has been demonstrated in a pitiable manner in the laboratory of Thomas A. Edison at Orange, N. J. Clarence Dally, an assistant to the "Wizard of Menlo Park," has contributed an arm and a hand to this demonstration, while Mr. Edison himself suffers from the disturbed focus of one of his eyes through experiments with the mysterious light in an endeavor to find for it some commercial utility.

Mr. Edison was recently seen at his home in Llewellyn Park, Orange, by a New York World reporter and asked to tell the story of the experiment which disabled Dally and came near making Mr. Edison sightless.

"Don't talk to me about X rays," he said. "I am afraid of them. I stopped experimenting with them two years ago, when I came near losing my eyesight, and Dally, my assistant, practically lost the use of both of his arms. I am afraid of radium and polonium, too, and I don't want to monkey with them.

"Up to two years ago I was deeply interested in X rays. I used a fluoroscope which I invented, a pyramidal box with one open end, the smaller, and a larger closed end, the covering being a chemical sheet against which the object to be examined is placed, the rays being focused upon it. I was making experiments in a dark room that I had constructed in one end of the laboratory. I was looking for an improved crystal, and there were daily results that fascinated me and kept my eye glued to the fluoroscope virtually all the time.

"I used my left eye, and one day when I came out of the dark room and closed my right eye for a moment everything looked double. I hastened to an oculist, who said that my eye was something over a foot out of focus. It is still imperfect, and I do not think that it will ever be entirely well.

"When I noticed the effect upon my eye I cautioned Dally. I told him that there was danger in the continuous use of the tubes, but he persisted because he was so enthusiastic upon the subject. The only thing that saved my eyesight was that I used a very weak tube, while Dally insisted in using the most powerful one he could find.

"The box of the fluoroscope only partially covered his face, so that the light fell upon his hair and made it fall out—that is, what was left of it after exposing his head to the light in a reckless way to illustrate its power. Parts of his hand and arm were also exposed to the action of the light.

"I am keeping him on the pay roll, although he is not able to do any work, and I expect to take care of him as long as he lives. I have sent him away on a vacation to Woodbridge, N. J., where the change may do him good."

"Speaking of radium, Mr. Edison, what is your opinion of it?" asked the reporter.

"I have had several pieces of it from Mme. Curie in Paris, and I have experimented with it. I do not see its commercial utility, but it opens up a great field of thought and scientific research. It overturns all the old theories of force and energy and has set scientists to thinking. Do I believe that it is the solution of perpetual motion? No. I have a peculiar theory about radium, and I believe it is the correct one.

"I believe that there is some mysterious ray pervading the universe that is fluorescing to it. In other words, that all its energy is not self constructed, but that there is a mysterious something in the atmosphere that scientists have not found that is drawing out those infinitesimal atoms and distributing them forcefully and indestructibly."

"Did you ever find any commercial utility in the X rays or radium?"

"My researches, I might as well tell you now that I have abandoned them, were in the direction of making a fluorescent lamp. I obtained results which brought me each day nearer to the object of my desire. I found a crystal that was fluorescing 12,000 times, and I thought I had my lamp. Then came the question of practical use. I could make the lamp all right, but when I did so I found that it would kill everybody who would use it continuously.

"No, I do not want to know anything more about X rays. In the hands of experienced operators they are a valuable adjunct to surgery, locating as they do objects concealed from view, and making, for instance, the operation for appendicitis almost sure. But they are dangerous, deadly, in the hands of the inexperienced or even in the hands of the man who is using them continuously for experiment. There are two pretty good object lessons of this fact to be found in the Oranges."

Colored Pharmacists In Virginia.

The colored pharmacists of Virginia met recently and perfected an organization for their mutual advancement throughout the state, says the American Druggist. The organization will be known as the Virginia Association of Colored Pharmacists.

THEFT OF OVER $75,000

Prominent Bostonian Disappears and Makes Confession

MONEY FOR MINISTERS' AID

Had Been In His Charge For Twelve Years—Nothing to Show How He Covered Up His Misdeeds—Was Well Known In Society and Politics

Boston, Aug. 8.—In a letter written from Montreal on Sunday to the pastor of his church in East Boston, Willard S. Allen, treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of the New England conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, confessed that he was a defaulter to the amount of more than $75,000 of the society's funds.

Allen has been treasurer of the society for 12 years, and clerk of the East Boston district court for 29 years and for 16 years a prominent member of the school committee of Boston. He left home about a week ago, without announcing his destination, and the first heard from him was the letter to the East Boston clergyman. Allen said that he had lost the money in speculation. He requests the minister to notify the members of the Allen family and the officers of the society of his confession.

For more than forty years Allen has been a prominent citizen of East Boston. In Methodist church affairs, as a lawyer and in political and social life he has been well known. Twenty-five years ago he became a member of the corporation known in the Methodist church as the Preachers' Aid society, the object of which is to aid and relieve the sick, infirm and aged ministers of the denomination, and in 1891 was elected treasurer. Year after year his reports were presented to the conference and accepted without question, and he was re-elected annually to the office which controlled the finances of the society.

When the society's officers received the news of the defalcation they at once visited the vault where the securities were kept. The box was empty, with the exception of certain shares of stock amounting in value to about $2800.

The officers then began a systematic investigation and the result convinced them that Allen, for a number of years, had systematically speculated with the funds of the society.

It appeared that since the March conference about $8000 had been received from contributions and other sources, of which apparently about $2600 had been legitimately expended. The balance was not accounted for. Nothing was found to throw any light on the method employed by the treasurer in taking the funds of the society nor to show how he had for so long covered up his misdeeds.

The only information on the subject was contained in the letter to the clergyman which said that he had lost the money in speculation.

The officers are of the opinion, however, that the treasurer must have procured temporary securities to be used at the time of the annual auditing of his accounts. This idea had led the officers to believe that a recent move to require a bond of him and the registering and consequent closer inspection of the securities of the society, and, possibly, the recent heavy losses in the stock market, brought Allen to a crisis which convinced him that further concealment of his dishonesty was impossible.

The matter has been placed in the hands of Chief Inspector Watts, and he had wired the principal cities of the Union and Canada to arrest Allen. Photographs and circulars will follow this message broadcast as soon as they can be prepared.

It is believed that Allen left home Saturday immediately after the adjournment of court in East Boston and completing his day's work started for Montreal, where he wrote the letter, confessing his crime. This letter was mailed on Sunday.

It is suspected that Allen may have started for South America, and the San Francisco authorities have been asked to watch all outgoing craft. Another theory is that Allen is hiding in Montreal or its vicinity.

Upon learning of the letter, officers of the society placed the matter in the hands of attorneys. The actual amount of Allen's peculations is $75,309.77, according to the statement of the attorneys. The corporation has no capital stock.

The Macedonian Outbreak

Sofia, Aug. 8.—The fresh insurrectionary outbreak in Macedonia, which was believed to be impossible, has produced a sensation everywhere. It is believed that the latest provocations by the Turkish troops drove the insurrectionists to despair. A popular movement is feared in the event of massacres of peaceful Macedonians by the Turkish soldiery.

Lisbon, Aug. 8.—Admiral Cotton and the officers of the American squadron yesterday made a round of official farewell visits. The squadron sailed today for Gibraltar.

A MILE ASTERN

Shamrock I Again Suffers Defeat From the Challenger

Atlantic Highlands, N. J., Aug. 8—The Shamrocks raced in many kinds of wind yesterday. Running and reaching in a shifting breeze Shamrock III outsailed her pacemaker by 2m. 6s. in sailing 15 miles to the outer mark and beating back by 4m. 9s., a total of 6m. 15s. elapsed time. The start was before a light northwest wind. When the starting whistle blew eaech captain tried to blanket the other boat. After a minute they compromised, filled away on opposite tacks and went across the line breaking out spankers.

Within three minutes the challenger overtook the old boat and began to leave her astern. The wind was softening, but later the old boat caught a freshening slant of new wind from the west and smothering her spinnaker and cut down half the challenger's lead before the latter felt it. They ran for half an hour without spinnakers and then the wind hauling back to northwest set them again. The wind first dropped and then freshened. The challenger gained slowly. At the turn she had the lead of a quarter of a mile, but once closehauled for the windward thresh in a stiffer wind, began to draw away. Half way the yachts were sailing a pretty race in a ten knot wind and the challenger crossed the line while the old boat was more than a mile away.

More Disturbance at Kieff

Kieff, Aug. 8.—The disturbances were renewed here, the strikers parading the town, breaking windows, invading workshops and compelling workmen to join them. The Cossacks fired upon a crowd after they had been assailed with a shower of stones. Several were wounded. The tramways have suspended and the bakeries are closed. The price of bread is rising.

Indictments Not Properly Drawn

St. John's, Aug. 8.—The supreme court has quashed the indictment against Captain Frank Willard of Gloucester, Mass., who was charged with having murdered John Yettman, one of the crew of the Helen Whitten, on the ground that the indictment was faulty. There will be a new trial under another indictment.

Opposed to Chamberlain's Scheme

London, Aug. 8.—The Daily Mail this morning says it understands that the permanent officials of the board of trade and of the treasury have unanimously advised against the adoption of Secretary Chamberlain's proposals for giving the British colonies preferences, based on the taxation of foods.

Ashore In Belle Isle Straits

Halifax, Aug. 8.—A North Sydney dispatch says: The steamer Algerine, which arrived here last night, reports that the steamer Holmlea, from Montreal for Fleetwood, Eng., is ashore at Point Reach in the Straits of Belle Isle. The vessel has a cargo of deals, valued at $40,000.

Many Kinds of Sport

The Richard K. Fox Rowing Cup a Handsome Trophy ⁂ Coming International Tennis Matches at Longwood, Mass.

One of the principal events at the coming regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen to be held at Worcester, Mass., will be contested by intermediate eights for the Richard K. Fox $2,500 cup. The trophy has been presented by Richard K. Fox of New York and is a beautiful piece of workmanship. It is of silver, weighs over 300 ounces and is 2 feet 4 inches in height. It was exhibited at the World's fair in Chicago, where it attracted universal attention, and is conceded by experts to be the handsomest and most artistic trophy of its kind ever put up for competition.

It is designed in the Italian renaissance style. The handsome wood base upon which it stands is a Maltese cross in plan, on one side of which is a well posed figure of an oarsman about twelve inches high holding his scull in his right hand. This figure is very finely modeled and shows the athlete to perfection. From the base springs another one, round, making a total of five and three-fourths inches high, with silver mounting, and from this rise the silver foot and stem of the trophy. The foot is very handsomely modeled and richly chased. On the upper portion of the stem are two shields for names of winners, with laurel wreaths running round. The foot and stem are a little over nine inches in height. The body of the cup is about twelve inches in diameter and five inches deep.

On one side is a figure of Victory eight inches in height, with wings spread and right arm outstretched, bearing a wreath of laurel and supporting with the left hand a shield on which is the donor's name. Two handles are formed of conventionalized dolphins, and the cup measures about eighteen inches across the same. Under each handle is an eagle, the national emblem of America. On the cup is a cover, surmounted by a globe, on which stands a fox, which again signalizes the donor. The fox is about four inches and serves as a handle to the cover, which can be removed, transforming the trophy into a very handsome punch bowl. The general appearance of this splendid work of art is very striking and the somewhat novel arrangement of the base is very pleasing.

The figure in front of the cup, standing on the base, was posed for by George Hosmer, the famous oarsman.

The selection of the Wrenn brothers to compete against the Doherty brothers of England in the coming international tennis matches at Longwood, Mass., has been hailed with satisfaction by the racket enthusiasts of the country.

Bob Wrenn, the older of the brothers, was formerly the singles champion of the United States. He was never defeated for the title, having forfeited it in 1898 to go to Cuba with Roosevelt's rough riders. Wrenn has had considerable experience in matches with leading English players, and this fact should enable himself and his brother, George L., junior, to make a strong showing against the redoubtable Britishers who last year, at Bay Ridge, New York, defeated Holcomb Ward and Dwight F. Davis for the championship of the world in doubles.

The international matches in doubles are to be played for the Davis Challenge bowl, which D. F. Davis, who is a native of St. Louis, presented for competition last season. The victory of the Dohertys enabled them to take the trophy to England. The Wrenn brothers are in excellent form and hope to bring the trophy back to Uncle Sam.

William A. Larned of Summit, N. J., who is to represent the United States in singles, will meet H. L. Doherty, the champion singles of England. Larned defeated Doherty last August at Newport, where the Englishman came very close to capturing the national championship. Only Larned's superb work saved the title from accompanying the Davis trophy across the Atlantic.

The recently made match race between the sensational pacers, Anaconda, 2:01¾, and Dan Patch, 1:59½, for $25,000 a side should be one of the greatest light harness events of recent years. Both horses have developed in splendid shape this season and are prepared to step the fastest miles of their careers.

Anaconda, by the way formerly known as the "snake horse," has had his name changed by his owner, C. B. Knox of Johnstown, N. Y., but to the rank and file of turf enthusiasts, who have grown to admire and even love the magnificent "side wheeler," he will always remain Anaconda.

Charles Tanner, the manager of Anaconda and who is a noted matchmaker of C. K. Billings' great matinee stable, at once accepted the defi.

M. E. McHenry, who trains Dan Patch, was anxious that Tanner complete the match at once, but finally gave in to Knox's request that the plans be consummated later.

There is doubt that the race will be run as agreed, as Anaconda was but recently placed in the hands of Jack Curry, who long campaigned Joe Patchen.

LOU DILLON, 2:03½, HOLDER OF WORLD'S RECORD TO WAGON, WITH C. G. K. BILLINGS UP.

It is very likely that Lou Dillon, C. G. K. Billings' swift trotter, will be sent after the world's record at the Brighton Beach (New York) grand circuit meeting. Secretary McCully of the trotting association has an eye to the attraction and is sure Mr. Billings will send his mare after Cresceus' mark. Lou Dillon has traveled a mile faster to wagon than any trotter of her sex. Recently she negotiated a mile in 2:03½, and Mr. Billings is confident that she will eventually make a new record for the mile.

THE RICHARD K. FOX TROPHY.

International Golf.

The make up of the team of the Oxford and Cambridge Golfing society, which will visit this country in the autumn, sailing at the end of August, will be as follows: John L. Low, Norman F. Hunter, D. F. Ransom, J. A. T. Bramston and T. Mansfield Hunter of Cambridge; H. C. Ellis, H. G. B. Ellis, A. C. Croome and H. W. Beveridge of Oxford. This leaves three places on the team to be filled, as twelve players will come, and it is expected that Horace G. Hutchinson, the runner up in the recent amateur championships, will be one of them.

A most interesting figure among those who have been selected will be John L. Low. He is considered one of the greatest putters in the world.

Kraenzlein to Compete Again.

The world famous athlete, Alvan Kraenzlein, holder of the records for the high and low hurdles and the American record for the broad jump, will compete in the national championships of the A. A. U., to be held at Milwaukee Sept. 10 and 11.

Brooklyn and the "Outlaws."

Notice to Contractors.

Good Afternoon.

The average tax rate of the nineteen cities which have reported this far is $18.06, nearly a dollar more than in Quincy.

It is not surprising that Newport News men when in New England visit Quincy. They have a little shipyard and have heard of the Fore River plant in the "City of presidents." They usually find the latter exceeds expectations. Postmaster Fred Read of Newport News did today.

There is one thing in which Quincy might imitate Brockton to advantage and that is in the collection of taxes. All the Brockton taxes are collected to Jan. 1, 1901, while Quincy has uncollected taxes as far back as 1895 and all intervening years. The Brockton Enterprise says: Another thing that has helped toward keeping the tax rate from going higher, although it has been fruitless in bringing it as low as was hoped, is the closing of the two tax accounts of the years 1899 and 1900 by Tax Collector Pope. Work has been pushed on this, and last week the final account in the year 1900 was squared up with City Treasurer Emerson, and through the closing of these accounts and the stopping of interest and accumulation of money received quite a little was turned over to the assessors to help them in keeping the rate down.

A comparison of the tax levies of 1903 with 1902 shows that there are increases all along the line, with the exception of three items out of twenty. The exceptions are for Metropolitan parks, where one assessment is paid instead of three; the State highway assessment, which is a minor matter; and overlays, for which $97.87 are raised.

As a whole the Metropolitan assessments are $5,432.93 smaller than last year. It was expected they would be much smaller, but there was a marked increase for water and sewers to offset the decrease for parks, the city having paid three back assessments for parks last year, and expecting relief this year.

The State tax is $6,770.00 larger and the county tax $1, 749.33 more than in 1902.

While inclined to criticise the Metropolitan, State and county assessments, they are altogether but $3,107.80 larger than last year. It is the city assessment, the maturing city debt and the interest on city debt which are really the big items of increase. The municipal tax is $11, 376.16 larger, the mauturing city and water debt $5,854.71 larger, and the interest account $1,954.00 larger.

The maturing sewer debt does not show here but in a few years it will be necessary to raise a large sum annually by direct taxation both for maturing debt, and interest on Sewer debt. Thus far since the system was started the assessments upon abutters on "sewered" streets have paid all the costs for sewers: maintenance, maturing debt and interest. There is no justice for the abuttors in this, for soon, when the construction is practically complete, they will be called upon to pay again in taxes the maturing debt for sewers.

This year the sewer assessments are expected to provide $1,500 for maintenance of sewer, $15,219.75 for interest on sewer debt, and $12,800 for maturing sewer debt; a total of $28,999.75, and rapidly growing. To put this in the tax levy would require an increase of $1.20 in the tax rate. Soon there will be no receipts from sewers as there is no annual rental, and direct taxation will be necessary. It may be necessary next year to assess a portion.

The increase in the cost of the Water department is a disappointment, as it was almost self supporting before we entered the Metropolitan district. The annual items of cost are:

Maintenance,	$10,000.00
Interest,	29,087.70
Maturing debt,	34,500.00
Metropolitan assessment,	30,237.42
	$103,825.12

Against this are water receipts which are estimated this year at $80,000.00, leaving a deficit of $23,825.12, and increasing the tax rate over $1 per $1,000.

The increase in the tax levy of 1903 over 1902 are shown below:

Municipal tax,	$11,376.16
City debt,	3,854.71
Water debt,	2,000.00
Park debt,
Interest on debt,	1,951.00
State tax,	6,770.00
County tax,	1,749.33
Metropolitan sewer assessment,	3,498.00
Metropolitan water assessment,	5,858.31
Metropolitan parks	*14,749.24
State highway,	*20.40
	$22,252.22
Less estimated city receipts,	8,371.56
	$13,880.66
Less polls at $2.00,	1,134.00
	$12,746.66
Add overlay,	*97.87
	$12,648.79
Levy on estates,
Levy on polls,	1,134.00
Total levy,	$13,782.79

Drift of Opinion.

☞Our Quincy neighbors seem to be having a bunch of trouble just now. Hardly a day goes by but what the Boston newspapers have a column or two regarding Quincy or some of Quincy's people. Not often are these columns full of praise, but usually are filled with "yellowism" about some of its inhabitants. Granite laborers, negroes, and dynamite storehouses, all have innings. While talking about Quincy, I would ask if you have noticed how the city fathers seem to like notoriety over there too. The councilmen especially, seem to like to see their names in print, whereas, here in Weymouth, our town fathers seem to like to hide behind their barns if they spot a newspaper artist a mile away.—Weymouth Gazette.

☞What a locomotive can do to a cow is one thing, but what a bull can do to automobile is quite another. The builder of the original locomotive was satisfied that it would be bad for a cow to meet his steam carriage, and the chauffeur of an automobile in Middleton, N. Y., had the same idea, but a big bull, belonging to a farmer in that town, knocked the auto and its occupents into a ditch. The bull objected to the color of the red devil, as do all animals of his class, and as the drivers seemed to challenge his right to use the highway, the battle was soon on and as quickly over. A good healthy bull might be useful on some of the highways where the auto men refuse to heed the warning of the speed controllers.—Lynn Item.

☞It's well in this world in the majority of instances to let well enough alone. If you are doing fairly well with your business or in letting your money, try and be content. Don't reach out too far and upset your business, or what is worse pile on the care until you can't take any enjoyment out of life. Move along a little cautiously especially in these strenuous times. Many of the big trust companies will come to grief as the expenses, watered stock, etc., are too much of a load to carry. The stockholders who were so eager to invest are not so enthusiastic now. They would prefer something more tangible, something safer even if it didn't promise so much. Moderate gains and sure is the safe way and it proves so in the long run.—Gloucester Times.

Hiram Porter of Weymouth a brother of John Porter of this city, died on Sunday, aged 77 years.

The attractive new house of W. C. Hunt on Miller Stile road is nearly completed. It is a six room cottage with modern conveniences built by W. R. Lofgren.

The Merrymounts will play the Braintrees this afternoon on French's common. It is intimated that the visitors will be accompanied by a large delegation of "rooters" and that they expect to win the game.

Charles Hall of Quincy Point captured two firsts at the horse racing in Wareham last week. Acqualine in the three-minute class, and Mill Streams in the 2.40 class were the horses to bring home the money.

Rev. Fr. Cuffe will conduct a lawn party in aid of the Sacred Heart church of Atlantic August 22. The affair promises many attractions and will be held on the lot opposite the Ward Six playground.

T. F. Merrill and family have moved into their new reidence, corner Washington and Pray streets, Quincy Point, which was recently completed. J. W. Pratt was the architect and Julius Johnson the builder and the result of their work does both gentlemen great credit.

Sloyd Exhibit.

An exhibition of the work of the summer classes in Sloyd work was held Thursday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock at the Cranch school building. The weather that evening was very stormy and rather against a large attendance yet the fact that the fact that the pupils were present and many of the parents and friends speaks well of the interest in this work:

The school is in charge of James M. Nowland, and now has fifty-six pupils, divided into three classes. A few of this number were attendants at the school last year.

All of the pupils were at work so that the parents could see them. There was also on exhibition samples of the work already done.

The visitors showed much interest in the work and many of them remained during the whole of the two hours.

Light refreshments were served.

Canada Cup Race.

Drugs in Your Pastry.

COMMON Baking Powders are half Corn starch, the other half being Acid-phosphate, or Alum. Some of these are said to be very injurious, and quite unreliable.

Good Baking Powders are one-fourth Rice Flour, one-fourth Soda, and one-half Cream of Tartar.

These cost 13 cents per pound to manufacture, but you must pay fifty cents per lb. for them, at retail.

And it takes $4.40 worth of this Baking Powder to make a $6.00 barrel of Flour into Tea Biscuits!

"PRESTO" quick-flour needs no Baking Powder, and very little "Shortening."

It is the finest flour milled in America, being rich in Gluten (muscle-former) with a comparatively low per centage of Starch (fat), while Baker's Flour, for instance, is chiefly Starch, with little Gluten.

"PRESTO" quick-flour has the exact proportions of Cream Tartar, Soda, and Salt, that such flour needs, already blended uniformly into it, by machinery.

These chemicals are the purest made, mixed with the flour when they are fresh and strong, and then sealed up in air-tight packages that Grocers retail at 10c and 25c.

The very best flour, and the purest Cream of Tartar and Soda are thus sold in "PRESTO," at the price of common flour, combined with Baking Powder, — why?

Because—"PRESTO" carries only a Miller's profit on the whole product, instead of a Druggists profit on the Baking Powder, or 44 per cent. portion.

Then, there's the great labor saving, and the certainty of results, to consider in its valuation.

"PRESTO" makes the quickest, surest, lightest, whitest, and most economical of cakes, biscuits, and pastry.

See comparative costs in other advertisements.

STILL AT WORK

Police Will Have Strong Case Against Scott.

A Review of the Work Done.

Very Creditable to the Quincy Police.

This has been a busy week for the Quincy Police department. No department ever did quicker or more efficient work than they did in the Scott case. That the right man has been secured there can be no doubt, and people can breath easier now that they are assured that a dangerous criminal is behind the bars.

It was 3 o'clock Tuesday morning when the police were notified of the robbery and assault, and twelve hours later a Negro thought to be the man wanted was taken into custody by Inspector McKay, at Stoughton, several miles away.

After the police had got the Negro they were in doubts as to what charge to arraign him upon. They had not a partical of evidence at that time to connect the man with the crime, and it was almost certain that neither Mr. Clifford or Mr. Heal could positively identify him.

A technical charge of a tramp was preferred against Scott, and when he left court Wednesday morning there was nothing that could be proved against him.

Then Mr. Sypher of Braintree appeared on the scene, and recognized him as the Negro he had seen in Braintree Tuesday morning, with a handkerchief on his head. This was the first link in the chain, that was being forged, and which will eventually bind him.

But little, if anything, developed Wednesday until midnight, when Scott tripped and himself furnished the clue which will commit him.

Inspector McKay was seated in the steel cell talking with Scott when the inspector made a shot in the dark by saying "Scott, you got that hat and coat in Braintree."

Then it was that Scott told the fairy tale about his chum, Joe Bailey.

Inspector McKay called to Officers Barry and Holloran who were on duty at the station and telling Scott that what he said would probably be used in court, asked him to repeat his story. This Scott unhesitatingly did.

The story was so flimsy that no one believed it, yet to make his story good he volunteered to show Inspector McKay where he got the straw hat and coat, and also where the knife which had been used was thrown. He gave a minute description of his weapon which to say the least was a little strange.

The next day the complaint was changed to breaking and entering with intent to committ larceny, and upon this Scott was held in $3,000 until next Thursday.

The police could have sworn out warrants for assault with a dangerous weapon upon Clifford and Heal but this was not necessary at this time.

Breaking and entering with intent to commit larceny is a felony, and therefore one over which the lower court does not have final disposition, and all it can do is to find probable cause and hold him for the grand jury. When the case goes up there, the police can press the other charges against him.

After court that day the police started out, in company with Scott, to visit the woman who gave Scott the hat and coat, also to let Mr. Heal have a look at him, and to make a search for the knife.

When they came to search for the knife Scott evidently became suspicious, for he could not tell just where the alleged Bailey had thrown it, although the police believe that he could, if he wished point out the exact spot.

The clinching evidence came out however when Mrs. Clifford recognized the handkerchief found in Scott's possession as one she had herself hemstiched, and she produced the mate to it. This at first phased Scott a little, but he quickly recovered himself and said the handkerchief implied nothing and that hundreds like it could be bought.

That night Scott was taken to Dedham and the first chapter in what might be called a strenuous week was closed.

The police, however, are still at work looking up evidence against Scott, and when the case comes to court next Thursday they will have no difficulty in convincing the court that there is probable cause to believe Scott guilty.

LOG OF THE SHEILA.

Reported by Wireless for the Daily Ledger.

The log of a Wollaston crew on its cruise to Maine this week will be of interest:

On board Yacht Sheila,
Portland, Me., Aug. 6.

Sunday, Aug. 2 was indeed a beautiful day, not all that could be desired as to wind, for we were actually in the doldrum and the "Graves" were in sight so long that a change of scene was welcomed by all on board.

Lyman Hewitson, secretary of the Wollaston yacht club and owner of the yacht Sheila, William Patterson, Fred White, William Jones, and Charles W. Page all of Wollaston, comprise the crew on this cruise. I say crew for our duties are assigned to us and a severe penalty awaits the unfortunate member who fails to perform his duties in a satisfactory manner.

We left Wollaston at 7.55 A. M. with a light N. W. by N. wind which lasted until we arrived off Deer Island light at 8.45.

Then the wind fell flat and from that time until 11.30 off Egg rock—so far as sailing goes—it has been dull and uninteresting. Not so, however, with the crew, for there is always something doing on board. Just now we feel that there has been a hoodoo placed upon us and the Jonah, if he is discovered, will find himself in the hands of four avenging innocents who for the time will become like so many pirates. I shudder at the thought of a possible conspiracy against me and carry my revolver on my hip ready to grasp at the first sign of any treachery on the part of the other members of the crew toward me.

What is that I smell! Clams? No! It is an east wind, and so welcome. It increases! What joy! The captain takes a turn on the tiller with the tiller rope. The Sheila seems to share our joy and hope. She gently heels to port and moves with a spirit which says, "Boys: don't tire of me; just furnish the wind, look to the mechanical part, and I will do the rest."

We are moving along pretty now and just off Baker's island at one o'clock. The captain calls the cook to get dinner. Fred White was engaged as cook, and when I realized that I would be obliged to eat his cooking or go hungry until we reached port, I volunteered to do the cooking, but the captain would not listen to any exchange of duties, so I waited until all had eaten and after a twenty minutes' awful watch, during which they had not yet begun to froth at the mouth, I did eat and took my chances with the others.

Eastern point was just off our beam at 2 o'clock, the good work still going on. The wind holds good and we are now rounding Thatcher's island as the clock shows five minutes past three.

Now we are headed for Rockport with sheets well off. Straightsmouth light house is on our port bow. Now we pass it at 3.25, jibe and run due west for an anchorage in the harbor of Rockport.

We let out anchor go at 3.45, about 100 yards from a fish wharf. We were not long in making things snug, after which all wrote postals to our best girls, mothers and wives and went ashore and mailed them. Bought the Sunday paper etc. This done we went on board and prepared supper and the harbor smelt of fried cod for an hour.

Left Rockport harbor at 7.25; wind N. E. and strong. The intention was to reach Peacks Island at night, but the conditions were not favorable, and we decided to run for Kittery Point.

Arrived at Kittery Point at 1.20 P. M. Aug. 3, after a sail of 27 miles and a pleasant one for the wind held well and brought us to our anchorage with flying colors and everything taut.

Dinner being over, and things put to rights, we feel that we have a license to go on shore for a few hours. Portsmouth has been decided upon as the point of interest.

While at Portsmouth we were fortunate to meet our old friend Mr. Hoehn, formerly Secretary of the Quincy Y. M. C. A. and he made it pleasant for us.

Aug. 4, all hands on deck at 4 bells. Light wind N. E., indications of fog. About seven o'clock fog set in thick. At eight o'clock signs of clearing up is welcomed, and at 8.15 when our anchor was broke, the earlier signs of clearing weather had proven correct, for it was practically clear. A light south wind however, made it necessary for us to beat to the bell buoy on Kitt rocks, which we turned at 10.25. Think of it, two hours and ten minutes sailing about 3 miles, but there was something better in store for us.

After taking our course at 10.25 we had a good strong S. to S. E. wind, and made at times 5 to 6 knots.

Arrived off cape Neddick at 11.50; of Wells beach at 12.40, of Goat island at 2.20, of Wood island at 3.35, and of Cape Elizebeth at 6.10.

The favorable wind which held for us so long, at this time began to ease up and when we passed Portland Head Light at 6.20 the wind was but a breath and but for the favorable tide our time of arrival at Peaks Island would have been much later than 7.25 which was the time we dropped anchors off the steamboat landing.

A drizling rain having prevailed throughout the day sightseeing was out of the question.

Wednesday morning we found anchored near us the yawl Brant, Capt. Joshua Fenno and a friend on board. Early in the day William Given and William Teele on the Beatrice came into the harbor, also the schooner Romance with Capt. James Smith in command. Ex-Commodore Burgess, the owner, had with him besides Mrs. Burgess, several guests. In the evening Mr. Burgess took his party to the Little Gem theatre, so also did Capt. Hewitson of the Sheila.

Thursday Commodore Stephen B. Wiley with his fine yawl Claytonia came into the harbor having come up from one of the many beautiful Islands of Casco bay, where he has been cruising for the past two weeks, having with him Mrs. Wiley, Miss Sadie Wiley and Mr. Clement.

Mr. Burgess and Mr. Given sailed for Wollaston this morning and as they had a strong and favorable wind they should make a good run.

Commodore Wiley and Capt. Hewitson will remain here for another week. Mr. Page leaves tonight by boat.

Ruling Next Week.

The lien case of Johnson and Akls-strom vs. McDonald, which was tobe heard in the Districk Court this morning if Clerk Churchill were sustained in the question of law developed last Monday when the case first came up, went over till next week. Lawyers McKay and McAnarney who are engaged in the case conferred with Judge Avery for a ruling and were told that it would be made early next week. The question is evidently of considerable difficulty. Mr. Churchill who is the central figure is away these days and this may be the reason the court has reserved the decision.

Monster Clam Bake.

One of the features at the annual outof the Emmet Club of Brockton, to be held at Pawsey's farm, Quincy, on August 30, says the Enterprise, will be a monster clam bake. The committee is arranging with a master of the art of preparing clams in the open air to take charge of the bake and it will be done in thorough style. There will be many other features. It is expected that there will be 100 or more at the outing.

"GOODBY, DORA"

By ..... HOWARD FIELDING

Copyright, 1902, by Charles W. Hooke

I WAS roused by a loud knocking at my door. Stumbling forward, I sprung back the catch of the lock. The man without had turned the knob and was pressing upon it so that he seemed to fall into the room. He was my uncle's butler and was obviously shaking with alarm.

My first thought was that my uncle, whose health was very feeble, might have died in the night.

"Mr. Halstead is worse?" I began.

The butler shook his head with a sort of shuddering convulsion that swept down to his toes.

"It's Mr. John," he replied. "He's dead."

The news struck to my heart. Jack Halstead was my cousin and a fine fellow in every way. A great grief that he had had of late had brought us close together, and I held him to be my best friend.

"SUICIDE!" HE REPLIED.

"Dead!" I exclaimed. "An accident?"

"Suicide," was the reply.

I was conscious of surprise in the midst of my confusion, for this servant had hated Jack with the unforgiving persistence of an Indian since a day long ago when my cousin had exposed him in a trifling delinquency.

I dressed with all haste and hurried across to my uncle's house, accompanied by the trembling servant. When we entered I saw a group at the head of the broad stairway. Mr. Halstead was upon the topmost stair and towered above the others.

Upon a lower stair stood Arthur Morrow, son of the late Mrs. Halstead by a former marriage. A step or two higher and ascending was Dr. Norton Carr, the old physician of the family. As I approached the stairway my uncle extended his long right arm over the heads of the others and shook his finger at me.

"This is no better than murder!" he cried. "You are responsible for this."

"What do you mean?" I demanded.

"Come here, and I'll show you," he replied in a choking voice.

We entered Jack's bedroom. The poor fellow lay there in his bed, his mortal part reposing in the final sleep. Mr. Halstead paused by the head of the bed and tapped with his finger upon a small table. I came forward and looked down. There lay a little vial containing white tablets and beside it a small tube. There was a label on the vial, and I knew what was marked upon it—"Morphine, one-half grain; Dr. Halstead."

"He got these things of you," said my uncle. "I call it murder. What possible excuse? You knew that he was heartbroken for Dora. She is going away; he has lost her. You have seen how he has been of late."

"I did not give him this," said I. "How can you imagine that I would do such a thing? He took them out of my office."

"And you knew it!" thundered Mr. Halstead. "You knew it, and you didn't tell me! You made no effort to save him. Why did you suppose he wanted this poison? Had he any proper need of this drug?"

I shook my head.

"I loved him," said my uncle, laying his hand upon the dead man's breast. "He should have had the bulk of my fortune, and you knew it. You ruined his life"—

"You are mad to say so!" I exclaimed.

He sneered at me.

"Why is that girl going away?" he demanded. "Do you think I don't know? Because a penniless rascal has won her away from my boy here. She couldn't marry you because you hadn't the money to buy her a roof and her bread. But you would have had a little at my death and were content to wait."

"As long as I have known Dora," said I with all the earnestness at my command, "I have never spoken one word of love to her. Do you suppose I would step in and rob Jack? Why, you yourself have praised me for my loyalty to him."

"I was deceived!" he cried. "You were too deep for me. You have caused his death. Look at this."

He picked up from the table a card upon which was written in Jack's hand the simplest possible message, "Goodby, Dora."

The tears sprang to my eyes, but it was necessary to control emotion in this crisis. I turned to Dr. Carr.

"There can be no doubt as to the cause of death?" I asked.

He did not reply in words, but bent forward and tapped the vial with his finger.

"Tell me how it happened," I asked. "Who saw him last?"

It was Thomas, the butler, who replied. He seemed to have risen through the floor at my elbow.

"He was out during the evening, sir," he said. "We don't know where he was. It was near midnight when I let him in. Mr. Morrow was writing in the library, and Mr. John went in there. I brought them a glass of wine. It seemed to me, if I may make bold to say so, that Mr. John was in better spirits than usual."

"I thought so, too," said Morrow. "We talked awhile of ordinary topics. I didn't notice that Jack was depressed. He seemed quite like his old self. We sat together for half an hour, and then he came up here to bed."

"Does anybody know," I asked, "why he opened this?"

I pointed to an ebony box containing some papers. It was open, and a small bunch of keys hung in the lock.

"Is there any indication that he destroyed anything?" I continued.

"Not that I know of," answered Morrow.

There was a moment's silence.

"It may be, sir, that the poison was in there," suggested Thomas. "He wouldn't have kept it lying round the room, sir, and where else should he have been likely to put it?"

"That is probably the explanation," said I. "I wish I'd thought of it before. When he confessed to me that he had taken this bottle from my office I tried to find it. You will readily understand why, Mr. Halstead."

"I understand that you have been criminally negligent," he retorted. "And let me tell you now that I am done with you."

He turned to Arthur and in his characteristic, impulsive, headlong way went on:

"You were never a favorite with me, Arthur, but you're all I've got now. You're the only one bound to me by any tie. Dora Melvin shall have something, with a condition." He glanced fiercely at me. "And you'll have the balance, Arthur. Much good may it do you!"

"No money will do any one good that comes in this way," replied Morrow, with a shudder.

"Thomas," said I, addressing the butler, "you let Mr. John Halstead in last night. Did he have anything in his hand?"

"No, sir," he replied.

"Not this, for instance?" said I, laying my hand upon a small package that was on the mantelpiece.

"No, sir," said Thomas. "He brought that in day before yesterday. You remember it, Mr. Morrow," he continued. "He took it into the library where you were writing."

"I had forgotten it," answered Morrow. "Are you sure, Thomas?"

"This is a serious matter," said I, laying my hand on the butler's shoulder. "Do not commit the folly of beginning the affair with a falsehood."

"I don't know why I should lie about it, sir," he replied doggedly.

"You saw him take this parcel into the library," I continued. "By the way, does anybody know what's in it?"

My uncle interrupted to ask angrily what all this was about.

"Grant me two minutes," said I. And then I repeated my question.

There was no reply.

"Thomas," said I, "what did young Mr. Halstead do with this parcel after he took it into the library?"

"I saw him untie the string," he answered. "Then he took up a pen from the table, but I didn't see him write anything."

"Did he write anything in the library last evening?" I asked, turning to Morrow, who answered me in the negative.

"Are you sure?" I insisted. "You were there all the time that he was present."

"Yes," was the answer. "He didn't write anything while I was there. Why do you ask?"

"Because this message on the card is written with the ink that is used in the library and not with Jack's stylographic pen. There is no ink in this room that I can see."

"What is the purpose of these questions?" demanded Mr. Halstead.

Without answering him I took up the parcel and removed the wrapper. There was a dainty box within, and upon opening that I discovered a small plaque, beautifully painted. The design was in lilies of the valley, which were Dora's favorite flower.

"Unless I am greatly in error," said I, "this farewell message on the card was intended to be put into this box. It was a parting gift to Dora."

"Its purpose is obvious," said Mr. Halstead. "It lay upon this table, and this bottle of poison was on top of it. It was his last word, poor fellow."

"But why did he buy the plaque?" I insisted. "Was it for you? For me? For Arthur?"

"For her, of course," said Mr. Halstead.

"Then why did not the gift and the message go together?" said I.

No one ventured a reply.

"I will tell you why," I continued. "This card was put into the parcel and was taken out again, but not by Jack."

"By whom, then?" asked my uncle.

"By some one who knew of its existence and perceived that it would answer quite well the purposes of a suicide's last message."

Mr. Halstead caught me by the shoulder.

"Do you mean to charge actual murder?" he cried. "Will you try to shift your own guilt upon another?"

"I charge a willful and deliberate murder," I replied.

"By whom?" he screamed.

"Let us see," I responded. "He must have swallowed this poison just before retiring. If he did not take it himself in this room he must have done so elsewhere in this house. He drank a glass of wine in the library."

"And you brought it to him?" cried Mr. Halstead, turning upon Thomas.

"Yes, sir," said the servant calmly. "I served him and Mr. Morrow."

"And you hated him?"

"I did not like him, sir, but I am not a murderer," was the answer.

At this point Dr. Carr put in his word.

"But the man died from these tablets," he said. "They were locked in this private box, and he had the key."

"Thomas," said I, "do you know of any other key to this box?"

The man was pale as paper, but he did not falter.

"Yes, sir," said he. "I happen to have seen Mr. John unlock this box and lock it again and put the key in this drawer."

He stepped forward and opened a small drawer in a desk, from which he took a key.

"I know when you saw him do that," said I. "It is heaven's mercy to you that you saw him. And I saw him too. I counted upon you remembering and upon your honesty, Thomas."

"I try to speak the truth, sir," said the servant.

"And now, Mr. Halstead," said I, "let me state this case as you see it, or as you saw it at first. Jack came up here; he opened this box in which he had hidden the vial taken from my office; he dissolved some of the tablets in this tube and drank the fluid. Is there any other possible way to picture it?"

"No; certainly not," was the answer.

"Let me picture it for you," said I. "He came to this room in better spirits than usual. He went to bed in the full confidence of waking on the morrow. But instead he sank into a stupor from which he never aroused. When a sufficient time had elapsed a man stole into this room. He took a bunch of keys from Jack's pocket, for he was one who did not know of the other key in that drawer. Had he known of it obviously he would have used it and would not have searched through this bunch for the right one. Time was precious with him.

"Having secured the vial and this card with the farewell message, he put them on this table. Then he stole out again."

"But," interrupted Dr. Carr, "who knew the vial was there?"

I pointed to Thomas and then to Morrow.

"One of the men must have known it," said I, "for no one else could have had a motive for this crime. One hated him; the other, knowing that my uncle must soon die, saw a chance of a great inheritance. Which of them is guilty—the one who frankly said, 'I suppose the vial was in that box,' or the one who dared not say what was sufficiently obvious? Who saw Jack write upon that card the other day in the library?"

"ARTHUR MORROW, I SPEAK BY THE BOOK."

"This is lunacy!" exclaimed Morrow. "The man is a suicide."

"You killed him," said I, "and now you defile his memory. Arthur Morrow, when I say that this was murder I speak by the book. There is no poison in that vial. I found it days ago. I knew why he was saving it. I changed the tablets for others precisely similar in appearance, but containing a harmless substance flavored with quinine to make it bitter. I said to myself, 'If Jack takes this desperate step he shall have a chance to repent of it.' I did not remove the tablets, for then he would simply have bought others. You don't believe me?"

I seized the vial and emptied the contents into my mouth, crushing the tablets with my teeth.

"If those were what you thought them, Morrow," said I, "my life would not be worth much. Oh, you double villain, I wish you could have got into this box that you might have used these harmless things in your desperate plot! But Jack had the only key you knew of, and you were forced to buy your drug. Arthur Morrow, I charge you with this crime!"

He tried to answer me, but his voice was not articulate. It rose gradually into a scream of terror. Then suddenly he fell forward across the little table, crushing it to the floor.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 9—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from Paul: How we may get his passion for souls.—Rom. i, 1-17.

Few people have ever been truly converted but that they have had, to some extent at least, a desire for the conversion of others. No sooner had Andrew found Jesus as the Messiah than he sought his brother Peter and led him to Jesus, and this desire for the salvation of others has always been looked upon as one of the evidences of true conversion. But some men have been characterized by this desire far above others. The salvation of the souls of men has been a passion with them—it has been their meat and drink. Conspicuous among such stands the apostle Paul. He was all things to all men if thereby he might save some, and so great was his desire for the salvation of his countrymen, who were Israelites, that he declared that he could wish himself accursed from Christ for their sakes. In other words, he was filled with such a burning desire for their salvation that he would have sacrificed his own soul if thereby he could have saved theirs. Few indeed have been possessed with such a passion for souls, and we may well contemplate it in the great apostle, with the hope and prayer that to some extent at least his mantle may fall upon us and that we may be filled with a deeper desire than ever before for the salvation of the souls of men.

Paul's passion for souls is expressly set forth in his letter to the Romans: "I long to see you that I may impart unto you some spiritual gift." "Oftentimes I purposed to come unto you * * * that I might have some fruit among you also as among other gentiles." And with these expressions of his desire there are also some explanations of it which may suggest to us how we may also become possessed of it.

1. Paul appreciated his own salvation. He delighted to call himself "Paul, a bond servant of Jesus Christ." No one more than he realized that salvation was of grace and that at the same time it was of inestimable value. Appreciating the great gift that God had bestowed upon him, he was anxious that it should be received by others. If we only appreciated our own salvation more we would be filled with a greater desire to see the souls of others saved.

2. Paul realized his indebtedness to the unsaved. "I am a debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians; both to the wise and to the unwise; so as much as in me is I am ready to preach the gospel." The saved owe a debt to the unsaved. We have the gospel and can give it to them, and therefore we are under the obligation to do so. Christ has commanded us to preach the gospel to every creature. This debt should impress itself upon us and not be allowed to be lightly set aside. If we could only feel as the apostle felt when he said, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel," we would have a more burning desire to save the unsaved.

3. Paul had faith in the power of the gospel to save. "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one who believeth." Paul earnestly believed in the power of the gospel to save. Do we? We profess to believe it, but do we practically believe it? If so would we not be more anxious and zealous for the salvation of the souls of men? The gospel can save. It is "the power of God unto salvation." Believing this let us seek more earnestly to apply the gospel as a saving power to those about us.

An Indorsement From Syria.

You will be glad to know that the brightest spot in Beirut spiritually is the Christian Endeavor society. The Syrian young men and young women who are connected with it have proved themselves capable of conducting it with dignity and spiritual simplicity and sincerity, and the work is spreading in Syria and Palestine.—Rev. Henry H. Jessup, Beirut, Syria.

CHAS. C. HEARN'S ENTERPRISE

Scores a New Mark in Special Price Plan.

When Chas. C. Hearn the popular druggist induced the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half price introductory offer on their celebrated cure for dyspepsia and constipation, there were many expressions of enviable praise.

Today Mr. Chas. C. Hearn scores a new mark, for he has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to allow him to continue, for a limited time, selling their regular fifty cent specific, sixty pills in a bottle, at half price, 25 cents.

In addition to selling a month's treatment for a quarter of a dollar, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn announces that he will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells, to refund the money if it does not cure.

Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia is not a mere aid to digestion; it is a scientific remedy that makes permanent cures of the worst cases of constipation and dyspepsia. The dose is small, and it is very pleasant to take.

Mr. Chas. C. Hearn's enterprise in securing this remarkable reduction from the Dr. Howard Co. has resulted in making their specific the best selling medicine in his store. He hopes any who have not tried it will take advartage of this offer at once, for he does not know how long he will be able to sell the remedy at half price. Remember that if it does not cure, even your half price payment will be refunded.

Napoleonic Play.

Martin Harvey to Appear In America In "The Exile." Stage Talk.

Martin Harvey's new play, in which he will be seen in America next season, is "The Exile," by Lloyd Osborne and Austin Strong, which he is to present for the first time in London in the Royalty theater.

The play is founded upon a number of more or less imaginary intrigues for the escape of Napoleon from Elba and the chief personages are connected with Bonaparte's suit or British officers in attendance.

Mr. Harvey, who is an English actor, and who has appeared in America before, is to impersonate Napoleon.

Charlotte Wiehe, who is to head the French company which Charles Frohman purposes establishing in New York next season, is not a French woman, but a Dane.

MARTIN HARVEY AS NAPOLEON.

She made her first appearance as a member of the Royal Opera company in Copenhagen at the age of five years.

She was a member of the ballet in this organization (which is subsidized by the Danish government) and remained with it for a number of years. After long tutelage she requested a speaking part, which was refused.

Immediately she sought an engagement at the People's theater in Copenhagen, where she scored her greatest successes as a pantomimist.

After divorcing her husband she went to Paris and made her debut in the French metropolis with La Loie Fuller in a one act sketch which was later played in America by Pilar Morin.

The next important engagement of Mlle. Wiehe was under the management of Al Canby, when she appeared in the London production of "A Parlor Match," which was a great failure.

She was then booked by J. B. Murdock for an engagement at Masonic temple, in Chicago, but, on learning she would have to appear in a roof garden production, she canceled the booking without formality.

Sir Henry Irving is a true knight in name and deed, as Miss Viola Allen can now attest. Miss Allen produces "Twelfth Night" next season, as did Sir Henry nineteen years ago last month. Mr. Scott Craven, a friend of Sir Henry, who is to impersonate the Duke Orsinio in Miss Allen's presentation, recently wrote telling him that he felt that Miss Allen, his great admirer, would be very much pleased to see his prompt book of the play, knowing that his studies of the drama in the way of "business" and scenic arrangement would be most valuable.

Sir Henry replied immediately, forwarding the prompt book and extending to Miss Allen his warmest compliments and greetings. This Lyceum prompt book is unusual in its way, in so much that every little detail of the presentation in the way of "business" is carefully indicated. There are diagrams of the scenes in color, sketches of the "props" and costumes and complete and valuable instructions as to the lighting. As a well known stage manager said after looking over this book, it is little wonder that Sir Henry's Luceum theater productions are so complete and satisfying in every little detail; but better still is the sir knight's delightful courtesy to a sister artist.

Miss Allen is fortunate in securing so valuable an acquisition for her production of "Twelfth Night."

Viola Allen's company to present Shakespeare's comedy, "Twelfth Night," is now about completed. The latest additions to the very unusual cast, secured by Charles W. Allen, are Nora O'Brien, who will impersonate Olivia, and Charles Howard for the clown. Miss O'Brien is not unacquainted with Shakespeare, having starred with Charles Hanford in the bard's plays a few seasons ago.

Miss O'Brien was especially commended for her grace and loveliness as Juliet. Although a Baltimore girl, she made her debut and first success playing with Wilson Barrett in London some eight years ago.

Edwin Howard, who is to play the clown, was a member of Julia Marlowe's company, playing at different times the clown and Sebastian in her production of "Twelfth Night." Mr. Howard has been studying vocal culture in Paris during the past three years. J. W. F.

Attempted Suicide.

A Perth Amboy dispatch of Thursday to the Globe says a tall, brawny man, who said his name was John Conway, of Quincy Point, Mass., attempted suicide by jumping off Cooper's dock, in the Raritan bay at noon today. He jumped on the spur of the moment, but all thought of drowning left him as soon as he struck the water and he saved himself by grasping some piling.

He raised such a fuss in calling for help that an officer aided him to police headquarters. There he admitted drink had caused his rash act, for which he was very sorry. Recorder Pickersgill held him pending an investigation.

Will of Fr. Frances.

The will of the Rev. Francis A. Friguglietti of Quincy filed in the Norfolk registry at Dedham for probate bequeaths all his estate, real, personal and mixed, and of whatsoever kind and nature to the Most Rev. John J. Williams of Boston. The bill was executed Jan. 3, 1894, and the Rev. Anthony Rossi of Brighton and Dr. Thomas F. Padula of Neponset as named, as its executors. It was witnessed by Ambrose F. Roche, Francis A. Cunningham and John W. McAnarney.

BRAINTREE.

We take pleasure in announcing a drop of $1.10 in tax rate from last years. $20.50 has been settled upon this week, a rate more satisfactory to the taxpayers.

Braintree will be entitled to four delegates to each of the Republican convention this year except Representative; the same number as Dedeam and Milton. Weymouth and Hyde Park will have seven each, Brookline ten and Quincy fifteen.

Antietam L. A. S. 16 will take a trolley trip to Mayflower Grove, Wednesday. Take the 8.45 car from South Braintree for Brockton. If stormy Wednesday they will go the next fair day.

Mr. F. G. Fennock of Washington street, who fell on the sidewalk in Boston last Thursday, injuring his hip, is now confined to his bed.

Two candidates were initiated at the last meeting of Blue Hill Lodge No. 208, A. O. U. W. Following the conferring of the degrees, whist was played. Souvenirs were awarded to brothers Trainer and Gibson.

Mrs. H. A. Collett, Beulah and Harry J. Collett of Wollaston have been the guests of Mrs. L. S. Gammons this week.

Miss Ethelyne F. Holland formerly of this town has finished the summer course at the Emerson College of Oratory and will give a recital in the Town hall, Wednesday evening August 19.

General Sylvanus Thayer Relief Corps, No. 94, will hold a basket picnic Thursday, August 13, at Holbrook in a grove near the home of one of its members, Mrs. Lizzie Beals. Take the electric leaving South Braintree square at 9.50.

Since Rev. A. E. Legg has returned from his vacation, morning services will be resumed in the Methodist church and the evening services will be held at the Baptist church.

Mr. George W. Stevens has been quite ill the past week with acute appendicitis.

A new price list for lasters was submitted to Hatch & Grinnell, the shoe manufacturers on Saturday last, and about 100 men will be affected by the proposed readjustment. It is hoped that a satisfactory settlement will be made without the necessity of carrying the matter to the State board of arbitration.

Francis A. Hunt has returned from an extended business trip which included a visit to California.

For three sucessive Sabbaths the Baptist society will worship with the Methodists at South Braintree for the morning service.

Mr. Solomon Fuller and family mourn the loss of their large Saint Bernard dog which died last week.

About a dozen pupils of the Jonas Perkins school, chaperoned by Miss Bowles, enjoyed a picnic at Sphinx rock, Weymouth, Tuesday.

Captain F. E. Hayward gave ten of his nieces and nephews a delightful moonlight sail last evening down Quincy bay.

William H. Cronin started Saturday morning for the West. On the way out he will visit Ernest Allen at Chicago and will meet Thomas Ryan at San Francisco.

The work of grading the old cricket field on Union street which has been going on the past three weeks is fast nearing completion. The grounds when completed will compare favorably with other base ball grounds hereabout. The promoters of the project are very well pleased at the interest shown by the public and with but few exceptions have received financial encouragement.

Antietam Camp 32 will hold their regular meeting in G. A. R. hall Tuesday evening, August 11. They have an early meeting as they have invited the members of the L. A. S. 16 to participate with them in a cobweb party and basket lunch after the meeting. The members of the camp will bring the basket lunch.

Elbridge Dam the popular right fielder of the Braintrees is spending his vacation at Rockland, Maine, and playing with Rocklands of the Maine league. Dam played short stop Tuesday against the Vinalhavens managed by Breckenridge the former N. E. league player. His team (Dam's) won 13 to 3, and the batting honors were captured by the little Braintreeite with a home run and two base hits. He had one put out, four assists, no errors.

There is considerable talk about the management of the electric light department. The manager places himself above the selectmen by relocating street lights and adding new ones. It is the opinion of several citizens, we have heard express themselves, that the selectmen should control the locating and relocating of street lights. The manager also, without a vote of the town, has increased the minimum rate of domestic lighting from $10 to $11.20 per year. The people are now expecting an advance in the cost of electric lights to the consumers.

BY TROLLEY TO WORCESTER.

A handsome booklet has just been published describing and illustrating the many points of interest along the line of the Boston and Worcester Street Railway which operates a through trolley line from Park Square, Boston, to Worcester a distance of 40 miles.

The booklet not only gives a graphic history of the transportation business between these two large centres from the stage coach days in 1790 up to the present time but describes all the points of interest right and left as seen from the car. It is handsomely illustrated with halftone pictures of the many old taverns and bits of picturesque scenery en route.

It is compiled and edited by R. H. Derrah who has for the past ten years made a special study of pleasure travel on trolly roads throughout New England his official street railway guide is known to every trolley tourist. He was the originator of the Boston--New York trolley trip over which he personally conducted a party of twenty-eight in special cars.

A short time ago he made a trip from Muskegon, Michigan, to Augusta, Maine, riding over some 2,300 miles of electric lines for the purpose of studying the opportunities afforded for pleasure travel on the interurban trolleys outside of New England, and he predicts that in five years' time the Atlantic seaboard will be connected with the great lake region by an electric line, at which time there will be joined together a net-work of electric lines of some 7000 miles.

The Boston-Worcester line is becoming one of the most popular roads in New England. Half of the line is double tracked and the balance has many turnouts a mile in length.

Gov. Bates and staff recently made the trip from Boston to the State Militia grounds at Framingham over this route, being the first time in history that a Governor of the Commonwealth has made the trip by electrics to Framingham. The illustration shows Gov. Bates alighting from the car, and his aid Major Charles Hayden.

One of the open cars of the line is also illustrated, and the old-time cut is from the Boston Transcript of May 10, 1834, and is self explanatory.

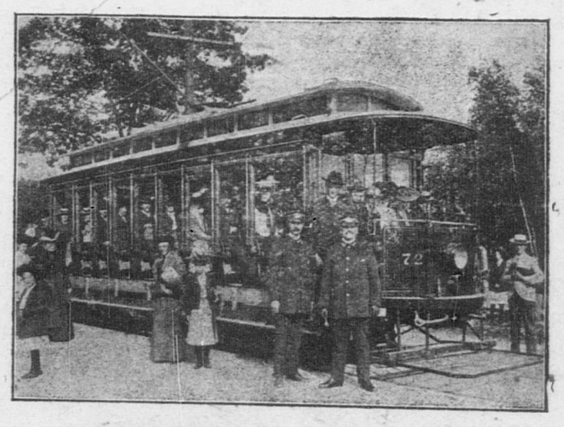

BOSTON AND WORCESTER RAILROAD. The Passenger Cars will continue to run daily from the Depot near Washington street to Newton, at 6 and 10 o'clock A. M. and at 3½ o'clock P. M.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

A play new to Boston, Martha Morton's "Her Lord and Master," makes the Castle Square Theatre attraction next week and promises to add an interesting feature to the summer season at this playhouse. The play had its original production at the Manhattan Theatre, New York city, a year ago, and was included in the repitore of Herbert Kelsey and Effie Shannon that year. Martha Morton deals with the international marriage question in this play, the hero, Thurston Viscount Canning, having married Indiana Stillwater a "wild flower of the west" and a typical specimen of civilization in the region of the Rocky Mountains. The action passes in England and deals mainly with the "development" of the western girl into a proper member of English society.

The usual distribution of souvenir boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at the Monday matinee.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

"The Golden Rose" is the name of a short comedy of unusual merit in which Monifee Johnstone will make his Boston debut at Keith's August 10, as part of a big bill, which includes Tom Nawn in "Pat and the Genii"; the Parros Brothers, equilibrists and hand balancers; Gallando, the clay modelers; Ziska and King, comedy magicians; the Meredith Sisters in their "Hiawatha" novelty; Ely and Harvey in singing and dancing specialties, the Maxsmith Duo with their dancing ladders, and Mrs. Caroline Nichols' ever popular Fadettes Woman's Orchestra.

Vessels Seized.

Five vessels being built at the Crescent shipyards at Elizabethport, N. J., have been seized by the sheriff on a writ of seizure granted by the supreme court commissioner on the application of Frederick L. Heidritter & Co., timber and lumber merchants of Elizabeth. The seizure is made for lumber and other materials furnished by the firm and used in the construction of the vessels.

VIEWS OF PRESIDENT

In Reference to Lynching and Mob Violence

CALLED A FORM OF ANARCHY

Urges That Crime Which Most Frequently Induces Resort to Lynching Shall Be Punished Swiftly and Surely but by Due Process of the Law

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 10.—In a letter, the publication of which is authorized, President Roosevelt commends Governor Durbin of Indiana for the attitude he assumed recently respecting lynching. The letter says:

"Permit me to thank you as an American citizen for the admirable way in which you have vindicated the majesty of the law by your recent action in reference to lynching. I feel that you have made all men your debtors who believe that the very existence of the republic depends upon that spirit of orderly liberty under the law which is as incompatible with mob violence as with any form of despotism. Mob violence is simply one form of anarchy, and anarchy is now, as it always has been, the handmaiden and forerunner of tyranny.

"I feel that you have not only reflected honor upon the state, which for its good fortune has you as its chief executive, but upon the whole nation. It is incumbent upon every man throughout this country to show his realiztion that the matter is one of vital concern to us all.

"All thoughtful men must feel the gravest alarm over the growth of lynching in this country, and especially over the peculiarly hideous form so often taken by mob violence when colored men are the victims—on which occasions the mob seems to lay most weight, not on the crime, but on the color of the criminal. In a certain proportion of these cases the man lynched has been guilty of a crime horrible beyond description. The feeling of all good citizens that such a hideous crime shall not be hideously punished by mob violence is due not in the least to sympathy for the criminal, but to a very lively sense of the train of dreadful consequences which follow the course taken by the mob in exacting inhuman vengeance for an inhuman wrong. In such cases, moreover, it is well to remember that the criminal not merely sins against humanity in inexpiable and unpardonable fashion, but sins particularly against his own race, and does them a wrong far greater than any white man can possibly do them. Therefore, in such cases the colored people throughout the land should in every possible way show their belief that they are horrified at the commission of such a crime, and are peculiarly concerned in taking every possible measure to prevent its recurrence, and to bring the criminal to immediate justice. The slightest lack of vigor either in denunciation of the crime or in bringing the criminal to justice is itself unpardonable.

"Moreover, every effort should be made under the law to expedite the proceedings of justice in the case of such an awful crime. But it cannot be necessary in order to accomplish this to deprive any citizen of those fundamental rights to be heard in his own defense, which lie at the root of our liberty.

"This matter of lynching would be a terrible thing even if it stopped with the lynching of men guilty of the inhuman and hideous crime of rape; but as a matter of fact, lawlessness of this type never does stop and never can stop in such fashion. Every violent man in the community is encouraged by every case of lynching in which the lynchers go unpunished to himself take the law into his own hands whenever it suits his own convenience. In the same way the use of torture by the mob in certain cases is sure to spread until it is applied more or less indiscriminately in other cases.

"The spirit of lawlessness grows with what it feeds on, and when mobs with impunity lynch criminals for one crime they are certain to begin to lynch real or alleged criminals for other causes. In the recent cases of lynching over three-fourths were not for rape at all, but for murder, attempted murder, and even less heinous offenses.

"Surely, all public men, all writers for the daily press, all clergymen, all teachers, all who in any way have a right to addresss the public, should with every energy unite to denounce such crimes and to support those engaged in putting them down. As a people we claim the right to speak with peculiar emphasis for freedom and for fair treatment of all men without regard to differences of race, fortune, creed or color.

"The nation, like the individual, cannot commit a crime with impunity. If we are guilty of lawlessness and brutal violence, whether our guilt consists in active participation therein or in mere connivance and encouragement, we shall assuredly suffer later on because of what we have done. The cornerstone of this republic is respect for and obedience to the law. Where we permit the law to be defied or evaded, whether by rich or poor man, by black man or white, we are by just so much weakening the bonds of our civilization and increasing the chances of its overthrow, and of the substitution therefor of a system in which there shall be violent alternations of anarchy and tyranny."

FOUR MEN DROWNED

Result of an Explosion on Their Naphtha Launch Off Rockland, Me

Portland, Me., Aug. 10.—Four of the most prominent young men of this city lost their lives in consequence of an explosion on their naphtha launch off Ash Point, eight miles from here. Two of the party were saved.

The dead are: Henry K. Crocker, 23 years old; Frank F. Veazie, aged 21; Raymond G. Hall, 19, and Charles W. Holmes, 23.

Oliver F. Hills and Thomas Hodges were saved.

The party started from this city in the launch on a trip to Pleasant beach, eight miles away. When off Ash Point the launch became entangled in a fish wier. An attempt was made to turn back, when suddenly there was a flash and the launch was enveloped in flames. The six occupants of the craft leaped overboard. They were within 1000 feet of the shore, but Holmes and Crocker were unable to swim. The efforts of the others were directed towards saving these two, and Crocker nearly drowned Hills by grasping him about the shoulders. Both men sank, but Hills finally succeeded in freeing himself.

Hodges swam 30 yards to a boat and, cutting it loose, found that he had no oars. By this time Veazie and Hall had half filled the launch with water, in an attempt to stifle the flames, but the fire spread and drove them from their only refuge. Veazie started to swim toward the smaller boat and Hodges threw the rudder towards him, but Veazie sank.

Crocker disappeared at the side of the burning launch, which soon afterwards sank stern first with Hall, who was clinging to the stern, and Hills succeeded in swimming to the small boat in which Hodges had found a refuge. Fishermen later put out and rescued the two men.

A lighted lantern at the stern of the boat was in close proximity to the gasolene tank and probably caused the explosion.

Serious Automobile Accident

Eastport, Me., Aug. 10.—Herbert Bromley, chief engineer of a canning factory here, with his 3-year-old son, had ridden some distance in an automobile when the machine suddenly stopped near a high cliff. In starting again the machine got beyond Bromley's control and bounded over the cliff into the water, 30 feet below. As soon as the automobile touched the water the machine exploded. Bromley had both legs and hips broken The boy's face was so severely cut that 18 stitches were needed to close up the wound. But slight hopes are entertained for Bromley's recovery.

Waterbury Strike Ended

Waterbury, Conn., Aug. 10.—The strike of trolley men, which began 30 weeks ago yesterday, was settled yesterday afternoon, the Connecticut Railway and Lighting company agreeing to take back part of the strikers at once at the old wages, to give employment to the others as soon as practicable and to treat with a committee from the men regarding future grievances. The announcement of the settlement led to a general public demonstration of joy throughout the city.

Alleged Highway Robbery

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 10.—James Burnett was arrested here last night on a charge of highway robbery. Burnett, with John B. Doyle, was seen to pass behind the Lynn theatre. Doyle later was found nearly unconscious with a bad cut on the back of his head and a small sum of money was missing from his person. Burnett has served one term in state prison.

Forced to Draw Revolver

Portland, Aug. 10.—During a Hebrew picnic at South Portland an officer ordered a baseball game to be stopped, whereupon he was threatened with violence by several of the crowd. Drawing his revolver the officer held the angry crowd at bay until a squad of policemen arrived and the disorder was quelled with no personal injuries on either side.

ONLY FOUR HITS.

Were Scored by Wellington Against West Quincy.

The Latter Administer Whitewash.

Visitors Field Well and Each Man Hits Safely.

With Long and Forbes as their battery, West Quincy had a walkover at Dorchester on Saturday defeating the Wellington team 4 to 0.

Only three scratch hits were made off Long, and as West Quincy boys made only one error and batted freely, they had it all their own way.

Every man in the visiting team hit safely, while Duffy, Forbes and Long had two each to their credit.

Sixteen of the Wellingtons retired at first base, and only three on flies to outfield. On the other hand ten West Quincy men were out on flies to the outfield.

It was a grand good game, witnessed by 3000 people, including hundreds of fans from Quincy.

Hennessey, the Braintree pitcher, had a finger split in the sixth inning and retired in favor of Gannon. Kolson pitched a steady game and kept his opponents hits scattered. The Merrymounts fieilding, Bennett's stick work, and Gannon's two sensational catches in left field were the features of the game.

South Quincy 9; Whitman 0.

On account of being an open date in the Quincy league the South Quincys played the Whitman Y. M. C. A. team at the latter's grounds on Saturday and won on a forfeit.

In the fifth innings the Whitman team left the field because their pitcher had to go. The score then stood a tie 4 to 4, so the umpire forfeited the game to South Quincy 9 to 0.

It was a pitchers' battle as far as it went, with Paterson in the point for South Quincy, and Eaton, formerly of Brown University, for the Whitmans.

Paterson had a little the better of Eaton, striking out 13 men and allowing only 1 safe which, although called a fair ball, was greatly disputed by the South Quincy team.

Eaton struck out 8 men and allowed only 2 hits, one being a line drive by Oswald which went into deep right field for three bases. The other being a slashing single over second by Austin. The home team scored one earned run and three on errors, while Austin's

QUINCY LEAGUE.

The Wollastons Trounce the Quincys.

And Get Clinch on First Place.

A Great Surprise for Rooters for the Quincys.

The Wollastons and Quincys met for the first time in the Quincy league on Saturday, and the former won in the first inning, and rubbed it in the second inning when they scored six more runs.

The Quincys were unable to score until the fifth innings when they bunched their hits and the rooters got in their work. It was the only inning when the Quincys sent over four men to the bat.

The Wollastons were first at the bat and every member of the team had a chance. Dean, the heavy hitter in the game with the Merrymounts, was given a pass to first. Fountain struck out. M. Gill and Bellevue hit safely and Dean scored. J. Gill was also given a pass. Eaton retired at first on a sacrifice. Burchsted and Plimpton hit safely and four runs were scored before Leach was out at first.

The Wollastons kept the bases full most of the time in the second. Eleven men went to the bat, the first two hit safely, the third got base on balls, three got lifts on errors, and two by being hit. After six runs had been scored Leach struck out, Dean retired at first, and Fountain popped up a fly to Duffy.

Flynn was the only Quincy man to reach first in the first inning, but there were two outs and Duffy retired at first.

Dorley opened the second with a safe hit, but J. Dunn and Rooney fanned the air and Moriarty retired at first.

A. Dunn got a pass in the third, but Eldridge and Pitts flied out and Flynn struck out, leaving Dunn on third.

The third innings of the Wollaston pleased the Quincy fans, as Dunn struck out the first three men in quick order.

After this the Wollastons scored only three runs, one each in the fourth, fifth and seventh, although they sent four or five men to the bat each innings, and in the seventh had a two-bagger and three bagger to their credit.

It was one, two, three order for the Quincys in the fourth.

In the fifth, Moriarty got base on error. A. Dunn and Eldridge followed with singles and Moriarty scored. Then a pass for Pitts filled the bases, and excitement run high. Flynn popped up a fly to infield which Fountain muffed. A. Dunn who was on third held his base but Eldridge and

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next of kin, and all other persons interested in the estate of
late of Quincy, in said County, deceased.

Whereas, two certain instruments purporting to be the last will and testament and one codicil of said deceased have been presented to said Court for Probate, by Charles R. Kelly of Milton, who prays that letters testamentary may be issued to him, the executor therein named, without giving a surety on his official bond.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County of Norfolk, on the ninth day of September, A. D. 1903, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioner is hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court this twenty-fifth day of July, in the year one thousand nine hundred and three.

We are glad to know Metropolitan water is the best. The Metropolitan cities think it comes high.

We advise the people of Hyde Park and Rockland to move to Quincy; the tax rate of Hyde Park is $20.40, and Rockland the same as last year $21 on a $1,060. In Quincy the rate is $17.30.

Drift of Opinion.

Congressman McNary has, we think, made a mistake in denouncing Judge Emmons by way of getting a hit at Gov. Bates' administration. There is enough in the political situation in this state to furnish argument for a Democratic campaign without denouncing what is really good in the Republican record. Mr. McNary's attack seems more like a sop thrown to the element which the Democratic party has always been reproached with catering to than an argument addressed to the intelligent, and respectable citizens whom the predominance of this element has made lukewarm in the Democratic cause.—Lynn Times.

Odd Fellows' Outing.

About 200 members of Wampatuck encampment of East Weymouth, Manet encampment of Quincy and Old Colony encampment of Brockton, I. O. O. F., held their annual summer field day at Nantasket Point on Saturday.

At base ball Old Colony defeated Manet encampment 9 to 5.

Other sports resulted as follows:

One hundred-yard dash — Won by Robert Wood of Manet encampment.

Egg race—Won by William Westland of Manet encampment.

Sack race—Won by Charles Somers of Manet encampment.

Standing broad jump—Won by William Lockhart of Manet encampment.

Fat men's race— Won by Samuel Wood, Jr., of Manet encampment.

Wheelbarrow race — Won by Elmer Kidder of Wompatuck encampment.

Balmoral shoe race—Won by A. A. Farrer of Old Colony encampment.

A FINE QUESTION.

Involved in Revere Road Apartment House Case.

Full Text of Judge Fox's Finding.

Second Mortgage Has Priority Over Advances on the First.

The full text of Judge Fox's decision in the Revere road apartment house case is given below. It is an attested copy:

Norfolk, ss. Superior Court in Equity.

John Harkins et als, vs. John C. Rochford et als. Memorandum.

The allegations of the first four paragraphs of the Bill are substantially true.

As to the 5th and 6th paragraphs—The defendant Brown advanced to Rochford under the first mortgage $3200 at various times between May 25, 1901, and October 16, 1901. On or about the last named date work on the building was suspended and has never been resumed. The several petitioners had at that time furnished labor and material for a considerable amount under their contracts with Rochford for which they had not been paid.

When the mortgage was taken an agreement was made between Brown and Rochford by which Brown agreed to advance the amount called for by the mortgage in instalments as the work proceeded. No further payments were due under this agreement when work was suspended.

The petitioners employed counsel and had several interviews with Brown, the purpose of which was to devise some way of getting their pay out of the property. They entered into negotiations with Spooner looking to the purchase of the second mortgage held by him. Spooner refused to assign for the amount due on the mortgage unless his claim against Rochford for a breach of an agreement to buy adjoining land was settled.

The result was that on or about January 20, 1902, two of the petitioners, acting for themselves and the other petitioners, took an assignment of Spooner's second mortgage, paying the full amount due thereon, $2584.38, and a bonus of $750 in addition on account of Spooner's said claim for damages.

In the course of these interviews and negotiations Brown said to the petitioners, in substance, that he would not press for the immediate payment of the first mortgage if they took over Spooner's second mortgage and proceeded to complete the building without delay. Brown lived in Quincy and knew several of the petitioners personally. They assumed, and with reason, that he was friendly and that he would not intentionally and unnecessarily subject them to any annoyance.

They knew the amount then due under the first mortgage and that Brown did not intend to advance any further sum. The allegations of the bill so far as they point to a legal promise on the part of Brown and to breach of said promise are not sustained by evidence.

The allegations of the 7th paragraph of the bill are true.

As to the 8th paragraph,—On or about April 2, 1902, Brown assigned his first mortgage to the defendant Golding, taking from him the full amount then due on the mortgage with interest being $3392.80. At the same time Golding paid to Rochford a further sum so that the whole amount paid by him upon the mortgage was $6100.

Rochford agreed with Golding that the mortgage should stand as a mortage for $6500, the additional $400 being a bonus to be received by Golding in addition to the interest if the mortgage was paid. Golding also took an agreement from Rochford secured by a bond of the Pacific Surety Company that the building should be completed within sixty days. Copies of the agreement and the bond are annexed to Golding's answer.

After getting the money Rochford did nothing upon the building and did not use any of the money in the payment of the petitioners' claims.

January 20, 1902, when the petitioners took the assignment of the second mortgage Rochford released Brown, both individually and as trustee, from all claims and demands, contracts and agreements to that date.

When Golding took the assignment of the first mortgage he knew that the amount then due on that mortgage was $3392.80. It does not appear that he knew that Brown had agreed to make further advances as the building progressed or that he relied upon any such agreement. He knew that the second mortgage was outstanding against the premises and he employed a competent conveyancer to examine the title and the second mortgage was upon record.

I find that the plaintiffs are entitled to a decree giving their second mortgage priority over the advances made by the defendant Golding to Rochford upon the first mortgage after its assignment to him. Jabez Fox, J. S. C.

Lawn Party.

The ladies of the West Quincy Methodist church had a fine evening Saturday for their lawn party at the residence of Miss Mabel G. Gragg on Crescent street, and there was a large crowd in attendance. The grounds were brilliantly illuminated with many colored lanterns, and a grand good time was enjoyed.

Tables for the sale of useful and fancy articles, ice cream, cake and tonics were arranged about the grounds. Edward Brown of Boston was present with his candy kitchen, and made molasses kisses which went like hot cakes.

Henry H. Faxon called at the grounds during the evening and purchased candy for all the young men and fancy articles for the young ladies.

A hurdy gurdy and tamborine girl furnished music and Richard Callahan sung several vocal solos.

Governor's Day.

Governor Bates will review the 5th regiment at Duxbury on Wednesday, and will remain over night as guest of Maj. Clarke of his staff. A reception will be tendered the Governor at the Hotel Myles Standish on the evening of the 12th. The following staff officers will accompany the Governor: Gens. Dalton, Brigham and Blood, Lieut.-Col. Carpenter and Maj. Clarke.

Popular Excursion to Newport.

On Friday, August 14th, there will be an excursion by special train to Newport, Rhode Island, from Quincy, Braintree, Brockton, and intermediate stations to Middleboro inclusive, for which round trip tickets will be sold at greatly reduced rates. The season at the "Queen of Watering Places" is now at its height, and the attractions of the place never appeared to better advantage. Ample time will be afforded for visiting the many points of interest, and to enjoy a trip by barge, carriage or other conveyance, which may be obtained at reasonable rates, passing enroute some of the finest estates and residences to be found anywhere. It is well to purchase tickets in advance, as the number is strictly limited.

James Walley was fined $15 for drunkenness at Quincy.

The continued case of Carmini Alessandir, the Italian found in the woods in the rear of the residence of Harry L. Rice, on Saturday morning, came up in court this morning, and was continued for a week, at the end of which he will be committed to an asylum.

Mr. Sprague Appeals.

Judge Avery gave his finding this morning in the case of Eugene H. Sprague who was arraigned in court last week for assault on Arthur H. Doble. Judge Avery said that the paper in question had no value, and it was only a whim on the defendant's part to retain it. He therefore found upon the defendant's own testimony the assault was unjustifiable. He therefore found the defendant guilty and imposed a fine of $15. Sprague appealed and furnished bonds in $200.

Heavy Fine.

It is getting to be expensive business getting drunk and creating a disturbance on the street cars, for a fine of $15 makes a large hole in the salary of most men. It also has the effect of making street car travel more agreeable to other people. There have not been many caught since the court began to impose $15 fines. James Walley, an Englishman employed at the Fore River Works, however, had that fine imposed upon him this morning.

According to the testimony Walley boarded an electric car at Neponset Saturday night for Quincy. He not only refused to pay his fare, but used abusive and obscene language. When the car reached Quincy, Officer Goodhue took him in charge and while at the box Walley's language was anything but edifying. When the facts were made known, the court imposed a fine of $15 and as Walley did not have the fifteen he will have an opportunity to work it out at Dedham, dieing out leather.

First No-License Meeting.

The first of the series of meetings under the auspices of the Law and Order Committee of the Ward Two Peoples' Union, which are to be held until after the license question is settled next December, was held in the Quincy Point church Sunday evening.

There was a good attendance and marked interest shown in the address. The principal speaker was Rev. Mr. Helms of the Morgan Memorial of Boston, and he was followed by two of his assistants. Music was furnished by the church quartette.

The Law and Order Committee of Quincy Point are determined to leave no stone unturned that will help swell the majority for No-license in Quincy next December.

Christian Alliance's Big Collection

Old Orchard, Me., Aug. 10.—At the annual collection of the Christian Alliance society on the camp grounds cash and pledges were received amounting to $43,000. Two meetings were held. The smallest sum donated was 11 cents; the largest was $5000. A basket collection was also taken, but very little jewelry was donated.

Barge Went to Bottom

Providence, Aug. 10.—Barge Abby Dunn, coal laden, from South Amboy, N. J., to this city, sprung a leak and foundered about half way between Point Judith and Watch Hill, and Captain Peterson and one deck hand, the only persons on board, escaped in a small boat.

Paper Makers Won't Yield

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 10.—At a mass meeting of Eagle lodge of papermakers they reiterated their determination not to return to work. There were about 1200 of the 3500 strikers at the meeting and they were unanimous in their decision.

Mainsail Needs Alterations

Newport, R. I., Aug. 10.—Reliance, stripped of all sails, was towed to Bristol last night. It was noticed that her new mainsail did not set properly and the necessary alterations on it will be made at Bristol.

Moran Breaks a Record

Revere, Mass., Aug. 10.—James F Moran of Chelsea won the two-hour motor paced race at the Revere cycle track, establishing a new record for the time, riding 77 1-4 miles.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Jos. L. Melaugh died at his home at Portland, Me., as the result of mistaking a bottle of carbolic acid for medicine. Mr. Melaugh was a house painter.

Mary Foley, 6 years old, was burned while playing with matches at Leominster, Mass., and died in terrible agony.

An explosion of oil at the Dickerson coal mine at Linton, Ind., caused a fire which destroyed the tipple and electric light plant. There were 150 men working in the mine, but all got out safely.

Arthur S. Cutler, city architect of Lowell, Mass., was drowned in Bowlake, Stafford, N. H. He was an expert swimmer, and it is believed that he fell overboard and was drowned during an attack of heart disease.

Rear Admiral Melville, who was retired for age, has relinquished his duties as chief of the bureau of steam engineering and is succeeded by Rear Admiral Rae.

John Evans, 77 years old, was found dead, head down in a well, at his home at Auburn, Mass. He had had heart trouble and it is thought in going to the well to draw water he was overcome and plunged in head first.

Onno Klopp, the historian, died at Vienna, at the age of 81.

QUINCY LEAGUE.

Pitts did not know "where they were at." They run and run back, a puss in the corner game, and it was amusing to see the four men trying to hold three bases. The umpire at first decided that Dunn was forced out, but under the rules Flynn the batter was finally, after much discussion, decided the only man out.

Then Duffy hit safely, and Dunn and Eldridge scored. Dorley flied out to second and J. Dunn struck out, closing the inning with three runs.

A. Dunn was left on second in the sixth, and Rooney in the eighth, but there were no more runs, as the Quincys made only two safe hits in the last four innings. The full score:

Granite Columns Ruined.

The Worcester Telegram says: — Two polished granite columns for Larned memorial public library building arrived in Oxford by freight over the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad Saturday and both were found to be broken so as to be useless. O. Berggren, proprietor of the Oxford Marble & Granite works, who has the contract for furnishing all the stone for the new library building and to whom the columns were consigned, said that the value of each column was over $100 and that they were a total loss. Mr. Berggren says he will put in a claim to the railroad to make up the loss.

He says the granite was shipped from Milford to Quincy to be turned and polished.

They have been since July 22 getting from Quincy to Oxford. The car was lost once and had to be traced. Mr. Berggren says the columns were properly erated. The columns were the last pieces of stone to come for the library and were the only ones to come broken.

They were the most expensive pieces of stone for the building. They were seven feet long and one foot in diameter and were designed to go one on either side of the main entrance.

HUMOR OF THE HOUR

Fault of the Audience.

"Do you know," said Mrs. Homebody as she jammed the darning egg into the corner of a perforated sock, "I believe women, all women, have to be born actresses."

"Now, why," retorted Mr. Seldomhome as he shifted his glance from the market page to the baseball scores—"why do you say that?"

"Because," she replied softly, "they have to act to let their husbands think they are happy."

"Is that so?" said he, rising and leaning on the mantel. "Well, all I can say is that most married women are bad actresses, at least so far as their husbands are concerned."

"No, my dear," she murmured softly, "it isn't the fault of the acting. Look at the poor audiences most of them have."

And Mr. Seldomhome went out on the back porch and kicked the family cat all the way across the yard.—New York Times.

LIFTING OF HEAVY FOG

Disclosed Presence of the "Enemy" In Frenchman's Bay

OLYMPIA GAINS THE HONOR

First Sighted Texas, Flagship of White Squadron--Methods of Interchange of Information at Sea Likely to Be Revolutionized

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 10.—Lying peacefully at anchor in this harbor and off the Lamoine coaling station are the fleets of Rear Admiral Barker and Rear Admiral Sands, which were engaged in mimic combat. The white squadron, as it was called, and which acted as the enemy, was discovered when racing full speed through the fog for Winter harbor, on the easterly side of Frenchman's bay. The Olympia, flying the flag of Rear Admiral Coghlan, the largest ship forming the easterly line of the patrol squdron, was about 10 miles outside Baker's island in a thick fog. Suddenly the fog bank rolled seaward, and as the vision of the lookouts on the Olympia was enlarged they saw within two miles of them the Texas, the flagship of the white squadron, preceded and followed by a torpedo boat destroyer. Following the Texas were the Indiana and the Massachusetts.

The Olympia, by wireless telegraph, informed the flagship of the defending squadron, the Kearsarge, of the discovery of the enemy's fleet, and the message was repeated from ship to ship by this system the entire length of the coast, until it reached the last vessel on the patrol line off Cape Ann, when all headed at full speed for the spot where the enemy had been sighted.

The Kearsarge was off Mount Desert rock, some 20 miles distant from the Olympia, and at once started for the enemy, followed by the battleships Illinois and Alabama, which formed the reserve fleet. Within an hour the Kearsarge ran up with the Texas, a few shots were fired from the secondary battery of the flagship of Admiral Barker, and the search problem was at an end.

According to the claims of the "enemy," or Admiral Sands fleet, the Olympia was so near them when the fog rolled away and disclosed their presence that, under the rules of the combat, the Olympia was overpowered and should have surrendered. But those on the Olympia say that they had more speed than any ship in Admiral Sands' fleet, and could have run away. This question is still in dispute among the naval officers, and must be settled, if settled it is, by those higher in authority.

The problem worked out during these manoeuvres has demonstrated many valuable things to naval officers It is believed it has shown the efficiency of the wireless telegraph system, and as a result the whole scheme of coast signal stations and methods of the interchange of information at sea will be revolutionized.

Again it has been demonstrated the excellent handling and construction of the navy, for not an accident has marked the entire week of active work and naval officers here who have been questioned on the subject express themselves as being well satisfied with the result of the manoeuvres.

The fleet will leave here tomorrow for Oyster Bay, where it is to be reviewed by the president on Aug. 17 the interim being taken up with target practice at sea.

A Quadruple Drowning

St. John, Aug. 10.—The worse fatality of the year in New Brunswich happened when four youths lost their lives in the Lagaguadavic river. They were John Chambers, aged 20; George Phillips, 15; Guy Henry, 19, and his brother, Gilbert, 12. A fifth boy, Charles Chambers, was saved. They did not know a great deal about handling a boat. A sudden squall caught them unprepared, and sent the boat heeling over, filling her with water. She righted, but immediately sank, for she carried a lot of ballast.

What Macedonians Want

Sofia, Bulgaria, Aug. 10.—"Nothing can end the present revolution in Macedonia until our national aspirations are satisfied or those fighting to attain them are exterminated." This was the concluding sentence of a statement made by the Macedonian committee at the revolutionary headquarters here, who believe that the desired results will be reaped through the present movement.

Trolley Men Misunderstood Order

Cincinnati, Aug. 10.—By the collision of electric cars between Mt. Washington and Bethel two crowded cars were badly damaged and 16 persons hurt, four very seriously. It is said that the collision was due to a misunderstanding of telephone orders.

Cup Hunter Dry Docked

New York, Aug. 10.—Shamrock III was taken into dry dock without accident at the Erie basin and the work of getting her ready for the races commenced. Shamrock I will not be docked again.

Mexico Shaken Up

Tuxpan, Mex., Aug. 10.—The Colima volcano continues in a state of violent activity. Earthquake shocks extending along the coast as far south as the isthmus are reported.

TRIED TO KILL COMBES

Arrest at Marseilles of Man Thought to Be a Dangerous Anarchist

Marseilles, Aug. 10.—As Premier Combes was returning to the prefecture from a banquet two pistol shots were fired at the carriage in which he was riding. The premier was untouched, and noe of those accompanying him was hurt. The attempt upon the life of the premier caused great excitement, and the crowd pointed out to the police as the author of teh attempt a man dressed in fisherman's clothes. His companion drew a knife, but the police quickly disarmed him.

The police had much difficulty in protecting the man, who had fired the shots from the crowd. He struggled desperately, but was soon overcome and taken to the prefecture, where Combes had already arrived. The man said his name was Sauvaire Picolo. He spoke very bad French, with a strong Italian accent. He denied he had fired the shots, but when searched a revolver was found with two chambers which had been freshly fired. It is believed that Picolo and his companion who had effected his escape during the confusion are both dangerous anarchists, the presence of a number of who min Marseilles the police are aware.

How Allen Covered Deficit

Boston, Aug. 10.—When the news of Willard S. Allen's crime was published in this city, numerous inquiries were made as to how he covered up his deficit when the auditors examined his accounts as treasurer of the Methodist Preachers' Aid Society. It has since been learned that Allen borrowed large sums of money from friends for about three days each year, just previous to the annual auditing. This money was placed in the treasury of the society, covering his deficit, and was returned to his friends when no longer necessary to his plans.

Miles' Popularity

Cumberland, Md., Aug. 10.—General Miles, en route from Washington to San Francisco, was given an ovation upon his arrival here. The Union Veteran Legion and members of the G. A. R. were at the station in large numbers and cheered the veteran. General Scott of Baltimore made a short speech, referring to General Miles as "the greatest living soldier," and the assembled multitude formed a line and shook the hand of General Miles, who was visibly moved by the spontaneous ovation.

Collapse Caused Eight Deaths

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—Four additional deaths have occurred as the result of the accident at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, when part of stand collapsed, making a total of eight fatalities. Two hundred victims were treated at the various hospitals, and it is believed that fuuy 100 more received atention at various drug stores in the vicinity of the baseball grounds. Of the injured still in the hospitals five are said to be in a critical condition.

Wife Murder and Suicide

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 10.—A bride of four months, Mrs. Edgar H. Frantz, aged 19, is dead, slain by her husband, a drug clerk, aged 21. Frantz is dying from the effects of morphine which he swallowed after firing two bullets into his wife. The woman was murdered in her sleep. It is believed Mrs. Frantz was the unsuspecting victim of her husband's intense jealousy.

THE CROWNING OF PIUS

Witnessed by Assemblage of Seventy Thousand

CEREMONIAL IN ST PETER'S

Throng Burst Into Unrestrained Acclamations as Triple Crown Was Placed Upon Head of Pontiff—Great Basilica Overflowed With Humanity

Rome, Aug. 10.—The ceremony of the coronation of Pope Pius X took place in the basilica of St. Peter's in the presence of princes and high dignitaries of the church, diplomats and Roman nobles, and with all the solemnity and splendor associated with this, the most magnificent rite in the Roman Catholic church.

As Cardinal Macchi, the dean of the cardinal deacons, pIced the triple crown on the head of the venerable pontiff, the throng of 70,000 persons gathered within the cathedral burst into unrestrained acclamation, the choir intoned a hymn of triumph and the bells of Rome rang out a joyful peal.

It is 57 years since the Romans and Europe assisted at such a function in St. Peter's. The great basilica, popularly supposed never to have been quite full, was overflowing with humanity. The papal throne, a bewildering mixture of gold, red and silver, was erected in front of the high alter. As, contrary to custom on these ceremonious occasions, there were no galleries, the basilica bore more of its normal espect. On the altar, which was dressed in white, stood the famous silver gilt candlesticks and a magnificent crucifix. All the available standing space within the cathedral was divided into sections by wooden barriers, which to a certain extent kept the crowd in order.

The people in the basilica had become very impatient, and when the gleaming cross which preceded the cortage, was seen, it was greeted with great applause. On the appearance of the pontiff himself it seemed as though the people would seek to carry him in their arms, so great was their enthusiasm. Cries of "Pius, Our Pope, Our Father," and "Long live Pius" were raised, notwithstanding the large placards posted all over the basilica, saying, "Acclamations are Forbidden." Leaflets to the same effect were distributed among the crowd. The cries continued until the pontiff was compelled to rise and bless the multitude, and at the same time he made a sign for more reverential behavior. Silence was obtained when the choir announced its entrance with the resounding notes of the "Ecce Sacredos Magnus," which were accompanied by the sweet notes of the silver trumpets.

A quaint ceremony was then carried out. The master of the ceremonies knelt three times before the pontiff, each time lighting a handful of hemp, which surmounted a silver torch, and as the flame flashed and then died out he chanted "Holy Father, thus passeth away the world's glory." The procession then proceeded, the pope's face illuminated by a smile. At the chapel of the sacrament there was another halt, and the pope left the sedia gestatoria and prayed a while at the altar. On reentering the chair he was carried to the chapel of St. Gregory, where he officiated at a mass, being assisted by four crdinals. Then all the cardinals donned their silver copes and white mitres, and the pope was borne to the throne amid renewed acclamations and waving of handkerchiefs, fans and hats.

The scene presented on his mounting the throne formed a magnificent picture, to which no pen could do justice. The central figure was the venerable pontiff seated on the throne. Two lines of cardinals clad in silver and scarlet reached to the high altar with its burden of burning candles and sacred vessels, while around stood the papal guards, the pontifical court, monks and officials. The cathedral was illuminated with twinkling lights, while the marble columns and walls rendered the color scheme more vivid. Overhead was the most magnificent dome in the world, up to which floated the harmony of the music.

From the throne Pius X, surrounded by his suite, walked to the high altar, standing over the crypt of St. Peter, into which, meanwhile, Cardinal Macchi descended to pray. The appearance of the pope in that elevated position called forth another burst of enthusiasm. The pope then blessed the altar, and after saying the "Indulgentium," the maniple, a symbol of the cord with which Christ was bound on his capture, was placed, with great ceremony, upon the pope's arm. At the same time prayers for the coronation were recited by four cardinals. Returning from the crypt Cardinal Macchi placed upon the shoulders of the pope the pontifical pallium, and attached it with three golden pins, saying:

"Receive this sacred symbol of the fullness of the pontificed office, in honor of Almighty God, the most glorious Virgin Mary, his mother, the blessed apostles, St. Peter and the Holy Roman Catholic church."

Mass was then celebrated with great pomp and ceremony, the voice of the pope becoming gradually more firm and sonorous until it was even audible in the most distant corner of the immense church. Following this Cardinal Macchi performed the rite of incensing the pope, whom he subsequently kissed three times on the cheeks and chest, as did Cardinals Segna and Vannutelli. Upon the pope's return to the throne the cardinals offered their last obedience to the pontiff, kissing his hand and feet, and being embraced by him twice in turn. The bishops and archbishops kissed his foot and right knee, while the abbots kissed only his foot.

The pope then walked to the shrine of St. Peter for the culminating rites of the extremely fatiguing ceremony. The whole sacred college gathered about the pope, singing, while the choir burst forth into song, giving the dramatic touch. Cardinal Macchi then recited the "Pater Noster" and offered a short prayer. As he finished "Amen" rang out from all corners of the cathedral, from the choir, the people, the clergy and the patricians.

Cardinal Deacon Segna then raised the pontiff's mitre, and Senior Cardinal Deacon Macchi placed on the venerable white head the triple crown. At this moment the church was filled with the ringing of bells, the blowing of silver trumpets and the triumphant chants of the choir, and the acclamation of the multitude which could no longer be repressed.

When comparative silence had been restored Cardinal Macchi addressed the pope in Latin as follows: "Receive the tiara ornamented with three crowns. Remember thou art the father of princes and kings, the rector of the world, the vicar on earth of our Saviour, Jesus Christ, who is the honor and glory of all centuries."

"Amen, amen," again burst forth from the concourse.

Pope Pius was quqite overcome, and had scarcely strength left to impart the apostolic benediction. Cardinals Macchi and Segna granted a plenary indulgence to all present, and the procession then reformed and left the basilica in the same form as it came. The pope was visibly fatigued, and his right hand shook as he raised it time after time to bestow his blessing.

When the ceremony was over all the exits to the basilica were opened, and within less than an hour the vast cathedral was empty.

Cardinal Gibbons, after participating in the coronation ceremonies, started for the villa of the American college at Gastel Gandolfe, accompanied by Mgr. Kennedy, the rector of the college, where he will spend a few days

Strong as Pius X is physically he supported the ordeal of his coronation perhaps with less fortitude than did Leo XIII when he was crowned. It is regarded as almost marvelous, considering the tremendous crowd at St Peter's, that not a single untoward incident occured, and the perfect order is attributed to the good organization of the military and the police.

Cotton Mill Curtailment

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 10.—The shutdown of the mills of this city will not be more extensive this week than last and rather less than that of the week before. The curtailment may be summarized as follows: Operatives idle, 7500; spindles idle, 750,000; reduction of production, 100,000 pieces; saving to the mills in weekly wages, $50,000. This condition of affairs is likely to continue for six weeks or until the new crop of cotton is on the market.

Fire Had Had Full Sway

Schnectady, N. Y., Aug. 10.—While a change was being made in the water mains of this city that necessitated the cutting off of the water supply from a large section o fthe city, a fire broke out in a poor quarter of the town, and before it could be checked seven houses were burned, and another which was in the path of the conflagration had to be pulled down The loss is estimated at $15,000.

Business Resumed at Kieff

Kieff, Aug. 10.—Tramway traffic has been resumed, but the streets are still patrolled by Cossacks, infantry and stringent measures have been taken to prevent the workmen from assembling. The taverns are closed, and most of the bakeries are idle.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

Cnas. C. Hearn Offers Chance to Save Money, Which Does Not Come Often.

When one can buy gold dollars for fifty cents, it is natural to think they are counterfeit. But when a reliable business man tells you that if any one refuses the dollar, he will return what you paid for it, confidence is established at once.

It is in just this way that Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, is selling Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, offering the regular fifty cent size of this celebrated remedy at half price, and agreeing to return the money if it does not give perfect satisfaction and do all that is claimed for it.

This is your opportunity, and one which does not come often. Do not neglect it. Dr. Howard's specific will cure constipation, will regulate digestion, will restore the liver to natural action. If it did not, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn could not afford to offer to refund the money unless it performed just what he claims for it.

So great is the demand for this specific that Mr. Chas. C. Hearn has been able to secure only a limited supply, and you should take advantage of this opportunity today and call upon him or send 25 cents, and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price offer, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Inspector Finds No Trace of Allen In Montreal

SOME FURTHER DISCLOSURES

Believed That Copper Stock Caused His Ruin, Though He Was Hit Hard In Erie Telephone Slump—Believed to Have Ample Funds With Him

Boston, Aug. 11.—Up to the present time the police have been unable to get any trace of Willard S. Allen, the fugitive embezzler from the Preachers' Aid society, but the police authorities do not believe that he has committed suicide, as he intimated he would do in the letter in which he made his confession. Inspector Morrisey of this city has been in Montreal for a few days, where, with the local authorities, he has been making investigations with the hope of gaining some clew as to which way Allen went when he left Montreal. As a result of these investigations the authorities are now of the opinion that Allen never went to Montreal, but instead doubled on his tracks. It is thought that he may have given the letter which was mailed in Montreal to some passenger on the train on which he apparently started for the Canadian city.

In his letter to Rev. Mr. Spencer, Mr. Allen stated that he had been carrying on his embezzlements for nine years, and investigations indicate that the statement is true. However, it is not generally believed that his peculations were of a very large nature until recently, and there are some of his acquaintances who believe that at the present time Allen has in his possession a considerable portion of the stolen funds.

It is known that all the securities were on hand when the auditor made his examination in March, 1901, for he checked off each security separately and examined them all. It is also thought that they were examined in March, 1902, and also in March of this year, as the auditor who examined them this year made a sworn statement in which he said he had examined the accounts and had found securities amounting to $72,709.77. In his letter, however, Allen says that the books were not properly audited this year.

It has been learned that of late Allen had been doing business with the Columbia Trust company and that a year ago he had a cash balance of $52,000. President Wood of the trust company, speaking of Allen and his dealings with his concern, says: "Amalgamated Copper was the cause of Allen's ruin, I think, though the Erie Telephone slump hit him pretty hard before that. Allen had great confidence in Amalgamated, and would talk with me by the hour about it. At the time it was floated the stock was over-subscribed at par, and subscribers got only half what they were ready to pay for. Allen was sure it was going to 200, and I believe held a considerable block of it.

"He had dealings with a gilt-edged Boston house, and I rated him as worth at least $50,000 to $75,000. I do not think he ever traded in any but a first-class house. I had no suspicion that he was using any but his own money. I had never heard of the Preachers' Aid society and did not know Allen was treasurer of it. I knew Allen inherited property from his father, and had considerable real estate. He opened an account with us some eight years ago, transferring it from the First Ward bank, where, I was given to understand, he had had some trouble with Mr. Moses.

"A year ago he at one time had a cash balance of $52,000. That was the largest he ever had. The money was all in his own name, but I am told that it was all or nearly all the preachers' fund, and ought to have been deposited in the American Loan and Trust company, but it was his habit to keep only a small account over there, just enough to pay bills with.

"We hold some of his paper, but it is all so strongly indorsed that we shall not lose anything, unless possibly $1500. This is what he owes us on a note which originally stood for $2000. It was contracted at the time his son failed in the lumber business, and bears both his and his son's names. Allen was always perfectly straight in his dealings with us, and he never overdrew his account nor failed to meet a note."

As a result of the latest investigations it has been found that Allen had borrowed money from every possible source prior to his departure. From information received from persons well ed that Allen had raised a sum which, added to the $75,000 of his embezzlement, will amount to between $100,000 and $125,000. These discoveries, in the minds of the police, do away with the theory that Allen contemplated suicide.

Indian Crops Promise Well

London, Aug. 11.—The viceroy of India has telegraphed to the India office that the crop prospects in India are good except in a few districts, where the rainfall was scanty and the monsoon late and weak.

Rowley Gets Twelve Years

St. Thomas, Ont., Aug. 11.—George Rowley, the defaulting manager of the Elgin Loan company, who pleaded guilty to three charges, was sentenced to 12 years in the penitentiary.

World's Wheat Trust Proposed

London, Aug. 11.—The Daily Mail prints a dispatch from Warsaw which says that an American association, said to comprise 38,000 farmers, has addressed itself to the Russian ministers of finance and agriculture, requesting their assistance in raising the current prices of agricultural produce, particularly wheat, and saying that the association projects a great union between the wheat growing countries of the world for the purpose of fixing an annual minimum selling price.

Land Bill Pleases Redmond

London, Aug. 11.—The report on the amendments to the Irish land bill were read in the house of lords last night John E. Redmond, Nationalist, said: "The Irish land bill may now be regarded as past all danger. We may look upon it as an accomplished fact. If it works as it is confidently hoped it will there is no question that it will effect a revolution in the condition of Ireland."

Hooley's Latest Trouble

London, Aug. 11.—Application was made to a magistrate here for a warrant for the arrest of E. T. Hooley, the promoter, on a charge of fraudulently and by false pretences obtaining signatures to checks and bills of exchange amounting to over $650,000. The magistrate reserved his decision. Hooley's meteoric financial career and failure were the sensation of London a few years ago.

No Proof of Conspiracy

Richmond, Aug. 11.—The men charged with conspiring as strike sympathizers to wreck a street car and injure those riding upon it in this city were acquitted in court, the commonwealth's attorney declaring that the case had not been made out against them.

STRIKE OF MACHINISTS

Will Result In Change of Location of Railroad Shops

ULTIMATUM FROM COMPANY

Rejected by Men Out at Rennselaer Plant Because Demands of Those at Other Points Are Identical—Worcester Will Profit by Trouble

Albany, Aug. 11.—The strike of the Boston and Albany machinists in Rennselaer remains unchanged. Master Mechanic Berry, on behalf of the company, issued an ultimatum to the effect that if the men would return to work the company will abandon the idea of removing the shops from the city, as contemplated, and would instead continue and maintain them as at present. The statement was submitted to the men for consideration, but the proposition was rejected because the Rennselaer men have not the power to settle the difficulty without the consent of the men at the Springfield and Allston shops, who are out demanding concessions identical with those of the union at Rennselaer.

The executive committee of the International union must also be taken into consideration if a settlement is to be effected. It was really this committee that ordered the strike and no settlement can be reached except it consents. The committee is now located at Springfield directing the strike. There are now at the Rennselaer shops no less than six disabled locomotives.

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 11.—Boston and Albany officials have stopped all work upon the new engine house at West Springfield, which had just been begun. The officials declare that they are tired of the trouble with the unions and will move the engine house to Worcester. This is a result of the machinists' strike.

WORCESTER WILL BENEFIT

By the Establishment There of Boston and Albany Railroad Shops

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 11.—Boston and Albany officials last night announced that Worcester is to be made headquarters for the motive power department and machine shops on the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central railroad.

Contracts for a 50-pit roundhouse, costing $75,000, and for machine shops, costing $65,000, now in process of building at Springfield, were abrogated at the instigation of Superintendent Stewart of the Boston and Albany division and General Superintendent Deems, in charge of the motive power department of the New York Central road.

This change is indirectly the result of the strike of the railroad machinists on the Boston and Albany division. Springfield was chosen as headquarters for the shops because it was about equal distant from Boston and Albany, but this advantage is counteracted since locomotives were changed from the grades at Worcester.

The bringing of the shops to Worcester will afford employment for about 200 skilled mechanics and at the same time will upset plans of the striking machinists, who will not be granted their demands. Officials believe they can get plenty of skilled machinists in Worcester and thus do away with further labor trouble.

Second Phase Looked For Soon

Boston, Aug. 11.—The striking machinists of the Boston and Albany railroad held a meeting in Machinists' hall here, at which more than 100 local employers of the railroad were present, as well as delegates from Springfield and Rennselaer, where the machinists also are out. The men showed a determination to hold out until their demand is granted. Several locomotives on this end of the line were reported out of commission because of lack of repairs. This, it was thought, pointed to a speedy coming of the second phase of the strike, when, it is anticipated by some, the railroad will make boilermakers. In this event it was believed the blacksmiths and boilermakers would go out. One official said it had been reported to him that the road was making efforts to hold the blacksmiths and boilermakers by offers of a nine-hour day and 10 hours' pay.

Twelve Thousand Strikers Return

Philadelphia, Aug. 11.—It is estimated that 12,000 operatives in the textile trade reported for duty yesterday at various mills, and a similar number, it is expected, will resume work today. This is the first serious break in the textile workers' strike, which has been in progress since June 1. The principal demand was a 55-hour week with 60 hours' pay. No concessions were granted by the manufacturers.

Victory For Defender

Toronto, Aug. 11.—The second race for the Canada's cup went to Strathcona, the defender, by 10 minutes. The Canadian yacht held the lead all through. The story of the race is not exciting.

BASEBALL IN PRISON

Its Introduction Proved Beneficial to Prisoners and Officers

Boston, Aug. 11.—As a relaxation from cell life and as reward of good conduct baseball games are being tried with most satisfactory results at the state prison. Warden Bridges says that the game not only gives the prisoners a beneficial change from the routine of prison discipline, but it affords a diversion for their minds, enables them to breathe fresh air and get a look at the blue heavens above.

Not the least advantage resulting from the innovation, it is pointed out, is an improvement in the discipline. No unruly prsoner can participate, and many a man naturally fractious has been "good" just for the chance to go out in the prison yard and play baseball. The warden says that to be deprived of the privilege of being a player or a spectator seems to be the greatest punishment a prisoner can receive. He had much rather go into "solitary" than lose a game.

The inmates have two nines, called the Resolutes and the Hustlers, and they play every fair-weather Saturday. The two teams play for championship honors, and every game is "written up" for the prison paper, The Mentor.

There is room enough for 200 spectators, all prisoners, in the yard. The games are played with just as much zeal, earnestness, enthusiasm and cheers as any professional game, and some of the playing is really professional in its quality. In fact, one of the men formerly was a league pitcher.

SAM SCOTT

Will Have Hearing on Thursday.

The Ten Toughs From Cambridgeport

Will Be Heard Tomorrow for Assault on Mullens and Bennett.

Two important cases are marked for trial at the district court this week. The first is that of the ten toughs from Cambridgeport who raised the row at Quincy woods three Sundays ago during which Joe Mullens and Simon Bennett were laid out with base ball bats.

Mullens' skull was fractured, but he has been discharged from the hospital and is slowly recovering.

Bennett had his ribs fractured which caused pneumonia and he is still seriously ill.

All of the gang will be tried for disturbing the peace and two of them for assault. This case is down on the list for Wednesday, although owing to Bennett's condition a further continuance may be asked.

The second case is that of Sam Scott the Negro, who it is alleged broke into the house of Charles W. Clifford and made a murderous assault on Mr. Clifford and Mr. Heal.

This case was continued until Thursday and as both the injured men are doing as well as possible it is probable that no further continuance will be asked.

Good Afternoon

If the Vanderbilts just returned from Europe pretend they don't like notoriety the newspapers should let them severely alone. Metropolitan dailies cater to the rich altogether too much.

Our sympathies also to Chelsea and Lowell. The tax rate of the former city is $18.60, just $1 more than last year, while the rate of the latter has jumped from $19.60 to $20.40. The valuation of Chelsea is $24,099,064, an increase of but $153,469. Quincy's valuation is $23,036,880 an increase of $859,388.

Boston's tax rate is limited by law lower than the other cities of the commonwealth, and is $14.80 per $1,000 this year the same as last year. The assessed valuation has increased $20,175,707, over six million more than the entire valuation of the city of Quincy. Three of the Boston wards show a loss in real estate valuation, eleven in personal estate, and four in total valuation. One of the latter is the West Roxbury ward.

While the city of Quincy has great cause for congratulation this year in a low tax rate and at the same time a reduction, where most cities have very high rates and increases, there is great need of caution for several reasons.

Quincy is a young city and may soon get into the serious financial straits of the older cities. Our debt is increasing very rapidly, and with it the maturing debt and interest. Fifteen years ago, when Quincy became a city, there was a debt of only $44,522.55, and cash assets in the treasury of $46,663.28. On January 1 of this year the city had a debt of $1,650,840.35 and practically no cash assets. To pay all this debt in one year would require the assessment of an additional $72 per $1,000 on the present taxable valuation. Were this spread over fifteen years it would add $5 each year to the tax rate. Instead of tax rates averaging between $10.80 and $19.20 the past fifteen years, they would have been $15.80 to $24.20, to have brought us out square.

☞ Even an increase of $5 per $1000 would not have cancelled the debt, because on the valuation of the earlier years of the city it would not have raised one-fifteenth of $1,650,840.35.

The above statement is rather startling, but the increase of the debt may be readily seen from the summary below:

Jan. 1, 1889, (Became a city)*	$44,522.55
1890,	168,811.79
1891,	191,290.39
1892,	262,386.89
1893,	323,542.36

1903,	1,650,840.35

* With assets of $46,663.28.
† Bought water plant.
‡ Began sewer construction.

The Quincy tax rates make a good showing in comparison with Brockton, rates of the two cities for eleven years follows:

	Brockton.	Quincy.
1903	$21.80	$17.30
1902	19.90	17.40
1901	20.70	17.60
1900	20.10	18.20
1899	21.60	19.20
1898	20.20	18.00
1897	20.70	18.80
1896	19.70	17.40
1895	18.60	16.80
1894	19.70	17.60
1893	19.70	15.80

Read what the Brockton Enterprise says editorially: "No possible explanations or excuses can reconcile the property owners of Brockton to such a tax rate, coming on top of an abnormal inflating in valuation, as will be assessed upon them this year.

It is time the citizens demanded and insisted upon a more rigid economy in municipal expenditures, and elected men to serve in the city council who will have some concern for the taxpayer and a realization of the harm that is done by burdening factory and other property with an unreasonable tax rate.

"Send to City Hall men who share in paying the city's bills and who realize what a careless appropriation of money means to the taxpayer—the one with an humble little home quite as much as the one who owns a great industrial plant or a brick block—and delegate to private life, where he belongs, the city councilman who is bidding for cheap popularity and whose answer to the property owner's protest is "The taxpayer be dammed."

The condition which confronts Brockton today is not one created wholly by any one administration. It is the culmination of a series of years of debt incurring and money spending with reckless prodigality."

Again, the uncertainty of the Metropolitan assessments for water, sewer, parks, boulevards, and goodness knows what; over which the city government has no control. These are increasing rapidly and provisions must be made to pay whatever assessments are levied. Quincy, also, may have some large unforeseen necessities, in addition to many seemingly necessary improvements. There is great need of caution.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The trend of public sentiment in this decade is against the liquor trade, and when the trade realizes this fact and confines its efforts entirely to protecting what they now have and banishing thoughts of what they would like, the better it would be for all.—Truth, Liquor organ, Detroit, Michigan.

☞ Education is not a matter of schools, colleges, and universities: these are valuable instruments and aids to education, but they are not so essential that the man who cannot command their privileges needs to remain uneducated. Some men are better educated out of college than in it. All highly educated men, no matter how liberal their opportunities may have been, are self-educated. The school and the college teach men how to study and what tools to use, but when they have done with the school and college, they are only at the beginning of education.—Hamilton Wright Mabie in Success.

☞ We can already see the finger of the unbeliever pointing toward the example set by the Treasurer of the Methodist Preachers' Aid Society. He will find hard work, however, in making out a case. The stealing of money is no matter of religion and because a man who professed to belong to one of the denominations has turned out a defaulter there is no reflection upon the denomination with which he was connected. The stealing of an amount like $80,000 from a fund used exclusively for the aid of aged preachers must necessarily be a severe blow to the society, and the defalcation by a man who knew better than any one else the admirable object and work of the Preachers' Aid Society, will be regarded in a particularly blameworthy light. There is no likelihood, however, that the Methodist church will permit any of its aged preachers to suffer through the dishonesty of a man entrusted with money intended for their support. There will be ways in which money raised for the church may be diverted into the preachers' aid channel; if not, the people of the church may be depended upon to give liberally to place the society in a position to meet its urgent obligations.—Lowell Citizen.

Base Ball Team Thankful.

The Wollaston Park A. A. wishes to express its gratitude to the residents of Wollaston Park and surrounding localities as we have been able through their interest and contributions to procure uniforms and necessary equipment for the players of the base ball team. FAXON IS OUTDONE.

Mexico Uprising Against Liquor Dealers and Gamblers.

The rigor with which the government has stopped gambling, in fashionable clubs as well as at country fairs within the federal district of Mexico, has excited much comment, says a dispatch to the Boston Herald. Orders were given last week to have gambling cease, and they were impartially enforced. Shaking dice for drinks in bar-rooms was prohibited and gendarmes entered drinking places to see that the law was enforced. Gamblers at suburban fairs took down their tents and departed sorrowfully. There have of late been heavy losses at clubs and the government decided that the only way to suppress the evil was to show no favor to individuals or clubs.

Liquor selling regulations are being severely enforced, and after 1 o'clock Sunday afternoons no one will sell anything alcoholic, as the penalties are severe and are applied without fear or favor. Druggists refuse to even sell alcohol. Bar-rooms are closed at the regulation hour in the evening on week days and no side-entrance or drinking with curtains is allowed. Nowhere in the United States is there so little political pull and no one dreams of violating the law.

The government is planning still more stringent laws for the regulation of the liquor traffic, and President Diaz has given these measures his hearty support. He has allowed an American temperance lecturer, who speaks Spanish, to visit the penitentiary, and many of the inmates, on being discharged, have kept the pledge taken when in prison.

The government holds that alcoholism is causing widespread degeneracy, especially among youths liable to military service. Faxon of Massachusetts is outdone by the Mexican authorities, who compel the law to be compiled without regard to the influence of liquor dealers or gamblers.

Grand Vacation Trip.

Miss Florence M. Gray of Botolph street Atlantic, who has been enjoying an extended visit in California for several months is expected home in September.

She obtained a nearby snapshot of President Roosevelt in Pasadena; spent a week at San Catalina Islands, thirty miles off the coast where there are glass bottomed boats to view the beauties and wonders of the Pacific; and has visited the beaches of Santa Monica, Redondo and Coronado. The latter place was so popular that more than one thousand people dwelled in tents. Miss Grays tent was numbered 933.

She extended her trip into Mexico and had she been a man would have witnessed a bull fight that occurred while she was there, posters of which she sent home.

She has climbed mountains, bathed in the enchanting Pacific, visited Canyons, rode burro's, reveled in flowers, particularly roses and orange blossoms; seen palms, fruits and tropical plants in kinds and varieties that she never supposed existed.

Miss Gray will spend a week in Yosemite Valley and a few days at Salt Lake City. She had applied herself so steadily to business that she needed recuperating and took this means of doing it.

A Veteran's Leg Broken.

Asa A. Pope met with an unfortunate accident Monday evening just as he alighted from a train at the Quincy depot. Mr. Pope had been in Maine on a trip and was returning home. His train arrived in Quincy at 5.45. As he stepped from the train he felt something snap in his leg, and he fell to the ground. He was carried to the depot platform and Hall's ambulance called. He was removed to the City Hospital where it was found that his leg had been broken. It was said at the hospital this morning that he had passed a comfortable night.

Cigar Dealer Arrested.

Alfred H. Johnson, a Holbrook cigar dealer, was arrested by Officer Crooker on Monday, upon a warrant sworn out by Agent Davies of the Watch and Ward society, charging him with selling an obscene picture. It appears, that in order to increase the sale of his cigars, Johnson gave a picture said to be obscene. Agent Davies visited Holbrook and succeeded in purchasing one of the pictures. The case was continued until Aug. 18. It is claimed that the picture in question is not obscene, but is more a work of art.

Frank Walters was fined $5 for gaming on the Lord's Day at Quincy.

Alfred H. Johnson was arraigned upon complaint of Agent Davies of the Watch and Ward Society for selling an obscene picture at Holbrook. Case continued until Aug. 18.

The continued case of Francisco and Antonio Daddarrio, for assault at Quincy, was heard. They were fined $10 each.

Michael Fabia and Antonio Frenno were arraigned for assault on James O'Brien at Quincy. They were fined $5 each.

LITTLE WORD OBEY.

Shall It Be Omitted from the Marriage Service?

Frank D. Craig of No. 1 Garfield street, has entered the Post contest and sends the following arguments relative to the question: "Should 'Obey' be omitted from the marriage service?"

"In my opinion, I do not think it is a suitable word, and believe a better one could be substituted which would sound more mild and less domineering in its sense.

"How many agree to faithfully fulfil this part of the contract? They say they will, but do they? It is nothing but deceitfulness under a well-meaning mantle. From this very fact alone it is enough to see there is something radically wrong in this farce, and under the circumstances it ought to be omitted or a far more suitable word substituted which would unconsciously be carried out to the letter and breed less hypocrisy of deceitfulness.

"In every individual there is an inborn sense of liberty. Now, while I would not admit "obey" is a slavish word, I will take the liberty to say there is in it a suggestion of domineering influence, especially with those persons who are endowed with enough common sense and intelligence to interpret the situation keenly.

To command a person to do a thing in such a doubtful manner, as if he or she, like children, could not be trusted, savors of coercion, distrust and interference. I do not think a man is obliged to obey his wife, if she is imprudent enough to suggest things which would be detrimental to his advantage. This would be folly. Other instances might be cited.

"I think the word is misplaced. It is not broad enough in its meaning. It is all a question of good judgement and understanding between each other, each one acting independently. whether the omission of the word or phrase or a modification, perhaps, of the golden rule, Will you do unto your wife as she should do unto you? and vice versa."

Scholarships at "Tech."

The contests for State scholarships at the Institute of Technology are so sharp, that it is a pleasure to note that Marden Warren Hayward of this city has for the second year been awarded half of a scholarship. There is a free scholarship for each of the forty senatorial districts, and there were so many able and worthy young men from the First Norfolk district that Mr. Hayward and a Hyde Park boy share the honors. D. C. Davis of East Longmeadow, who makes his home with Herbert Pratt of Coddington street was also awarded a scholarship.

The Boston Advertiser says editorially: "The award of 40 scholarships at both the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Worcester Polytechnic Institute, just made by the state board of education, will probably be another discouragement against the acceptance by Massachusetts young men of the Cecil Rodes scholarships, which would enable them to study abroad. Our technical schools are the best in the world, and when a free state scholarship at either of our two technical institutions is available it is grasped, while the foreign scholarship goes begging. Further proof of the excellence of our technical training is given in the recent registration of several English students at the Boylston street Tech."

DIED.

CUSHING—In Norwell, Aug. 9, Mr. Nathan Cushing, aged 89 years.

WILL QUINCY GET IT?

The Government Magazine May Be Located at Squantum.

The new government magazine for Boston and Portsmouth navy yards may be located at Squantum. The Boston Advertiser reports that the big powder house at Chelsea will shortly be vacated, as a new and extensive naval magazine will be built somewhere within easy reach of the Charlestown navy yard.

This will be one of the greatest powder magazines in the country. In all the United States property used for this purpose will cover over one square mile of territory.

It is impossible to learn at present where this immense magazine will be. All that can be said just now is that it will be located so as to be in a safe place.

It will hold black powder, smokeless powder, gun cotton and ammunition of all kinds.

It will be where emergency supplies may be rushed promptly to either yard and in whatever amount may be needed.

Unless there should be danger in the use of a wireless station, there may be eventually some such station established at that point, to allow prompt communication with Charlestown.

The property chosen is on the coast in a sparsely settled spot. It has a water frontage of more than a mile.

Navy officers agree that with the rules which will be enforced, the big naval magazine will be absolutely safe.

Squantum is not mentioned in the article above, but it has been considered. It is important that the location shall be defended from an enemy, so that Squantum has many advantages.

Q. Y. C. Cruise.

Most of the fleet of the Quincy Yacht club, that participated in the annual club cruise, arrived back on Sunday. A grand good time was the general verdict, the only regret being that the weather prevented more yachts from participating.

The fleet arrived off Marblehead Friday afternoon, the cup given by Commodore Sheppard for the best corrected time being awarded to the Hustler, who won out by 1 minute 18 seconds.

The blue flag for the yacht making the best actual time was awarded the Careta, and the second and third prize flags to the Ida J. and Hustler.

There were but twelve minutes difference between the arrival of the first and last boats.

Friday night there was visiting among the yachts and Saturday after witnessing the races the fleet sailed to Salem Willows, where the night was passed.

Sunday morning they sailed back to Marblehead, where the fleet disbanded. Some of the yachts headed for home and others started east on a cruise.

ITALIANS STRIKE.

And Assault the Foreman Because Men Were Discharged.

There was a small-sized riot on Pond street this morning. Timothy J. O'Connell is contractor for a section of the Quincy sewer, and O'Connell's foreman, James O'Brien, was roughly used. The arrival of the police and the arrest of Antonio Frenno and Michael Fabre, who were said to be the two men who started the trouble, brought peace.

According to the story, as told by Foreman O'Brien, he discharged two of the Italians this morning, who immediately turned upon him.

One of the men struck him a violent blow on the left side with a shovel, and the other hurled a rock at him, which struck him in the back.

The remainder of the gang struck upon hearing of the discharge of their companions, and arming themselves with shovels, picks and other missles made a rush for O'Brien.

O'Brien realizing the serious aspect the affair had assumed startled for a place of safety, closely followed by the gang, who showered him with rocks, some of which struck him.

In the mean time the police had been called by telephone. Inspector McKay, who was at the station telephoned to Chief Hayden at the court room. Inspector McKay and Officer Boutin started from the Police Station and Officers Bradley and Sandberg started for the scene from the court room.

Officer Bradley was the first to arrive, and O'Brien pointed out the two men who were apparently the ring leaders, and they were promptly put under arrest.

These two men, it was claimed, threw the rocks which struck O'Brien. They were found guilty and fined $5 each. The man who struck O'Brien with the shovel made his escape.

Reunion of the Quincys.

A notable reunion of the family of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah Phillips Quincy of Boston, formerly of Quincy, occurred Monday, says the Herald at the Hood cottage at Nahant, where Mr. and Mrs. Quincy are staying. The only regret was the absence of the son, ex-Mayor Josiah Quincy, and his wife and baby, for they are in Europe.

Among the passengers arriving here on the steamer, Mayflower were Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Muirhead and their baby and two boys, Master P. Quincy Muirhead and Master L. Muirhead. Mrs. Muirhead is a sister of ex-Mayor Quincy, and was Helen Quincy before her marriage.

The Muirheads live in England, and and came over to visit Mr. and Mrs. Quincy at Nahant. Before starting they paid a visit to ex-Mayor Quincy, and his wife, who was the widow of William Royall Tyler of Adams Academy, Quincy, and a daughter of Dr. Franz Hugo Krebs of Union park. Ex-Mayor and Mrs. Quincy have not been home since their son, Josiah, Jr., was born in Italy in the late spring.

The family reunion at Nahant also includes Mr. and Mrs. Mark A. DeWolfe Howe of Mt. Vernon street, Mrs. Howe being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Quincy, Mr. and Mrs. Howe are staying at the Hood cottage for the summer.

Somerville, Mass., Aug. 11.—Police authorities here have been notified by the Worcester insane asylum officials that Thomas P. O'Neil of Somerville has escaped from that place. The man was charged with an assault on an 11-year-old girl. While he was being arraigned he became suddenly insane, and later he was sent to Worcester. O'Neil is of unusual size and very powerful.

Barbers In Serious Quarrel

Dover, N. H., Aug. 11.—Louis Lemott is under arrest charged with assault with intent to kill Daniel Bohan. The two men are employed at a barber shop and they quarrelled over who should have the first half holiday granted by their employer. Lemott, it is said, slashed Bohan across the face with a razor, cutting a gash from ear to ear. Bohan's condition is serious.

Sea Too Heavy For Barge

Providence, Aug. 11.—Barge Volunteer, with a cargo of coal, sprang a leak and went down in a choppy sea off Narragansett pier. Captain Closson, his wife and baby escaped in a small boat, as did also a deckhand They were picked up by another barge. The captain and his wife lost all their possessions.

Poison Within Baby's Reach

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 11.—Conrad Woodwark, 2 years old, is dead as a result of drinking a liquid poison for killing flies. The child got within reach of the solution which had been left upon a table. Medical attendance came too late to save the life of the child.

Woman's Carelessness Cost $5000

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 11.—The attempt of a woman employed in the laundry of the Lenox House to fill a lighted lamp with kerosene resulted in the explosion of the lamp, and a fire which caused damage estimated at $5000 last evening.

WOMAN AND FASHION

White Swiss Blouse.

The finer the material the better it is for blouses this year. The sheer material is given color by elaborate ribbons in the corset cover, finished with a huge bow in front.

The model for a blouse here illustrated is especially becoming in a stout

FOR AFTERNOON WEAR.

figure. It is put into puffs across the shoulders, with bands of drawn work between, and a collar of drawn work featherboned into place. The sleeves are gathered above and below the elbow, finished with a narrow band of drawn work.

Dress Hats.

The most recent development of fancy in hats for elegant dress in summer are those which are made objectively of embroidered mull and laces. The muslin and the laces in these hats show specially designed crown tops and brim coverings, and these in the making up of the hats are stretched tightly and smoothly over the wire frame, the creation being transparent or semitransparent, according to the absence of lining or the character of the lining employed.

A large hat with wide and medium low square crown and brim flaring around the front and drooping at the back, of white embroidered mull, faced with folds of white tulle and the crown lined with a single ply of tulle, the crown and the brim edged with a cluster of tulle folds, has the crown encircled with two smoothly laid bands of folded white satin ribbon, and a little to the left of the front of the crown a tuft of three demilong curling ostrich tips, posed upright and nodding forward.—Millinery Trade Review.

To Prevent Stretching.

Box or side plaits running the full length of the skirt in front and back, with a hip yoke at the sides, are especially favored for the walking skirt, and here again a slight precaution in regard to the unlined skirt will save trouble. A strip of silk lined cloth tacked inside the broad front and back box plaits and holding them in place to a point below the hips will prevent a stretching which is almost inevitable without such precaution and would spoil the snug fit of the skirt around the hips.

French Blouse Frock.

One of the most popular styles of the season is a little French blouse frock. It is a style that is easily made and is desirable for thin materials. In the pretty frock illustrated a white vest front and a big collar edged with white ruffles enter into the ornamentation.

FOR A LITTLE GIRL.

The full blouse and square neck are decidedly pretty and childish looking. The skirt is the full gathered one. The waist line is decorated by a sash, with a large bow in the back. The ma-

Hers.

My sweetheart's room!
A dainty, cozy place,
Its sunlit windows
Framed with lace,
And she is there.
Such pretty fittings!
All spotless white
Is everything of hers.
A paradise—not quite,
If she's not there.
So many books and picture cards
And tiny trinkets dear;
An untuned mandolin
Beribboned to the wall,
And many little cards,
The heralds of my call;
So many fancy fans and things
And souvenirs galore;
Some letters, songs and verse;
A silver prize, a tennis score,
A dream divine!
And such a lot of photographs
The cretonned mantel grace;
Mostly of girls they are, but one—
It is some other fellow's face;
It isn't mine.

WILL HAVE TO HURRY.

Delay Means Loss of Money to Chas. C. Hearn's Patrons.

The readers of the Ledger who want to get a fifty-cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price (25 cents), will have to hurry.

After a great deal of correspondence Chas. C. Hearn succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to make this special price so that his customers could obtain sixty doses of the most remarkable medicine ever discovered for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at just half price, 25 cents. It is the regular size, the same that has been sold in such quantities in the large cities for years at 50 cents.

Whether you will be cured of your constipation or dyspepsia for a trifling sum, or continue to suffer, depends on you. Many have taken advantage of this offer. Nine-tenths of the people suffer from constipation or dyspepsia. Now is the time to cure yourself.

If you have tried so many remedies without relief that you are discouraged, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn will give you an opportunity to test Dr. Howard's specific without any cost unless it cures, and will agree to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Everybody wants to be well—to be free from headaches, constipation, indigestion. Here is your chance for complete and permanent cure at trifling expense, with a reliable local druggist's guarantee that the treatment will not cost you anything if it does not cure. Take

AN APPEAL TO POWERS

To Aid Macedonians In Their Fight For Reforms

BALKAN PROBLEM SERIOUS

Murder of Russian Consul Considered to Have Played Into Hands of Revolutionists—Balfour Admits Ill-Success of Europe's Intervention

Sofia, Aug. 11.—The delegates here of the Macedonian committee addressed the following appeal to each of the representatives of the powers:

"Sofia—Your Excellency—The delegates of the Macedonian committee have the honor to bring to your notice the following declaration with the request that you communicate it to your government:

"The Musselmans' systematic persecution has compelled the Christians in Macedonia and the vilayet of Adrianople to institute a general rising. They have had recourse to this extreme measure after exhausting all pacific means to secure the intervention of Europe to enforce the provisions of the Berlin treaty. At the present moment this intervention is the only means of remedying the evil and stopping bloodshed. The sporadic efforts of the powers to secure reforms having failed they resulted merely in a recrudescence of Turkish fanaticism and government oppression.

"It is evident that reform measures, to be efficacious, must include the appointment of a Christian governor general of Macedonia—someone who has never held office under the porte and who must be independent of the Turkish government in the exercise of his functions—the further appointment by the powers of a joint permanent administrative board with full powers to deal with any disturbances.

"Having published the foregoing facts to the civilized world and made known the causes which have driven the Macedonians to despair, the committee for the Macedonians now in arms proposes to continue the fight till the object of their uprising has been attained."

Rome Hears of Exchange of Views

Rome, Aug. 11.—It is stated here that there has been an exchange of views between the powers regarding the situation in Macedonia and that, apparently, the powers have decided to support Austria and Russia in efforts to re-establish peace. Reports previously received here from Italian consuls in the Balkans predicted the present revival of the insurrection, which the consuls considered to be almost entirely the work of Boris Sarafoff, the Macedonian agitator, who is now in command of the insurgents, it being pointed out that the attitude of the Bulgarian government has been correct since receiving Russia's admonition. The plan of Sarafoff, as understood here, is to bring about European intervention by provoking the Turks to a massacre, and the murder of the Russian consul at Monastir, M. Rostkovski, is considered here to have played into the hands of the revolutionists in this respect. Rostkovski is represented here as having been a very arrogant official who, upon occasions, boxed the ears of soldiers and police whose conduct displeased him.

What Balfour Thinks

London, Aug. 11.—The Balkan situation has asumed a more serious aspect in the eyes of British officials as the result of the murder of the Russian consul at Monastir. The state of affairs in Macedonia was brought up in the house of commons but Premier Balfour declared he was unable to give any satisfactory assurances regarding the situation. The latest news reaching the government, he said, was far from reassuring. Mr. Balfour acknowledged the ill-success of Europe in the Macedonian question since the signing of the treaty of Berlin, but he thought the critics of European diplomacy should not forget the extraordinary complicated difficulties of the task. There were grave grievances arising from a deep-set disease. He deplored the non-success of their efforts to deal with the situation, but he was still hopeful that the plan recently designed by Russia and Austria would prove the best way of dealing with the problem. It was therefore the duty of the rest of Europe to support them as long as their efforts were directed in no ambitious spirit to amelioration of the lot of the population of Macedonia.

Police Dismissed at Salonica

Salonica, Aug. 11.—The chiefs of the genbarmerie and the police at Salonica have been dismissed.

There have been no acts of violence at Salonica for some time, but a dispatch from there Aug. 4 reported the arrival of Nihilists of an extreme type, the fears of an outbreak and the extraordinary precautions taken by the authorities. The number of soldiers in the Salonica garrison was then reported to be 5,000

Exemplary Penalties Demanded

St. Petersburg, Aug. 11.—The assassination of the Russian consul at Monastir, M. Rostkovski—the second murder of a Russian consular official in Macedonia within a few months—has created intense indignation here. Count Lamsdorff, the foreign minister, has telegraphed to the Russian ambassador at Constantinople as follows: "His majesty has received a telegram from the sultan expressing his deep regret at the death of the Russian consul at Monastir. His majesty gave orders that you should not confine yourself to receiving explanations from the grand vizier, but should make the most energetic demands on the Turkish government for full satisfaction and immediate and exemplary punishment both of the murderer and of all the military and civil officials on whom responsibility for the audacious crime may fall."

Further Dynamiting

Constantinople, Aug. 11.—An infernal machine, in the form of a box filled with dynamite, was sent from Phillipopolis to Uskub, timed to explode at the latter place the moment that two passenger trains coming from and going to Salonica were due to pass there. Fortunately the train upon which the machine was sent was detained at the frontier depot at Zibevche, where it exploded last night, damaging the station, but injuring nobody.

To Head Off Turks

London, Aug. 11.—A dispatch from Constantinople says the Macedonian insurgents are concentrating between Prilip and Dibra for the purpose of intercepting Turkish reinforcements from Old Servia.

The Ball Park Disaster

Philadelphia, Aug. 11. — Mayor Weaver has personally interested himself in the investigation into the cause of the collapse of the promenade at the Philadelphia National league baseball park, which resulted in the death of nine spectators and serious injury to nearly 200 others. The mayor, accompanied by Director of Public Safety Smyth, visited the ball park, and later the two officials held a conference with Coroner Dugan. Said the mayor: "I can readily see how the accident happened. The floor of the promenade was covered with tin to keep out the water but instead the water leaked in and rotted the wood. As for the responsibility, it rests with the people who constructed the walk and with those whose duty it was to keep it in repair."

The Pope Very Fatigued

Rome, Aug. 11.—Pius X had another fatiguing day, as he received all the delegations which had come to Rome to attend the coronation ceremonies. He accorded a lengthy audience to about 300 from Venice. He said to them: "I am a poor mortal, too weak for the heavy cross which God has given me. But His will be done. I will carry it as best I can and you must all pray to our Lord to give me the necessary strength." His old Venetian friends agree that the pope looks 10 years older than he did before his election.

Peace Movement In Japan

Tokio, Aug. 11.—A number of public men, including Prince Lonoye, president of the house of peers, and Counts Itagaki and Kuma, have formed a non-partisan association for the purpose of urging the government to invite Russia to terminate the causes of the present international complications and establish full guarantees for peace.

Affected Half a Million Men

London, Aug. 11.—The Kieff correspondent of The Times says that a leading Russian employer estimates that the strike in Russia affected 500,000 men and that the strength of the movement completely nonplussed the government authorities. In the whole the workmen are as firm as ever on the subject of their original demands.

Thinks Job Too Short

Santa Fe, N. M., Aug. 11.—In a letter published here, Clement H. Smith of Hastings, Mich., gives as his reason for declining appointment as chief justice of the territorial supreme court his belief that statehood for New Mexico is not far off and the fact that when statehood comes the office to which he has been appointed will lapse.

Carrie Nation Wins a Point

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 11.—Carrie Nation's summary conviction for selling hatchets in violation of a city ordinance was declared illegal by Judge Newcomb when her application for a writ of habeas corpus came before him. The writ was sustained on the ground that the magistrate's record was defective.

Killed Wife and Self

Buffalo, Aug. 11.—Kent T. Stowe shot his wife, Pauline, dead in their bedroom at their home in this city. Stowe then turned the revolver against himself. The bullet crashed through his lower teeth and out the top of his head. He was removed to a hospital, where he died. The police can find no motive for the crime.

CUT A BOY'S HEAD

Action of Baseball Club Manager Aroused Anger of Crowd

New Haven, Aug. 11.—Thomas Reilly, manager of the Hartford Baseball club, had a narrow escape from being mobbed by a big crowd at the ball game at Savin Rock yesterday afternoon.

Reilly sat on the Hartford bench and appeared to be very excited several times during the game. Just before the end of the ninth inning of the second game, a crowd of men and boys crowded onto the field and obstructed the view of the manager. He shouted to the crowd and then picked up a stone and threw it into the crowd. The stone struck a young boy named William Pheifer. The stone laid open the boy's scalp and the wound bled profusely. The crowd, having seen Reilly's action, made a dash for him, but were intercepted by several policemen who were on the scene. When the game was finished Reilly was escorted to a trolley car by the police. During the excitement the game was stopped and the Hartford players ran to the assistance of their manager.

No Saloons at Bremerton

Olympia, Wash., Aug. 11.—The controversy between the navy department and the town of Bremerton over the question of saloons in the neighborhood of Bremerton yard has been settled finally by the state supreme court, which has refused a Bremerton saloonkeeper permission to run his saloon pending an appeal from the decision of the lower court. The Bremerton town council, at the suggestion of the navy department, recently repealed all saloon licenses. The saloon keepers questioned the council's authority to do so.

American Artists Favored

London, Aug. 11.—George D. Leslie, a landscape painter, who is a member of the Royal academy, prints a letter in The Times this morning in which he refutes the statement that the Royal academy ever dispised or rejected the late James McN. Whistler or his pictures. Leslie says: "It may not be generally known that although the council of the academy have special rules and restrictions against the admission of the works of foreigners, they never apply them to American artists."

To Facilitate Newspaper Delivery

Washington, Aug. 11.—Postmaster General Payne has decided to make the experiment of employing baggagemen on trains which are not provided with mail clerks to take charge of and deliver open newspaper mail. The plan contemplates that the baggage masters shall be sworn in as postoffice department employes. It is intended that they shall deliver the papers to those to whom they are addressed at points along the line from the car doors.

Jury Gets Boodle Letters

Jefferson City, Mo., Aug. 11.—The foreman of the grand jury has received a package, which bore the postmark of Niagara on the Lake, Ont. While the contents are not publicly known, it is supposed the package contained letters sent by Daniel J. Kelley, which he said he had received from former Lieutenant Governor Lee. It is supposed these letters are to be used in the trial of State Senator Farris on "boodle" charges.

Getting Shamrock In Trim

New York, Aug. 11.—A small army of dockyard employes, besides her own crew and some of the crew of Shamrock I, swarmed about Shamrock III as she lay in drydock in Erie basin and began the task of putting her in trim for the cup races. Once thouroughly cleaned she will be repainted and re-enamelled. Captain Wringe does not expect to get her out of drydock before next week.

Missing Child Found In Cistern

Indianapolis, Ind., Aug. 11.—Little Ted Kendall, who disappeared from the home of his parents Friday afternoon and for whom a diligent search has been made, was found dead in a cistern a few doors from the Kendall home. It is supposed he walked into the cistern and was drowned. Rewards aggregating $1100 had been offered for his return to his parents.

Story of Love and Murder

Weston, W. Va., Aug. 11.—Benjamin Edgar, a farmer living near Cleveland, was murdered last night, and his supposed murderer, Robert Moore, is in jail. Edgar had forbidden his daughter to keep company with Moore, and when she persisted he thrashed her. This incensed Moore, and he vowed to kill the old man.

Miles For Head of Grand Army

Kansas City, Aug. 11.—If the sentiments expressed by New York state delegates passing through Kansas City on their way to the Grand Army convention in San Francisco correctly represent the situation, General Miles will be a formidable candidate for commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

Capitalist Killed In Idaho

Boise, Idaho, Aug. 11.—P. S. Bennett a New York capitalist, was killed while going into the Thunder mountain by the upsetting of a stage. Bennett was on his way to visit mining property in the district. The accident occurred in an isolated district and exact details have not been received.

A Jamaican Hurricane

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 11.—The tail end of a hurricane moving over the Antilles struck the eastern end of the island of Jamaica and did great damage to banana properties. The full extent of the injury is still unknown.

ALLEN'S PECULATIONS

Not Confined to Preachers' Aid Society

MORE THAN $9000 TAKEN

From Money Intrusted to Him by Methodist Historical Society—Will Be Prosecuted to Fullest Extent of the Law If Caught

Boston, Aug. 12.—In a circular issued by the police, giving a description of Willard S. Allen, absconding treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of the New England Methodist conference, the amount of his embezzlement is given as $110,000, considerably in excess of former estimates. His letter of confession, in which he said his stealings aggregated $80,000, made no reference to the misuse of funds other than those of the Preachers' Aid society. Investigation since, however, has brought to light several cases in which Allen misappropriated money placed in his hands for safe keeping.

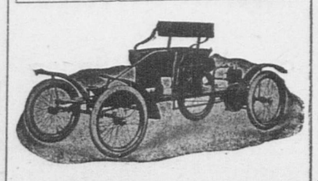

It learned that the Methodist Historical society's loss is $9800. This society, of which Allen was treasurer, was supposed to have $10,000 on deposit. A balance of $200 is all that remains to their credit.

Words cannot express the feeling the Methodists of New England have against the man who was trusted implicitly, and it is stated from an authoritative source that if Allen is arrested, as now seems likely, he will be prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

When Alonzo R. Weed, the secretary of the Preachers' Aid society, makes his report to the members of the society many interesting facts, which have not yet appeared in public print, are likely to be learned. Mr. Weed, who, beside being secretary of the society, is a lawyer, has been working assiduously upon the case ever since the disappearance of Allen first became known, and he learned a great deal about the man who, until within a few days, had been looked upon as one of the most honest men living. There is no doubt that some way will be determined upon for continuing the Preachers' Aid society, but just what method will be formulated is not yet known. That prominent Methodists will come to the society's assistance is certain.

It is understood that in addition to stating in the letter that Allen sent to Rev. George H. Spencer that he had been an embezzler for nine years he said that at times he lost as high as $15,000 a year. He also wrote that when he told the officers of the Preachers' Aid society that he had secured the bond which they wanted him to get, he told a lie and that if he had not been pressed to get that bond he believed that within a year or two he would have been able to make good the sum which he now admits stealing. He informed Rev. Mr. Spencer that John O. Atwood, who has sworn that he audited the accounts of Allen on March 20 of the current year and also in March, 1902, never saw the securities and simply signed a statement to that effect. Atwood has been quoted as saying that he saw the securities and checked them off in March last.

There now seems to be little doubt that the East Boston embezzler carefully planned his flight from this city, and that in doing so he used all the cunning at his command to baffle the police authorities. Developments show that when Allen left Boston he undoubtedly had a sufficient sum of money to enable him to travel a good distance without having to seek employment or aid. In fact, it is stated that shortly before the fugitive left Boston he raised money right and left.

Quincy Woods Assault Cases In Local Court Today.

A DISASTROUS CYCLONE

Heading From West Indies Toward Coast of United States

Washington, Aug. 12.—The hurricane which passed over San Domingo and Martinique probably is approaching the south Cuban coast, with indications of recurving, but at what angle the weather bureau officials are unable to state. The hurricane probably will continue in its course northward somewhere close to the Florida peninsula. The weather bureau regards it as extremely unwise for vessels to sail for gulf or Cuban ports or the Bahamas just now. The storm was central yesterday at Kingston, Jam.

The state department received a dispatch from Consul Jewell, at Fort De France, Martinique, confirming the press report of the cyclone disaster in that island. The dispatch says:

"Terrific cyclone visited entire island midnight Saturday; great damage crop and fruits; many houses in Fort De France unroofed; trees two feet thick uprooted. One killed. Consulate intact. At Trinite seven killed; many houses destroyed. Smaller towns damaged. New villages Tivoli, Aond, La Haye, Fourniols and Recules destroyed, rendering five thousand sufferers last year's catastrophe again homeless. Reports interior island indefinite. Great discouragement."

New York, Aug. 12.—The Commercial Cable company has issued the following notice:

"We are advised that there is no communication with Jamaica. This cuts off Porto Rico and all the West Indian islands south of there."

Parry's Little Joke

Indianapolis, Aug. 12. — Samuel Gompers left a challenge in the hands of a committee addressed to D. M. Parry, offering to meet the latter on the stump at the Labor day celebration in this city and argue with him the question of unionism. Mr. Parry, who is president of the National Manufacturers' association, says he will await the delivery of the challenge with a great deal of interest, but he has no desire to "parade Mr. Gompers as a rival attraction at a baby show."

Officials Will Not Remit Fine

Havana, Aug. 12.—The government has declined to remit the fine imposed upon an American resident of the Isle of Pines for burying the body of his relative upon his premises in order to avoid the postmortem examination required by the old Spanish law. The government is investigating the complaint made by Americans of the roughness of Isle of Pines officials in connection with such examinations.

Automobile Went Overboard

Port Plain, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Henry F. Spaulding, an expert enthusiastic automobilist of Buffalo, rode to his death four miles east of this village He was on the tow path of the Erie canal. Owing to the muddy condition of the path and while turning out for a lineman's rig his automobile swerved more than he intended and man and machine plunged into the water and he was drowned.

Chase For Convicts Abandoned

Sacramento, Cal., Aug. 12.—Sheriff Reese has practically abandoned the hunt for the escaped convicts known to have been in this city last Friday He feels it is useless to further pursue an organized chase for the escaped men. The five convicts are believed to have escaped to the Devil's Basin region, a rocky and heavily timbered section, affording good shelter and protection.

Preparing For World's Fair

Baltimore, Aug. 12.—A contract has been awarded by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for additional passenger equipment, involving an expenditure of about $600,000, and with this new rolling stock the company will be equipped to handle the world's fair business next year. The order covers 40 passenger cars and 40 baggage and postal cars.

—The Marlboro Street Railway Co. offered a lump sum of $25,000, as we recall the facts, to settle the damages from the collision on that road some months ago. The victims, or their attorneys, refused the offer and the road went into the hands of a receiver. It has just been sold and the amount which will be available to settle those claims is just about 25 per cent of the company's offers.—Waltham Free Press.

A CHANGE IN CABINET

Announcement of Root's Intention to Retire

HAS ACCOMPLISHED WORK

That He Was Called on to Do When He Became Secretary of War—Taft Tired of Philippines and Likely to Succeed Root—Place For Rockhill

Washington, Aug. 12.—Before Secretary Root sails for London to sit with the Alaskan commission he will place his resignation in the hands of President Roosevelt in order that the president may appoint a secretary of war if it is deemed necessary during Root's absence. It is expected, however, that the resignation will not be acted upon until after congress meets. The appointment of Root's successor will depend somewhat upon the length of time that the secretary will be engaged upon the Alaskan boundary commission.

It has been known for some time that Secretary Root intended to retire, but he did not wish to leave the department until the general staff bill was in operation and other matters pertaining to the department were well under way.

While Mr. Root is in London matters pertaining to the general staff and other important war department affairs will be referred to him. If the sittings of the Alaskan commission extend beyond Dec. 1, it is likely that the secretary's resignation will be accepted and his successor appointed at that time. If the situation in the war department becomes such that a secretary is needed to take charge of affairs, one will be appointed earlier.

Secretary Root's desire to leave public life is based largely on personal grounds. His family does not like the life in Washington and the secretary desires also to return to his law practice in New York city. The great questions that were pending in the war department, relating mainly to the administration of the islands acquired from Spain and the establishment of a government in Cuba have been accomplished during Secretary Root's administration. The reorganization of the army under the general staff plan is now under way and the secretary feels that he has accomplished the work that he was called on to do when he became secretary of war.

It seems likely that the president's long cherished plans for the transfer of Governor Taft to Secretary Root's place, and of Mr. Rockhill from the bureau of American republics to the Chinese mission, will be consummated before many months. Governor Taft has remained in the Philippines longer than he intended, balancing the argument of duty to the Filipinos on one side against the paramount obligation which he owes to himself. His friends believe it would be imprudent on grounds of health for him to remain there longer than a year at the most He could, as secretary of war, continue the real Philippine work with which his name is identified.

Mr. Rockhill has long been slated for a post in the east, and the only question has been whether he should go direct to the Chinese capital or receive that honor after a term of service as Philippine commissioner, or vice-governor. His acquaintance with Asiatic affairs especially equips him for either of these lines of work, and Americans as yet have developed few specialists in such fields of service.

Mr. Conger's retirement, which has long been expected, will probably take place in the early winter.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 12.—Elihu Root will resign as secretary of war, the resignation to take effect the first of next January. He will be succeeded, unless present plans miscarry, by Judge William H. Taft, now governor of the Philippines. Even now Mr Root has not indicated to the president just when he may leave the cabinet, but he and the president have a mutual understanding regarding the matter.

DIRECT ARBITRATION

Striking Machinists Invited to Talk Over Matters With Officials

Boston, Aug. 12.—The state board of arbitration, which has offered its services towards a settlement of the machinists' strike on the Boston and Albany railroad, is still awaiting a reply. Vice President Van Etten of the Boston and Albany expresses himself as opposed to accepting the services of a board of arbitration. He says officials of the road prefer to meet the men and arrange matters in a manner satisfactory to both parties. No outside interference, he states, is wished for If the strikers decided upon arbitration each side should choose its representative, and those named should elect a third. "I propose," said he "that the strike committee meet me with a view to arbitrating the trouble but as yet they have failed to accept the proposition. The situation remains the same."

At a meeting of the strikers last evening no decisive action was taken

Bankrupt Wanted Choice of Trustee

Boston, Aug. 12.—The creditors meeting of F. M. Tucker & Co., bankers and brokers, who were petitioned into bankruptcy, came to a sudden close when Referee Farmer asserted that Tucker was soliciting votes for Charles M. Luden, his candidate for trustee. This resulted in the throwing out of all votes for Luden and the election of John A. Curtin as trustee The meeting was held to approve claims and elect a trustee. The schedule filed by the court shows assets valued at $37,648 and liabilities of $341,419.

Retires With Rank of General

Boston, Aug. 12.—Colonel John L Tiernon, commander of Fort Banks Winthrop, and of the Boston artillery district, U. S. A., became a brigadier general at 12 o'clock yesterday, and was placed on the retired list. The brigadier general's salute of 11 guns was fired at Fort Banks, and there were appropriate ceremonies at the fort. Major Patterson, commander at Fort Warren, presented the commission, and on behalf of the Boston district gave General Tiernon a silver punch bowl.

He Got Six Lobsters

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 12.—While making a seizure of alleged short lobsters at the market of F. E. Sherman, Herbert A. Bent, a deputy fish and game commissioner, was set upon by a number of men and pursued until he sought refuge in the police station Bent, however, succeeded in retaining possession of six lobsters which are said to have been found under the lawful size.

Bicycle Plant at Auction

Thompsonville, Conn., Aug. 12.—The receiver's sale of property of the American Bicycle company held here resulted in its purchase by the Pope Manufacturing company of Hartford for $15,000, that being the only bid received by the auctioneer. It is understood that this sale completes the disposition of the property of the American Bicycle company in Connecticut.

Another Victim of Lowell Disaster

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 12.—The list of fatalities which resulted from the explosion at South Lowell on the morning of July 29 has advanced to 23 by the death of Charles Bailtargeon, aged 2, who, after hovering between life and death, finally succumbed to the injuries sustained in the disaster. The direct cause of death was concussion of the brain.

Grover and Joe on an Outing

Portland, Me., Aug. 12.—Former President Grover Cleveland, accompanied by Joseph Jefferson, the actor and a nephew of Mr. Jefferson, passed through this city for their camps at Meddybemps lake, near Eastport. An abundance of gamey bass and good duck shooting are reported in the vicinity of an island purchased by them in the lake.

French Exiles In New Quarters

Leominster, Mass., Aug. 12.—Eleven members of the Daughters of the Holy Ghost society, a religious order banished from France, have arrived here and will take up charitable and educational work among the French Catholic population. The 11 exiles came to America with nine others who will locate at West Warren and Chicopee.

NOW ALL GRADED.

Tracks Can Be Laid in a Few Days.

New Freight House to Be Built.

May Consolidate Quincy and Quincy Adams Offices.

A trip up Granite street will give a general idea of what the new freight yard of the New York and New Haven railroad will be when complete. The filling that had to be made is nearly completed. It has been leveled off and is now ready to have the tracks laid.

The grade of the yard is a little below the main line tracks, but nearly on a level with Granite street. The old Bass house on the lot near the foot of Goffe street has been moved west to a point nearly opposite Whitwell street. It also sets nearer Granite street than formerly.

Just where the freight house will be located or just what the plans of the railroads are, have not been made known as yet.

The granite men at South Quincy prefer to do their loading at South Quincy as at present. It is possible however that as the railroad has an entrance to its new freight yard from School street that the freight offices at Quincy and Quincy Adams may be consolidated and located at the new yard.

It will not be far from the first of September before the new yard will be ready for use.

Good Afternoon

The Naval observatory has secured an "excellent likeness" of the Borelli comet. It looks like a bit of stray cloud.

New York is boasting of a girl violinist who taught herself to play. We have known several violinists who taught themselves to play but we were not inclined to boast of them.

A German newspaper announces that the cause of seasickness is anaemia of the brain. Would not the natural remedy for this condition be standing on one's head or hanging by the knees from a trapeze?

Speculation regarding the vice presidential candidate still forms the chief pastime of the political wiseacres. Thus far Senator Beveridge seems to be the favorite. Roosevelt and Beveridge is regarded as a ticket typical of the popularity of young men in high places.

We plead guilty! "The Ledger seems to be more up-to-date and enterprising," says a well-known business man; "more metropolitan; more newsy. You are getting out a much better daily than I thought possible. I would not be without the Ledger a day."

New Bedford's tax rate is also larger this year. Last year it was $17.40, the same as Quincy; this year it is $18 and Quincy $17.30. See the difference? New Bedford suffered a loss of $1,106,732 in personal property, so that its total gain in valuation for the year was but $5,718. The total valuation is $62,567,529; amount raised on property, $1,126,215.55.

That a fine of only five dollars was imposed on the Italians in court Tuesday for assault on their foreman with shovels, stones, etc., was a surprise to many. With Judge Avery on the bench it might have been different. In view of the numerous breaches of the peace lately, the city has obtained an unsavory and an unfair reputation. The lawless element must be put down. Small fines will not do it. The fines must be increased, and if necessary jail sentences imposed. It is important for the fair name of Quincy that Chief of Police Hayden call the attention of the court to the seriousness of these crimes. and the necessity of an example being made, and that the court should cooperate.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ "Tom" Lawson has just told the Boston Journal a lot of truth about the stock market. He says that "stock gambling is the biggest, the most fascinating, the most brutal game of humans. It is not a knitting circle affair but the most cold-blooded, heart-knifing, throat cutting game the human animal ever engaged in. Fathers slaughter their sons and grin, and the game is the only one played by humans where a son derives as much pleasure from breaking a sister or his mother as an outsider. It is a game where all the best instincts of men and women are subordinated to that most brutal human passion, gambling." That is pretty strong language, but it comes from one who knows, and from one who plays the game with as much cold-blooded bitterness as anyone, although he fights men of his size and not lambs of the market.—Haverhill Gazette.

NO DEFENCE OFFERED.

By Cambridge Men Charged With Disturbance at Quincy Woods.

District Attorney French Conducts the Government Case.

Several Witnesses Give Their Testimony of the Disturbance and Assault.

The cases of the Quincy Woods disturbers on Sunday, July 26, are on trial today in the Quincy court. The defendants are James P. Riley, Henry G. Mitchell, William H. Quinn, William B. Lindsey, William A. Farrow, Valentine Balcolm, William Binney, Herbert Quinn, James H. Johnston and Joseph H. O'Neil. The gang got into the row with the Irish National League during which James Mullens and Simeon Bennett of Quincy were knocked out with base ball bats.

District Attorney French represented the government, and James F. Aylward, Esq., appeared for the defendants with the exception of Reiley, who was represented by Judge Grover.

All of the men were arraigned for disturbing the peace and Reiley and Balcolm for assault with a dangerous weapon.

Mullens was able to be present and testify, but Bennett was not.

Mr. Bennett is still confined to ihs home, and fears are entertained for his recovery.

Several members of the Land League were present as witnesses.

James F. Mullens was the first witness. He testified that he was present at the outing of the Irish National League at Quincy Woods July 26. A short distance from his party was the party from Cambridge. They came towards our party and started a row.

A sandy complexion fellow hit Bennett who was making the chowder and I stepped between them as Bennett was an old man. The fellow made a pass at me and I hit him, and was following him up when he was hit with a base ball bat. I also got a punch in the stomach. Identified Reiley as the man who hit him with the bat and also pointed out several others who were present.

Dr. John F. Welch testified to attending Mullens at the Hospital, and to the character of the wound on Mullens' head. The blow which caused the concussion must have been violent. The concussion of the brain was manifested through his vision which was affected, this, however, gradually cleared.

The wound indicated that it had been caused by some blunt instrument.

Medical Examiner Jones testified as to the inquiries of Simon Bennett. He had a scalp wound and one rib broken. Since then traumatic pneumonia set in, and later tuberculosis.

The man will die as a result of pneumonia, scalp wound, broken rib and tuberculosis.

Patrick J. Fay testified he had charge of the beer with Joe Costa. He saw some excitement at the bake and went over to see what it was. It was all over when I got there.

I asked Reiley what the trouble was. He said he had bought some clams and paid for them. When he came after them the man who sold them to him was not present, and the man in charge refused to give the clams to him. Witness told Reiley to take his clams and go ahead.

The row started between 4 and 5 o'clock. Reiley and another man came down with a boiler they had borrowed. They got talking with our crowd and got excited. Then their whole crowd came down. They came to where witness was and demanded the beer. Witness refused and put the keg in the wagon. Went around the wagon and when he came back he saw Reiley strike Mullens on the head with a bat.

He identified Mitchell, the two Quinns, Balcolm, Johnston, O'Neil and O. L. Rice, as among those who demanded the beer of him. Witness also saw blows struck between the two parties. He did not see Bennett struck. There were two other parties besides Reiley who had bats, but they were not present in court.

Peter McConarty said he was struck twice during the row. One of the men who struck him was Balcolm. I saw a fuss in the camp. Do not know what caused it. I saw crowd coming down with bats. I run up and said, "Here boys, stop, you will do harm."

Witness then had a struggle with Balcolm to get possession of the bat. While we were wrangling, another man came and struck me and knocked me flat with a bat. After I was down, Balcolm hit me across the arm with the bat. The first blow was the blow over the eye.

William Raymond said he was not with either party but saw the row and saw bats used. Also saw barrel staves and boards used. Heard some one say, "Boys, go to the wagon and get the bats." The Quincy fellows appeared to be driving the Cambridge boys back when the man shouted for the bats.

The government rested its case at this point.

Reiley was held in $3,000 for the grand jury for assault on Mullens and Bennett.

Valentine Balcolm for assault on Peter McConarty was held in $300 for the grand jury.

The cases against the crowd for disturbing the peace were continued until Oct. 5 which will allow for the assault cases to be disposed of in the higher court.

PAIN A STRANGER TO HIM.

Cincinnati Man Whistled While His Toes Were Being Cut Off.

Filled to the brim with true Irish wit and with a heart wholly impervious to care, Thomas Tracy of Cincinnati, O., left the City hospital the other day to go forth and hustle for a livelihood until fate ordains his return to the institution, says the Chicago Inter Ocean.

Many times has Tracy been in the hospital and many times have the doctors marveled at his fortitude. Pain to him seems a stranger and suffering but a nightmare. The last time Tracy came to the hospital a wagon wheel had run over his right foot, mashing his toes to a pulp. Amputation was necessary, and Tracy scoffed at the idea of taking an anæsthetic. Instead of groans he gave voice to laughter as the doctors plied their knives to his flesh, whistling a tune as one after another his toes dropped into the basket until the last one was gone.

"There's many a kick left in that old foot yet," he said to the doctors. "Maybe some day I will come in and have the other foot trimmed up a little so they will look more like mates."

Then Tracy was rolled away to a ward to wait until the next day, when it was decided that he was well enough to go home.

Governor at Camp.

Gov. Bates will review the Fifth regiment, M. V. M., at the camp at Duxbury at 2 o'clock this afternoon.

Between 2 and 4 o'clock he will hold a reception at the home of Captain Huckins, and at 5 o'clock the Governor will witness evening parade. A ball will be given in his honor at the Standish House this evening. Thursday the Governor will try his luck fishing off the Gurnet lights.

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

A Still Alarm

A little after five Tuesday afternoon, smoke was seen coming from the doors and windows of William Hammond's house on Billings street. A still alarm was given and the Atlantic chemical was on the spot a short while after. The fire was started by an oil stove exploding. Mrs. Hammond had but recently had the stove, and this was her first attempt to light it. It exploded almost immediately. With the help of some of the neighbors the fire was practically extinguished before the chemical arrived. The damage was confined to the kitchen, although the smoke went all through the house.

Secretary,—Thomas J. Dunphy.
Executive Committee,—Harry S. Nicoll, Thomas F. Mannex, James Joss, John C. Murray, William T. Spargo, Henry McGrath, Peter T. Fitzgerald, Phillip D. Cook and Patrick W. Driscoll.
Membership Committee,—Thomas W. Smith, John A. McDonnell, Robert Mavers, Patrick W. Driscoll and George Clark.

A Favored Y. M. C. A.

The St. Louis Y. M. C. A. a short time ago organized a board of endowment trustees, and an anonymous donor has conveyed to them property valued at $50,000 as an endowment for the educational department. The donor wished to perpetuate the name of the late Ralph Sellew, who for many years was an honored wholesale merchant of St. Louis, and so one condition of the gift is that hereafter the educational department shall be named "The Ralph Sellew Institute of the St. Louis Young Men's Christian association." Another condition is that one hundred free scholarships shall be founded for deserving young men. These conditions were cheerfully agreed to by the board of directors, and will be made effective at the beginning of next season's work. The endowment places the St. Louis association in the front, educationally, for but one other association possesses a like endowment for the educational department.

The Globe reports that a meeting of the creditors of F. M. Tucker & Co. was held Tuesday in the court of bankruptcy to approve claims and appoint a trustee. The firm has about 225 creditors, of whom 50 were present. John A. Curtin was elected trustee.

The schedule filed with the court shows assets valued at $37,648 and liabilities of $341,419. Secured claims amount to $173,528, unsecured $167,891.

All the assets of the firm have been conveyed by deed of assignment for benefit of creditors to H. R. Bailey.

It is understood that certain creditors will take an appeal from the decision of Referee Farmer.

Inspector McKay Gets Letter From Capt. Saugau.

According to Sam Scott, the alleged burglar, his friend Bailey came from New York. Inspector McKay communicated with the detective bureau in relation to him. The following letter has been received in reply:

New York, Aug. 11, 1903.

D. R. McKay, Inspector of Police, Quincy, Mass.

Dear Sir: Replying to your communication of the 7th instant, I had inquiries made around Jackson street, this city, and also around the fish market for a colored man named Bailey, but no one seems to know any such person. Inquires were also made for Patrick McMicken and Jules DeFore with the same result.

Yours very respectfully,
Jarius J. Saugau,
Captain Detective Bureau.

Beaked Nightshade in Quincy.

A plant quite new to this section of the country has appeared in Mr. Danford Arnold's vegetable garden. The plant is one foot or more high and branched. It is decidedly thistle-like in nature being thickly covered with short, sharp spines. The leaves, which are pinnate or irregularly lobed, resemble somewhat those of the citron and are also covered with prickles.

The blossom, which is one inch broad, is yellow with a somewhat irregular corolla. The calyx is burr-like, beind densely covered with prickles. The plant covered with yellow blossoms is striking, on account of its brightness and newness.

The flower is five-merons or five parted. That is, the calyx is five-parted, the corolla five-lobed and the stamens five. But one of the stamens; the lower one, differs from the other four. It bears a very long peculiar anther which resembles the beak of a bird, and this peculiarity gives to the plant its specific name. The scientific name is Solanum rostratum. The common name, beaked nightshade. Rostratum means beaked. Our English word rostrate, from rostratus, means having a beak. Therefore the cause of the name is obvious.

The plant belongs to the Nightshade family, which is noticeable at a glance. To this family belong our potato and egg-plant while the tomato is closely allied.

Britton and Brown's Illustrated Flora is responsible for the statement that this plant was the original food of the Colorado or potato bug.

The range of the plant is from the plains of Nebraska to Texas and Mexico. Occasionally a few single plants reach Canada and New Jersey. They probably arrive in grain.

The miscroscope discloses wonders in the blossom, especially in the calyx part. The hairs which grow among the spines are shaped like a star, that is, a single hair rays out at the tip and forms a star.

—Out of every 100 cases of drunkenness brought before magistrates in England thirty are women.

REPORTED MISSING.

Sailing Party From Houghs Neck Caught in Fog.

The Brockton Enterprise of Tuesday tells the following story of the experience of Brockton yachtsmen who sailed from Houghs Neck:

The 28-foot sloop "Venture," owned by Mr. William A. McCormick, a drug clerk employee at Foster's on Main street, a member of the Quincy Yacht Club, anchored at Houghs Neck late yesterday afternoon, after having been reported missing. On board were Messrs. Alexander McCormick, Chester L. Southworth, John H. Southworth, Charles Cook and George Alexander. The five young men had passed through a trying experience, having been in the boat since Saturday night and having been adrift in the fog all Sunday night, without food or water.

Mrs. John H. Southworth of 14 Track street and her sister, Miss Kittie Cavanagh, were at the club house to meet the party as soon as they arrived, the wife having gone down to make inquiries and being almost prostrated by anxiety for a time.

They left this city Saturday afternoon at about 5.30 o'clock. Mr. McCormick stopping at the drug store to tell his brother that he was going to take a trip to Nahant. It was a pleasure trip in every sense. Four of the boys are members of the Shoe City Wheelmen and of the O-O of O-O-Os, a social body composed of members of the club, and they made their headquarters at the cottage at Houghs Neck, which bears the odd name. The initiation of candidates for membership was part of the program.

They left for Nahant Saturday night and made the trip to that resort without any difficulty. Starting home Sunday they were caught by a dense fog, and night fell with the boat still at sea and the boys practically unaware of where they were. Fortunately the wind was low, so their position was not extremely hazardous.

Early Monday morning the fog cleared and they made a landing, after several hours of sailing. The five were nearly famished by exposure, hunger and thirst, having nothing to eat or drink in the boat and not having partaken of food or water since Sunday morning. While they were hunting for a place where refreshments might be procured, the tide went out, leaving the sloop high and dry on the flats, and necessitating hours of further delays.

Mrs. Southworth was not greatly worried when her husband failed to arrive home Sunday night, though she had expected him, or she believed that he had remained at the cottage and gone to work at Thompson Bros.' factory at Campello, where the Southworth brothers are employed, Monday morning. She expected him at noon. Instead another brother, who makes his home in Whitman, came to the house and told her that neither of the young men had been at the factory and that the foremen had sent to the house to inquire as to their whereabouts.

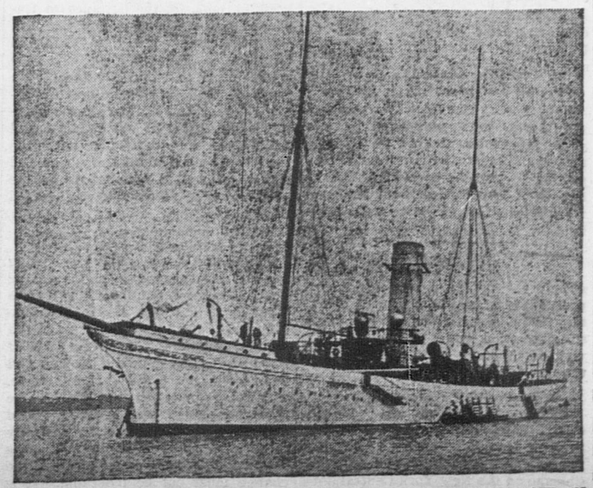

Janitor Frank Pray of the Quincy Yacht Club was communicated with and said that the sloop had left Saturday night and had not been seen or heard from since that time.

Grave fears were entertained as soon as these facts became known, and the relatives of the five young men were notified. Mrs. Southworth and her sister went to Houghs Neck, arriving there at 3 o'clock. Nothing had been heard from the young men even then.

In about half hour or so Janitor Pray, who was scanning the horizon with a pair of marine glasses, said that he sighted a sloop that compared with the "Venture" in general appearance. It was off Nantasket Beach at the time.

The boat beat up against the wind and within two hours passed down the channel in front of the clubhouse. Mrs. Southworth was weeping with pure joy. Aside from their hunger, none of the young men were much the worse for wear and all wore at work today.

—The banana and potato are almost dentical in chemical composition.

A FARM TO BREED WOLVES.

Kansas Ranchmen See a Good Thing In Dollar a Scalp Bounty.

The county commissioners of Lane county, Kan., have stopped paying bounties on wolf scalps pending the investigation of a story that a wolf breeding ranch has been established in the northern part of the county, says a Dighton dispatch to the Kansas City Star. With the price of scalps at a dollar each, the business of raising wolves pays better than many of the industries in this part of the state.

It is reported at Dighton that several of the ranchmen in the northern part of the county have established a breeding place for the animals in some of the canyons along Walnut creek. A surprisingly large number of pelts have been brought in from that part of the county, and an investigation will be made.

WILL TRY FRENCH ENGINE.

Pennsylvania Railroad to Import One For a Practical Test.

The Pennsylvania Railroad company will make practical tests with a French locomotive of the De Glehn compound type, which is regarded as the most perfect working passenger locomotive used in Europe.

A sample locomotive is now being built in France at a cost of $20,000 for the company. It will be delivered at Philadelphia about March 14 and will be put in service, says the New York World.

If the French engine shall prove superior in any respects, the points making it so will be used to improve the American passenger locomotive. The locomotive will be exhibited at St. Louis.

A Big Colonization Scheme.

Announcement was recently made in London of a big colonization scheme for the development of South Africa. One of the chief promoters is General Botha. The plan embraces the formation of a land bank with a capital of $10,000,000, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. It is said that the company will start with the control of 800,000 acres of land. The British government is said not to look too kindly on the scheme, regarding it as a possible attempt on the part of the shrewd Boers to gain political advantage for the Dutch. This suspicion has been increased by the recent revival of the Bond influence in Cape Town.

Many Tunnels of New Railway Line.

In constructing twenty-six miles of track on the Denver, Northwestern and Pacific railway, where it crosses the Rocky mountains, thirty-six tunnels will be bored. In tunneling a section of only two and one-half miles it is estimated that 600,000 pounds of powder will be used.

Another Boom Launched.

[Secretary Schutz of the Milwaukee health department is framing an ordinance creating a legal standard for the food used in boarding houses and hotels.]

At last the boarding house brigade has found a candidate.
The man of destiny is here; we see the hand of fate.
No more the custard cup shall be a puzzle to our spoons;
No more the famished boarders shall be forced to feed on prunes,
And every boarder in the land arises and salutes
And cheers the name and sounds the fame of Secretary Schutz.

Here is a man at last who knows his country's pressing need,
Who knows the legions now compelled on doubtful stuff to feed,
Who knows the way the butter stands defiant on the plate
And how the coffee is too weak its steam to radiate;
He knows the secondhanded pies and plaster paris fruits.
Each boarding place will boom the race of Secretary Schutz.

Hurrah, for now, at last, the man who boards shall get a steak
That is not adamantine stuff, too stiff to bend or break,
And all the secret, hidden things shall swiftly go to smash;
We'll know exactly what is put into the dish of hash.
Each boarder says this is the man who all requirements suits
And makes a note that he will vote for Secretary Schutz.

The leather covered griddlecake must fly to other scenes,
For Secretary Schutz is apt to say just what he means.
So up from all the boarding houses now a cheer is wildly blent,
A cheer that means that here's the man to run for president.
Star boarders and delinquents are prepared to bet their boots
That every voice will cheer the choice of Secretary Schutz.

CHAS. C. HEARN'S ENTERPRISE

Scores a New Mark in Special Price Plan.

When Chas. C. Hearn the popular druggist induced the Dr. Howard Co. to make a special half price introductory offer on their celebrated cure for dyspepsia and constipation, there were many expressions of enviable praise.

Today Mr. Chas. C. Hearn scores a new mark, for he has succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to allow him to continue, for a limited time, selling their regular fifty cent specific, sixty pills in a bottle, at half price, 25 cents.

In addition to selling a month's treatment for a quarter of a dollar, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn announces that he will give his personal guarantee with every package he sells, to refund the money if it does not cure.

Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia is not a mere aid to digestion; it is a scientific remedy that makes permanent cures of the worst cases of constipation and dyspepsia. The dose is small, and it is very pleasant to take.

Mr. Chas. C. Hearn's enterprise in securing this remarkable reduction from the Dr. Howard Co. has resulted in making their specific the best selling medicine in his store. He hopes any who have not tried it will take advantage of this offer at once, for he does not know how long he will be able to sell the remedy at half price. Remember that if it does not cure, even your half price paym nt will be refunded.

Monthly Regulator has brought happiness to hundreds of anxious women. There is positively no other remedy known to medical science that will so quickly and safely do the work. Longest and most obstinate irregularities from any cause relieved immediately. Success guaranteed at any stage. No pain, danger, or interference with work. Have relieved hundreds of cases where others have failed. The most difficult cases successfully treated by mail, and beneficial results guaranteed in every instance. No risk whatsoever. We treat hundreds of ladies whom we never see. Write for further particulars and free confidential advice. Do not put off too long. All letters truthfully answered. Remember, this remedy is absolutely safe under every possible condition and positively leaves no after ill effect upon the health. Sent by mail, securely sealed, $2.00. Money letters should be registered. DR. J. W. EMMONS CO., 170 Tre

THE MILES BOOM

Not Likely to Bring Him Commandership of Grand Army This Year

Washington, Aug. 12.—Seldom has the election of a commander-in-chief of the Grand Army been attended by so many interesting political complications as this year. The "Miles boom" which recently assumed such strength appears on examination to carry a significance not wholly agreeable to the rank and file of the organization The election of Miles would be construed as a rebuke to the administration for its silence in bowing the general off the stage when he formally retired last week. It would also give some impetus to his presidential aspirations and if he appear as a candidate at all it must be as a Democrat.

While many of his comrades would like to express their admiration for him by the bestowal of this honor at San Francisco, most of these are unwilling to shoulder such consequences Accordingly some leaders plan to let Miles be elected Grand Army commander next year when political considerations will be eliminated. They also plan to have the encampment then meet in Boston, his old home, where there would be a singular appropriateness in his receiving this honor from the hands of his comrades of the Civil War. In this way the present boom may be quieted and the Miles adherents at the same time satisfied.

Coal Operators Injured by Miners

London, Aug. 12.—The appeal court, by a majority of 2 to 1, reversed the decision of Justice Bigham, who, in a case where the Welsh Coal Owners' association sued the Miners' Federation for $500,000 damages for ordering stop days without consulting the owners, decided in favor of the defendants. Justices Romer and Stirling held that the Miners' Federation had wilfully procured the men to break their contracts, and that the federation thereby injured the plaintiff companies. The question of damages was referred back to Justice Bigham.

Warden Admits Whipping Woman

Milledgeville, Ga., Aug. 12.—In the investigation begun at the state prison farm here by the state prison commission of charges against Warden Allagood of excessive cruelty towards Miss Mamie Decrys, a white prisoner, she declared that she was whipped last June because she had indignantly repelled improper proposals made to her by the warden himself. She bore the marks of the whipping for some weeks. Allagood admits inflicting the punishment, but declares it was not excessive, and was necessary to preserve discipline.

Warmly Welcomed at Omaha

Omaha, Aug. 12.—General Miles stopped half an hour in Omaha, being met at the station by army officers stationed here, Governor Mickey and staff and local posts of the G. A. R. He was given a brief and informal reception on the station platform and by the business men of the city he was presented with a beautiful floral tribute. Two thousand people shook hands with the general.

Old Regulations Followed

Washington, Aug. 12.—Secretary Cortelyou has formulated the rules and regulations which will control the patrol fleet, excursion steamers and other vessels carrying spectators during the coming international yacht races. These rules are substantially the same as those in force during the races of 1901, and were proposed by the regatta committee of the New York Yacht club.

Honors to Unknown Dead

Durand, Mich., Aug. 12.—Business houses closed for an hour while funeral services were held over the bodies of 10 unknown and unclaimed victims of the collision here between the two sections of Wallace Bros.' circus train. The ministers of the town held services over the 10 coffins on the sidewalk in front of the morgue in the presence of a great number of people.

Government Sues Cattlemen

Topeka, Aug. 12.—Three suits were filed here by the United States attorney against extensive cattle ranch firms in Western Kansas, charging them with having government land under fence. One company is charged with having 14,000 acres unlawfully fenced; the other about 10 sections. Twelve other suits of the same nature are in course of preparation.

Strain Tells on Pope Pius

Rome, Aug. 12.—Pius X has been already overcome by an unaccustomed strain of his pontifical duties. He fainted while at mass yesterday. His collapse is considered to be due to heart weakness, aggravated by fatigue. The pope's intimates say that he is much changed since his election and seems to have grown 10 years older.

Dangerous Counterfeit Dollar

Washington, Aug. 12.—The secret service has discovered a new counterfeit $1 silver certificate. The general appearance of the note is excellent, and calculated to deceive even careful handlers of money. It is an imitation of the series of 1891. Three specimens of the note have been seen, all bearing the number 7,019,348.

Miners Docked When Paid Cash

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 12.—All of the witnesses heard yesterday in the miners' arbitration proceedings testified regarding the commissary system works, much of the testimony tending to show that miners paid in commissary checks had to discount them at 15 cents on the dollar in order to ob-

UPRISING IN BALKANS

Has Already Extended to Seven Districts

ITALY KEEPS FLEET READY

To Sail to Macedonia Should Complications Render It Necessary to Protect Italian Subjects—Turkish Officials Distracted by Bad News

Sofia, Aug. 12.—The representatives of the Macedonian revolutionary committee announce that the revolution broke out in the vilayet of Uskub last Sunday and in the vilayet of Adrianople on Monday.

Telegraphic communication is interrupted. Adrianople forms the seventh revolutionary district. The representatives of the committee also publish a contradiction of the alleged atrocities committed by the Bulgarians, and accuse the Turks of attempting to prepare the mind of Europe for the eventual massacre of innocent Christians.

General Thonchoff, president of the Macedonian committee, has addressed an appeal to his adherents to assist the insurgents in Macedonia, even by revolutionary means. Prominent Macedonians here have formed a charitable committee for the purpose of obtaining help for the victims of the insurrection. Representatives of all political parties in Bulgaria have joined the committee, and it is proposed to hold a public meeting to solicit contributions from all Bulgarians.

The premier and minister of the interior have proceeded to Dubuitza with the intention of inspecting the Bulgarian posts along the Macedonian frontier. This is regarded as additional proof of the government's desire to maintain peace, as the ministers are anxious to see whether more can be done to restrict the passage of insurgent bands into Macedonia.

It is now stated that Prince Ferdinand will not return to Sofia until after his fete day, Aug. 15, as he wishes to show he is not responsible for the present situation in Macedonia.

Turkish Troops Get No Pay

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—It is rumored here that the Turkish troops in Macedonia have become so demoralized by their failure to receive pay that hundreds of them are deserting and selling their rifles to insurgents in order to obtain provisions.

Some anxiety is felt for the safety of Dr. Mandelstam, the acting Russian consul at Uskub, who was appointed to succeed the late M. Rostkowski. In spite of the first refusal of the governor to give him an escort, Dr. Mandelstam insisted upon proceeding to his new post, and after referring the matter to Hilmi Pacha, the inspector general, he obtained one and started upon his responsibility across the country for Monastir. Nothing has been heard of him since.

The sultan has offered an indemnity of $40,000 to the widow of the late M. Rostkowski. She is a member of the well-known Russian family of Muravieff, and M. Rostkowski was related to the late Prince Lobanoff, who was Russian minister of foreign affairs, hence the anxiety of the Turkish authorities to have the matter satisfactorily settled with Russia.

M. Rostkowski was in disfavor with the Turkish authorities at Monastir owing to his persistence in investigating all the fighting in the district.

What London Hears

London, Aug. 12.—The Times prints a dispatch from Constantinople which says that the palace officials are distracted by the continual receipts of bad news and the necessity of dispatching fresh troops. Bulgarian outrages are occurring daily, accompanied by acts of cruelty equal to the worst deeds ever attributed to the Turks.

The Times prints a dispatch from Sofia which says that the towns of Krushevo and Kritchevo are still in the hands of the insurgents.

Italian Squadron Ready

Rome, Aug. 12.—The minister of marine has directed that a squadron be kept in readiness to sail for the east should the complications in Macedonia make it necessary to protect Italian subjects there.

To Succeed Murdered Consul

Constantinople, Aug. 12.—Dr. Mandelstar, acting Russian consul at Uskub, will replace the murdered consul, M. Rostkowski, at Monastir.

Princess Released From Prison

Cape Town, Aug. 12.—Princess Radziwill, who was sentenced to two years' imprisonment April 30, 1902, for forgery in connection with notes purporting to have been endorsed by the late Cecil Rhodes, has been liberated from prison and has started for England.

Date For Opening Fair

Washington, Aug. 12.—John Schroers, director of the St. Louis world's exposition, at a conference with Secretary Shaw, assured the secretary that the exposition would be opened to all visitors in May, 1904, all reports to the contrary notwithstanding.

Fast Freight From Seaboard

VICTIMS OF X RAYS.

Experiences of Two Surgeons of the London Hospital.

The New York Herald publishes the following from its London correspondent:

Mr. Edison is not the only person to suffer from the mysterious power of the Roentgen rays. Two physicians in the radiograph department of the London hospital have fallen victims to its baneful influence, with the result that they had to take an enforced holiday and that the use of the rays for direct examination of injuries has been abandoned.

The rays are now employed to take the photographs from which the surgeon works, thus avoiding the necessity of manipulating a limb while the rays are actually playing on it. Gloves with lead foil sewed into the back were tried, but they were found to impede the hands to such an extent that they were discarded.

Mr. Wilson, one of the two men who used to make the direct examinations with the rays at the hospital, explained that he had not done this class of work for the last eighteen months, yet his hands showed but little signs of improving. Hot fomentations were still necessary, and it is practically certain that his finger nails will never grow properly again. The first symptom of X ray poisoning is a troublesome inflammation of the hands, accompanied by swellings resembling chilblains, depression of spirits and insomnia.

The nails, too, are affected, a ridge forming down the center, in which pus is generated. After the matter has been removed the nail seems partially to perish, the injury to the matrix impairing the future growth. The trouble is chiefly noticeable in the finger tips, decreasing toward the wrist, but slight evidences are generally to be found on most parts of the body.

The eyes, too, are apt to suffer from the ray flicker. Regarded pathologically, the results of the X rays seem to be cumulative, being up to a certain point highly beneficial and beyond that the reverse.

JUSTIN M'CARTHY HONORED

Placed on English Civil List With Yearly Pension of $1,250.

Justin McCarthy, author of "A History of Our Own Times," "The Reign of Queen Anne" (Harpers) and other histories well known in the United States, has been placed on the English civil list to receive an annual pension of £250 ($1,250), says Harper's. As Mr. McCarthy is a popular historical author whose works have sold largely in England and America, one of the prominent English periodicals wonders why a pension was bestowed upon him. The fact is that for the past five years Mr. McCarthy has been almost blind and works under great difficulty, which would be even greater were it not for the devotion of his daughter, with whom he lives.

Furthermore, he has always been open handed and generous to a fault and in his old age has been somewhat straitened on that account. He is now in his seventy-third year and, in addition to his histories, has written a number of novels. At the age of eighteen he began his journalistic career, going later into politics, finally entering parliament in 1879. Seven years ago he retired from public life and has since devoted himself entirely to literature.

NEW TYPE OF FOSSILS.

Discovery of Human Skeleton by Workmen Near Mentone, France.

The grottoes of Boausse-Rousse, near Mentone, in France, are now being explored for prehistoric remains under the direction of the Prince of Monaco, writes the Paris correspondent of the Philadelphia Press. M. de Villeneuve has been carrying on the excavations, which have yielded some interesting finds, especially of fossil human remains.

The chief discovery so far has been a human fossil of a new type. At twenty-one feet was found a complete skeleton and two feet lower the last burial place, containing two bodies. The subject found at twenty-one feet is a man of great height, 6 feet 4 inches. The skull has been reconstructed. The facial part is very low and well developed in length. This individual has the characteristics of the race known as Cro-Magnon. The two skeletons found at twenty-three feet present great interest, as they are of the negroid type.

Hawaii to Have the Finest Aquarium

Plans have now been perfected in Honolulu, Hawaii, and the means provided for the erection and maintenance of a magnificent aquarium for ocean fish and ocean life on the beach at Waikiki, opposite the entrance to Kapiolani park and as a part of the park enterprise, says the San Francisco Chronicle. The building for the aquarium is to be in the form of a cross, the main axis of the building being 105 feet and of the other eighty-three feet. It will be arranged and maintained in accordance with the most approved modern knowledge and appliances and is designed to be the most complete institution of the kind in America.

The New America.

The Latins and the Slavs are going to play an important part in making the American republic of the future what it is destined to be, says the Cleveland Leader. This means a warmer temperament, more love of color and gayety, more passion and more inclination toward art and music. The future America may be all the more interesting, varied, many sided and imposing for the vast river of new blood and novel customs and ideas flowing into the country, but the change must not be too rapid. It is time to think of floodgates to check the [illegible]

NEWS IN BRIEF

General E. E. Bryant, ex-dean of the Wisconsin university law school and president of the Wisconsin state commission, died of heart failure on a train near Toronto while returning from the annual meeting of the American Fisheries society at Woods Hole, Mass.

General W. W. Blackmar has had placed on Planter's hill at World's End, Hingham, Mass., the monster steel mast which came out of the Independence, Lawson's famous cup defender. The mast will be used as a flagstaff.

The Hitchcock building, Ware, Mass., was damaged $12,500 by fire and water. Most of the damage was caused by the bursting of a water pipe, which flooded the building. The cause of the fire is unknown.

The body of Miss Carrie E. Stevens, aged 20, was found in Belfast, Me., harbor. Miss Stevens was accidentally drowned.

Yankee Boat Turned Tables

Toronto, Aug. 12.—The dissatisfaction over the manner in which the American challenger for the Canada cup had been sailed in the first two races led to the summoning from New York of A. Hannan to take charge of the Irondequoit. Hannan went aboard the yacht and the Irondequoit turned the tables on the Strathcona. He was in full command. Skipper Barr acted as helmsman.

Earthquakes In Italy

Rome. Aug. 12.—An earthquake, having the region of Mount Aetna as a centre, was felt throughout Sicily and southern Italy, and to a small degree in central Italy. In the zone of greatest intensity the movement lasted two minutes. Mount Vesuvius is again in eruption, its present activity being considered to be connected with the earthquake shocks.

Department of Justice Has Papers

Washington, Aug. 12.—With the exception of the testimony of two witnesses, it is believed at the war department that there will be no further investigation of the Lyon glove contract with the war department. All the papers, including the testimony, have been sent to the department of justice.

Good Advice on Child Labor

Indianapolis, Aug. 12.—Judge Stubbs of the juvenile court in this city addressed the national convention of garment workers here. He asked the members of the organization to be mindful of the welfare of the children. It was right, he said, for them to guard against excessive labor for children.

A DUTCH COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

JAMAICA'S GREAT LOSS

Hurricane Brings Ruin to Prosperous Planters

LOSS OF ABOUT $10,000,000

Death List May Reach Fifty—Village Wiped Out, Public Buildings and Plantations Demolished and Thousands of People Without Shelter

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 13.—The effects of the hurricane upon the island of Jamaica were greater than at first believed. Port Antonio, on the north coast, was completely overwhelmed. Only six houses were left standing there. The United Fruit company's wharves, offices, hotel and plantation were utterly demolished. Five of the company's steamers were driven ashore, but are lying in easy positions. Port Maria, another town on the north coast, also suffered similarly. The coast is strewn with wreckage of local sailing vessels. It is feared that the loss of life has been heavy, 30 fatalities having already been reported principally among seamen.

The entire eastern end of the island has been devastated. Villages have been wiped out and public buildings and churches demolished. Thousands of the peasantry, rendered homeless and destitute, are wandering about seeking food and shelter. The destruction of the banana plantations has been complete and the fruit trade is paralyzed for the next 12 months. Hundreds of prosperous fruit growers have been brought to bankruptcy and ruin.

The western end of the island, which it was at first supposed had escaped, also suffered considerably, though not to the extent which the eastern end did. New banana plantations planted there were partly destroyed and the orange and coffee crops were also injured. Several sailing vessels were wrecked on the north side.

It is still stormy and threatening and there are fears that there may be a renewal of the storm. Torrential rains have increased the misery of the poor and homeless. Thousands of houses in Kingston were damaged, the wharves were battered and several coasting vessels were sunk in the harbor. Trade is practically at a standstill.

The southeastern portion of the island has been completely denuded of its crops, the rivers are flooded and many men were carried out to sea and drowned. Considering the damage to property during the hurricane the loss of life is comparatively small, though the present estimate now is that the death list will reach 50. Hundreds of persons were injured and there were numerous hairbreadth escapes. The property loss is estimated at $10,000,000.

Cuba Escapes Brunt of Storm

Havana, Aug. 13.—While high winds and threatening conditions prevail in all the provinces of Cuba there have been no reports of any important damage. The land telegraph connection with Santiago has been restored. There was some destruction of crops and small buildings in the province of Pinar del Rio, where the wind appears to have to have been strongest.

Pamphlet Barred In Germany

Leipsic, Aug. 13.—In the trial of the German publisher of Tolstoi's pamphlet, "Thou Shalt Not Kill," which was seized by the police on the ground that it contained statements regarding Emperor William, which were classed as high treason, the court decided that the charge of lese majeste had been proven and ordered the unsold copies of the pamphlet and the plates to be destroyed.

STRUCK A LEDGE

Battleship Massachusetts Meets With Accident Which Will Lay Her Up

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 13.—While leaving the harbor during a thick fog in company with other vessels of the North Atlantic squadron, the battleship Massachusetts sustained considerable damage by striking on a ledge of rock off the western end of Egg Rock. The big vessel slipped over the rocks into deep water, but the two forward bulkheads immediately filled with water and it was subsequently found that several plates forward had been cracked. The Massachusetts was headed back into the harbor with considerable difficulty. She will remain here until Captain Manning, her commander, receives orders from Washington.

It is believed that the accident was due to a miscalculation of her position on the part of the navigating officer. When the battleship struck she was going at the rate of about 9 1-2 knots.

Captain Manning says that he could have proceeded with the rest of the fleet, but thought it wiser to return. It is expected that the Massachusetts will proceed to Brooklyn navy yard under her own steam, where she will be dry docked and the full extent of her damages ascertained.

Town Depopulated of Negroes

Whitesboro, Tex., Aug. 13.—Eight negroes were arrested for an attempted criminal assault on Mrs. Hart, a white woman, here. Seven were released, and the eighth man was held for identification. A mob appeared at the jail last night, took the negro and hanged him. Before he became unconscious officers rescued the negro and are hurrying him to Sherman. After the negro Brown had been forcibly taken from the mob, its members turned their attention to the colored residents of the town. Guns were fired, and the terror-stricken negroes were ordered to leave town at once. As a result outgoing trains on all roads are crowded with negroes.

Retains Title of Rear Admiral

Washington, Aug. 13.—Rear Admiral Cook, who recently was promoted to that grade, subject to examination, has passed his physical examination. Because of ill-health it was feared at one time that he would not be able to pass the physical test, in which event he would have had to retire as captain. He was given additional numbers for conspicuous service in the destruction of Cervera's fleet, in which engagement he commanded the Brooklyn, Rear Admiral Schley's flagship.

Victims of Tunnel Disaster Buried

Paris, Aug. 13.—Fifty-eight victims of the Metropolitan tunnel catastrophe were buried yesterday, the condition of the bodies not permitting any delay. The rest of the victims were buried today, when a formal ceremony was held, Premier Combes pronouncing a discourse on behalf of the government and the president of the municipality speaking on behalf of the city. The judicial investigation into the cause of the accident is proceeding.

Senator Heyburn Takes a Bride

Westchester, Pa., Aug. 13.—In strict accordance with the usages of the Society of Friends, United States Senator Weldon B. Heyburn of Idaho and Miss Gheratien Yeatman were married at the Yeatman homestead near here. After a wedding dinner the newly married couple started on their wedding tour, which will end next week at Wallace, Ida.

Better Late Than Never

Atlanta, Aug. 13.—A bill was passed by the senate yesterday condemning the whipping of female prisoners at state prisons. The house of representatives passed the convict bill, as amended by the senate, providing for the employment of all five-year felony convicts on the public roads. Each county may work its pro-rata number of convicts.

To Reclaim Arid Land

Washington, Aug. 13.—The secretary of the interior has approved the award of contract for the construction of a 30-mile irrigating canal to connect the Truckee and Carson rivers in Nevada to two California firms at an aggregate cost of $942,337. This is the first definite action looking to actual construction under the reclamation act.

Miles May Nominate Black

Denver, Aug. 13.—In an interview here General Miles denied that he was a candidate for the office of commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. He said that he hoped to have the honor of nominating General Black for the position, and that if this was not accorded him he would second Black's nomination.

ALLEN TOOK $75,000

Total Amount of Loss of the Preachers' Aid Society

Boston, Aug. 13.—At a meeting of the corporate members of the Preachers' Aid society Dr. Miles, as head of the organization, presided. The proceedings were secret.

Dr. Miles, when seen after the meeting, stated that the entire sum which Allen, the absconding treasurer, took with him, could not have exceeded $75,000. This included the permanent fund of $70,000 and the income of $5000 after claims were paid.

Dr. Miles was asked if the police charge that Allen's stealings from the Preachers' Aid society was correct. "We have no knowledge that he has taken from us more than $75,000," was the reply. "I should judge it was a clerical error. How the police could complain of him for stealing more I cannot say."

New Title For Bay State

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 12.—At the 12th annual meeting of the Town Clerks' association of Worcester county in this city Judge Curtis of Spencer severely criticised the corporation law passed by the last legislature. The next thing the legislature will probably do, he said, will be to pass an act authorizing the issuing of trading stamps as an incentive to all kinds of wildcat schemes to seek incorporation. New Jersey is called the mother of trusts, he said, and Massachusetts may be known soon as the stepmother.

Will Soon Be on War Basis

Newport, R. I., Aug. 13.—Obedient to orders received from the war department at Washington the artillery district of Narragansett, which includes all the forts in Narragansett bay and Fort Rodman at New Bedford, will be on a war basis Aug. 22, this status to continue to Aug. 29, inclusive. During that period the troops will not be permitted to leave the garrison and will sleep by their guns, alert against possible approach of the attacking squadron. There will be drills daily.

Child Snatched From Death's Jaws

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 13.—Rosa De Longer, 3 years old, was playing near a creek over which a viaduct is being constructed, when she fell into the water. At this point the current is very strong. The little girl was borne swiftly along to the place where Angelo Onorto, a laborer, was working, when he sprang into the water and after a desperate struggle brought the child, exhausted from fright, but otherwise not much the worse for her experience, ashore.

Murder Theory Confirmed

Bangor, Me., Aug. 13.—Professor Robinson has reported the result of his analysis of the stomach of the daughter of Mrs. Hattie E. Whitten who was charged with the murder of her daughter, and who committed suicide while in charge of a deputy sheriff. Professor Robinson reports that he found the stomach strongly impregnated with arsenic. His report confirms the charge of murder made by the state.

Unusual success seems to attend the police in running down the burglar who entered the house of Charles W. Clifford at Wollaston early on the morning of Aug. 4, and assaulted Mr. Clifford and George Heal.

One sensational chapter follows another, and each one futher implicates Sam Scott, the Negro, who was successfully pursued by Inspector McKay and arrested under a bridge at Stoughton the same day.

Scott has been at Dedham jail since his arraignment for murderous assault, but yesterday he was brought to the Quincy police station for trial in the district court this morning.

Upon his arrival he was inclined not to talk with the police, but when confronted with the evidence which the Quincy officers have obtained of his whereabouts previous to the break, he confessed all.

At the time there were present Sergeant Barry, Inspector McKay and Officer Cahill.

Scott said at the outset that he had a chum named Joe Bailey, but they had not been together of late, and he did not know where he was.

On the evening before the break, Scott said he brought 30 cents' worth of morphine and a quart of gin in Boston; that he ate the morphine and drank the gin. He then started from Boston and lay down to sleep near the railroad tracks and that he was awakened by two men during the night.

Scott said he got into the Clifford house through a window at the back. He found the window open he said, and got in by turning a barrel over and standing on its head.

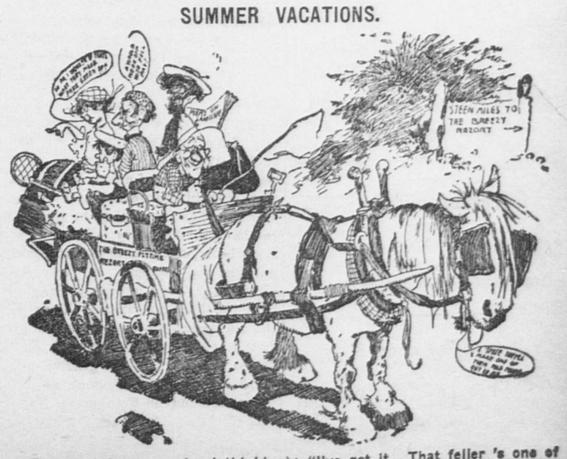

Once inside the house he found something to eat on the table. After eating he went up stairs and went into Mr. Clifford's room without awakening its occupant.

He had with him a knife with a hinge on the back and a revolver. The revolver, he says was not loaded.

When asked why he cut the men, Scott said he didn't know, but he declared it was not because he was afraid Mr. Clifford would shoot him, because he did not know Mr. Clifford had a re-

Good Afternoon

Some papers are criticising General Young for putting on the three stars while Miles still had a right to wear them. But then Miles put them on while Hennesy still had a right to wear them, and old Gen. Scott's memoirs confess that he locked himself in his room and posed before the mirror for three hours when he got his brigadier generals new uniform.

The report the President refused to permit a picnic of Washington poor children on the White House grounds because colored children had been excluded when the invitations were sent out is another newspaper "fake." The real reason is the "little dears" do nearly a thousand dollars damage every Easter Monday, when they are permitted to roll eggs on the White House lawn, and the officers at the White House thought one such picnic a year was enough.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Defaulting Treasurer Allen was a reprobate, sure enough. "During the last ten years," says a Boston politician, "his contributions to the ward and city committee have been just $5, and this in spite of the fact that he was a candidate for public office much of the time." What a rascal!--New Bedford Standard.

☞Brockton's tax rate is $21.90 this year, an increase of $1.90 over last year's figures, and the highest since the war. What is more, there is, according to the Brockton Enterprise, no assurance that the situation will not be worse next year, instead of better. All the responsibility for such an increase as that cannot be laid upon extravagance in the management of state affairs.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ If the present price of cotton could be maintained the south would soon become the richest agricultural section of the United States. Those who are taking a rosy view of the situation are insisting that the present price will be maintained and the south will get between $140,000,000 and $150,000,000 a year more for her cotton crop. Should their views of the situation prove correct the prosperity of the south would be phenomenal.—Savannah News.

☞ The man who was private secretary to Andrew Carnegie has written a book, setting forth the secrets of the steel trade, and the means whereby the great steel king acquired his millions. The tale is as interesting to the world as Ida Tarbell's story of the rise of Rockefeller, and in both cases the multimillionaires appear in unenviable light. But they probably care very little for these revelations. They have the money and the power that it gives and whatever a disappointed ex-employes may say, or the general public think, is of little moment to them. They all stand on the famous Vanderbilt platform.—Lynn Item.

☞Times are reaching such a pass that one can hardly do a bit of crooked work in any public position without danger of suspicion and discovery.—Baltimore American.

CONFESSIONS NOT NECESSARY.

To Hold Sam Scott the Negro Burglar, for Grand Jury.

Judge Avery Decided There Was Evidence Enough Without It

Mr. and Mrs. Clifford and Others Testify at Quincy Court.

The case of Sam Scott, the Negro who it is alleged broke into the house of Charles W. Clifford at Wollaston on the morning of Tuesday, Aug. 4, and made a murderous assault with a knife upon Mr. Clifford and his step brother George Heal, came up this morning before Judge Avery in the district court on continuance.

Inspector McKay conducted the case for the government, and C. G. Darling, Esq., of Dedham, appeared for Scott.

The first witness was Charles W. Clifford.

Mr. Clifford said he retired about 10.30. He was awakened by his wife who heard a noise down stairs. He got up and lighted the lamp and called his brother-in-law, George Heal. We heard some one walking and we went through the kitchen to the summer kitchen. Here we saw a Negro standing by the back door which was ajar, and the screen door open.

The Negro knocked the chimney off the lamp and made an assault on me and cut me with a knife. Heal was just back of me. We tackled him. He also cut me on the right arm and left leg. After scuffling awhile Heal shouted that his throat was cut.

Witness ran out for help. As he came back the fellow ran by him. Met Heal in the doorway and then went for the doctor.

Witness recognized Scott as the man by his height and statue. He believed he was the man. The fellow had on a black soft hat at the time. Something over $2 in money was taken from my clothing which hung on the bed post. He could not identify the handkerchief that Scott had as his.

Mrs. Clifford testified that she was awakened in the night and heard a noise as though come one was going down stairs slowly. She got up and walked into the hall, and saw that the light was turned down. Turned light up and heard some one step from the lower step. Awoke her husband and he and Mr. Heal went down stairs talking. Soon she heard a crash and exclamations.

Ran to window and called for help. Then heard someone cry, "my throat is cut."

My husband called me to bring a light. I met him coming up stairs all covered with blood. We went through the kitchen but saw no one. Heard a noise toward the front door and Mr. Heal came in and sank to the floor. Examination showed that the window which she had closed was open, and that the lunch she left for her husband had disappeared.

Witness upon being shown the handkerchief said that it was the exact counterpart of three that she had purchased for her husband. She now had two of them but the third had disappeared.

Dr. C. S. Adams testified to being called on the morning of Aug. 4. He found Mr. Heal had received a deep cut on the neck. The first cut noticed was from the angle of the jaw forward to middle of the chin, six inches in length; also a wound 2 3-4 inches long on the neck, one 2 1-2 inches long on the cheek, and another under the ear 2 1-2 inches long.

Also described the cuts on Mr. Heal's arm. In all Mr. Heal had twelve cuts. Mr. Heal will recover.

Also described Mr. Clifford's wounds in detail. The worst was the cut on the face 5 1-2 inches long.

Dr. Wellington Record corroborated the testimony of Dr. Adams.

The opinion of the two physicians was that the cuts were made by a sharp instrument. No stabs but drawing cuts.

Frank E. Davis, a Dorchester stable keeper, testified to seeing Scott at his stable on Monday, Aug. 3. He stood about some time and asked for help. He wore two pair of pants and a hat similar to that found at the Clifford house. He wore a sweater and coat. He identified the trousers found by Officer Murray as the ones worn by Scott when he came to his stable. The rest he could not tell about.

Charles J. A. Nelson of Old Colony street indentified Scott as the man whom he had seen lying side of the track Monday night about 10.30. Woke him up. Was moonlight. He described the trousers Scott wore and indentified the trousers found by Officer Murray as the ones Scott had on. Also the hat as similar to that he saw Scott wear. It was bright moonlight at time.

Miss Mary Lyons of Harrison Square testified that Scott resembled very much the man whom she saw pass her home on Monday about 5.45 P. M.

Daniel F. Roche of Dorchester had his attention attracted on Monday morning, Aug. 3, to a Negro on the opposite side of the street. His attention was attracted by the clothing and walk of the man. He should say that Scott and the man he saw were identical. The clothing looked as though he had slept in them.

Police officer James W. Murray testified to finding the soiled trousers and vest in the passage way leading to the depot from Granite street.

James O. Sypher testified to seeing Scott on Union street, Braintree, on the morning of Aug. 4, about 10 o'clock. He described his dress. Scott said you don't see a coon very often this way." To this witness replied that there was a colored fellow below and he was a good fellow. Negro wore a handkerchief on his head tied at the four corners. Pants were rolled. Wore a low plain cheap shoe. Had on no coat.

At this point the court took a recess for ten minutes.

The first witness after the court again came in was Mrs. Ellen Brown. She testified that Scott came to her kitchen stairs and asked for a coat and hat. He had a handkerchief on his head. He said he had gone to sleep in a car and when he woke up his hat and coat were gone.

No further evidence was offered, and the court held Scott in $3,000 for the grand jury.

During the hearing Scott sat in one corner of the cage facing the window toward Washington street. His eyes would first wander to the ceiling, and then to the floor; then they would close and his head would bob forward as though asleep. Then he would recover himself and start up suddenly.

Not once during the hearing did he look at the witnesses. Even when Mr. Clifford was describing his encounter with Scott he didn't pay any attention to what was said or look at him. In fact he had the appearance of one who did not care or was resigned to his fate.

Wedding at Bath.

At Bath Wednesday evening, Miss Mabel A. Palmer and Mr. Herbert I. Harris were married at the Winter Street Congregational church by Rev. O. W. Folsome. Miss Delia Low was made of honor and David Owen best man.

Clerk of Court Sustained.

On the opening of this morning's session of the District Court Judge Avery announced his decision on the question of Clerk Churchill's authority to issue writs, sustaining the clerk. The question arose two weeks ago in the course of a mechanic liefi on a building in Edison Park. The finding of the court was telegraphed to Mr. Churchill who is away on a vacation and anxious to know the limits of his powers in labor suits.

CONFESSION BY SCOTT

volver. During his fight in the house Scott says he was not cut, but that he got covered with blood from the two men.

After getting away from the house he ran along the railroad tracks for a considerable distance. When he thought himself safe he took off a pair of trousers and his vest and left them near the railroad tracks. During this change of clothing he mislaid $2.50 and has not seen it since.

He then continued on to Braintree, where he washed himself in what he thought was salt water and hid his coat, knife and revolver behind a stone wall, off Union street. He promised the officers he would take them to Braintree in the morning and show them where the articles were hidden.

Coat Found.

After Scott was brought from Dedham Wednesday night he made a confession to the police, and said he would lead them to where he had hidden the coat, in the pockets of which were his revolver and knife.

Early this morning Chief Hayden and Inspector McKay took Scott to Braintree. He led them to the spot where he said he had hidden the coat. The ground about the spot was trampled down, but the coat had disappeared. The police will endeavor to locate the party who found it.

While court was in session word was received by Inspector McKay that the missing coat had been found, and was in possession of Albert T. Hollingshead, the baggageman at the Braintree depot. An officer was immediately sent to Braintree to bring the coat to Quincy.

The officers arrived back from Braintree with the coat at 12.15. It had been found by a boy in the bushes near the railroad track and turned over to the baggage master. The coat was badly torn, the lower part of both sides and the lining being gone.

There was nothing whatever in the pockets, and the police do not believe it is the coat wanted. It was shown to Scott, who was asked if it was his.

Scott did not look at it. He was leaning back in the cage with his eyes closed mumbling to himself.

A thin froth was running from his mouth and he was either sick or doing a clever piece of acting probably the latter.

Before his counsel left the court room he spoke to Scott who was talking to a group of newspaper men.

His counsel said: I suppose you know you are talking to reporters, Scott, and I hope you will keep your mouth shut and say nothing more. To this Scott replied, I am saying nothing but my prayers.

When asked how he felt, he replied that he felt like Rockfeller, all gone in the stomach. He then asked for a cigarette, which he lighted and apparently enjoyed.

He was taken to Dedham this afternoon.

Lawn Party.

On Wednesday evening the lawns of Mrs. Dalgren and Mrs. McKay's adjoining were prettily decorated with buntings and lanterns, it being the annual lawn party of the Daughters of John Adams L. L. O. L., No. 11, of Quincy. The affair was the most successful ever held by the society. More than three hundred were admitted to the grounds where ice cream and cake were served free. Mickelson's band of twenty pieces stationed on Mrs. Dalgren's piazza furnished excellent music during the evening. Mrs. Dalgren and Mrs. McKay kindly opened their houses for dancing, and the young people enjoyed themselves till long after mid night.

The Popular Excursion to Newport, arranged for by the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad, on Friday, August 14th., is sure to prove an enjoyable occasion, as the attractions of the place, both natural and artificial, are unsurpassed. The special train leaves Quincy at 9.30 A. M., Braintree 9.38, Brockton 10.05, stopping at intermediate stations to Middleboro inclusive.

Trolley Party and Dinner.

Quincy Council, Knights of Columbus, with ladies, held their annual outing Wednesday evening at Nantasket Point. There were about one hundred in the party. They left Quincy in special cars at 6.40 and upon their arrival at Nantasket Point sat down to one of D. O. Wade's shore dinners. After dinner there was dancing and other amusements, and all enjoyed a grand good time.

Social Union.

A business meeting of the Ladies' Social Union of the West Quincy M. E. Church was held at the home of Mrs. J. Cheever Carley, Willard street, Tuesday evening. Business pertaining to the last lawn party was discussed and it was found that the sum of $110 had been realized. A good number were present. Ices and cake were served.

SIR THOMAS LIPTON, WHO HAS SPENT MORE MONEY ON YACHT RACING THAN ANY OTHER MAN.

W. Y. C. Clambake.

F. F. Taylor, chairman of the Entertainment committee of the Wollaston Yacht club, announces the following arrangements for the annual clam-bake to be held on Saturday at Wade's pavilion, Nantasket Point. Boats will leave the club house floats at 2 o'clock sharp, and there will be room for all the members, and such friends as they may invite. Those who cannot go from the club house can take Nantasket Point steamers, leaving from Bay Line wharf, 400 Atlantic avenue, at 2.15 or 3.15. Dinner will be served at 4 o'clock.

Water Melon Social.

Mr. Bridgham of the engineering department, of the Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board, gave a water melon social, Wednesday afternoon, to a few friends, at the corner of Sea and Palmer streets. It was a water melon-choly social for all. The entire engineering force turned out.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

How Jim Bug Was Frightened

"The police are after you!" cried Butterfly to Jim Bug.

"What for?" asked Jim Bug.

"They say you climbed the fence around Farmer Jones' orchard and bit a piece out of one of his apples."

"Oh, my!" cried Jim Bug. "I am discovered! What will they do with me?"

Then he began to run for his home. When he finally reached the house he rushed in out of breath.

"Oh, ma," he cried, "what am I to do? The police are after me for taking a bite out of one of Mr. Jones' apples."

"Hide in the cellar under the washtub!" exclaimed his mother.

So down into the cellar Jim Bug hurried and crawled under the washtub. He kept just as quiet as he could because he expected a big fat policeman would come along at any moment and carry him off to jail.

Presently he heard his mother coming down the stairs.

"It's all right, Jimmie; it's all right!" she cried. "They are not coming to do anything with you."

"How do you know, ma?" he asked.

"Caterpillar has just been here and told me," she replied. "They were going to punish you, but changed their minds."

"Why, ma?"

"Because they found that you had only bitten a crab apple. They thought that would make you very sick and that would be punishment enough for you."

"I do feel rather sick under my shirt," said Jim.

"Well, I'll give you a dose of ginger and you'll be well in a little while," said his mother.

"That was the greatest scare I ever had in my life," said Jim. "I guess I won't eat any more apples that are not mine."—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Lost Man Returns.

Harry C. Hammonds, who mysteriously disappeared Saturday Aug. 1, returned home last Sunday morning. On the day that he disappeard he drove to Wollaston to take the train for Boston. He was seen to enter the Wollaston depot at 2 o'clock. He then apparently dropped out of sight.

When he returned home Sunday he could give but little account of himself. All that he knew was that when he came to himself he was in the woods and upon inquiry found that he was in Maine. He immediately started for home.

Fatal Accident.

Edward Irwin aged 14 years of 58 Penn street died at the City Hospital Wednesday night of blood poisoning which probably resulted from a wound received earlier in the day.

The boy was employed as tool boy at John R. Richards granite works at South Quincy. While fooling with others about the plant he was struck in the leg with a chisel. He was removed to City Hospital where inflammation set in and he died of blood poisoning.

TO IMPROVE SUBMARINES.

Englishman's Device Enables Them to Travel Great Distances.

A remarkable invention has been adopted by the British admiralty, the effect of which is to increase the efficiency of British submarines, says a London cable dispatch to the Chicago Inter Ocean.

At present the radius of submarine attack is restricted owing to the difficulties of ventilation and the carrying of fuel, but experiments warrant the belief that the new submarines will be able to travel immense distances, with disastrous effects on the ports of an enemy.

The existing submarine fleet of Britain is not, however, rendered obsolete. On the contrary, it can easily be adapted to utilize the new discovery.

The inventor is a British officer well known for his brilliant capabilities. The most remarkable feature in his design is its extreme simplicity. Details of the invention are of course withheld by the admiralty.

Strange Currency.

In Dahomey, according to a French official report recently issued, the currency is cowrie shells, of which a sack of 20,000 is considered the equivalent of $1.50. Seven hundred cowries are worth about 5 cents.

Too Much Hiawatha.

Then the band played Hiawatha,
Played it up and down the highways,
Tooted it along the byways,
At park concerts played it loudly,
Played itself back from the graveyard
To the ever haunting measure,
While the people who will whistle
Joined in misfit key the chorus,
And e'en some dared raise their voices
In a dee-de-dum-ti-dumdum,
Lacking words to grace their meaning
Or, it may be, lacking meaning;
At pianos idly thumping
Tender maidens also played it
Till the atmosphere resounded
With the strains of Hiawatha.

Then, when shades of night had fallen
And the push was silent, tired out—
Then, ah, then we found with sorrow
That it all had been for nothing,
All our suffering for nothing,
For of all the ardent tooters,
All the whistlers so persistent,
All the hummers cracked or raucous,
All the thumpers of pianos,
Not one of the whole blamed outfit
Had in one erratic measure
Struck the note that kills mosquitoes,
And throughout the long night's darkness
Still the insects buzzed about us
That same tune with variations.
So much suffering in futile!

MILTON

The annual picnic of the Sunday school of the Mission church to have been held last week was postponed on account of the storm until this week Monday. About seventy participated and spent an enjoyable day at Nantasket Point.

Josiah Babcock lost one of a pair of valuable mules this week. The animal strayed away and got lost in the swamp off Squantum street. He sank so deep that he could not get out, and as his head was imbeded in the mud he was suffocated. Tuesday one of Ward's teams came out after the mule. In trying to get him out of the mud one of Ward's horses became stuck and was with difficulty rescued before he expired. The dead mule is still in the swamp.

The Thursday Evening club are holding their annual fishing trip today.

Rev Theodore I. Reese has returned from Maine and will preach on Sunday evening at the Mission, on the "Doctrine of the church."

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Quimby have gone to Nova Scotia for a two months' trip.

A survey is being made at East Milton for the sewer.

W. H. Clark has gone to Gardner, Me.

The roof of the new Mission church has been boarded in and work is progressing rapidly.

Mr. and Mrs. George Skinner are receiving congratulations on the birth last Saturday of twin sons.

Dr. Gilchrist has gone to South Port, Me., on a vacation trip.

An Expensive Sport.

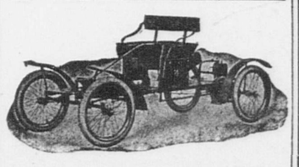

More than $50,000,000 is invested in America's yachting fleet, and of this fully $40,000,000 is invested in steam yachts. The latter number more than 600 vessels. The approximate annual cost of running this fleet may be figured as follows: Wages of 5,000 professionals, seamen, engineers, firemen, cooks, stewards, waiters and coal passers, $1,500,000; stores, including coal, ice, provisions, wine and entertaining, $3,500,000; repairs of all kinds and insurance, $1,000,000. In other words, a grand total of $6,000,000 a season is paid by the American people for the pleasure of steam yachting, says Sporting News.

—Within five years wages for all classes of mechanical operations have increased from 20 to 25 per cent in Hamilton, Canada.

EIGHT RUNS.

Result from Two Home Runs by Boston Nationals.

The Boston-Chicago double-header in the National league in Boston yesterday resulted in a victory for each team.

In the first game the Bostons excelled at the bat, but lost 7 to 4.

In the second game Chicago started in with five runs and added one before Boston scored, but with the bases full in the third Stanley put the ball into the passage way leading to the right field seats and four men scored.

Again in the fourth with the bases full Moran put the ball over the left field fence and four more scored.

Then three runs were needed to win and Boston was equal to the occasion; score 11 to 10.

GREAT OPPORTUNITY.

Cnas. C. Hearn Offers Chance to Save Money, Which Does Not Come Often.

When one can buy gold dollars for fifty cents, it is natural to think they are counterfeit. But when a reliable business man tells you that if any one refuses the dollar, he will return what you paid for it, confidence is established at once.

It is in just this way that Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, is selling Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, offering the regular fifty cent size of this celebrated remedy at half price, and agreeing to return the money if it does not give perfect satisfaction and do all that is claimed for it.

This is your opportunity, and one which does not come often. Do not neglect it. Dr. Howard's specific will cure constipation, will regulate digestion, will restore the liver to natural action. If it did not, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn could not afford to offer to refund the money unless it performed just what he claims for it.

So great is the demand for this specific that Mr. Chas. C. Hearn has been able to secure only a limited supply, and you should take advantage of this opportunity today and call upon him or send 25 cents, and get sixty doses of the best medicine ever made, on this special half price offer, with his personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure.

Twenty Shots Punctured Fishing Steamer on Lake Erie

FIRED BY REVENUE CUTTER

Which Was Patrolling Canadian Side to Prevent Poaching—Shots Whizzed Around Plucky Captain's Head, but He Piloted His Boat to Safety

Erie, Pa., Aug. 13.—The Silver Spray, a fishing boat owned here, came into port in a badly shattered condition, due to an encounter in mid-lake with the Canadian revenue cutter Petrel.

The Canadian authorities have had trouble with American fishermen for years who were poaching on their side of the lake and the Petrel is kept constantly on the lookout for them. About noon yesterday she came upon the Silver Spray on the Canadian side of the lake and at once ordered Captain Chris Chau to stop. The Petrel is a strong steel craft, and, it is said, attempted to ram the American boat before she could comply with the order.

Captain Chau, remembering the fate of several other boats from this side, which had been captured and confiscated, two from Erie only last season, decided to try to escape, and started ahead at full speed. The captain of the Petrel, when he saw that the Silver Spray was trying to get away, opened fire with all the guns he had on board, and before he ceased firing some 20 shots had struck her. One passed through the smokestack into the pilot house, in which Chau stood at the wheel, and two more struck the pilot house, one of which came within a few inches of him, scattering splinters around his head.

That no one was killed was a wonder, as two shots entered the water closet, two the cabin, two the roof, three the after hurricane deck and others in various parts of the boat.

The chase was kept up for some time, and Captain Chau was nearly in despair, as his cold water pump refused to work, and he was also afraid that his boat might be struck below the water line and sink. He succeeded, however, in getting across the dividing line and the Petrel gave up the pursuit.

The Silver Spray is a double-decker and was for 12 years in service at Buffalo as a pleasure steamer.

Captain Chau will report the affair to the state department at Washington, as he says he was only looking for some of his nets which had drifted from this side toward the Canadian shore.

A large number of American fishing tugs have been confiscated by the Canadian government, one, however, belonging at Dunkirk, being a few weeks ago returned to the owners.

The only man injured on the Silver Spray was Frederick Culver, who was hit in the leg by a shot. He is now in the hospital. The fishermen say the Petrel used her small deck cannon.

No Comment From Loomis

Washington, Aug. 13.—Acting Secretary of State Loomis, in the absence of any report from Captain Chau on the subject of the firing on the Silver Spray, declines to make any statement concerning the international aspect of the case.

Seaboard Air Line Changes Hands

New York, Aug. 13.—The announcement that the Seaboard Air line had passed into new hands is made by Ladenburg, Thalmann & Co., who issued a statement showing that interests representing the Rock Island and St. Louis and San Francisco railways had secured representation in the Seaboard directorate and board of voting trustees. The Seaboard Air line railway company operates 2611 miles of road.

Irondequoit Again a Winner

Toronto, Aug. 13.—The fourth race for the Canada's cup was won by the Irondequoit by 1m. 18s. in spite of the fact that the weather conditions were favorable to the defender. A strong 13-knot breeze blew from the northwest, but there was little sea. The course was a nine-mile run to leeward and return. The race was a duel from the time the boats crossed the line and both skippers showed good seamanship.

C. PATCH & SON,

MASSACRE IS FEARED

Fanatical Mussulmans Are Becoming Excited

MIGHT HAVE AID OF TURKS

In Slaughter of Christians, as Sultan's Soldiers Will Be Unreliable In Event of Serious Fighting—Accessions to Macedonians' Ranks

Sofia, Aug. 13.—The reports from Bulgarian official agents in Macedonia show that affairs are rapidly growing worse. The fact that the Mussulman population is becoming excited and congregating in the mosques is regarded as a bad feature, indicating the possibility that a massacre may occur within a very short time. It is feared that such a massacre would cover a wide area and include both the large towns and the villages, and that the Turkish soldiers would prove incapable of restraining the fanatical Mussulmans even if they desired to do so, which is by no means certain.

Monastir now contains only four battalions of Turkish troops, two consisting of raw recruits, who will be quite unreliable in the event of serious trouble. It is thought quite possible that the troops might even aid the Mussulmans in slaughtering the Christians.

The officials here blame Turkey for the present sudden outbreak, attributing it largely to the action of the porte in instituting a search for arms in the villages. The Macedonian leaders, finding that their followers were being deprived of guns and ammunition, realized that they might soon be rendered powerless to prosecute a campaign, and decided to rise immediately. The signal for the revolt was given by firing hay and straw ricks. The Bulgarian villagers then took to the hills in a body.

The Bulgarian government is said to be particularly displeased with Turkey's action because it had urged the porte to leave the villagers in peace, believing that this would result in staving off the trouble till next year, as the insurgents seemed to entertain hopes that the powers would soon intervene.

The government also charges Turkey with doing less to prevent the insurgents from crossing the frontier than Bulgaria, though Turkey maintains four times as many troops along the border. The turkish soldiers invariably retire to barracks at sunset and remain there until sunrise, leaving free egress to the Macedonian insurgents during the night. The Turks fight bravely during daylight, but dislike skirmishing in the dark.

It is everywhere declared that the present ministry is doing its utmost to check the revolutionary movement, but the situation is reaching a point where circumstances may prove too strong for the cabinet. The growing economic depression in the country constitutes a dangerous factor in the situation. The merchants are unable to obtain credit abroad and are forced to pay cash.

The influx of thousands of Macedonians across the border has disorganized the labor market and has become a source of great discontent. The commercial classes declare that the present condition of affairs is no longer endurable. Even war, whatever might be the result, would be preferable, as it would be followed by a period of rest.

The ministry is certainly confronted with a complicated problem. The return of Prince Ferdinand is quite indefinite. It is thought now that the premier will visit the prince in Hungary, after returning from his inspection of the frontier posts.

Representatives of the Macedonian committee say that the Roumanian and Greek inhabitants of a number of villages have joined the insurgents, and that the Mohammedans are taking refuge in the cities and towns. At Krushevo the revolutionists have seized the repeating rifles and ammunition stored in the magazine.

Austria Feels More Confident

Vienna, Aug. 13.—Notwithstanding the increasing number of reports of outbreaks in the Balkans official circles begin to manifest a more confident attitude. Serious representations will again be made to Turkey and Bulgaria which, it is hoped, will prove efficacious. Nevertheless it is admitted that some untoward incident may easily precipitate disaster.

Close Watch by Italy

Rome, Aug. 13.—The government of Italy is sending reinforcements to the battalion of infantry which has been kept on the island of Crete since the Graeco-Turkish war in order to have contingent troops there in case the complications in Macedonia should render their use necessary.

Servians Panic-Stricken

Cettinje, Montenegro, Aug. 13.—The Servians throughout Old Servia are in a state of panic because of the departure of the Turkish troops for Monastir, which removes all protection from the Servians against the vengeance of the Albanians.

FACTIONS FAR APART

Split In Hamilton County to Go Before Ohio Democratic Convention

Cincinnati, Aug. 13.—Forty delegates, who held a second convention after the Democratic convention of Hamilton county had adjourned, have called a public meeting for next Friday night. It is specified that one of the objects of the meeting is to protest against the leadership of Lewis G. Bernard, who is charged with controlling the local organization through an alliance with George B. Cox, the local Republican leader.

The dissenting delegates at their convention appointed a committee, headed by Rev. H. S. Bigelow, to report on a plan for bringing the contests of Hamilton county first before the Democratic central committee and afterward before the committee on credentials and the state convention, and this committee will report at the opening of the mass meeting on Friday night. Among the seats in the state convention thus contested is that of Melville E. Ingalls, who is prominently mentioned for senatorial endorsement. The local faction, headed by Bernard, represents those favorable to John L. Zimmerman for governor, and the faction headed by Bigelow represents those favorable to Mayor Johnson.

Were Mme Humbert's Brothers

Paris, Aug. 13.—Witnesses at the Humbert trial yesterday formally and positively identified Romain and Emile Daurignac, Mme. Therese Humbert's brothers, as being the men who impersonated the American millionaires, "Robert and Henry Crawford." Other witnesses testified that the signatures of the two Crawfords were executed by the two Daurignacs. Personal identifications were given by a notary named Dupuy and a court clerk named Dehez of Bayonne, before whom the alleged Crawfords took out legal papers which were used in keeping of the creditors of the Humbert family.

One Third Wages While Idle

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 13.—The United States Reduction and Refining company will close down the plants owned and operated by the company on account of the strike inaugurated expressly to cut off the supply of ore from the company's mills. This will throw about 500 men out of employment, all of whom are to receive one-third their present wages for six months, in accordance with a promise made to those who stood by the company at the time of the first trouble with the Western Federation of Miners.

Indian Sun Dance Defended

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 13.—Dr. Dorsey, curator of anthropology of the Field Columbian Museum of Chicago, who has just arrived here, has given out an interview concerning the published accounts of his recent visit with Dr. Mooney to the Cheyenne Indians in Oklahoma. Dr. Dorsey contends that the sun dance is religion to the Indians and that they have a right to celebrate it under the clause of the constitution granting American citizens freedom of worship.

Gold Mine Has New Owners

Colorado Springs, Col., Aug. 13.—W. K. Ryan has purchased control of the Portland Gold Mining company, owning and operating the Portland mine at Cripple Creek, for the Whitney-Ryan syndicate and the Guggenheim Exploration company. The price paid is said to be in the neighborhood of $5,000,000.

Four Girls Hurt In Explosion

Philadelphia, Aug. 13.—An explosion at the United States arsenal at Frankford, a suburb, caused a panic, in which four girls were severely but not seriously injured. The explosion occurred in the cartridge loading department, and was caused by friction. The building was only slightly damaged.

Guarding Against Sinking of Battleship Massachusetts

SETS TEN INCHES TOO LOW

Notwithstanding All Ammunition, Anchors and Heavy Stores Have Been Removed From Her—Evident That Someone Made a Blunder

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 14.—The injuries to the battleship Massachusetts, caused by striking on Egg rock shoal, are more serious than the first examination indicated. Not only are the forward compartments full of water, but the ship is leaking farther aft, and divers have been at work trying to locate the defective part. The collier Labanon and a government tug have taken on board all the ammunition, anchors and heavy stores in order to lighten the ship forward. She now floats in a natural position, but is drawing about 10 inches more water than usual. Considering the great weight that was taken from her it is very evident that an enormous quantity of water must be inside in order to put a ship of her size down 10 inches.

Late yesterday afternoon the Indiana, Massachusetts, Lebanon and Hartford came down to the lower harbor and anchored. The Massachusetts anchored near Bald Porcupine. It is said that the object in changing was to get into more shallow water, where, in case the water tight bulkheads gave way or the leak becomes more serious, the ship would not sink in deep water.

Captain Eaton has not been instructed as to what will be done with the ship, but it is evident that she will remain here until the extent of the injuries can be definitely learned.

Captain Emory of the Indiana, who is the ranking officer here, has convened a board of inquiry consisting of himself, the captain of the Hartford, Captain Mertz of the Newport and Lieutenant Commanders Van Duzen, Hobson and Shultz. Their findings will be reported to Washington, but whatever they may say it is evident that some one has made a serious blunder. It is evident that the injuries to the Massachusetts are more serious than her officers are willing to admit.

Washington, Aug. 14.—Orders have been sent to Naval Constructor Gilmore at Bath, Me., to make a thorough inspection of the ships and report the extent of the damage to the department. The commandant at the Boston navy yard has been telegraphed instructions to order a wrecking pump to the Massachusetts to pump out the water from the flooded compartments.

In reply to Captain Emory's repeated inquiries as to when he can sail with the Indiana to join his fleet the acting secretary has informed him by telegraph that he is to remain by the Massachusetts for the present.

Orders have been sent to the Brooklyn navy yard to get the dock there in readiness for the Massachusetts, which is to go there for repairs. Compartment A43, which was one of the compartments flooded, is up almost on a level with the protective deck.

At the department it is realized that the damage to the Massachusetts may cost a large amount to repair.

One hundred thousand dollars was spent on the Massachusetts when she grounded in New York harbor in 1899. The pilot of the vessel was suspended for this accident.

Alarming Activity of Vesuvius

Rome, Aug. 14.—Vesuvius is again causing intense alarm in the surrounding region, the eruptions of the volcano being very heavy. The detonations are very loud and almost continuous, while from a fresh opening at the base of the principal crater two streams of lava are issuing. One stream has covered ground already arid from previous eruptions, but the other is going swiftly towards the village of Ottajaro. The whole district around the volcano is shaken by frequent earth shocks and a perfect panic prevails.

Battles Raging In Macedonia

Salonica, Aug. 14.—Four thousand troops are bombarding Krushevo, which is in the hands of the insurgents, and the Bulgarians in the Krushevo and Reka districts are suffering severely. Fighting is proceeding at Chernareka, near Gumenje, to which place reinforcements have been sent. A great movement of troops is proceeding at Mitrovitsa, Salonica and Sorovitch. A big fight is proceeding at Diavol, near Monastir.

Raid on Slot Machines

Franklin, Mass., Aug. 14.—Two seizures of alleged gambling machines were made here by Agent Davis of the Watch and Ward society, assisted by a constable. At Hotel Hoog two machines were taken, and the proprietor was placed under arrest. At Wayside cafe the officers seized a slot machine in the pool room and another at the cafe. The proprietor and the man who has the pool room privileges were taken into custody.

Plot to Kill Dominican President

Paris, Aug. 14.—Dispatches from Santo Domingo say that a plot to murder President Wos y Gil has been discovered and that there have been many arrests. President Wos y Gil overthrew the former president, General Vasquez, at the time of the revolution last spring and proclaimed himself president, being subsequently elected. His election was proclaimed by congress July 22.

Colorado Miners' Strike Spreads

Cripple Creek, Col., Aug. 14.—Union miners working in the drainage tunnel have been called out by their executive officers. The tunnel, which will drain most of the big mines of the district, would probably have been completed in another week. The strike was ordered in consequence of the refusal to employ only union men There are now about 4000 miners idle in the district.

Another Tumble For Stinson

Hartford, Aug. 14.—After riding a mile and a quarter in the first heat of a three-cornered motor paced race Stinson had a fall, as the tire of his front wheel came off. He was cut in several places, but no bones were broken. Harry Caldwell was given the heat. Stinson defeated Munroe in the second heat by three-fourths of a lap.

Salisbury In Critical Condition

London, Aug. 14.—Lord Salisbury is seriously indisposed, according to information received from his family at Hatfield house. It is stated that there is no immediate danger, although it is admitted that the condition of the marquis is critical. He has not been well for months, and at present exhaustion is pronounced.

Centennial Birthday Quincy Should Celebrate.

1803. OCTOBER 18. 1903.

Anniversary of the Birth of Thomas Crane.

One of the Benefactors of the City of Presidents.

Gave Crane Memorial Hall for Public Library—Dedicated in 1882.

The centennial anniversary of the birth of the late Thomas Crane should not pass unobserved. The date is October 18, this year. Thomas Crane was one of Quincy's greatest benefactors, and one of the pioneers to present to his native town a public library building. Through his foresight, generosity and love of the town of his birth, Quincy of today is not beholden to Carnegie or any outsider for its beautiful public library building. The grounds for the same were purchased by the city, but the family of Mr. Crane are continually improving the same, and have recently made a substantial addition which make them extensive and beautiful.

The centennial celebration should appeal to the granite manufacturers and the granite cutters of the city, for Thomas Crane learned the trade of a stone cutter in Quincy, and then went to New York city. Later he became one of the captains of industry. Literally he built his house upon a rock. Granite, not speculation, was at the foundation of his fortune. He used considerable Quincy granite in building up New York, especially after the crisis of 1837.

Thomas Crane was also a member of Rural lodge of Masons, which organization laid the corner stone of Crane Memorial Hall on Washington's Birthday in 1881, and conducted the dedication ceremonies on Memorial Day in 1882. The Masons would probably assist at a centennial celebration of Thomas Cranes' Birthday.

Charles Francis Adams in his address at the dedication of Crane Memorial Hall, on Memorial day, 1882, said in part:

"Here in Quincy his monument stands and will stand, and here it is fit and proper it should stand; here if he could have been consulted, he would most have wished to have it stand. It stands close by the familiar way over which, with brothers and sisters, he walked as a boy to the village school close by,—the way which a young man, he trod as he went to that church in the city where he heard God's word as he needed it,—the way which, later, when he returned to his birthplace in the full tide of mature and successful life, carried him back to those places he loved so well, in which his youth had been passed.

"Quincy was to him always a haven of rest and refreshment. It was Quincy that he liked to go back from the noise and bustle and dust of the great city; it was in Quincy that he would most have wished to be remembered. And he will be remembered here. His name, written as it were in water where he lived and did his work, will now long be in Quincy a household word.

"And it is right also that it should be so; for, take him for all in all, Thomas Crane stands easily first today among the many children Quincy has contributed to the great New England migration. He was the most shining example of those qualities of intelligence, energy, persistence, honesty, temperance and God-fearing morality which made that New England migration the force it was and the yet greater force it is distined to be.

"As the most shining example that this town produced, it is therefore fit and proper that his monument, reared by pious hands, should stand here by the roadside, a conspicuous memorial for coming generations.

"As I said when I began, I repeat now,—it is more, far more, than a monument to an individual. There is a sermon to the young in its every stone. It stands as a reminder of those sterling, homely qualities (qualities which all possess, and yet so few know how to utilize) which made him—whose name the building bears and whose effigy, carved by the hand of genius, looks down from its walls—the man he was.

"It is no monument of human greatness, of conquests and brilliant deeds. For the mass of those who shall enter its doors it is better, much better than that. Not all men can be great; and the ways of greatness are not the ways of happiness. We can, however, all be temperate; we can be industrious; we can be patient and presevering; we can cleave to that which is true and honest and of good repute.

"All this Thomas Crane did; and because he did it he achieved success and happiness in life, and his monument stands here today,—the monument of a son of whom his birthplace may well be proud, and whose name her children will long hold in close remembrance."

Proceedings are to be commenced against the baby-carriage trust. We imagine President Roosevelt and ex-President Cleveland will both heartily approve of the movement.

While Englishmen are trying to win the America's cup the Canada cup has been captured at Toronto by the Rochester Yacht club. The Strathcona successfully defended the cup in the first two races, but with a change of skippers the Irondequoit of Rochester won the last three and gets possession of the cup.

Secretary Root has begun a little "trust-busting" on his own account. He has cited the owners of the Merchant's bridge at St. Louis to show why they should not forfeit their bridge to the government because they have practically consolidated with the Eads bridge and perpetuated the monopoly they were designed to remedy.

The Trustees of the Thomas Crane Public Library and the Mayor seem the proper ones to take the initiative in planning for an observance of the centennial birthday of the late Thomas Crane, as suggested by the Daily Ledger. The fact that Mr. Crane gave Quincy her beautiful public library building is enough, but Mr. Crane was an exemplary gentleman; once a school boy of Quincy; then a granite cutter and later a manufacturer. A man qualified for high office, but unassuming, upright, and a pillar of the Universalist church in its earlier days.

The 18th of October falls on a Sunday nine weeks hence, but the centennial could be celebrated on two days—on Sunday in the churches of the city, and on Monday as the Mayor and Trustees of the Library may decide.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ When the state authorities in Pennsylvania get through with their war on the adulteration of milk, it is to be hoped they will take up the question of corruption in politics.—Florida Times-Union.

☞ Newport's men are said to be marked by the remarkable headgear they effect. It is a characteristic of the men of wealth at the summer resort to be notable in their attire and in their ablility to advertise themselves and gain a certain kind and quality of fame. It might as well be the hat as anything that is used to call attention to these able citizens who have little but money to commend them to the attention of their fellowmen.—Brockton Enterprise.

☞ It is said that William L. Douglass would become a candidate for mayor of Brockton if he could receive the endorsement of Democratic and Republican parties, and if that be true there ought to be no hesitation on the part of either party in giving him the required nomination. When a man of such executive ability consents to enter the public service, the best party management is that which is big enough to look over the dividing line of party doctrine and recognize the public interest in the matter.—Haverhill Gazette.

HOUSE RAZED.

Dan McLane Did It in Twenty Minutes to Stop Conflagration.

The Schenectady Star of Wednesday has the following of local interest, of the work of Dan McLane formerly of Quincy at a fire in that city:

The thousands who on Sunday last visited the scene of the disastrous fire of the night before and viewed the pile of lumber which represented the dwelling house that had been torn down to check the progress of the flames, wondered how the work had been done.

They used dynamite and blew up the building," was the information vouched by an important-looking individual who described at considerable length just how such things were accomplished.

This information was generally accepted and the word passed from one to another until mostly everybody got the impression that this was the way it was done.

But it wasn't.

No dynamite was used. The building was not blown up; it was torn down, and it was torn down most expeditiously at that, for in exactly twenty minutes from the time the work was started the building was razed.

When Chief Yates saw how impotent were the efforts of the department successfully to cope with the fire he went to Daniel J. McLane, the general foreman of construction work for the Schenectady Railroad company, who was at the fire with the emergency wagon, and asked him if he could tear down that particular building in time to stop the progress of the fire.

"Give me help enough and I'll level it with the ground in less than a half-hour," was Mr. McLane's reply.

"We'll give you all the help you want," said Chief Yates. "Go ahead and take it down."

Mr. McLane with Foreman H. O'Brien and crew of four men on the emergency wagon went to work at once, Chief Yates detailing about forty fireman to assist in hauling on the ropes. A big hawser from the emergency wagon was used.

The men went about the work of demolition in a systematic manner. Like magic the front door was snapped off; the window shutters followed and the windows were removed. The rope was run in through the doorway and out through a window. Then the firemen were put on the rope and they pulled out the entire lower front in this manner.

Where there were no windows through which to pass the rope, holes were cut through the walls. After the lower floor had thus been torn out the emergency men went up stairs, the building was gutted and only the frame remained standing. The roof was torn off and then the frame thus dismantled was pulled down.

When the cloud of dust had cleared away it was seen that not a timber of the building was left standing.

Not R. R. Freeman's Vessel.

It is reported by way of London that a vessel named the Wellfleet is ashore at Port Antonio, owing to the Jamaica hurricane. R. R. Freeman, of Quincy owner of the Boston schooner Wellfleet, which sailed from here July 31 for Fernandina to load for Port Antonio, says that the vessel cannot be his schooner, as she has not yet arrived at Fernandina and would be nowhere near Jamaica. It is probable that she is some small vessel trading between Jamaica and the nearby islands.

HAS JAIL RECORD.

Sam Scott alias James Johnson Has Served Sentences.

A letter which Sam Scott wrote while at Dedham jail last week to a Brooklyn man, has led to the discovery that Scott has done time in Frankfort, Ky., and Chicago, Ill.

Scott informed the Brooklyn man, for whom he formerly worked in Frankfort, that he was under arrest for a crime committed by his twin brother, and asked him to help him in a financial way to get out of his troubles.

The Brooklyn man wrote to Inspector McKay informing him that the prisoner was James Johnson, who had been inmate of the Chicago bridewell. The writer stated that Johnson worked for him in Frankfort, Ky., where he had a contract, work on which was done by the prisoners of Frankfort county jail, where Johnson was then serving. The Negro in his letter to his former employer stated that his right name was Johnson.

An effort will be made by the Quincy police to learn more of Scott's past, and letters have been sent to Chicago and Frankfort.

Between Employer and Employee.

The Commission to Revise the Laws concerning the relations between employer and employee will give four public hearings in Room 444, State house Boston, as follows:—

Tuesday, Aug. 18, 10 A. M.—Arbitration and Industrial Courts; Compulsory Investigation.

Tuesday, Aug. 18, 2 P. M.—Attachment of Wages.

Wednesday Aug. 19, 10 A. M.—Profit sharing and Industrial Partnerships.

Wednesday, Aug. 19, 2 P. M.—Employment of the Unemployed.

All persons desiring to present to the committee anything pertaining to the above subjects are invited to be present.

Funeral of Victim.

The funeral of G. Simon Bennett, the victim of the assault case at Quincy Woods on Sunday, July 26, was held this morning from St. John's church. Services were conducted by Rev. William J. Foley. They were attended by delegations from the Quincy Branch of the Irish National League, and from the Quincy Firemen's Relief Association, both of which organizations sent flowers. The burial was at St. Mary's cemetery.

Bitten by Dog.

Henry Newman, eight years old, was terribly bitten at Dedham, on Thursday by a bull dog belonging to James McDonald. The little fellow was running in the street near McDonald's and fell down. The dog jumped upon him and chewed his arms and legs, inflicting fearful lacerations.

Ice Cream on Fire.

The alarm from Box 37 at 12.45 this morning was for a slight fire in Currie Bros. ice cream saloon on Water street. The fire started from some unknown cause under the counter. There was but little fire and the principal damage was by smoke and heat. The loss will not exceed $150.

Fought to a Finish

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 14.—Howard Cates of Boston and John Pomdriant of Biddeford, both employed at the Bayview hotel, attempted to settle their differences by a fight with fists in a grove near the hotel. Cates is held to await the outcome of the injuries to Pomdriant, who was found unconscious after the set-to and is believed to be suffering from concussion of the brain. Cates claims that the blow was given in self-defense.

Honors Even In Golf

Manchester, Mass., Aug. 14.—The golfing honors were even between England and America in the contest over the Essex county links, the Oxford and Cambridge team beating the All Massachusetts aggregation in the four-ball match by a score of 3 to 2, and being defeated in the afternoon in a two-ball match 6 to 5, which left the score at the end of the day's play at eight points for each side.

☞ Early in January we said that one feature of the Bates administration would be a movement to abolish the fee system in this state. The hearings on Beacon Hill this week are the first step towards that reform. The reason for objecting to the fee system is that it puts a premium upon the enforcement of some special laws. If an examiner gets a fee for every person he sends to an insane asylum, or a game warden gets a fee for every man he convicts of violating some forgotten statute in the game laws, it does not necessarily follow that either the judge or the game warden will be so greedy after fees that he will strain points to get a little more money. But even if he does not yield to the temptation, it does not follow that it is wise to tempt him. It is a sound business policy to pay any public official a fixed salary, holding him responsible for enforcing the law without any consideration of whether he can be made richer by doing so.—Boston Ad-

Raymond Parlin, Herbert Percival and Henry Hewitt of Wollaston are enjoying their camp life at Meredith, N. H., where they have been for several weeks.

Capt. Cully took the employes of Guy's coliseum for a sail down the harbor Wednesday afternoon. The party stopped at Hull where dinner was served.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. has established a coaling station at Holbrook, near the depot. Already 75,000 tons of soft coal have been dumped there.

Should the Merrymounts win Saturday and the Wollastons lose, the former will be at the head of the Quincy league and the Quincys at the foot. Who said they would?

Mrs. Sally Harris of this city, who will be ninety years old in November, went alone by electrics to Brockton this week to visit her great neice, Mrs. F. L. Hartwell.

The new way adopted by the Ledger to record games won and lost in the National base ball leagues tells at a glance whether the leaders or tail-enders win. See summaries.

Joseph Hill attended on Wednesday the funeral of his father, Mr. Jacob Hill of East Bridgewater. He was a veteran of the Civil War, and three officers of his company were present at the funeral.

George A. Brackett of Chestnut street attended the second annual reunion of the National association of the Brackett family held Thursday at Peaks Island, Portland harbor. Resolutions were adopted on the death of Hon. Thomas Brackett Reed.

Scrofula

Few are entirely free from it.

It may develop so slowly as to cause little if any disturbance during the whole period of childhood.

It may then produce irregularity of the stomach and bowels, dyspepsia, catarrh, and marked tendency to consumption before manifesting itself in much cutaneous eruption or glandular swelling.

It is best to be sure that you are quite free from it, and for its complete eradication you can rely on COLONY.

Within the walls of our store is a Dutch Colony and to people who study and follow the "FASHIONS IN FURNITURE," it is extremely interesting. A Dutch room in your house is the proper caper today. It costs little, is a restful change from other rooms, and tones up your home. Dark weathered oak is the finish, old dutch and mission lines the style. When relieved with red decorations it makes a combination hard to beat. It will please us to show you this furniture.

HOUGHS NECK.

The indications are that there will be no general illumination at Houghs Neck this year as the two factions cannot agree. Each mistrusts the other, and the store keepers have not made much money this season and do not feel like contributing.

Ex-Representative John McMannus of South Boston and family are in the Mabel cottage on Shennon street.

Mrs. J. Downey and family of Hyde Park occupy the Taber cottage on Bay View avenue.

Railroad Mortgage of $1,240,000

Guthrie, O. T., Aug. 14.—A mortgage for $1,240,000, given by the St. Louis, El Reno and Western Railway company to the Illinois Trust company of East St. Louis, was filed here with the territorial secretary. The money will be used to construct and equip a 62-mile extension from Guthrie to El Reno.

Public Sympathy With White

London, Aug. 14.—Arnold White, author, who was fined $500 for contempt of court in writing an article just prior to Whitaker Wright's arrival in England, which, it was alleged, was calculated to prejudice Wright's trial, has been liberated. His fine was paid by public subscription.

Lords Accept Land Bill

London, Aug. 14.—The house of lords agreed to the Irish land bill in the form finally approved by the house of commons. The measure now only awaits the royal assent to become law.

JEFFRIES IN FINE TRIM

Corbett Does Not Appear to Be Discouraged Over Odds Against Him

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Never in this city has more interest been taken in a pugilistic encounter than is now manifested regarding tonight's contest between Jeffries and Corbett. Betting, however, has been comparatively light at the prevailing odds of 2 to 1 in Jeffries' favor.

The attendance promises to exceed 12,000, and so fast have the tickets been sold, notwithstanding the big prices asked, that additional seats have been placed in the pavilion. When the time is called there is not likely to be an unoccupied seat in view of the ring. Jeffries is at the Reliance club in Oakland. He certainly never looked more fit in his life. His muscles stand out hard and firm over his massive frame, and his skin is of that ruddy hue that bespeaks the best type of physical fitness.

When seen at his training quarters in Alameda, Corbett said: "I would be willing to lose one of my arms if I can defeat Jeffries." He added: "I know that Jeffries is a big rough fellow, but if the betting were 100 to 1 in favor of Jeffries it would make no difference. I am fit to make the fight of my life. Win or lose, I like the job I am about to go up against, and will do my best to come out the victor."

Damaging Testimony Against Powers

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 14.—On the witness stand for three hours yesterday the convict, Henry Youtsey, testified that in January, 1901, he signed an affidavit for Caleb Powers as to his innocence to present to the Republican judges of the court of appeals to secure from them a reversal of the life sentence given him (Powers). He said that at the time he signed that affidavit both Powers and himself knew it to be false. He produced the agreement in court with Powers' signature attached. Youtsey's cross-examination is not completed.

Run Amuck With Shotgun

Winfield, Kan., Aug. 14.—Gilbert Twigg, aged 30, known to be insane, appeared on the principal street of this town last night with a double-barreled shotgun and fired both charges deliberately into a crowd of people who were listening to a band concert. He killed three persons, injured three and shot 20 others, of whom six may die. Twigg was killed by a policeman.

Yankee Boat Takes Canada Cup

Toronto, Aug. 14.—Irondequoit, the American challenger for the Canada's cup, won the deciding race of the series, thus wresting the trophy from across the water. It will now rest in the Rochester Yacht club until some Canadian boat shall bring it back. The final race was a triangular one, seven miles to a leg.

Close Call For Three Men

Boston, Aug. 14.—Three men on the steam launch C. Marie Amelia had a narrow escape from death in the harbor. The launch was passing between Long and Rainsford islands, when a lamp exploded, and in a minute the boat was a mass of flames. Fortunately for the three on board there happened to be a small dory towing behind. Into this they piled, and rowed as fast as possible from the burning vessel. They managed to reach Long island just in time to see the launch sink in a smouldering blaze.

Frightened Horse's Mad Run

Medford, Mass., Aug. 14.—A horse owned by William H. Burton went on a rampage, and before being captured traversed all of Medford Hillside, West Medford and a part of Winchester, and raced with a railroad train. He was caught by a young man in that place while attempting to end his career on the railroad tracks. While standing on Fairmount street the horse started suddenly, throwing a boy who was on the seat of the painters' wagon, to which the horse was attached. The boy has a bad scalp wound.

Intense Suffering In Jamaica

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 14.—The destitution in the hurricane stricken district is appalling. Thousands of persons, homeless, starving and ill-clad, are hurrying to the towns to obtain shelter and supplies, but as all the churches and public buildings have been demolished the misery is intense. A meeting held at Port Antonio appealed, with the governor's approval, to the generosity of the American people. Foodstuffs and lumber are urgently needed and assistance is implored.

Faith In Roosevelt's Fairness

Yokohama, Aug. 14.—A special from Pekin to a leading newspaper says that Prince Ching has secured Russia's consent to the use of President Roosevelt's good offices in connection with the Manchurian difficulty.

Charged With Robbing Employer

Boston, Aug. 14.—Everett S. Geery, who was reported as missing from Boston last July, also charged with the larceny of $3493 from the firm of Hyde, Wheeler & Co., was captured in New York yesterday by Inspectors Chapman and Armstrong and brought back to Boston last night. He was employed as bookkeeper.

Railway Sued For $45,000

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 14.—Suits for $45,000 were brought in the superior court by counsel for Mr. and Mrs. Frank W. Cox of this city against the Boston and Worcester Street Railway company for damages growing out of the trolley car collision at Westboro recently.

SLOW OR FAST.

August Manoeuvres Demonstrate Need of Speedy Battleships.

The Navy Department has again succeeded by its annual August manoeuvres in demonstrating how seriously handicapped is a 15-knot battleship in actual operation, says the Philadelphia Press, which comments as follows:

The favorite declaration of those who want to turn a battleship into a gun platfrom, with low speed, is that a battleship is built to fight and not to run away. Speed at sea is marching power on land. No military dictum is better established than that victories on land are won, as Napoleon said, "with legs." At sea the weather gauge was everything in the past. Steam speed will be everything in the future.

Admiral Sands, commanding the invading fleet, was given one fast battleship (the Texas, 18 knots) and two slow (the Indiana and Massachusetts, each 16 knots), no cruisers and two torpedo-boat destroyers of 28 and 30 knots, but of limited radius. A foreign navy would have given him three battleships from three to five knots faster than his, able to keep away from any cruiser in the "blue" defending fleet under Admiral Barker.

This fleet had three 17-knot battleships (Kearsarge, Alabama and Illinois); the Olympia, 18 knots; the Baltimore, 17 knots, and the Prairie, Panther and Yankee, from 12 to 14 knots. These vessels guarded 222 miles of coast, from Cape Sable to Cape Cod, against a fleet starting 530 miles away. This was a little over 35 hours' steaming for the approaching fleet. The defending fleet could not be, even if at one end, over 12 hours' steaming from any point on its arc coast.

With 20-knot battleships, Admiral Sands could have made some port in about 25 hours. In other words, instead of having to take thrice the time of his adversary to reach the extreme objective, the invader with a swift fleet, would have had to take only twice the time.

This adds exactly one-half to the chance of success in gaining position, and in war position is half the battle. It was for Nelson at Trafalgar and for Rodney in his great fight. It is in most naval battles, and in all naval wars. Yet with proof each year of the disadvantage of the slow battleship the Idaho class, if the original plans are to be followed, is to continue the gun-platform theory of a fighting craft.

Newport Excursionists.

The N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. ran a special train of nine cars on the excursion today from Quincy, Braintree and other towns to Newport. Fifty or more from this city participated and are favored with excellent weather.

The names of only a small portion of the Quincy excursionists were obtained, viz.: Gilbert M. Miller and wife, George Macfarlane and wife, W. V. Hayward, J. T. Hayward, W. R. Lofgren, Edward Johnson, Arthur Ball, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Monroe, Mrs. Frank Souther, Mrs. Edward Marsh, Miss Milne, Miss Hunt of Quincy avenue, Mrs. R. S. Talbot, Joseph W. Newcomb and Miss Newcomb, Mrs. Gordon McKenzie, Gustaf Wilbas, Charles G. Chilstedt, George W. Prescott and many others.

Launch Burned.

The lobster launch Donna Maria Amelia was burned off Long Island at 12.30 o'clock Thursday morning while attending to the lobster traps and sank in three fathams of water. Manuel Rio, James O'Donnell, John Ahearn, the crew of the vessel, were taken to Boston by the harbor patrol Watchman.

NEWS IN BRIEF.

Colonel William H. Stratton, prominent in insurance and manufacturing circles in New England and New York, died at his home at Hartford of Bright's disease.

Cigaret, Fire and Death

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 14.—John Thornton, aged 10, was burned to a crisp at his home in North Londonderry, his feet being burned completely off. The boy had been smoking cigarettes, and it is supposed the little shanty near the house caught fire from a match he may have thrown down. Presumably he went in to attempt to extinguish the flames.

Stole Horses and Buggy

Southbridge, Mass., Aug. 14.—Wilfred Amoyt, 23, of Woonsocket, R. I. charged with stealing two horses from Stephen Howland of South Woodstock, Conn., was arrested here, and both horses and a buggy, which was also stolen, were recovered. Amoyt admits his guilt. Amoyt and the stolen property were taken to South Woodstock last night.

Aged Woman's Sad Fate

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 14.—Mrs. Ann E. Arsino, 70 years old, a resident of Holyoke, died in that city late last night from terrible burns received while cleaning a bed in her home. She was using gasoline and while holding a bottle of the combustible in one hand she attempted to light a lamp with the other. An explosion followed.

Natural Gas In Connecticut

Stamford, Conn., Aug. 14.—While workmen were digging a trench on the farm of James A. Weed in Simsbury they were driven away by a strong smell of gas. An expert who later inspected the trench declared that there was a big flow of natural gas. This is the first time that natural gas has been found in this section.

FINANCIAL INTERESTS

Will Not Be Easily Harmonized In Congress

OBSTACLES TO A NEW BILL

Speaker Cannon May Be Won Over to Modified Aldrich Measure, but Democrats Are Likely to Present Solid Front Against It

Washington, Aug. 14.—The views of Representative Hepburn of Iowa, who is now in Washington, on the outlook for financial legislation at the coming session of congress, indicate the difficulties confronting even so conservative a measure of relief as the group of senators in conference with the president at Oyster Bay doubtless had in mind. Whatever Allison, Spooner, Platt of Connecticut and Aldrich agree upon must necessarily be cautious, probably in somewhat modified form the Aldrich bill of the last session, widening the basis of security for government deposits, thus releasing bonds for banknote circulation, and in addition a provision for some emergency circulation under a tax so high as to make recourse to its use extremely limited.

But such a plan will find serious opposition in the house, even if Speaker Cannon can be won over, as seems likely. The Democrats will offer a bill of their own to justify their presenting a solid front against the Republican measure. There will also be a minority of the Republicans, like Mr. Hepburn, who think it desirable to do nothing, and others who will believe the proposed steps not the right ones.

Mr. Hepburn says that there is "no scarcity of currency," and declares the view that there is a great draft on New York for money to move the crops not well founded. The only danger, he says, would come from the producers of the west becoming distrustful of the eastern banks and so withdraw their money too rapidly. This, he believes, is prevented by the present rigid system of bond-secured circulation. He is an influential man and his views are typical of much congressional sentiment.

The western habit of believing everything American paramount in perfection, including our monetary system, confronts the advocates of improvement, especially at a time when the general Republican policy is to push forward to the presidential campaign with as little action as possible upon which the opposition can base an attack. Any legislation affecting banks lends itself peculiarly to Populistic misconstruction, and on that account the Republicans traditionally hesitate to touch it. The real battle will come in the house.

President Roosevelt's conference with members of the sub-committee of the senate finance committee at Oyster Bay was very lengthy. The whole subject of financial legislation at the approaching session of congress was discussed thoroughly. The committee, consisting of Senators Aldrich, chairman; Platt of Connecticut, Allison and Spooner, did not present even a tentative draft of a currency bill to the president, although some propositions which subsequently may be embodied in the measure were reduced to concrete form. No definite conclusions as to the shape of the proposed legislation were reached.

One fact of distinct importance was developed at the conference. While an extraordinary session of congress this fall is assured, it has not been determined definitely whether it will be called to meet in October or in November. The primary purpose of the extraordinary session will be to enact legislation making operative the Cuban reciprocity treaty, but financial legislation also will be pressed upon the attention of congress soon after it convenes.

It can be said that the senate finance committee will draft no measure formally and conclusively until consultations have been held with other members of the senate, Democrats as well as Republicans, with members of the house and with the best authorities on finance in the country. It is the desire of the committee to be constantly in touch with the president, with other senators, with members of the house, with bankers of the west as well as those of the east, and with country bankers as well as city bankers, so that some plan of legislation may be formulated by the opening of the extraordinary session of congress.

Guarding Against Further Accident

PERCHED ON A TOWER

Foreman of Gang of Italians Has Unique and Uncomfortable Time

Lynn, Mass., Aug. 14.—For five hours Wilbur Edwards, foreman of the excavation work being done at the River works of the General Electric company, was held a prisoner at the top of a 20-foot tower by 350 angry Italian laborers. A large force of police succeeded in dispersing the mob.

Edwards summarily discharged one of the Italians, whereupon the man reported his grievance along the trenches, and with one accord the entire gang dropped their tools and made a rush for the foreman. Edwards hastened to a nearby conning tower, which he ascended with catlike agility. From this point of vantage the boss attempted to reason with the thoroughly enraged Italians. Unable to follow the foreman to his place of refuge they continued a menacing demonstration at the base of the tower.

It was two hours later before a chance passerby was attracted by Edwards' predicament and notified the police headquarters. Several officers were dispatched to the scene. They were unable to cope with the Italians, who declared they intended to strike and made it very evident that the foreman would not be allowed to descend with impunity until their wages had been paid in full. The officers tried to make the mob understand that it would be impossible for the foreman to pay them off until he was permitted to come down, with the assurance that he would not be harmed. The Italians, however, refused either to discontinue their threats or to withdraw from their position. Finally, moral suasion failing, a telephone call for reinforcements was sent to headquarters. A large detail responded, and after a determined attack on the part of the officers the strikers were driven from the place. Edwards, exhausted from fright, was then helped down from his high perch.

No Advanced Grade For Mead

Washington, Aug. 14.—By order of the president, Colonel Robert L. Mead, U. S. M. C., will be retired Oct. 3 next, his 62d birthday, in his present grade. Because of a disrespectful letter which Colonel Meade recently addressed to the navy department, the president took advantage of the law which provides that when an officer in the army or marine corps shall have reached the age of 62 years he may be retired on his own request or by order of the president. Colonel Meade recently requested that he be retired at an advanced grade.

Bankers Believed Humbert Stories

Paris, Aug. 14.—At the Humbert trial yesterday a number of provincial creditors of the Humbert family testified to loans of many millions of francs. Their statements showed their credulity regarding Mme. Therese's story of the Crawford inheritance. Among the witnesses was a banker named Schotsmans, whose brother was mysteriously assassinated during the time of the Humbert complications. Mme. Therese dramatically declared that the mass of falsehoods would disappear when her disclosures were made.

REMARKS ON LYNCHING

Delivered In Vigorous Style at Convention of Colored Women's Clubs

New Haven, Aug. 14.—Mrs. M. C. simpson of Boston caused a sensation at the opening session of the annual convention of the Northeastern Federation of Women's Clubs, an organization of colored women. Mrs. Simpson arose to reply to the address of welcome delivered by Mrs. Ross of this city. She declared there was no better time than the present for the convention to put itself on record regarding lynchings, and she called for the adoption of resolutions to be sent to President Roosevelt. The resolutions will be drawn up and presented later.

Mrs. Simpson said that the club members should conceive "a feasible plan to suggest to the government of the United States whereby they could chastise their own lawless children (better known as lynchers) instead of contemplating sending messages across the water to their sister countries, instructing them what they must and shall not do as regards butchering human souls, while they at home encourage barbecues of the same kind."

She added: "The barbarism of these so-called civilized lynchers is analogous to the atrocities of their forefathers, who had ships plying the African coast laden with thousands of human souls to sell into bondage. Their revolting heartlessness and the crimes of today might make the devil wonder and hell recognize its own likeness."

Mrs. Simpson's remarks were applauded heartily.

Is Now "Mrs Lalley"

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 14.—The first tidings of the whereabouts of Miss Kimball, the missing bookkeeper formerly employed in the shoe factory of Lang & Bertsch, this city, have been received by a relative here from the young woman, stating that she is married and is making an extensive tour through the West Indies and Mexico. The letter was posted in a Mexican city. The letter is signed Mrs. E. F. Lalley. Her mother, Mrs. John Kimball, says she does not know whether E. F. Lalley is Edwin F. Lang, the Haverhill shoe manufacturer, who disappeared at the same time.

WILL HAVE TO HURRY.

Delay Means Loss of Money to Chas. C. Hearn's Patrons.

The readers of the Ledger who want to get a fifty-cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price (25 cents), will have to hurry.

After a great deal of correspondence Chas. C. Hearn succeeded in getting the Dr. Howard Co. to make this special price so that his customers could obtain sixty doses of the most remarkable medicine ever discovered for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at just half price, 25 cents. It is the regular size, the same that has been sold in such quantities in the large cities for years at 50 cents.

Whether you will be cured of your constipation or dyspepsia for a trifling sum, or continue to suffer, depends on you. Many have taken advantage of this offer. Nine tenths of the people suffer from constipation or dyspepsia. Now is the time to cure yourself.

If you have tried so many remedies without relief that you are discouraged, Mr. Chas. C. Hearn will give you an opportunity to test Dr. Howard's specific without any cost unless it cures, and will agree to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

Everybody wants to be well—to be free from headaches, constipation, indigestion. Here is your chance for complete and permanent cure at trifling expense, with a reliable local druggist's guarantee that the treatment will not cost you anything if it does not cure. Take advantage of this offer at once. 4-7-11-14

SPECIAL TRAINS FOR WEST

Left Within Few Minutes of Each Other and Fugitive May Have Taken Either One—Information Received by Boston Police Is Confirmed

Boston, Aug. 14.—Chief Inspector Watts has received additional information which leads him to the belief that Willard S. Allen, the defaulting treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society, was in Chicago as late as last Sunday evening. The police are satisfied that from Montreal Allen went to Rochester, and from that point made his start for Chicago. Where he went from the latter city is the question that is puzzling the police, although they are somewhat inclined to believe that the man was seen in Toronto on Wednesday.

The information which satisfies Chief Watts that Allen was in Chicago on Sunday came from John E. Brittain, who is the general agent of the passenger department of the Chicago and Northwestern railway, with headquarters at 368 Washington street, this city. Mr. Brittain left Boston last Saturday with one of the special trains taking the 458 passengers from Massachusetts to San Francisco, as the result of the G. A. R. encampment there. At Chicago it was Brittain's work to exchange the tickets of the passengers for those which would take them from that city through to the Pacific coast. Naturally enough it was difficult work for Brittain to handle so many passengers, and in addition he looked out for the tickets of the 146 passengers who were on the Connecticut special.

As his work was nearly over Brittain's attention was attracted to a man who answers the description of Allen and who wanted his ticket exchanged. On the ticket was the name Allen, and Brittain thinks the initials were the same as those of the defaulter—"W. S." Mr. Brittain at that time had no knowledge that the police were looking for Willard S. Allen, and he simply told the man who presented the ticket for exchange that if he would wait a few minutes he would get his ticket exchanged all right. The stranger waited outside of the window, and in the due course of time the ticket was exchanged. Mr. Brittain did not see the man after that, but he says that he could have taken either one of the two Massachusetts special trains for the coast. One left Chicago at 8.55 o'clock Sunday evening, and the other started 20 minutes later.

Mr. Brittain thought nothing more about the Allen matter until he reached Albany on Thursday. Then he happened to read in a Boston paper that the police were hunting for Willard S. Allen, and he at once formed the conclusion that he had been conversing with the man who is being hunted for in all sections of the country. Reading the description of the man, he became more and more positive that he had seen the fugitive, and he was especially impressed because the man wore side whiskers.

Mr. Brittain reached Boston last evening and called up his friend, Charles R. Magee, the New England manager of the Methodist book concern, and told him of having talked with a man in Chicago who he thought was Allen. Mr. Magee at once sent him a copy of the circular issued by the police department, which contains an exact likeness of the fugitive. Mr. Magee also notified Chief Watts of the information given him by Brittain, and the chief inspector had a talk with the railroad man later, and became deeply impressed with the story, especially as it corroborated previous information the chief had received.

A Step Toward Peace

London, Aug. 14.—The Daily Mail declares that the appointment of Vice-Admiral Alexieff as viceroy of the Amur district and Kwan-Tung province is most important, as it indicates the triumph of De Witte, the Russian finance minister, and the policy of peace over General Kuropatkin, the minister of war, and that it is a significant step toward the settlement of the existing differences both with China and Japan.

Forbes Loses Bantam Championship

San Francisco, Aug. 14.—Frank C. Neil of San Francisco won the bantam weight championship of the world last night when he landed a left swing in the pit of Harry Forbes' stomach in the second round of a scheduled 20-round fight. Forbes, by virtue of holding the championship, was a 2 to 1 favorite in the betting.

Canal Treaty's Fate In Doubt

YACHT RACING EXPENSE

What It Costs to Defend the America's Cup.

THOUSANDS IN THE AGGREGATE.

When the International Races Are Sailed the Reliance Will Represent About $450,000—Constitution and Columbia, the Trial Yachts, Stand For $120,000—Defense of the Cup May Cost $600,000.

Occasional inquiries are made by thoughtful citizens regarding the cost of challenging and defending the America's cup, but the answers received are always unsatisfactory, says the New York Herald. The conclusion is that the expense must be enormous, but as it is impossible to obtain anything like accurate figures the subject is generally dropped.

On the eve of the international match of this year it may be interesting to refer to this important point and at the same time to place the public in possession of a few facts that will give them a good idea of the amounts of money that are expended in trying to capture the old yachting trophy and in the efforts made by the New York Yacht club to defend it.

The planning and building of a cup challenger or defender involve much time and labor and necessarily the outlay of large sums of money. The designer and his corps of assistants are the first that must be met. Mr. Fife, for the challenging parties, and Captain Nat Herreshoff, for the defendants, for instance, are men who place a high value upon their services, and, as the owners of the yachts are liberal to a marked degree, opening negotiations with a view to the building of a cup yacht means a fee that in some other profession would be looked upon as staggering in its proportions.

With the designer at work the builders in time are consulted, and with arrangements satisfactory in this wise materials must be considered, then the riggers kept in mind, as well as the sail makers, while finally the skippers and crew are secured. Money is required by all these, and much of it. Even after a vessel is completed and placed in commission alterations and repairs are required frequently at times, while docking the craft for cleaning and smoothing purposes means large additional sums.

The rather startling statement was made by Sir Thomas Lipton four years ago that the mere cost of the Shamrock I. was between $400,000 and $500,000, while the expense of bringing the vessel across the ocean and that of her officers and crew were extra. That seems a big lot to pay for the vessel, but Sir Thomas should be the best authority on the subject of the cost of the yacht.

If he expended a sum approaching half a million dollars four years ago for his challenging yacht the money the present trip is costing him must be far in excess of the figures named. The Lipton fleet now here is proof of that. It is easy to believe that the Shamrock III. cost quite as much to build as the Shamrock I., and it is quite sure the bringing over of three crews, those of the Shamrocks and of the tender Cruizer, must stand him in a bigger amount than the single crew of four years ago and the additional assistance he obtained in the United States.

So, if $550,000 or more represented the challenger's outlay the first attempt he made upon the America's cup, it can safely be estimated that something in the neighborhood of $600,000 will be required to foot the bills at home and here incidental to his third trial to win the old trophy.

With the amount that it costs the defending side, however, the interest is more widespread. By the time the yachts are called to sail the first race for the cup the Reliance, selected to defend it, will have cost, one way and another, $435,000 or more. That is a staggering amount to contemplate, but when everything is cleared up at the end of the season it may be $450,000.

In addition to this sum, there must be considered that in placing in commission the Constitution her running expenses reached from $65,000 to $70,000, while the Columbia has cost Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan $45,000 or possibly $55,000. These figures will therefore show that the defense of the cup this year will approach the very respectable amount of $575,000 or $600,000.

The building and rigging of the Reliance cost a fortune. The yacht's construction required the best of workmen, while all the standing and running rigging was expressly made, and her canvas occupied the attention of a large body of sail makers for months. The Reliance has possibly a hundred different sails, and $15,000 or so will represent the cost of a suit. In this particular the Constitution and the Columbia have not been so expensive.

The tenders Park City and Satellite are said to have been purchased by Mr. E. D. Morgan and Mr. August Belmont respectively, but they are valuable assets and need not be seriously considered in this financial summary. The tender Sunbeam is chartered, and there can be no return from her, but Sir Thomas' tender Cruizer will be valuable after the match.

With a crew of about fifty-five on the Reliance and a crew on the tender Sunbeam there are many men to be looked after daily. The yachts' sailors are paid big wages—$35 a month or more—and there is a scale of prize money arranged by Mr. Iselin so liberal that a Reliance man, if he is saving, will end the season with a tidy amount to his credit.

Racing crews cost prodigiously to feed, as they are men in the best of health, while their work naturally gives them excellent appetites. There are quite as many stewards and cooks on the Sunbeam looking after the welfare of Mr. Iselin and his associates and the officers and crew of the Reliance and their own ship as are found in a good sized city hotel.

All changes in the yacht's fittings, all alterations or repairs to rigging and spars, are paid for extra, while the docking bills are very large. The $450,000 or more that the Reliance will cost must not be included in any way with the New York Yacht club's expenditures in arranging for the races. The nine men who own the defender will bear the burden of that vessel's expenses, but the syndicate does not meet the personal bills of Mr. Iselin, the managing owner.

It may cost the club $25,000 or more to see that the match is properly sailed and the challenging vessel receives all that is due her, while the amount incidentally expended by the public that it may witness the races need not now be thought of.

A MINT FOR MENELEK.

Abyssinian Monarch to Make His Own Coin.

King Menelek of Abyssinia is getting along in the world. First he thrashed the Mahdists. Then he drove the Italians out of his kingdom. Then he welcomed the diplomats of European nations, playing one against another.

Now he is to have a mint, says the New York World. What an advance this means may be realized from the fact that Abyssinia until recently has been getting along with cubes of rock salt for cash. A small amount of coin minted in France has of late been in circulation. Now the king will make his own. Consul Masterson of Aden reports that he has saved up 110,230 pounds of gold for the purpose.

There are 400 tons of mint machinery. It was sold by a Stettin concern and was landed at Djibouti, East Africa, with a competent mechanic to set it up. The machinery will be transported by rail to New Harrar, about 150 miles, the end of the road. Thence it will be transported by caravan to the capital, Addis Abeba, the caravan journey occupying more than a month.

"GIN BUCK" A NEW DRINK.

It Is Like a Rickey Except That Ginger Ale Is Used.

Nearly every summer some new drink is invented and becomes popular in the bars over the country, but so far this season none of several new decoctions that were started out as the summer's fad in the drinking line has obtained a lasting popularity, says the Kansas City Star. In Virginia, the home of the mint julep, an effort was made to supersede this favorite drink. The new beverage was practically the same as the mint julep, except that it contained curacoa, a cordial. But the new drink didn't prove popular. Curacoa, however, is largely used this summer to flavor drinks.

About the only new drink called for at the leading hotels in Kansas City is the "gin buck." This is quite popular. It is composed of the juice of half a lime, a jigger of dry gin, and then the glass is filled up with ginger ale. The "gin buck" differs from the rickey only in the use of ginger ale instead of water.

BRIGHT FUTURE FOR INDIA.

Dr. Thoburn Says as Christian Land It Will Eclipse Pagan India.

The missionary institute at Chautauqua, N. Y., held its final sessions the other day, says the Philadelphia Press. An address was given by Dr. A. B. Leonard, corresponding secretary of the missionary society of the Methodist Episcopal church, on "The Vision of the Field." Dr. G. Stanley Hall spoke on "Missionary Work and the Training of Missionaries." In the evening Dr. James R. Thoburn, Jr., pastor of the Cavalry church of Allegheny, gave an illustrated lecture on "India." He said:

"Already many of the nations which sought to despoil her of her wealth are seeking to make reparation by carrying in all the advantages of Christian civilization. The bloodiest battles are over, but her conflicts are not entirely done. There is a great contest now on. It is the struggle between culture and ignorance, between faith and superstition. I believe Christian India will be a far more wonderful land than was pagan India."

The Cup Defender.

Our gallant yacht Reliance
Has nobly borne the test;
Of all the Yankee racers
She's speediest and best.
In breezes strong and fickle,
In smooth and choppy seas,
She met her friendly rivals
And vanquished them with ease.

She met the old Columbia,
The yacht with twice won fame,
But that once stanch defender
Was never in the game.
The speedy Constitution
Was also left behind
In rushing and in drifting
On seas of every kind.

And now the swift Reliance
Is chosen to defend
The trophy that bold Lipton
From us desires to rend.
Against the latest Shamrock
Our newest yacht will race,
And both, as we're believing,
Will set a lively pace.

We've heard a lot of boasting
About the Lipton boat;
We know Sir Tom regards her
The fastest yacht afloat,
But just the same the spirits
Of Yanks go soaring up,
And all are sure that Shamrock
Will fail to lift the cup.

The time is fast approaching
For test of every claim,
And soon the rival racers
Will make their bid for fame.
We on the swift Reliance
Our hopes of triumph pin,
But let there be no favors,
And may the best boat win.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 16—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from Paul: How to use tact in dealing with men.—I Cor. ix, 16-23.

In calling the fishermen Simon Peter and Andrew to become his disciples Jesus said unto them, "Follow Me and I will make you fishers of men." One of the first and most important qualifications of a successful fisherman is what we call tact, which, though not so easily defined, is clearly understood by all. No blundering, thoughtless, heedless person can ever be a successful fisher. It requires a person of cautiousness, of intelligence, of tactful skill, who, instead of alarming and driving away the object of his desire, will lead them to him in such a way that they themselves shall be unconscious of it. Men, like fish, hesitate to be caught, even when their soul's salvation is concerned. They are wary of the net of salvation, and unless those who try to win them are "as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves" they are more apt to frighten them away from the kingdom than to lead them into it. The wise man says, "He that winneth souls is wise." "Win" is the correct word. Souls are to be won, and in their winning a very necessary qualification on the part of the winner is tact.

Paul exemplifies in a large measure the necessity and the successfulness of tact in dealing with men from a religious standpoint. He was a great soul winner and most successful in developing Christian character. And one of the secrets of his success with all nationalities and classes of people was his tactfulness. "Unto the Jews," he says, "I became as a Jew that I might gain the Jews; to them that are under the law, as under the law, that I might gain them under the law; to them that are without law, as without law; * * * to the weak became I as weak, that I might gain the weak; I am made all things to all men, that I might by all means save some." The apostle did not, of course, in any ignoble sense become all things to all men. He was not one thing to a Jew and something that was inconsistent with that to a Roman. He studied the dispositions of all classes and adapted himself to their peculiarities and their wants that he might win them to Christ. He talked to men in a language they could understand and presented Christ from a viewpoint that they could comprehend, and thus only can any one be successful in dealing with men in their relation to God in Jesus Christ.

To be able to adapt himself to the peculiar dispositions of men required thought and study on the part of the apostle. A Jew had to be dealt with in one way and a gentile in another, and to deal with each in the proper way required a certain kind of knowledge which can only come from study and experience. Parents to deal successfully with children, teachers with scholars, pastors with people and Christian people with the unsaved and irreligious must study their particular dispositions and thus learn how to reach them. The aquirement of such skill requires time and labor, but it should be cheerfully given. Men study men that they may be successful in dealing with them in business and in politics. Why should we not, then, as Christians be willing to give the time and study necessary to so understand men that we may deal with them successfully in the salvation and sanctification of their souls?

Endeavor Across the Ocean.

The Italian weekly paper L'Italia Evangelica hereafter will have in every number a special page relating to Christian Endeavor in Italy.

In the annual meeting of the Bulgarian Evangelical society and in the summer school held in Samakov it was voted to recommend to all evangelical pastors in Bulgaria the organization of Christian Endeavor societies. These resolutions were printed and sent to every pastor as well as published in the weekly paper Zornitsa.

The latest statistics give Spain a total of twenty Young People's societies, seventeen Junior and seven Mothers' societies. There are 552 active members and 707 associate, so that the Spanish Endeavorers have passed the thousand mark.

In Switzerland a committee has been established for the publication of a monthly Christian Endeavor paper.

Mission Juniors.

There is a Junior society in New York state composed entirely of children from a mission district, among whom the comforts of life are unknown and to whom their Junior society is a very bright spot indeed.—Miss Grace L. Jones.

91. K. N. M., Portland, Ore.—The first Christian Endeavor society in France was organized in 1890. The general synod of the Protestant church has recommended that all the churches in France adopt this means of Christian nurture.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

THE Frog Makes Love to the Moon

The frog fell in love with the moon and made up his mind that he would ask her to marry him. He put on his best clothes, and when night came and the moon rose high in the sky he sat down beneath a tree and began to croak out his story of love. Just as he reached the point where he was going to ask the moon to marry him she hid behind a cloud.

When she reappeared he began his courtship all over again; but, just as he got to the point of proposing, away she went behind another cloud. Then he tried a third time and a fourth time, but whenever he was ready to "pop the question" the moon disappeared.

He was a very persistent fellow, however, and at last he was successful in asking her the very important question. He smiled his sweetest and spoke in his tenderest, most loving tones.

"Will you, oh, will you, dear moon, will you be"—

And before he could say "mine" the moon had disappeared behind a hill, and the poor, foolish frog shed a few frog tears and went home. He is a bachelor yet if he has waited to marry the moon.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

His Manner.

RETAINS CHAMPIONSHIP

Jeffries Whips Corbett In Tenth Round

CORBETT NOT DANGEROUS

His Blows Lacked Force and Seemed to Have No Effect on Champion, Who Surprised Even His Friends by His Great Improvement

San Francisco, Aug. 15.—James J. Jeffries, champion heavyweight of the world, played with Jim Corbett for nine rounds and a half last night, and then Corebtt's seconds motioned to Referee Graney to stop the fight in order to save their man from needless punishment.

The end came shortly after the beginning of the 10th round, when Jeffries planted one of his terrific left swings on Corbett's stomach. The man who conquered John L. Sullivan dropped to the floor in agony, and the memorable scene at Carson City, when Bob Fitzsimmons landed his solar plexus blow, was almost duplicated. This time, however, Corbett struggled to his feet and again faced his gigantic adversary. With hardly a moment's hesitation Jeff swung his right and again landed on Corbett's stomach. Jim dropped to the floor, and then it was that Tommy Ryan, seeing that it was all over, motioned to Referee Graney to stop the punishment.

The fight demonstrated beyond all doubt that Jeffries stands alone in his class. He showed remarkable improvement in both speed and skill. Corbett, during the first part of the fight, was almost outpointed, and the few blows that he landed on Jeffries were apparently without sting.

Jeffries was never in better condition. He looked lighter than usual, and the way he moved about on his feet and the frequency with which he countered Corbett's leads astonished everybody. Corbett, in comparison with the big man opposed to him, looked very light, but was really heavier than ever before. He appeared to have lost some of his old time speed and skill during the early part of the fight, but this may have been due to Jeffries' marvelous improvement.

Corbett's physical condition appeared to be all that he had claimed for it. He stood many of Jeffries' terrific blows without wincing, and came back swinging left and rights, and landing frequently, but his blows hardly stung Jeffries. Jeffries was not only stronger, faster and cleverer than ever before, but he used his head to better purpose, and although Corbett hit hard enough to hurt an ordinary man, Jeffries bored right in without noticing the blows, and delivered telling hits that materially helped in deciding the result of the fight.

At first Corbett was very cautious and apparently was out-pointed by Jeffries, but later in the fight he warmed up and showed some of his old-time cleverness. From the first, however, it was generally regarded as a hopeless case for Corbett. He made a gallant fight, but he never stood a show to win.

Corbett's system of training was undoubtedly beneficial to him from a physical point of view, but it apparently detracted from his speed. He did not keep away from Jeffries in the manner that was anticipated, but closed clinching at every opportunity. He also did some clever ducking, thereby avoiding deadly blows, but all his cleverness was of no avail. He fought his fight, and when the time came Jeffries delivered the necessary blows and installed himself more firmly than ever on his pedestal as champion heavyweight of the world.

The crowd that witnessed the fight was undoubtedly the largest that ever assembled at a similar entertainment in California. Corbett was the gallery favorite, and every tap that he landed on Jeffries was greeted with cheers. It was a sad crowd that watched a native-born San Francisco man succumb to the superior strength of the giant from southern California.

Jeffries said after the fight: "My fight tonight will demonstrate to the public that I am a better man than I ever was and gives the lie to the reports that I am a physical wreck through drink and other dissipation. I outboxed Corbett in every round and carried the fight to him at every stage of the game. I must say, however, that Corbett put up a better fight than I thought he would. His punches had no steam, and when they did land, which was not often, they did not fease me. At no time was I distressed and I felt confident of winning from the first. I would have put him out in the fourth if my glove had not bursted. The half minute's delay to repair the glove did Corbett a world of good and he was able to continue the contest. I fought harder with my trainers during the conditioning season than I did with Corbett and I finished the contest as fresh as when I entered the ring."

Corbett said after the fight: "I did my best and lost. I fought the best I knew. Jeffries was too big for me and he is the best man in the world. If the public is satisfied with my fight, I am glad to give Jeffries all the credit that is his due. I have no personal feelings in the matter. I have fought my last fight."

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Liquidation Season Ends Without Producing Great Disturbance

New York, Aug. 15.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says Although the demoralization in the stock market was not due to depression in legitimate trade, it threatened to cause a setback in business by unsettling confidence and rendering the money market unfavorable to the inauguration of new undertakings Fortunately the season of liquidation appears to have ended without producing anything more disturbing than the postponement of several projected enterprises, and, with the restoration of confidence, investors are resuming consideration of these plans.

Distribution of merchandise is very heavy and in staple lines prices are steady. Preparations for fall trade are vigorous, many manufacturers working overtime to fill importunate orders

Hesitation in certain branches of the iron and steel industry, incident to the season and aggravated by labor controversies, is indicated with some degree of definiteness by the monthly statistics.

The feature this week has been the liberal purchasing of heavy shoes for next spring by local jobbers. All the recent advances in quotations of boots and shoes are fully maintained, and the tone is firm. Wholesalers and all departments of this industry are busy

Open Switch Caused Bad Wreck

Vanwert, O., Aug. 15.—Fifteen minutes late and running at the rate of 45 miles an hour, an express train ran into an open switch at the Burl street crossing. One man was instantly killed, another fatally injured while 14 others were more or less seriously injured. Four cars were reduced to kindling wood. It is presumed that Engineer Eaton, who was killed, saw the open switch, as the steam was afterwards found shut off in his engine and the sand had been applied. How the switch came to be open is not known.

Sulphur Miners' Terrible Experience

Rome, Aug. 15.—Gas in a sulphur mine near Caltanissetta, Sicily, became ignited and obstructed the exit of 100 miners. The mine boss directed all the employes to save themselves if they could while he, with five others, bravely remained on the spot in order to try to extinguish the fire. Three of the miners died and many others, although they reached the open air, are horribly burned and maimed. The mine boss and his five companions found an unused exit and escaped, but their condition is desperate.

Mismanagement Alleged

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 15.—The bill in equity for the appointment of a receiver for the Susquehanna Iron and Steel company has been served on J W. Steacy, general manager. John K O. Denny, who filed the bill, claims to own 20,000 shares of the stock, and he alleges, in addition to the mismanagement, that high salaries are paid to the president, secretary and treasurer, and $6500 annually is wasted on them.

Session of Parliament Ended

London, Aug. 15.—Both houses of the British parliament have wound up the business of the session. After the reading of the king's speech parliament was prorogued till Nov. 2. In the house of commons Winston Churchill had a final fling at Balfour, declaring the premier's policy to be that of a demagogue. The king's speech was of little interest. He referred to signs of increasing concord in Ireland.

Vesuvius Worrying Population

Naples, Aug. 15.—The people here are in an almost continual state of panic over the activity of Mount Vesuvius, although the flow of lava is less today than yesterday. The people who are convinced that they are about to be overwhelmed by lava from the crater, gather in churches, imploring the intercession of the Virgin. The earthquake shocks have served to increase their alarm.

President Hasn't Heard of It

Oyster Bay, Aug. 15.—Regarding the report from Yokohama that Prince Ching of the Chinese foreign office had obtained Russia's consent to the use of President Roosevelt's good offices in connection with the Manchurian difficulty, it can be said that the president has received no intimation that he is even being considered as an arbiter of the Manchurian trouble.

Successful Strike of Molders

Youngstown, O., Aug. 15.—The strike of the union molders employed by the Foundrymen's association which began on July 27 in this city, Niles and Girard, is settled, the employers agreeing to the demand for a $3 minimum wage scale. All molding is to be done by hand, eliminating molding machines.

Officers Eluded Mob

Albany, Ga., Aug. 15.—Officials here deny the reported lynching of King Wightman, a negro, and a white man named Thompson at Hartsfield, for assaulting Mrs. Mathis, a white woman. The two men have been placed safely in jail at Moultrie by officers after eluding a mob.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Aug. 16.
Sun rises—4:51; sets—6:46.
Moon rises—11:20 p. m.
High water—4:30 a. m.; 5 p. m.

There have been showers in the Middle Atlantic states. Temperatures have varied irregularly, but do not differ materially from the seasonable average. The weather will be fair in New England.

A CURTAILMENT POLICY

To Be Continued by New England Cotton Mills

MORE THAN 500,000 SPINDLES

Will Be Idle All Next Week at Fall River, Affecting 5000 Employes—Corporations In Maine, New Hampshire and Rhode Island Affected

Boston, Aug. 15.—According to announcements made by cotton mills in New England, the amount of idle machinery will be fully as large next week as during the present one. While more than half a million spindles in Fall River will be idle all of the six days and 450,000 motionless part of the time in that city, the number in operation will be somewhat larger than that of the present week. In other mill towns, however, additional notices of partial suspension and complete shutdowns have been made.

Outside of Manchester and Nashua, in New Hampshire many of the mills will be idle, including the three corporations at Suncook, and the mills at Exeter and Pittsfield, which closed one week ago, the latter two for one month. Today the five mills of the Cocheco corporation at Dover will be shut down for two weeks. The Dover mills employ 1500 operatives, exclusive of those engaged in the Cocheco print works, which will be closed for a fortnight later on.

The Fall River Situation

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 15.—Eight cotton manufacturing corporations, operating 14 mills here, announce that these plants will be idle next week. The total number of spindles in these mills is 540,000 and the number of employes affected is 5000, participating weekly in a combined payroll of $35,000. The stoppage will lessen the number of bales consumed in all Fall River mills by 1200. The number of spindles to be idle will, however, be somewhat smaller than the number idle this week. In addition to the 14 mills to be closed, other mills, with about 450,000 spindles, will be in operation three, four and five days.

Curtailment In Connecticut

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 15.—Some of the cotton mills in eastern Connecticut, which began curtailing the production some time ago on account of a cotton shortage, are still continuing the policy, and by running their machinery on reduced time expect to be able to tide over the crisis. The Wauregan mills and Quinebaug company have been curtailing gradually for some time. Next week the Shetucket mills of Greenville will go on a five days per week basis. The mills had been on half time for several weeks previously. At other points in this state considerable machinery has been stopped.

At New Bedford

New Bedford, Mass., Aug. 15.—The mills of New Bedford, with few exceptions, are lessening the output because of the unfavorable market conditions. The Rotch mill was in operation but four days this week. At the Gosnold mills all departments have been stopped. The Bristol cotton mills slowed down recently, and today the four cloth mills of the Wamsutta corporation were shut down for two weeks. It is thought about 3500 operatives and possibly 4000 will be idle here next week.

Partial Shutdown at Ware

Ware, Mass., Aug. 15.—Notices posted in the cloth rooms of the Otis Manufacturing company's mills here announce that that department of the plant will be run on half time on and after Monday next until further notice. The partial shutdown is due to the unfavorable cotton market. About 600 hands will be affected by the order.

Vacation For Woolen Workers

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 15.—Because one department got ahead of another in the Bay State woolen mills, about 500 operatives are in idleness. The shutdown will continue for two weeks. The finishing department was behind in its work and that department is the only one busy at the present time. The Bay State mills are owned by the American Woolen company. The Washington woolen mills in Lawrence, which are among the largest textile plants in the country, shut down today for two weeks, as also did the Assabet mills of Maynard, both of which are in the chain of factories operated by the American company. The shutdown in these two plants is to enable repairs and improvements to be made. Other woolen mills will stop for two weeks later.

Expansion of Tin Plate Industry

Washington, Aug. 15.—Importations of pig tin into the United States in the past year were larger than in any preceding year. The statistics of the year's imports show that the importations of tin were 68,000,000 pounds, valued at more than $23,000,000. In 1890 the importations were 35,000,000 pounds, valued at about $7,000,000.

Jett and White Found Guilty

Cynthiana, Ky., Aug. 15.—The jury in the case of Curtis Jett and Thomas White, charged with the assassination of James B. Marcum at Jackson, Ky., returned a verdict of guilty, fixing the punishment of each at life imprisonment.

FIFTEEN PUNCTURES

Sustained by Battleship Massachusetts When She Struck Ledge

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 15.—It is impossible to obtain definite official information as to the condition, so far as known, of the battleship Massachusetts, which sustained serious damage by contact with the pinnacle of Egg Rock in the harbor Wednesday. It is learned, however, from a reliable source, that the vessel has 15 holes in her bottom, and that a part of her rudder is gone. It is also said that the water in the centre of the ship has rendered her machinery useless, and that in all probability she will have to be towed to dry dock. Wrecking tugs which are expected to pump her out have not arrived. If they are successful in freeing the compartments of water, it is barely possible that such temporary repairs can be made as will enable the ship to proceed under her own steam.

A naval constructor has arrived and gone on board. It may be said with assurance that the Massachusetts will not attempt to go to sea until temporary repairs are made. She shows more freeboard than was the case Thursday, and her red copper paint can now be seen plainly from shore.

Serious Shooting at Saco

Saco, Me., Aug. 15.—Harlan P. Hanson, aged 62, a motorman, is under arrest, charged with shooting Frank Hagermann, aged 35, a fireman at the power house of the company. The trouble arose about 12.20 this morning. Hagermann and a companion were sitting on the grass in the front door yard of Hanson's home. With them was Louise Hanson, aged 30, daughter of the motorman. Hanson requested his daughter to go in the house. He ordered the two men from the premises, but they refused to leave, whereupon Hanson fired two shots at Hagermann. Doctors say he cannot recover.

Worthy of Reward

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 15.—Agent Keefe of the Massachusetts Humane society has received a communication from the head office asking him to investigate the circumstances surrounding the rescue from drowning of two boys by John R. Burns, aged 12. The boys were saved through the heroic act of Burns. Agent Keefe is also investigating the case of Angelo Onorto, an Italian laborer, who, at the risk of his life, rescued a 3-year-old child from drowning.

Woman Charged With Theft

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 15.—Annie W. Evans was arrested here at the request of a detective from Providence. The woman was formerly employed as a domestic in a Providence hotel, and is charged with having stolen $3000 in bank of England notes, and $300 cash from the pocket of William A. Lawrence, a guest of the hotel, on July 2. She was given a hearing before Judge Johnson, and in default of $1500 bonds was locked up pending trial.

Ministers Deprived of Pittance

Boston, Aug. 15.—No payment will be made today to the 57 beneficiaries of the Preachers' Aid society of the New England Methodist conference, deprived of their quarterly pittance by Willard S. Allen's transactions. The new treasurer, Arthur E. Dennis, has received but $323, and it was decided that until the treasurer can make at least a substantial showing for the $1800 that ought to be paid, no payment should be attempted.

Saved Life at Risk of His Own

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 15.—With imminent danger to himself, William Welch rescued Mrs. Mary Martin, who lay senseless in the path of an express as it drew into the station here. Mrs. Martin started to cross the track as the train was seen approaching. In her nervousness she stumbled and her head came in contact with the rail, rendering her unconscious. Walsh rescued her barely in time to save her life and his own.

To Command Boston Defenses

Boston, Aug. 15.—The Globe says it has become known unofficially that the successor of Brigadier General Tiernon as commander of the artillery forces in the forts forming the Boston defense is to be Colonel Mills, at present in charge of the artillery maneuvers at Fort Preble, Portland. Colonel Mills has a long and honorable record of service in the army. He was born in 1843.

Many Celebrations Scheduled

Concord, N. H., Aug. 15.—New Hampshire's Old Home Week, which was formally opened today, will be more generally and elaborately observed than any of its predecessors. The Old Home Week association has received information to the effect that arrangements have been made for at least 112 celebrations of various kinds in as many different places.

Encounter With Robbers

Brunswick, Me., Aug. 15.—Officer Alexander narrowly escaped death at the hands of two burglars whom he had discovered in a Main street store. While chasing them six shots were fired at the officer, who emptied his five-shooter. One shot struck the peak of the officer's helmet, and others were so close he heard them pass.

Caldwell Breaks a Record

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 15.—Harry Caldwell beat Benny Munroe in a five-mile motor paced race in this city last night, lapping him in the sixth lap of the last mile, and finishing in 6:25, the fastest time ever made for that distance on an eight-lap track in competition.

Good Afternoon

Even the rich city of Newton finds it necessary to increase its tax rate to $16.40 per $1,000.

The total town tax of Randolph is but $39,845.87, but it is as hard to raise as the big sums assessed in cities.

The report that the Daily Ledger ever advocated a big debt for the city is a malicious misrepresentation. We have repeatedly opposed large appropriations, notably for water, sewers, and highways. The city debt should never have been allowed to reach its present large proportions.

As a family, the relatives of the late Thomas Crane would not care to be prominent in the proposed celebration of the centennial birthday of Thomas Crane. But this is one of the strong traits of the benefactor of Quincy and his family, which makes it a pleasure for the people of Quincy to do them honor. All admire such qualities in a man or family which has achieved success. The acquisition of money makes no difference with them. They are friendly with all; not arrogant or exclusive. The late Thomas Crane revered Quincy, which led him to cause the beautiful public library to be erected. To celebrate his centennial birthday would but feebly show our appreciation.

Several of our exchanges are remonstrating against the high tax rates in their towns, and a reaction is probably if the taxpayers become active. A newspaper of a prosperous town says: "These big expenditures, many of them unnecessary, have resulted in giving our citizens a tax rate far beyond their means to bear, especially those who own their little homes acquired by years of toil and self sacrifice. To the promoters of industrial enterprises it is repelling and the "boom" that was so promising is likely to wither under such a load. The town will have to wake up in this matter if it expects to prosper and a more economical consideration given to the budget when presented at the appropriation meeting. It will require the very best talent and financeering to lower the rate to a standard that the town can bear, and it would be just as well for every good citizen to keep this matter in view.

The BEST is None too Good for Our People.

THOMAS CRANE.

Personal Tribute from an Acquaintance.

New England Man of Best Sort.

He Tenderly Revered Quincy, His Old Home.

The Daily Ledger has interviewed several Quincy gentlemen relative to the observing the centennial birthday of Thomas Crane, the benefactor of Quincy and will present their views later. Only one is given today.

Luther S. Anderson when interviewed said: The idea is a good one. I believe it to be a good thing to observe all such events as it would stimulate others to leave lasting memorials. If money left the city for such purposes was used as it was intended to be, as in the case of the Thomas Crane Public Library, rich men would feel more like leaving money to the city. As to the form the observance of the centennial should take. I believe the family of Mr. Crane should be consulted and their wishes in the matter carried out.

Boston, 17 May, 1882.

In the book describing the dedication of the Thomas Crane public library building issued in 1882, Albert B. Otis contributes the following at the request of C. F. Adams:

Dear Sir,—In compliance with your request, I am glad to state my impressions of the personal appearance, life and character of the late Thomas Crane.

Mr. Crane was a man of strong and distinct presence. His figure was muscular and well set, of the medium height, with broad shoulders.

The hair and beard, at the time of my acquaintance with him, were white and abundant,—the complexion somewhat florid.

His forhead was wide and high,—the nose aquiline; the eyes were clear, full and of a bluish gray. The glance was keen, yet straightforward and sincere, with often an expression of the kindest humor.

It might be fairly said that his face did not so much invite confidence as inspire it. He always struck me as possessing real solidity of judgment.

Although relying firmly upon his own conclusions, and very presistent in carrying them to practical results, he was notably modest in statement,—indeed, quite and unobtrusive in all his ways.

I fancy that behind his shrewd worldly sense there was a deep stratum of sentiment. He looked upon the foibles of his fellow-men with a mild and humorous tolerance,—upon their more serious faults with a genuine and helpful sympathy. I doubt, however, if he has sufficient charity for show and pretence.

In all his family relations he was most tender and indulgent. In political opinion a Radical, he took an ardent interest in public affairs, and gave a generous support to the government during the war. To his church he was devotedly attached and constant in its service.

In brief he was a New England man of the best sort in all his instincts and aspirations, tenderly revering his old home, grateful for his prosperity, upright, candid and true, of a clear-grained common sense, industrious, doing every day a full and worthy day's work, with no consciousness of great excellence, yet thoroughly self-respecting.

It seems to me that the lines from Wither's "Motto" may well be said in his praise:—

"I have not been ashamed to confess
My lowest fortunes, or the kindnesses
Of poorest men; nor have I proud been made,
By any faver from a great man had.
Nor ever for preferment, made I shows
Of what I was not."

Believe me, &c.,
ALBERT B. OTIS.

Monument to President.

Arrangements for the dedication of the monument erected by the state of Vermont at Fairfield to mark the birthplace of President Chester A. Arthur on Aug. 20 are now complete.

Ex-Congressman H. H. Powers of Morrisville will preside, and the speakers will be the Hon. William E. Chandler, secretary of the navy under President Arthur; the Hon. Robert T. Lincoln, Arthur's secretary of war, and the Hon. Henry M. Teller of Colorado, his secretary of the interior. Gov. McCullough and the Vermont congressional delegation will represent the state at the exercises.

Winnipesaukee Attractions.

Renowned as a summer resort and famous for its fishing, lake Winnipesaukee seems to hold sway as the most popular section of New Hampshire. Indeed it would be approaching the impossible to select another spot where such ideal features enter into the making up. The environments are simply magnificent. In the distance the White Mountains with their Titan King, Mt Washington, look down upon the neighboring Mt. Madison. For enjoyment there is something to amuse one all the time; first a coaching party through the neighboring towns, then a hop at a hotel, a paddle in the canoe, a fishing expedition in the direction of Annisquam, or that famous trip, the 60-mile sail over the lake on the steamer Mt. Washington. Do you seek a delightful haven on the lake? Well, only choose, for you have Weirs, Wolfeboro, Alton, Alton Bay, Centre Harbor and Bear Island and the other beautiful islands; and all these resorts reached in a short while by drive or sail. Lake Winnipesaukee is only two hours' ride from Boston on the Boston & Maine railroad, and the round trip rate for the summer is $4.50 to Weirs or Wolfeboro and $4 to Alton Bay. Board at hotels or farm houses is from $5 up.

Big Horse Race.

There is to be a great horse race on Canton avenue, Milton, next Wednesday afternoon. The horses that will compete are Randolph K., owned by A. Morton; Dona, owned bp W. F. Steadman; Honest Jack, owned by Robert Johnson, and Unknown, owned by Mr. Tupper. Everybody invited to go over and see the sport.

Fire at Neponset.

There was quite a serious fire this morning in a pile of lumber at the wharf of the A. T. Stearns Lumber Co. at Neponset. It took the fire department two hours to extinguish the blaze.

THE LAUNCHING.

General Public Cannot Be Accommodated in Fore River Yard.

Owing to the crowded condition of the building-beach at the Fore River shipyard, which is now occupied by eight hulls of various kinds under construction, with their surrounding stages and piles of materials, it has been decided that it would be dangerous to admit a large crowd of people to the launching of the six-masted schooner William L. Douglas, which will occur some time during the last week of August.

Last year when the seven-masted schooner Thomas W. Lawson was launched the beach was sufficiently clear to permit the ten or fifteen thousand people who were present to keep at a safe distance from the ways, but now that the open space is very much restricted, it is impossible for the present to issue a general invitation to the public such as it has been the custom of the yard to send out for previous events of this kind.

Work on the Douglas has reached a stage where the painter is close on the heels of the rivetter. The greater part of the hull has been painted and the work of construction is now confined to the stern and stem, while the deck fittings are being placed and the hatchways completed. The after house on the high poop deck is receiving especial attention, the floor is laid and the woodwork outside is being put on. This house will have two companionways, fore and aft on the port side.

August Magazines.

The third instalment of Mrs. Gabrielle E. Jackson's story, "Three Good Cronies," appears in the August issue of the American Boy. The cover page consists of a splendid picture of "The Old Swimmin' Hole. "Captured," by that fine writer for boys, J. L. Harbour, tells how two boys captured an immense serpent belonging to a circus. Some of the other leading contributions in the August number are: "A Voyage on the Snow," by Will Lisenbee; "The Beginnings of an Astronomer," "The Washington High School Cadets" with some fine pictures, and "The Summer Life of the Roosevelt children."

Railroad Gets a Good Advertisement Out of Quick Transportation.

One often hears shippers kicking because of delays in the arrival at their destination of goods shipped from Quincy, and it not unfrequently happens that a claim is made of the railroad for damages owing to the delay. It remained however for a Quincy granite manufacturer to make a kick and a claim for damages because goods arrived at their destination too soon. The best part of it is, however, that he will probably get his claim.

Sometime last month Thomas & Miller shipped to London, O., via the Star Union line of the Pennsylvania R. R. The firm figured it out by past experience that two weeks would be required to land the monument in London.

Not desiring to arrive in London before the job, a representative of the firm left Quincy eleven days later to set the job. When he arrived in London he was surprised to learn that the monument had arrived in four days after it left Quincy and that before he could get it he must pay $7 demurage.

He objected but finally paid the bill and then filed a claim with the railroad for $7 on account of quick delivery. A second consignment shipped by the firm also arrived in four days. The claim is now before the railroad and it is understood that as they consider it a good advertisement they will pay the $7.

PISCATORY STUPIDITY.

The Fish's Capacity For Learning Is Painfully Contracted.

Most fishes seek their food by sight, says Professor Edmund Clark Sanford in the International Quarterly, and these do not usually notice it by any other sense. But those that are accustomed to find it by smell seldom pay any attention to it when they merely see it.

Catfish depend principally on the sense of taste, and they seem to taste all over, not only in the mouth, but by the outer skin as far back as the tail fin.

It is uncertain whether fishes can feel pain or not. There is a good deal of evidence to show that they cannot.

A fish that has lost its sight may learn to avoid an obstacle after swimming against it a single time, but fishes that can see will jump against the plate glass wall of an aquarium day after day, sometimes for a year, in the effort to catch things outside.

The elements of consciousness in the mind of a fish foot up a total "equivalent, perhaps, to the lowest idiocy when measured by human standards." It is possible that the fish's capacity for learning is "about on a level with that of a man in deep sleep or preoccupation."

Birds That Exercise Ingenuity.

Birds building on high trees are not so wary about the concealment of their nests as hedge builders and those that seek the springing corn or grass land for the shelter of their homes, trusting to the loftiness of situation for security. A nest placed upon the ground is in constant danger of exposure. A browsing animal might destroy it. Then the scythe with one sweep occasionally lays bare one or more nests, thereby endangering the eggs or callow nestlings. This renders the parent birds very wary and causes them to practice great ingenuity in their efforts to protect the young birds.

The skylark has been known to carry its egg or offspring to a place of safety after an exposure of the nest, and it has been said its long hind claw—the use of which has puzzled many naturalists—is specially adapted by nature for more easily grasping and transporting its treasures from the source of danger. When the young birds are too bulky to be thus removed the parent bird carries them on its back, though this mode of removal is a somewhat difficult one.—London Tit-Bits.

Jefferson and the Patent Office.

The first patron of our patent system was Thomas Jefferson, who during three years gave his personal attention to every application for a patent. He used to call the secretary of war and the attorney general to examine and scrutinize with him, and they did it so thoroughly that in one year—the first—they granted only three patents. The very first patent of all was given to Samuel Hopkins in 1790 for pearl ashes. Mr. Jefferson held that the patent system was not one for creating revenue, but for encouraging a production of that which is to be of benefit to the whole people. In the first twelve years a single clerk in the state department and a few pigeonholes were all that the business of the office required. Then a Dr. Thornton took charge of it and devoted himself to it as to a hobby.

Spiders Like Music.

A violinist says spiders are notoriously and historically fond of music. At one of his performances the concert hall was made disagreeable by a sudden invasion of spiders, which were drawn by his violin out from the cracks and crannies of the ancient building. They crawled about the floor and on to the stage, and he could see the annoyed audience stamping on the insects. The writer adds that he has known a small garden snake to be attracted by piano playing and a young calf to whisk his tail and prance about most gleefully at the first notes of a French horn. His neck would curve about proudly, his hoofs tread lightly and his ears wag joyously when the tooting began, and he never quieted down till the music ceased.

Peculiar Privileges.

The speaker of the house of commons has several peculiar privileges. Every year he receives a gift from the master of the buckhounds of a buck and doe killed in the royal preserves. This custom goes back so far that there is no record of it. Later in the year the speaker receives another tribute from a different source. The donors on the second occasion are the Cloth Workers' company of London, who send to the speaker of the house of commons and to several of his majesty's ministers a generous width of the best broadcloth to be found in England.

Her Audience.

"How are you getting on with your music, my dear?" inquired a lady of her niece.

"Well, of course," replied the niece diffidently, "it wouldn't be proper of me to compliment myself, but some of the neighbors have told me they have stayed awake at night for hours listening to my playing."

The Rule Suited Him.

The new boarder had been three weeks in the house. "It is usual," said the landlady, with great delicacy, "for my boarders to pay as they go."

"Oh, that's all right," he replied affably. "I'm not going for a long time."

Sounded Like It.

"What is that piece you are playing? Is it by Wagner?"

"No; the piano is out of tune."—Brooklyn Times.

With the Persians the writing of poetry and beautiful and witty sayings is described as the "threading of pearls."

FIELDS FOR OUR TRADE

Siberia Likes American Machinery, Says Agent Greener.

RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT LENDS AID

Assists In the Distribution of American Agricultural Appliances—Possible Commercial Relations With India—Cuba Making an Effort to Restock Island With Cattle—Our Flour In China.

There is such a demand in Siberia for agricultural machinery and appliances of American manufacture that the minister of agriculture in that country has decided to lend government aid to its distribution. Commercial Agent Greener at Vladivostok informs the state department at Washington that a special fund has been set aside to establish at Habarofsk a government warehouse for the benefit of importing jobbers, says J. D. Whelpley in the New York Commercial Advertiser. The pre-Amur management of imperial properties will have charge and will operate to a large extent in American goods.

The Siberian officials state that they are greatly in need of information from competent sources regarding the purchase and importation of such goods from the United States, and they ask for the address of firms dealing in agricultural machinery, price lists and catalogues, lists of steamships plying between the United States and Vladivostok and the best terms upon which goods will be sold.

Mr. Greener also finds considerable complaint to the effect that in quoting prices American firms do not state their bottom figures. What is needed is the lowest quotation for goods, details as to payments in cash or on time, the latter being preferred, and several copies of a brief catalogue in the Russian language.

Consul General Patterson, at Calcutta, is confident that a large increase in the American trade would follow the establishment of a rapid and reliable freight line of steamers between New York and Calcutta. He says that the only way goods can be shipped at present from New York to Calcutta is via Glasgow, Liverpool, London or Naples, and there is long delay in making these shipments. Out of the $250,000,000 worth of goods imported annually by India the United States only had about 1.5 per cent of the trade, while England had about 67 per cent and Germany, France and Belgium, in the order named, the larger part of the remainder.

About 50 per cent of the imports are cotton goods, and the next largest are iron and steel manufactures, and the American consul sees no reason why the United States should not compete in these lines. He says that if a direct line of steamers was established between New York and Calcutta, sailing not less than once every month, the passage not to be more than forty days, the importers could then rely upon receiving their goods at specified times.

Consul Patterson also recommends the putting of active, capable men into the field to exploit the markets of the country. There are no restrictions on trade in India, the only obstacle being the lack of rapid transit and more determined effort to secure business.

In line with the suggestion made by Consul Patterson the bureau of statistics at Washington has been looking up the figures on the trade between India and the United States. India ranks sixth among the exporting and tenth among the importing countries. Last year her exports amounted to over $400,000,000 and her imports to $264,000,000. Thirty-six per cent of these imports were cottons. Next on the list were iron and steel products. The bureau estimates that 50 per cent of India's imports are of a class of goods which might be called indigenous to the United States and that fully three-fourths of the entire list is made up of articles successfully produced by and exported from the United States. Notwithstanding this fact, our exports to India amount to less than 2 per cent of the imports of that country.

The popularity of American flour in China is attracting attention on both sides of the globe. The British consul general at Canton in a report sent from China to London and published in that city states that the demand for flour among emigrants returned from the United States is so great that the quantity of flour imported in 1902 exceeded that of 1901 by 95,831,328 pounds and was also some 78,400,000 pounds in excess of the average for the past five years. Stated in dollars, we are now selling to the Chinese $4,607,000 worth of flour annually.

The Cuban republic is making an effort to encourage the restocking of the island with cattle, especially those of a good breed. The duty has been changed so that breeding sheep and cows come in free of cost, and the duty has been reduced on blooded stock. The government has also exempted barbed wire and staples used in building fences from the payment of the tariff duties, hoping thereby to encourage the inclosure of large pastures.

Living on Peanuts.

Four students of Norwich university, three of whom are working their way through college, during the last three months of the college year saved an even $30 each by deserting the fraternity "hash house" and living on peanuts, says the New Haven Chronicle. Every one of the quartet is in better health than when he started in on the strange diet.

...The... "Compleat" Anglers

By PETER M'ARTHUR

Copyright, 1902, by Peter McArthur

"I'LL go if mamma will let me." Leona Jarvis stood on the little dock in front of their summer cottage and looked down teasingly at the young man who was holding his little catboat against the planks with one hand while he sat on the gunwale and let the sail hang loosely. He frowned and certainly blushed, though it was hard to see this under the coat of tan he had acquired while cruising about the bay. During the past couple of months he had had a great deal of thinking to do, and nothing is so conducive to concentrated and exhaustive thought as sailing about in a trim and docile boat without regard to time. And as most of his cruising was done alone people seemed to think that there was a misanthropic appro-

"WELL, SEE THAT YOU CATCH SOMETHING!"

priateness about the name of his boat, the Alone. He never could convince them that "Alone" should be pronounced as a word of three syllables, and if he did convince any of them they immediately began to hum a foolish parody of "Yankee Doodle" which ran:

Yankee Doodle came to town
All alone, aloney.

After Leona had delivered her ultimatum there was nothing to do but wait until her mother came out of the house. As a matter of course she was invited, but was wise enough to decline.

"I'll chaperon you from the veranda," she said, "and the only stipulation I make is that you do not get off the top of the ocean." Then as the little boat was swinging away from the dock she called after them, "I wish you would bring me home a nice, fresh bluefish."

"Anything to oblige," Leona called back.

"Well, see that you catch something," replied the mother, and laughed.

Marvin Rollins was too busy with ropes and pulleys and the many little attentions a boat requires before she will be entirely obedient to notice this little byplay of dialogue, and while he was moving about the boat he was handing cushions to Leona so that she could make herself entirely comfortable for the little cruise that he proposed. At last he had everything trim, and they scudded out toward the open sea where a fleet of boats was trolling for bluefish. Leona amused herself for awhile in watching how rapidly they huddled together and then scattered. She inquired the cause of these maneuvers.

"When one of the boats strikes a school of fish all the other fellows rush in to get their share, and when they lose the school they scatter till some one else strikes one, and then they come together again."

At this point Leona's attention was attracted by something else.

"Oh, Marvin!" she exclaimed enthusiastically. "Look at that wide streak of oil we are crossing. Does that mean that oil is coming out of the bottom of the sea; that there is a Texas gusher under the Great South bay?"

He looked at her curiously to make sure that she was not poking fun at him, but Leona was a good actress and looked entirely innocent.

"Gusher nothing! That's simply a chumming streak."

"And what may a chumming streak be?"

"Why, when amateurs go after bluefish they do not use a squid like professionals. They chum for them."

"Well?"

"They chop up mummies and throw them overboard so that they will float down with the tide and make an oily streak that the bluefish will follow up until they strike the baited hooks."

"How horrible! But I always thought that mummies were preserved in spices and such things, and not in oil."

"Oh, pshaw!" said Rollins testily. "I am not speaking of that kind of mummies. The mummies they have down here are little fat fish that they catch with nets to use for chumming."

"Oh! But you say that professionals don't fish that way."

"Of course not, unless they can't kill fish in any other way."

"But if it isn't the best way to fish why does any one fish that way?"

"Because gentlemen fish for sport and not for spoil. It is more sport to chum for fish and catch them with a rod and reel."

"Then it is really not good form to fish for bluefish unless you chum for them?"

"Oh, it is all right to catch one or so for a meal, but it is not the thing to do if one is out for sport."

"Well, we are out for sport, aren't we? At least I think I am," she added mischievously.

"Of course, but your mother wants a fish, and this is the only way to get one at present."

"But I do wish that we could chum, Marvin," she said as if entirely unconscious of a double meaning. The poor fellow gasped, for he saw the chance to make the idea of chumming lead up to a remark involving their chumming together for life. But the very thought of being so daring put him in a funk. Leona looked at him innocently, then with a satisfied smile at the struggle in his mind that was making itself so evident on his blushing face sank back contentedly among the cushions.

Again the silence fell, and Marvin kept his eye seaward like an able seaman, though not like the host of so pretty a guest. Leona looked at him from time to time and smiled mischievously, for she knew that whenever she liked she could torment him again, as she had often done in the past. He had made at least a dozen futile attempts to propose to her and had been prevented by his bashfulness. On each occasion she could have helped him out and enabled him to speak the momentous words, but it was too much fun to be free, and, though she had always intended accepting him in the end, she could not help putting off the hour of capitulation as long as he showed no evidence of trying to escape. Of course he had run away from her after every attempt to propose, but he always came back. He seemed to move around her in much the same way as a comet goes around the sun. He would approach with ever increasing velocity, just miss embracing and then whirl off in the opposite direction on an orbit of wonderful extent.

"After he has gone around the globe on one of his runaway trips I'll take pity on him and help him out," Leona confessed to her mother. And in spite of her cruelty she cared for him as much as he did for her and had no intention of losing him, but it is true she would much prefer having him do all the proposing himself.

Leona was quite comfortable among her cushions, and it was no small pleasure to her to sit and watch the young giant who kept himself so busy with the sail and tiller. But she made up her mind that she would not speak again until he did. They were almost at the fishing grounds before the silence was broken, and then he remarked:

"I'm going to throw out a line now. Do you care to do the fishing?"

"Anything to pass the time," she said somewhat viciously, for she was tired of the long silence.

He unrolled the line, tied one end of it to a hook in the gunwale and dropped the squid overboard. She took the line and let it troll through the water, while her fingers felt the slight vibration that showed that the hook was clear of weeds. But the fish were not biting anywhere just then. The boats were all scattering, and time was again hanging heavy on her hands.

"I think you ought to change the name of this boat," she finally exclaimed.

"I have always wanted to," he stammered eagerly, for the name of that boat was a thing that he fondly hoped might yet lead to a successful proposal. But Leona went on as if she were not perfectly aware of the fact that the name of the boat was an anagram of her own name.

"You ought to change it to the Silence or something of that sort. Still I don't know but the name you have used is all right. I remember a stanza from 'The Ancient Mariner' that I feel like quoting:

"Alone, alone, all, all alone,
Alone on a wide, wide sea.

"That's just the way I feel when I am sailing with you."

"And I—I," he stammered, "feel like the next two lines of that stanza."

"Why, what are they?"

"And never a saint took pity on My soul in agony."

"You don't look much like a man that needed pity," she said and then added, "And perhaps you haven't ever had a saint on board."

"Well, we—well, won't you take pity on me?"

"I take pity on you? I am no saint, and, besides, I think I have been more in need of pity than you have."

"But not for the same reason—that is, I wish you did need pity for the same reason."

Leona knew what was coming again and wondered a little if he would jump overboard to escape if he failed to propose. As she did not answer him, he tried to go on.

"I wouldn't be so much alone on this boat, and its name is not the Alone, but—I wish I could—you would—er—won't you let me change your other name as I have changed your first name?"

"What do you mean?" she asked, with eyes properly downcast, for he was at last making intelligible headway.

"I mean that Alone is an anagram for your name, Leona, and if you would only be my wife"—

He didn't finish the sentence, momentous as it was. The line had suddenly been snapped out of Leona's hand and was tugging and snapping at the gunwale.

"You've got a bite!" he yelled. "Grab the line quick or you will lose him!"

Leona did as she was told, but again the line was snapped out of her hand.

"Here!" he yelled. "You take the tiller and let me get him."

But Leona was plucky, and she answered.

"You take care of your old boat!"

She caught at the line again in a way that showed that she was thoroughly angry, but he could not understand the reason why. She tugged valiantly at the line for a minute or so.

"Pull faster so that he can't break water and shake out the hook," said Marvin.

But just then the struggling fish gave a particularly vicious spurt. The line cut Leona's tender fingers, and she dropped it with a cry.

"Oh, take the tiller!" cried Marvin almost savagely.

She looked at him wonderingly and did as she was told, but he had eyes for nothing but the line that evidently had a monster fish on it. As soon as he was relieved from the tiller he caught the line and began to haul it in hand over hand.

"Careful now!" he panted. "Don't let her jibe."

And all the while he was tugging at the fish a pair of eyes behind him were getting brighter and brighter with angry fire. The more Leona thought of it the more she felt that she was thoroughly abused. In the first place, it was humiliating that he should let his proposal be interrupted by a mere fish. It looked as if he cared more for the fish than for her. And then the authoritative way in which he had ordered her about! She never thought him capable of it, and, angry as she was, she was inclined to admire this sudden new development of his character.

"It's the finest bluefish in the bay," he muttered between his teeth as he still pulled heroically at the line. Time and again the fish broke water and tried to rush the line so as to tear or shake the hook out of its jaw, but it had been too securely hooked. Indeed, if it had not been hooked beyond all hope of breaking away it would have escaped while Leona was pulling at it and letting the line slip away from her. At last with a shout of triumph he lifted the fish over the gunwale and dropped it on the bottom of the boat.

"Fifteen pounds if it weighs an ounce!" he exclaimed, fairly sputtering with joy and entirely oblivious of what the advent of the fish had interrupted. As Leona made no comment, he glanced from his prize to her face. Its lines were set and rigid.

"Why," he asked with a puzzled air, "aren't you glad I got the fish?"

"Of course I am," she answered icily, "since you seemed to want it so bad."

"What do you mean?" he asked, still more bewildered.

"Well, you seemed to want that fish more than you wanted me!" she snapped.

In a moment he was back where he was before the fish had bitten, but such were his excitement and exhilaration over the capture that instead of starting to stammer apologies, as he would naturally have done, he started off on a roar of laughter that seemed uncontrollable. He was certainly developing wonderfully today. But his laughter was so infectious that the absurdity of the situation dawned on Leona, and she joined in, though not very heartily.

"Well, I don't care!" she grumbled. "I think you are real mean."

"But I have shown myself a good provider."

"Who said that I wanted you to be a provider for me?"

"Oh, no one, of course," he said, still laughing; "but the way you obeyed me was wonderful."

"Well, if you intended to boss me like that I am very glad that the fish interrupted your proposal."

"Then you intended to accept me?"

"I never said so."

"And you obeyed me like a wife of ten years' standing."

"Well, I'll never do it again."

"I'll never ask you to again."

Her face suddenly sobered, for she thought he meant he would never ask her to be his wife again, and now that her anger had turned to laughter she was only teasing again. He saw the change and with another burst of laughter brought the boat about so that the sail was between them and the fishing fleet that was rapidly assembling because he had been seen struggling with the big fish. Just what happened behind the sail is better guessed than told, but when they reached the little dock again Leona's mother called to them:

"Catch anything?"

And they both answered:

"Yes."

THE POPE'S SIMPLE LIFE

Stories of Pius X. Showing His Love of Plain Living.

HIS ELECTION UNEXPECTED BY HIM

When Asked How He Would Act as Pope He Replied, "I Shall Remain the Same Sarto"—Often Found Himself Without Money—How He Once Disobeyed Leo XIII.—His Love For Music.

Many stories illustrative of the character of Pope Pius X. have been current in Rome since the conclave of cardinals chose the patriarch of Venice as successor to Leo XIII., says the New York Evening Journal. They show alike his independence and his modesty, the simplicity of his tastes and his love for the beautiful, his love for the common people, from whom he sprang and to whom he has given so much that often during his life he has had to struggle against poverty.

Giuseppe Sarto always has been a democrat and a commoner. Sarto might have been raised to the papal nobility had he so desired, but he preferred to remain as he was.

Pius X. is a friend of King Victor Emmanuel, as he was of the late King Humbert. His utter fearlessness and independence were well illustrated during the reign of Humbert. When Humbert last visited Venice he gave a gala court function. Pope Leo intimated to Cardinal Sarto that he would be wise to remain away.

Sarto disobeyed the pope's tacit instructions and paid his respects in person to the king. The cardinal made Humbert aware also that his visit was in opposition to the wishes of Leo. This so pleased Humbert that he gave orders that the cardinal should thereafter be admitted to his presence in advance of all others. The cardinal paid a second visit later, while Humbert was holding an audience. Sarto would not permit the audience to be interrupted, however, but waited until it was over.

Since chosen pope he has given numerous instances of his simplicity and lack of ostentation. The other day he flatly refused to be carried in the sedia gestatoria on the way to and from the Sistine chapel, and it was carried behind him. As he was walking he said humorously to Mgr. Bisleti:

"I shall never voluntarily get into that box."

After he reached Rome Mgr. Stratimorovich, a Venetian prelate, who accompanied Cardinal Sarto to the capital, took leave of him at the Vatican. Before going, as they parted, Stratimorovich said:

"May you be chosen pope."

"No, no," replied Cardinal Sarto, laughing. "No fear for me. Give me the number of your telephone, though, and I will let you know quickly who receives that honor."

The prelate gave the number. True to his promise, the first thing the cardinal did after his election was to call up the prelate to give him the promised information. He found, however, that the Venetian had already learned the news and was hurrying even then to the Vatican.

When in the past the people of Venice asked Cardinal Sarto what he would do if made pope, as they frequently did, he would reply laughingly:

"I shall have white robes instead of red ones. That will be the only change. I shall remain the same Sarto as ever."

His love for Venice is like the love of a child for its mother. He recently received the Princess Beatrice, daughter of Don Carlos, of Venice. He said to the princess:

"We are from the same town. Your father is my friend, and I have not forgotten his amiability in coming to see me off at the station when I left for the conclave. I little imagined then that I should never see my beloved canals again. I hope your royal father will soon visit our court."

Pius X. likes not only to walk in the country and to look at the sea, but he is a mountain climber as well. A few days before he left Venice he climbed to the top of Mount Grappa, an altitude of 5,500 feet. Outdoor life is a constant delight to him.

His greatest pleasure is in music. Lorenzo Perosi, director of the pontifical choir, is a great friend of his, having formerly been maestro at St. Mark's in Venice. Perosi is in fact chiefly indebted to Pius X. for his musical career.

One story which may account for the liberality of the new pope is that he was originally inclined to be a freethinker. He became a protege of Cardinal Parocchi, however, and his views changed.

In money matters the new pontiff has always been extremely modest. As patriarch of Venice his income was about $2,400 a year. The greatest part of this he gave away, and he was often pressed for funds for his personal necessities. It is related of him that not long ago he was called suddenly to Rome, but had not a cent of ready money. He was compelled to borrow $400, and he was in a perfect fever until the debt was paid.

Tsi An's Latest Move.

The empress of China is trying to overcome the national prejudice against photography. She has even permitted the wives of foreign ambassadors at Peking to bring their cameras to her palace.

Largest Oil Ship.

The largest oil ship in the world, the Narragansett, was recently launched in the Clyde. She will hold 10,000 tons of oil, which can be discharged at the rate of ninety tons an hour.

NEW ARMY REGULATIONS

As Formulated by Secretary Root Go Into Effect

POWER OF CHIEF OF STAFF

Second Only to That of President and Secretary of War—General Young Relinquishes Command of Army and Assumes New Duties

Washington, Aug. 15.—Secretary Root today promulgated an order defining the duties of the general staff of the army, which, under the law, went into effect today. The most important feature of the order is that in relation to the selection and duty of the chief of staff. On this point the secretary says:

"Under the act of Feb. 14, 1903, the command of the army of the United States rests with the constitutional commander-in-chief, the president. The president will place parts of the army, and separate armies whenever constituted, under commanders subordinate to his general command; and in case of exigency seeming to him to require it, he may place the whole army under a single commander subordinate to him; but in time of peace and under ordinary conditions the administration and control of the army are effected without any second in command.

"The president's command is exercised through the secretary of war and the chief of staff. The secretary of war is charged with carrying out the policies of the president in military affairs. He directly represents the president and is bound always to act in conformity to the president's instructions. Under the law and the decisions of the supreme court his acts are the president's acts and his directions and orders are the president's directions and orders.

"The chief of staff reports to the secretary of war, acts as his military adviser, receives from him the directions and orders given in behalf of the president and gives effect thereto in the manner hereinafter provided.

"Exceptions to this ordinary course of administration may, however, be made at any time by special direction of the president if he sees fit to call upon the chief of staff to give information or advice, or receive instructions, directly.

"The chief of staff is detailed by the president from officers of the army at large not below the grade of brigadier general. The successful performance of the duties of the position occupies what the title denotes, a relation of absolute confidence and personal accord and sympathy between the chief of staff and the president and necessarily also between the chief of staff and the secretary of war. For this reason, without any reflection whatever upon the officer detailed, the detail will in every case cease, unless sooner terminated, on the day following the expiration of the term of office of the president by whom the detail is made; and if at any time the chief of staff considers that he can no longer sustain toward the president and the secretary of war the relations above described, it will be his duty to apply to be relieved.

"The chief of staff is charged with the duty of supervising, under the direction of the secretary of war, all troops of the line, the adjutant generals, inspector generals, judge advocate generals, quartermasters, subsistence, medical, pay and ordnance departments, the corps of engineers and the signal corps. He performs such other military duties not otherwise assigned by law, as may be assigned to him by the president."

This paragraph and subsequent paragraphs confer all authority in the war department on the chief of staff under the direction of the secretary of war.

The remainder of the order relates to the duties of other members of the general staff, and gives provisions of the law relating to the general staff. The general staff will become an advisory and investigating body, and will prepare plans for the organization and mobilization of the army, collect information and make preparations for plans of campaigns, etc. The officers of the general staff assigned to duty in Washington will be divided in to divisions, such as may be directed by the chief of staff. Officers of the general staff assigned to divisions, departments and separate brigades will serve under the immediate orders of the commander of such separate divisions and departments.

Another general order has been issued amending the regulation of the army to meet the changed conditions which the general staff law makes necessary.

Two general orders were issued by General Young today as chief of staff of the army under the new law. The first states that in compliance with the instructions of the president, he (Young) relinquishes command of the army and assumes the duties of chief of staff.

The second order announces the assignment of officers of the general staff as follows: Generals Corbin, Carter and Randolph. The officers named will perform such duties as may be assigned them under the law by the chief of staff.

War college board: General Bliss, Colonel MacKenzie and Major Beach.

Colonel Hall, assistant adjutant-general, is designated acting adjutant-general of the army. Heretofore all army orders have been issued from the headquarters of the army, adjutant-general's office, by command of the lieutenant-general, but signed by the adjutant-general. Hereafter orders will be issued direct from the war department, signed by the chief of staff and inscribed "official, W. P. Hall, acting adjutant-general."

As assistant chief of staff General Corbin will perform much the same duties that have come under his direction heretofore.

BOSTONIANS VICTORS

In Grand Event of First Day of Regatta of National Oarsmen

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 15.—The nine events constituting the first day of the 31st championship regatta of the National oarsmen were run off on Lake Quinsigamond most successfully.

Half a dozen of the races were preliminary to final heats and championships, which will be fought today, and in all these there was never any doubt as to which oarsman would cross the line first.

The feature of the day was the grand eight-oared contest for the Richard K. Fox cup, and the victory of the Jeffries Point crew, Boston, was decisive. The Boston crew led from the start, and was never headed.

Another surprise of the day was the victory of the Winnipeg crew in the senior international fours and the senior four-oared shells. The crew of the East Boston A. A. B. C. had been picked as almost sure winners in both events, and while they made two hot fights the Canadians seemed to have plenty of reserve, and won each by good margins.

The ease with which Lon F. Scholes of Toronto won his heat in the association senior sculls was not unexpected, neither was any one surprised when F. R. Peterson of the East Boston club came in second. The rest of the competitors were far behind.

The most popular victory in the estimation of the spectators was that of Harry Crowley of the Wachusett Boat club of this city in the second heat of the intermediate single sculls. Although Crowley merely paddled across the line he was cheered to the echo.

The other events were all won so decisively that there was very little enthusiasm in the finish.

Jamaicans In Awful Plight

Kingston, Ja., Aug. 15.—There are heart-rending scenes all over the eastern and northern portions of the island of Jamaica. At Port Antonio thousands of homeless and starving people have sought shelter in the few buildings which survived the hurricane. Those who can not be thus accommodated are cowering in the lee of ruined walls and dismantled piazzas. Unless immediate shipments of foodstuffs come from America deaths by starvation are inevitable.

A New Guinia Expedition

London, Aug. 15.—A scientific expedition financed and led by an American, Major W. C. Daniels, will leave Southampton Sept. 1 for New Guinea. Major Daniels has equipped a schooner, and the Royal Geographical society has furnished the instruments. The Royal society and the British government are helping the expedition financially.

Executions by Strangulation

Havana, Aug. 15.—Three men were garroted in Santa Clara province for the murder and robbery of a planter. All claimed to be innocent and refused the ministrations of a priest. Their relatives had come to Havana and had pleaded unavailingly with President Palma for clemency.

Sympathy For Tunnel Victims

Paris, Aug. 15.—Henry Vignaud, first secretary of the United States embassy, has written to the French government a letter of condolence on behalf of Ambassador Porter and the embassy in connection with the tunnel catastrophe on the Metropolitan railroad.

German War Minister Retires

Berlin, Aug. 15.—Lieutenant General von Gosler has been relieved of the post of war minister at his own request. Lieutenant General von Einem the director general of the department of war, has been appointed as his successor.

Macedonians Lose Ammunition

Belgrade, Aug. 15.—A large quantity of ammunition intended for the Macedonian insurgents has been confiscated in the custom house here. It was packed in wooden cases, marked "hardware" and "nails."

Alaskan Boundary Session Fixed

Washington, Aug. 15.—The state department has been informed by Ambassador Choate that the first meeting of the Alaskan boundary commission will be held Sept. 3 in the British foreign office.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Misunderstood Books of Bible.

Rev. Bert DeWitt Beck, pastor of the Atlantic M. E. church, invites the public to a special series of Sunday evening addresses beginning on Sunday. He says:

Why not spend a few summer evenings pleasantly and profitably in looking through the three commonly misunderstood books of the Bible, viz.: Job, songs of Solomon and Jonah? Some reject the Bible because they are in it; others deny them a place in Holy Scriptures; others believe them because they are in the sacred book, but do not understand them. You haven't time to read what the best Bible students say about them, but come and hear.

August 16, 7 P. M.—The Afflictions of "Job."

August 2', 7 P. M.—The Bible's Love Story, or "Songs of Solomon."

August 30, 7 P. M.—"Jonah" and the Whale.

—Down at Stapleton, N. Y., the mosquitoes have assumed the defensive, even to the extent of attacking a meeting of citizens gathered to devise means for their extermination.

BRAINTREE.

Mrs. Haddassah Williams of South Quincy was the guest Tuesday of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Dyer of Washington street.

Many of the Braintree friends of the late Andrew Havey, formerly of this town, attended his funeral in East Weymouth Monday. The burial was in Randolph.

Mr. J. Franklin Bates will have reason to remember his experiences of Wednesday for some time. Having cut his fingers, he bound them up in turpentine and soon after a spark from his pipe, ignited the fluid, burning his hand quite severely.

The Union Vets will take part in the firemen's muster at New Downer Landing this afternoon, Chief John Kelley is to be one of the Judges.

The collections taken at the Union church for the American Missionary Association amounted to $35.00 to be given to Straight University, New Orleans, La.

Tuesday evening, Antietam Camp 32 gave a return cobweb party to L. A. S. 16, in G. A. R. hall. Twenty-two were present to unwind the web and some found it quite a task. Mrs. Alice Mc Gibbon received the ladies' prize and Mr. A. F. Hollis the gentleman's prize. After the prizes were awarded the lunches, which had been brought by the gentlemen, were auctioned off to the ladies amid much fun. The ladies then found their partners and a social hour was enjoyed. The punch made and served by the gentlemen was fully appreciated by the ladies. Only one thing was lacking, they found sunflowers but no--pins.

Mr. D. A. White, the state secretary of the Socialist party, will speak in the square, South Braintree, Aug. 20 in the evening. Mr. White is an eloquent speaker and thoroughly understands the principles of socialism. All are invited to attend.

The annual picnic of Corps 94 W. R. C. was held at Holbrook on Thursday, August 13. The day was clear and cool, and twenty-five of the members boarded the electrics during the forenoon, in response to an invitation from one of the members, Mrs. Lizzie Beals, and went to Holbrook to a grove adjoining her home on Belcher street. The place proved to be an ideal one for a picnic, and the host proved herself a good one.

Post 87, G. A. R. and Corps 94, W. R. C. have received an invitation to attend the second anniversary of Antietam L. A. S. on Saturday evening, Sept. 5th.

At the last meeting of Corps 94, Mrs. Sarah L. French was installed as patriotic instructor.

A good game is expected for this afternoon on French's Common. Manager Bailey is in Maine on his vacation, and assistant Manager Frank W. Jackson will conduct the afternoon's sport. Hennessey will probably be unable to pitch owing to his injured hand, and Sheehan and Morse a clever Canton battery will probably officiate. They are said to be good ones. Mahoney will be on first for Braintree. He will be remembered as being one of the fastest players on the Boston Dry Goods Co. team. Leach the fastest man of the Bankers will probably be in short field. There will be other fast players, and Mr. Jackson says that there will be something doing all the time.

Sixteen members of Antietam L. A. S. 16 enjoyed a trolley trip to Mayflower Grove, Pembroke, Wednesday. Huge sunflowers worn by most of the members furnished much pleasure to the party on the trip to the grove. After a picnic dinner the party enjoyed the attractions found at the grove. On the return trip great excitement was caused by an accident which delayed the car an hour. Late in the evening the tired but happy members arrived home with a few souvenirs and many pleasant memories of the day. Next year the society hopes the O. C. S. R. will be prepared to carry such heavy weights as composed the society so that we will not have to walk up the hills.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The interesting announcement is made by the management of the Castle Square Theatre that an engagement has been concluded with Mr. J. H. Gilmour, to appear with the stock company at this play house for three weeks, beginning next Monday. The great popularity enjoyed by Mr. Gilmour while with the Castle Square company in its earlier years ensures a hearty welcome for him upon his return to the scene of his many successes. He begins his engagement in "Jim the Penman," which has made one of the notable attractions of the first season of the Castle Square company and, as James Ralston, Mr. Gilmour will undoubtedly again win the distinction which has always attended his impersonation of this strong character.

During the remaining weeks of Mr. Gilmour's engagement with the company he will be seen in other notable successes of his extensive repertoire. At the Monday matinee the usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Mantlee Johnstone, whose coming to Keith's had to be postponed a week, will surely appear on Monday, Aug. 17, when he will present a comedy sketch entitled, "The Golden Rose." Mr. Johnstone, who is well known and talented "legitimate" actor, will be supported by Belle Stoddard. Some of the other entertainers in the same bill are Howard and Bland, a talented pianist and comedian, and a clever soubrette; the Castanos, graceful spectacular dancers; Rexford Brothers a trio of wonderful acrobats and equilibrists; Gilday and Fox, Hebrew comedians and parody singers, and Gerold's original miniature theatre specialty, something unique and away from anything of the kind hitherto attempted, presenting four little comedy singing scenes, with special scenery, etc. The Fadettes orchestra will make a complete change of selections and there will be new views in the motion picture machine.

"MISS PETTICOATS."

Manager Lawrence McCarty has just concluded negotiations with Manager J. J. Rosenthal for a two weeks' engagement at the Boston Theatre, commencing Monday night, September 14, of Miss Kathryn Osterman in the immense production of the new play, "Miss Petticoats." This is considered to be one of the most important productions of the season and its presentation is of special interest locally on account of its authorship. The dramatization is by George T. Richardson, the dramatic editor of the Boston Traveler, and is made from the novel of the same name which was written by Wilder D. Quint, who is managing editor and literary critic of the Traveler, and by Mr. Richardson. The novel was written under the pseudonym of Dwight Tilton and it will be remembered that there was considerable mystery as to its authorship for a long time.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO the heirs-at-law, next-of-kin and all other persons interested in the estate of
FRANCIS A. FRIGUGLIETTI,
late of Quincy, in said County, deceased.

Whereas, a certain instrument purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased has been presented to said Court for Probate, by Thomas F. Padula and Daniel C. Riordan, who pray that letters of administration with the will annexed may be issued to them, or some other suitable person, the executors named in said will having declined to serve as executors.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Dedham, in said County of Norfolk, on the second day of September, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be granted.

And said petitioners are hereby directed to give public notice thereof by publishing this citation once in each week, for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, or delivering a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate, seven days at least before said Court.

EXCESSES OF OTTOMANS

Of Which Bulgaria Says She Has Absolute Proof

MASSACRES AND TORTURE

Carnage, Pillage, Incendiarism and Violation of Women by Turkish Soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks Everywhere While Officials Look On

Sofia, Aug. 17.—The Bulgarian government has presented a memorandum to the powers setting out at great length the condition of affairs during the past three months in Macedonia since the Turkish government undertook to inaugurate the promised reforms. The most precise details, dates, places and names of persons are given in the memorandum, the whole constituting a terrible category of murder, torture, incendiarism, pillage and general oppression committed by the Ottoman soldiers and officials.

These particulars were obtained entirely from official sources. The Bulgarian government guarantees the absolute truth of every statement and challenges the porte to disprove a single charge made in the memorandum.

The memorandum begins by stating that during the past three months the Ottoman government has taken a series of measures with the alleged intention of inaugurating the era of promised reform and of assuring peace and tranquility in the Bulgarian population of European Turkey, but which have had the contrary effect of further exasperating this population and reviving the revolutionary movement. Instead of proceeding solely against persons guilty of breaches of the public order, the military and civil authorities have sought every possible pretext to persecute, terrorize and ruin the Bulgarian inhabitants alike in the large cities and in the small villages.

Wholesale massacres, individual murders, the destruction of villages, the pillaging and setting fire to houses, arrests, ill-treatment, torture, arbitrary imprisonment and banishment, the closing and disorganizing of churches and schools, the ruining of merchants, the collection of taxes for many years in advance; such, proceeds the memorandum, are among the acts of the Ottoman administration of the vilayets of Salonica, Monastir, Uskub and Adrianople.

The memorandum next relates in detail a number of such cases in each vilayet. During the first three weeks of July 25 villages in the district of Tikvesch were subjected to the depredations of the Turkish soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks. The villagers were beaten and tortured, the women violated and the houses plundered while the administrative authorities looked on.

In the vilayet of Monastir, artillery bombarded and razed the flourishing town of Smerdesch, the 300 houses being left a heap of ruins. At the beginning of July two Greek bands, with the connivance of the authorities, pillaged Bulgarian villages and murdered many of their inhabitants. In the vilayet of Uskub the entire Bulgarian population has been systematically persecuted since last May. During June the soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks terrorized the inhabitants of the Schtif district, torturing the people with red hot irons. Similar atrocities perpetrated in the vilayet of Adrianople are cited. Altogether it gives particulars of no less than 131 individual and general cases of excesses and outrages committed by the Turkish authorities.

In summarizing the specific details of the outrages mentioned, the memorandum declares that wholesale massacres were perpetrated by regulars and Bashi-Bazouks in the town of Salonica and the villages of Baldevo, Banitza, Tchourilovo, Karbinza, Moghila, Smerdesch and Enidje, while the scenes of carnage, pillage and incendiarism were everywhere terrible.

At Smerdesch over 200 Bulgarians were shot, killed with swords or burned to death. Over 250 houses and the churches and schools were set on fire with petroleum and pillaged. Similar scenes occurred at the villages of Gorna-Ribnitza, Igoumenetz, Dobrilagi and Nikoden. The villagers there abandoned their homes and fled to the mountains. Over 3000 men, women and children fled from the sanjak of Seres and even more from the sanjak of Kirkklisze.

to obtain the exact number of Bulgarians who were imprisoned, mostly on the flimsiest pretexts, as when they were released others were immediately arrested. The estimates obtainable give a grand total of 2800. As information is lacking from many districts, it is thought that without exaggeration the number of prisoners may be placed at even three times this total.

In conclusion the memorandum asserts that the foregoing exposure once more condemns Ottoman administrative government in Europe. It says: "Not long ago the porte denounced the revolutionary movement as being fomented by Bulgaria and tried to put the responsibility on this principality. Today it must acknowledge that it is its bad administration which is the only cause of the trouble. From sad experience the porte must learn that systematic persecution, cruel injustice and bloody repression do not restore order and peace in a country. The porte accepted in principle the project of reform which it has not put into effect. It has declared that the project is insufficient.

"Lastly, the porte formally promised the Bulgarian government to cease the arrests of Bulgarian priests and schoolmasters, reopen the churches and schools, release the prisoners and punish the officials guilty of exactions; in short, to adopt a policy of justice and amelioration. Not only has the porte failed to observe a single one of these promises, but it has enacted sterner measures of repression."

The memorandum has made a strong impression in diplomatic circles. The Austrian diplomatic agent already has called on the premier to express his anxiety regarding the results that may ensue from its publication. The French and Italian agents also expressed uneasiness.

"Concert" of No Avail

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The Russian press does not lay emphasis on the dispatch of a division of the Russian Black Sea fleet to Turkish waters. The Novoe Vremya today says: Bitter experience has shown the uselessness and disadvantage of all concerted measures. Now, since the murder of M. Rostkowski does not concern Europe, we are proceeding without any concert and therefore we can more confidently predict complete satisfaction for our demands from Turkey.

Advice From Great Britain

Constantinople, Aug. 17.—The British ambassador has called the attention of the porte to the serious situation in Macedonia. He pointed out that grave consequences may attend fresh murders of consuls or foreign subjects. The ambassador had an audience with the Sultan on Friday.

Insurgents Strongly Posted

Rome, Aug. 17.—Information from Bulgarian sources received here confirms the report that the insurrection in the Balkans is spreading and daily gaining ground. The insurgents are strongly posted at all the strategical points on the roads leading to Monastir and Salonica.

Turkey Investing In Krupp Guns

Constantinople, Aug. 17.—The Ottoman government has concluded negotiations with the Krupp works for the supply of 32 batteries of quick-firing field artillery, each consisting of six guns.

Zoncheff In Macedonia

Sofia, Aug. 17.—General Zoncheff, the president of the Macedonian committee, who was reported to have been arrested by the Bulgarian police near the Macedonian frontier, has escaped from Bulgaria into Macedonia.

Postmaster's Mysterious Death

Elmira, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Francis E. Clark, postmaster at Hornby, was found dead in bed in a hotel at Corning. He was taken to the hotel 18 hours before and put to bed by two men. When found he had a fractured skull and a blood clot on the brain. How he came to his death no one seems to know. He was taken from a saloon by the two men, who are said to be reputable citizens.

Pain Drove Him to Suicide

Washington, Aug. 17.—Stephen E. Hall of Aurora, Ills., a protege of Senator Hopkins, killed himself in his room here. Hall had suffered great pain, due to stomach trouble, and had applied at a nearby store for a certain medicine which the druggist was unable to supply. He was a clerk in the department of commerce and labor.

Express Train Wrecked

Cleveland, Aug. 17.—Shortly after leaving here a Cleveland and New York "flyer" express on the Erie railroad was wrecked at a street crossing by running into an open switch. No one was killed but eight persons were seriously injured.

WOLLASTONS CONTINUE AT TOP IN LEAGUE.

AT MERCY OF DUNN

Sixteen of the Merrymounts Strike Out.

And Quincys Win 9 to 4.

Heavy Batting by Victors in the First Inning.

The Quincys and Merrymounts met in the Quincy league on Saturday at Quincy Point, and the former won in the first inning. The final result was 9 to 4, and the Quincys scored 5 in the first inning.

Ten Quincy men went to the bat in this inning. Pitts was an easy victim at first by Monroe's assist. Eldridge set the ball rolling with a three bagger, and Flynn got first on error of Saunders. Then Faircloth, Duffy and Moriarty hit safely and with the assistance of a wild throw to the plate five runs were scored. Dorley met the ball but it also met him and he was declared out, hit by batted ball. White hit safely to left and Dunn to right, but Pitts was third out on a foul bunt.

Merrymount got two men on bases in the first, Osgood by a two bagger and Baker on balls, but Monroe and Chadbourne struck out.

Both sides retired in one-two-three order in the second.

The only Quincy man to reach first in the third was Moriarty who was hit by a pitched ball.

Taylor for Wollaston got a pass but was thrown out at second, and a run was lost, for Osgood followed with a safe hit; he was left on second.

Quincy scored a run in each of the next four innings, only one of which was earned.

Monroe opened for Merrymount with a two bagger in the fourth but got no further, as Dunn struck out the next three.

In the fifth, Kolson hit for two bases and Taylor for one, but two more struck out.

The sixth inning raised the hopes of the Merrymounts a little. Monroe hit safely. Chadbourne made a long hit to left which was captured. Bennett was hit. Then Mullen brought in Monroe, the first run for the visitors. Bennett was caught napping at second. Then a single by Saunders and a pass for Kolson filled the bases. Taylor's hit brought in one run, but three were left on bases by Osgood's strike out.

Merrymount got two men on bases in the seventh, but no runs came.

Two, however, were added in the eighth before there were any outs, on a base on balls, a single to right, and a wild throw home.

In the ninth for the visitors it looked like more runs. Monroe hit safely and stole second and third. Then two men filed out. Mullen got a pass and a steal. Saunders was at the bat and with two strikes and three balls the umpire called a strike for a ball below his knees. A pass would have filled the bases, and no one knows what might have happened.

Dunn's fine pitching at critical times won the victory, as he struck out 16 in all.

South Quincys Again Defeated.

Home Run by Bellevue—Loose Fielding by Ward Three Team.

In the Quincy league game at the Ward Three playground on Saturday the Wollastons defeated the South Quincys by the score of 7 to 4.

Wollaston excelled at the bat and in the field. A home run by Bellevue and two baggers by Eaton and Dean helped the victors, while W. Craig of the South Quincys was the only member of the home nine to hit safe for more than one bag.

M. Gill of Wollastons had three safe singles to his credit, and Fountain was the only member of the team who did not hit safely.

Both pitchers struck out 10 men and both gave three bases on balls.

Seven of the Wollastons retired on flies to out field, all chances being accepted, while only three South Quincy men knocked flies beyond the bases.

Good Afternoon

The work of federal irrigation goes steadily on and promises to become a monument to the President who has said "Throughout our history the success of the homemaker has been but another name for the upbuilding of the nation."

"Quincy the only city to show a decrease." That sounds well in the Globe's summary of tax rates in Greater Boston. The rates of Boston, Brookline and Nahant remain as last year, but the others are as follows:

Chelsea,	$17.60 to $18.60
Newton,	16.40 to 16.80
Somerville,	16.40 to 17.20

Senator Morgan declares that he is prepared to make another vigorous fight on the Panama treaty if it comes back to the Senate amended. The Senate could remember that there were several gentlemen in the Senate "prepared to make a vigorus fight" on the Cuban treaty but Mr. Roosevelt had determined to have it ratified and the energetic opposition will go down to posterity branded with the inglorious name of "insurgents."

Although the greater part of the Blue Hills reservation is in Quincy, the park has not been accessible to Quincy people until Sunday, and now it is a more roundabout way to reach "Big Blue" than it is for Boston or even towns north of Boston. However, if the Old Colony street railway advertises the new route from Mattapan to Canton it is sure to have a large travel via West Quincy and Milton. The time-table between East Milton and Mattapan should be arranged so that good time can be made. The distance by rail is six to seven miles, but the view from the top of Big Blue would well repay a journey of fifty miles.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ J. Pierpont Morgan has abandoned his intention of spending a month on the water in his newly-fitted yacht. He is finding all the water he can attend to right in Wall street.—Lynn Item.

☞ Children are not sufficiently taught that they must continually use their own judgment, that life is made up of choice, and that no one can ultimately choose or decide for another. It should be demonstrated that in the little everyday acts of choice lie the making of the power of judgment which will be their sole guide when they leave home. The subject of forming judgment so often occurs in daily life, in history and story, that it is easy to talk about it and discuss it from the child's standpoint. Teach him to see that every mistake may help his judgment; that the important matter lies in his vision—his inner vision of right [illegible] to his power

SAIL AND DANCE.

Squantum Yacht Club Observe Ladies' Day.

Mayor Bryant the Commodore.

Several Yachts and Launches Take Out Fair Guests.

The great event of the Squantum Yacht club this year was its annual Ladies day. This was held Saturday afternoon. The wind was very light. Hardly enough to make what is called a ladies breeze, yet this did not prevent a large fleet from participating in the review and sail, and every yacht had it full complement of guets.

The club house and floats were decorated with a profusion of colored lanterns, which made a brilliant effect at night when lighted.

The dinner and sail came in the afternoon. Commodore Bryant arrived on the scene early in the day in his launch Squaw, and after the yachts had passed in review and saluted led them over the prescribed course.

The return from the sail was at 5 o'clock, at which time a lunch was served at the club house. An orchestra enlivened the occasion with entertaining music.

In the evening there was dancing which closed one of the most sucessful social times the club has ever held.

The yachts with their guests to participate in the sail were:

Flagship Squaw,—Commodore Charles M. Bryant, Mrs. Bryant, Miss Florrie Hall, Mrs. Joseph Foster, Mrs. Fiske, Hamilton Flood, Master Harry Hendrickson, Master Hall.

Almost a Riot.

There came near being a small riot at the Quincy depot on the arrival of the late train Saturday night, and if the crowd had attempted to carry out its threat there would have been trouble and broken heads. It, however, only emphasized again the necessity of adopting some method of controling the Fore River gang that come out on the late train Saturday night. They are sober enough to pass the officers on duty at the South Terminal station, but drunk enough to make a nuisance of themselves when they arrive in Quincy.

The trouble Saturday night started when the conductor of the street car tried to get a drunk off his car. The drunk was a boy not over 15 years of age and he was beastly drunk. His friends got him onto the car when he began to use the foulest of language. The conductor told him to get off and started to put him off.

At this the crowd arose in a body and threatened to smash anyone who attempted to take the boy off. Just about this time Officer Goodhue appeared on the scene and the conduetor requested the Officer to remove the boy.

At this the crowd jumped up and the air was full of cries of mob him, knock him out, etc. Officer Goodhue, however, made a jump for the car, and took the boy off although it looked for a minute as though the crowd would mob the officer.

On account of the boys age the officer allowed his friends to take him home in a carriage.

Reunion of Co. H.

The annual reunion of Company H, 4th Regiment, U. S. V., was held at Nantasket Point on Friday last. About three hundred were present, including the wives and children. An excellent dinner was served. Among those present from this city, were Charles N. Hunt, Ellsworth M. Harden, Wyman Nightingale, Thomas Smith and Albert Keating.

TODAY'S COURT.

One drunk was released.

James Gallagher of Quincy, James Foster and and James F. Hurley of Randolph were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

Frank DeCoste was arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Case continued until Aug. 24.

Thomas Mullen was arraigned for drunkenness and disturbing the peace at Milton. He was fined $5 for disturbing the peace and the complaint for drunkenness was placed on file.

The continued cases of Patrick Doherty, Thomas Horan and Patrick Walsh of Quincy, Melvin A. Cate of Braintree, Joseph McKinno of Weymouth for drunkenness were called and they were defaulted.

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

Mrs. J. N. Blake of Cottage street is confined to her home by sickness.

Henry Maloney of the Weeks & Hill pharmacy is having a brief vacation.

Mrs. Sarah A. Porter is confined to her home on Spring lane seriously ill.

Arthur J. Parker has succeeded W. S. Weaver as station agent at Atlantic.

Mrs. James Rideout of South Quincy is the guest of Mrs. T. G. Thrasher of Avon.

Roger H. Wilde and family of Billings street have gone to Greene, Maine, for a week.

Miss Bessie Drew has returned from Hyannis where she has been attending Normal school.

Mrs. M. E. Tisdale is having her house on Hancock street beautified by the painter's brush.

Miss Mollie Cable of Jamacia Plain was the guest at Camp Elizabetb, Houghs Neck, last week.

Mr. Francis Baxter of Washington street, owing to poor health, has taken a trip to St. Johns, N. B.

Russell Tupper and Ralph Marden leave today for Post Island where they will camp out for two weeks.

John H. McDougall has returned to his regular duties at the Quincy post office after a ten days' vacation.

"A rooter" at the Quincy Point game on Saturday has sent the Ledger a letter which will appear tomorrow.

Miss Bertha Newcomb of Newcomb street, accompanied by her two aunts, has gone to New Hampshire for a fortnight's rest.

Miss Florence Holton with a party of ten ladies leave today for a two weeks' sojourn at Rose Cliff where they have rented a cottage.

Mrs. Lorenzo Wood of Upland road chaperoned a party of young ladies to Pembroke where they have been enjoying themselves the past week.

Miss Octavia Thompson is the guest of her sister Mrs. William L. Putman at the Mount Washington Hotel, Bretton Woods, N. H., for a few weeks.

Miss Lizzie Burrell who has been spending the past two months with her mother, Mrs. Emma Burrell, returned last week to her duties at California.

Officer John Hollaron, who is enjoying a vacation of two weeks, was registered with his daughter Miss Susie at the "Velvet," Old Orchard, last week.

Mr. G. B. Thomas, the obliging letter carrier, after a two weeks' vacation and rest spent in the Connecticut Valley, has returned to his regular duties very much improved in health.

Ezekiel C. Sargent of Newcomb place in company with Herbert J. and George N. Shephard of River street left Friday for Rangeley Lakes, Maine, where they will spend two weeks fishing.

Capt. Pillsbury Coombs of Billings street was hurt by one of his horses last week. He was kicked in the leg with such force that he was thrown several feet. He struck a wheelbarrow, and injured his side severely. He is being attended by Dr. Littlefield.

Atlantic has never had such a number of bathers as have taken advantage of the salt water this summer. The beach has been improved by the removal of some of the eel grass and sea-weed, and if the popularity of swimming continues, Atlantic will outrival the city which bears its name.

Frank F. Crane sold at public auction on Saturday last several attractive house lots belonging to E. S. Costa, corner of Faxon Park road and Phipps street, Quincy, as follows: Two lots Mr. Knowland; one at four and one at four-and-one-half cents per foot; and one to James O'Brien at five cents per foot.

Mrs. McDonald of Goddard street sailed on the Ivernia last week for Liverpool where she will remain with her husband, Capt. McDonald, for a few months, as his headquarters will be at Liverpool instead of Boston. On his last trip from Boston, his ship the Vancouver, had on board Miss Edith Randall and party of this city.

NEW TROLLEY TRIP.
Opening of the Blue Hill Route from Mattapan.
On Saturday the Blue Hill street railway from Mattapan to Stonghton was opened when officials of the line and also of Boston, Milton and Stoughton were given a treat.
There were three cars on the official trip which was made without mishap, and it was a pleasure to the 200 guests to get into the country. A spread was served at the entrance to the road to Blue Hill.
From Mattapan there is a straight run of about three and one half miles to the footpath leading to the summit of Great Blue Hill. Here connection may be made for Canton and Stoughton, some five and nine miles farther on, respectively. The new system comes to an end at Stoughton. It is planned to continue it as far as Brockton.
Regular trips are now being made. The schedule time from the Dudley street terminal to Blue hill via of Mattapan is 40 minutes. From Quincy via of West Quincy, Milton and Mattapan, with close connections, the trip should be made in an hour.

Conductor Killed.
Charles F. McClelland a condustor on the Plymouth division of the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. was struck by the train at South Braintree, Sunday night while returning home. He was put aboard the train but died before reaching Boston.

VALUABLE COUPON.

Cut it Out and Save Half at Chas. C. Hearn's Drug Store.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, proposes to save you money and if you will present the following coupon at his store, he will let you have a regular fifty cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, containing 60 doses, at half price.

COUPON.

This coupon entitles the holder to one 50c. package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, 25c. I will refund the money to any dissatisfied purchaser.

CHAS. C. HEARN.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

He will go even further and will give with every package he sells his personal guarantee to refund the money if the specific does not cure. This is certainly a most unusual offer,—a reliable medicine at half price, with the further guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded if the remedy does not cure.

Anyone who is suffering from liver trouble, constipation, sick headache, indigestion, specks before the eyes, melancholy, or tired feelings, should take advantage of this offer. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn does not know how long he will be able to sell the specific at half price, for his sale has been something phenomenal, sometimes being obliged to order supplies two or three times a week.

As the dose is diminished after the first few days, a bottle, that you can obtain now for 25 cents, will generally last a month. And it costs you nothing if it does not cure.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

How the Grasshopper Lost

A grasshopper because he had won a jumping match from the cricket challenged a bullfrog who lived near by. When the date for the match approached, the grasshopper worked very hard so as to jump at the proper weight. He would run a mile or two, jump rope, fly over fences, until he was really the greatest jumper that had appeared in the neighborhood for years. At last everything was ready for the contest.

The bullfrog toed the mark and sang a sort of refrain like this:

Watch me jump!
Watch me jump!

Then he jumped at least six feet.

"That's nothing," said the grasshopper. "I told you all that I'm the greatest jumper on earth. After this jump I intend to go with the circus and do a jumping act."

Then he threw out his legs in one grand leap and would certainly have won the match, but through a faulty steering gear he jumped right down the throat of a turkey gobbler who had been watching the performance.

DAYLIGHT ROBBERY.

Sneak Thieves Enter House of F. W. Plummer.

One of the boldest daylight robberies of the several that have been reported in Quincy this summer, was that this morning at the residence of F. W. Plummer on Greenleaf street.

It was the boldness of the thieves together with the fact that Mrs. Plummer and a servant were in the house at the ttme that should make people unusually careful how they leave their doors unlocked.

It was about 11 o'clock this morning that Mrs. Plummer saw a stranger lying in the grass near the Woodward Institute. At the same time she heard the screen door on the front of the house close.

She hastened down stairs and arrived at the door just in time to see a man disappear into Hancock street.

A hasty examing showed that two rings, one a diamond, were missing. The police were telephoned and Inspector McKay was soon on the spot. Neighbors who saw the men say that they separated, one going toward City Square and the other toward Wollaston.

A domestic employed in the house of W. W. Adams saw the two men go into Mr. Plummer's piazza and stand at the door as though talking to someone. Then one raised his hat and both came to the street.

The shorter of the two then evidently went back to the house and the tall man to the rear of the school building when he stretched himself on the grass to watch.

Eruption of Vesuvius Continues

Naples, Aug. 17.—The eruption of Vesuvius has somewhat increased. The stream of lava flowing from the crater is divided into two branches. The longer reaches a distance of 2600 feet in the direction of Ottajano; the other is now 2300 feet towards Pompeii. There is no immediate danger.

CAPTAIN CHARLEY BARR, SKIPPER OF RELIANCE.

TRIAL OF ENGINES.

The dock trial of the engines of the United States cruiser Des Moines, at the Fore River shipyard, took place Monday under the supervision of the United States Navy authorties at the yard, Naval Constructor Watt and Lieutenant Commander E. H. Scribner, Inspector of Machinery. The run lasted four hours with all six of the boilers in use and about 18 tons of ordinary steam coal were consumed, giving an average of 130 pounds of steam.

About one-half the full power for the engines was required, the revolutions varying between 90 and 108 per minute—the equivalent of a speed of about 12 knots. The machinery behaved excellently, very little tremor being communicated to the hull of the vessel, and the entire test was most satisfactory to the government officials The cruiser's sea trials will take place in a few weeks.

Returning to Work at Old Scale

Philadelphia, Aug. 17.—Another break in the textile workers' strike took place today, when 3000 rug weavers, Turkish towel weavers and woolen yarn workers returned to work. No concessions have been granted by the manufacturers. The upholstery weavers, 5000 in number, will make a final effort today to consider concessions and, failing, will return to work tomorrow at the old scale.

Russia's Position Strengthened

St. Petersburg, Aug. 17.—The press here unanimously dilates on the magnitude of the powers conferred on Vice-Admiral Alexieff, the new viceroy of the Amur territory and the Kwan-Tung province. The newspapers agree that the innovation strengthens the Russian position in the far East and renders immediate action on the spot a more easy matter.

Confessed to Robbery

Providence, Aug. 17.—James H. Farrell and Fred Leclair, the assailants of Isaac B. Seeley, the New York manufacturer, were captured in this city as they landed at the dock of the steamer Larchmont. They were taken to the police station, where Leclair confessed his guilt. The other man later corroborated the statements. The men were taken to New York.

Admits Robbing Bank

Red Bank, N. J., Aug. 17.—Enoch L Cowart, cashier of the defunct Navesink National bank, was arrested on the charge of embezzlement. He admitted that he had misappropriated about $40,000 of the bank's funds. He said that he at first diverted the money to pay dividends on the bank's stock and later he appropriated various sums for his own use.

President Talks to Catholics

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 17.—President Roosevelt delivered the principal address at the quarterly meeting of the Society of the Holy Name of Brooklyn and Long Island, held here yesterday afternoon. Decency of speech and conduct constituted the theme of his address, which was applauded by an audience of more than 2000 persons.

Blue Hills Accessible.

The opening of the Blue Hill street railway places the most beautiful of the reservations of the metropolitan park system for the first time at the service of the public says an editorial in the Post. Hitherto it has been inaccessible except to those who could command the use of carriages or could endure a long walk. The reservation is distant from the steam railroad, and although a connection with some of the trolley lines has been possible by a barge running to Houghton's Pond, it has been infrequent, uncertain and tedious.

The new road takes passengers from Boston right up to the maine entrance at the junction of Blue Hill and Canton avenues, near the path to the summit of Great Blue Hill. Unquestionably, this is a most desirable accomodation. It opens to the dwellers in the city, as well as all along the line through Mattapan and Milton, a most delightful recreation ground, reached by easy access and quick transit, through a beautiful part of the country. Thousands will now visit the Blue Hill Park where hundreds have gone heretofore; and there is room for all of them.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Captain Austin H. Brown, U. S. A., in charge of the recruiting station at Springfield, Mass., died as the result of a surgical operation. He had been ill but a few days.

Landscape gardeners in the employ of F. N. Dubois, while at work near his summer residence at Catskill, N. Y., unearthed an Indian burial ground. A number of skeletons were found intact.

The Cuban secretary of the interior has ordered dealers in firearms to report to the police the sale of every rifle and to take a receipt therefor.

The new dormitory which Frederick W. Vanderbilt has donated to the Sheffield scientific school of Yale university will be named in memory of his brother, the late Cornelius Vanderbilt.

George E. Day, 39, was drowned off Davis Neck, Gloucester, Mass., by the capsizing of a dory. Two companions were rescued, one in an unconscious condition.

While walking the track of the Suburban electric railway at Providence Leander Potter was struck and instantly killed by a car near his home. Potter was 60 years old and of irregular habits.

A new schoolhouse at Clinton, Mass., was defaced by persons who broke into the building and daubed the walls with paint left by the painters. The schoolhouse was nearly ready for occupancy.

The anniversary of the battle of Bennington, fought in 1777 between General Burgoyne's army and the New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Vermont troops, was appropriately observed at Bennington, Vt.

John Dominos, aged 25, was drowned at Warren, R. I., while bathing.

Hanson Claims Self-Defense

Biddeford, Me., Aug. 17.—If the opinion of the attending physicians is well founded, Frank Hagerman, who was shot by Harlan P. Hanson on the lawn of the latter's home in Saco early Saturday morning, has but a short time to live. Death from blood poisoning is anticipated. Hanson adheres to his original version of the affair, and says that the wounded man threatened him with a knife.

Trio of Alleged Crooks

Center Ossipee, N. H., Aug. 17.—The police here believe they have succeeded in rounding up the gang of thieves which has committed wholesale depredations on summer cottages in this place during the past few years, and that they have located the hiding place of the men. The arrested men are Plummer Colby, A. S. Eldridge and John Matross.

Wandered From Almshouse

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 17.—David Rice, 86 years old, who has been missing from Holden almshouse since Wednesday afternoon, was found yesterday by a searching party. The old man was in a wood lot about a mile and a quarter from the almshouse. He was lying on the ground and was quite weak, as he had eaten nothing in four days.

Conductor Killed on Tracks

Braintree, Mass., Aug. 17.—While walking to his home here last night along the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, Charles F. McLellan, a conductor employed by that road, was struck by a train. He was alive when picked up and was sent to a Boston hospital, but died just before he reached there.

Adorned Marines and Jackies of North Atlantic Fleet

A SWARM OF VISITORS

Crowded the Vessels, Among Whom Were President Roosevelt and Secretary Moody—Attended Divine Services on Flagship Kearsarge

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 17.—With the North Atlantic fleet anchored off Oyster Bay Sunday was almost a fete day on the bay and sound. Hundreds of pleasure craft hovered about the fleet of great fighting machines throughout the day. Threatening weather did not deter anybody from visiting the fleet. Officers of the flagship of the Kearsarge estimated that a thousand persons were in or about the various vessels during the day and evening. The busiest men on the ships were the marines, who were kept under arms all day in full dress. The jackies on all the ships were attired in white duck.

Official formalities were begun at 9 o'clock in the morning, when Rear Admiral Barker, commander-in-chief of the fleet, accompanied by Captain Hemphill of the Kearsarge and Flag Lieutenant Eberle, went in a barge to the Dolphin to pay his respects to Secretary of the Navy Moody. An hour later Secretary Moody, accompanied by former Secretary Chandler, returned the visit, being received on board the Kearsarge with special honors. They remained on board to attend divine service. When Admiral Barker was informed that the president would also attend the service orders were issued for all officers to appear in special full dress.

Shortly before 11 a. m. President Roosevelt arrived near the Kearsarge in the naval yacht Sylph. Flag Lieutenant Eberle put off in the steam barge to present to the president the admiral's compliments and to conduct him aboard the flagship. On board the Kearsarge the president, as he came over the side, was received with due honors. Admiral Barker received the president on the quarter deck. A few minutes later a launch from the Sylph conveyed to the Kearsarge a party including Mrs. Roosevelt and the Roosevelt children.

The service was conducted by Chaplain Isaacs of the Kearsarge on the after part of the covered gun deck. The president and his party occupied seats immediately behind the chaplain who, in conducting the service, faced the enlisted men. The ship's officers were arranged in the rear of the president's party.

Chaplain Isaacs' sermon was particularly addressed to the officers and men of the ship. His special theme was that the man who served his country best is he who also serves best his God. At the conclusion of the service the president and Secretary Moody chatted with Admiral Barker and inspected some parts of the ship. The president then received Rear Admirals Wise, Sands and Coghlan, who had come from their flagships to pay their respects. Mrs. Roosevelt and the other women were shown over the ship, and were particularly delighted with the magnificent punch bowl presented by the German emperor on the occasion of the visit of the Kearsarge to Kiel.

When the president left the Kearsarge the sides of all the ships were again manned, and every honor was paid except the firing of the salute, which was omitted because his visit was unofficial and was made on a Sunday.

At 5 p. m. Sir Thomas Lipton, on board his steam yacht Erin, followed by the yacht Privateer, passed the fleet. Sir Thomas stood on the bridge of the Erin and saluted each ship as he went by. He will be the guest of President Roosevelt on the Mayflower today, when he will take luncheon with him.

At the conclusion of the review today the battleships Kearsarge, Illinois and Alabama will go seaward at full speed, which they will maintain until they reach Race Rock, at the eastern entrance of the Long Island sound.

Steamboat Wrecked by Plotters

Utica, N. Y., Aug. 17.—Steamer White Star, owned by Captain Torrence, was sunk at her dock at Saranac lake as a result of a deliberate plot to destroy the boat. A dynamite cartridge placed near a gasolene tank on the steamer and fired by a fuse from the dock tore the bow out of the boat. Rivalry among the steamboat men has been strong here all of the season.

Warring Workmen Exchange Shots

Wheeling, Aug. 17.—For four hours the streets of Benwood were the scene of a wild riot. The striking machinists and the non-union men who replaced them at the Riverside plant of the National Tube company clashed and many shots were exchanged. Although 1000 shots were fired but two men were known to be wounded.

Convicted of Manslaughter

Boston, Aug. 17.—George W. Barden was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to a term of not less than four nor more than five years in state prison for causing the death of Joseph C. Jacques. The men quarrelled in a

ALMOST A FARCE

Greer Walked Away From Titus and Easily Won Championship Sculls

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 17.—Frank B. Greer of the East Boston Athletic Association Boat club wrested the championship sculls from C. S. Titus of the Atalanta Boat club on Lake Quinsigamond so decisively that what had been anticipated as the most interesting feature of the annual regatta of the National Association of Amateur Oarsmen proved almost a farce.

Despite his easy victory, Greer pulled a remarkably fast race, and the time of 9.38 3-4 is the record for the event in the annals of the association. Other championships have been pulled in faster time, but they have been over straight-away courses, while this one was with a turn.

Street Railways to Consolidate

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 17.—The Worcester and Southbridge Street Railway company, the Worcester, Rochdale and Charlton Depot Street Railway company, the Southbridge and Sturbridge Street Railway company and the Worcester and Southbridge Development company, with the Pinehurst park and Hotel Overlook properties, are to be consolidated. The capitalization of this new corporation will be over $2,000,000, and it will be known as the Worcester and Southbridge Street Railway company.

Case of Double Asphyxiation

New Haven, Aug. 17.—The odor of escaping gas led to the discovery of the dead bodies of a man and women in a room of the Adams House. A gas jet in the room was turned on and it was evident that the deaths were due to asphyxiation. Although many people viewed the bodies there has been no identification. The couple are said to have registered as R. Smith and wife when they engaged the room. The woman was apparently 20 years old, while the man was 15 or 20 years older.

Welcomed Home With Bonfires

Concord, N. H., Aug. 17.—In welcome to her thousands of sons and daughters whose homes are now without her borders, the Granite State illuminated her hills and mountain peaks with beacon fires, the opening signals of approach of the Old Home Week celebration. Clear skies reflected the brilliance of almost countless bonfires, for very few of the accessible hill and mountain summits were barren of light.

PRACTICE OF LYNCHING

Has Not Checked Crime For Which It Is Responsible

JUSTICE BREWER'S WRITING

In Which He Recommends Establishment of Greater Confidence In Summary and Certain Punishment of Criminals to Stay Epidemic

New York, Aug. 17.—Associate Justice Brewer of the supreme court of the United States has contributed to Leslie's Weekly an article on the crime of lynching, in the course of which he says:

"Our government recently forwarded to Russia a petition in respect to alleged atrocities committed upon the Jews. That government, as might have been expected, unwilling to have its internal affairs a matter of consideration by other governments, declined to receive the petition. If, instead of so doing it, it had replied that it would put a stop to lynchings, what could we have said?

"It is well to look the matter fairly in the face. Many good men join in these uprisings, horrified at the atrocity of the crime and eager for swift and summary punishment. Many of these lynchings are accompanied by the horrible barbarities of savage torture, and all that can be said in palliation is the atrocity of the offenses which led up to them. For a time they were confined largely to the south, but that section of the country no longer has a monopoly.

"The chief offense which causes these lynchings has been the rape of white women by colored men. No words can be found too strong to describe the atrocity of such a crime. It is no wonder that the community is excited. Men would disgrace their manhood if they were not. And if a few lynchings had put a stop to the offense, society might have condoned such breaches of its laws, but the fact is, if we may credit the reports, the crime, instead of diminishing, is on the increase. The black beast (for only a beast would be guilty of such an offense) seems to be not deterred thereby. More than that, as might be expected, lynching for such atrocious crimes is no longer confined to them, but is being resorted to for other offenses.

"What can be done to stay this epidemic of lynching? One thing is the establishment of a greater confidence in the summary and certain punishment of a criminal. Men are afraid of the law's delays and the uncertainty of its results. Not that they doubt the integrity of the judges, but they know that law abounds with technical rules and that appellate courts will often reverse a judgment of conviction for a disregard of such rules, notwithstanding a full belief in the guilt of the accused. If all were certain that the guilty ones would be promptly tried and punished, the inducement to lynch would be largely taken away.

"In an address which I delivered before the American Bar association at Detroit some years since, I advocated doing away with appeals in criminal cases. It did not meet the favor of the association, but I still believe in its wisdom.

"Why may not direction be given to the presiding judge of the proper court, when such an atrocious crime has been committed as those giving rise to lynchings, to immediately convene the court and put the accused at once on trial? If this were done and no appeal were allowed, would not the community be more confident that full punishment would be promptly meted out? If it be said that under the haste of such a trial some innocent man might be punished, a sufficient reply would seem to be that justice will be more likely done than when a mob takes the law into its own hands.

"I can but think that if the community felt that the criminal would certainly receive the punishment he deserves and receive it soon, the eagerness for lynching would disappear, and mobs, whose gatherings too often mean not merely the destruction of jails and other property, but also the loss of innocent lives, would greatly diminish in number.

"One thing is certain—the tendency of lynching is to undermine respect for the law, and unless it be checked we need not be astonished if it be resorted to for all kinds of offenses and oftentimes innocent men suffer for wrongs committed by others."

Lawrence Woman Who Started For the West Is Mysteriously Missing

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 17.—Much interest has been aroused here in the news from San Francisco that Mrs. Ellen Kelliher has mysteriously disappeared while en route to that city to visit friends. Mrs. Kelliher is 68 years of age, and resides in this city. She was possessed of considerable property, and carried a good sum of money when she left her home to make the trip west. She left this city on July 27. Since that time no word has been received from her. Inquiries were made of friends whom she was known to have along the route and with whom it was thought she might have decided to stop for a few days. Now that no trace of her has been found, the police of the cities through which she would pass in going to San Francisco have been requested to bend their energies in an effort to locate her.

New Quarters For French Order

Plattsburg, N. Y., Aug. 17.—The Brothers of Christian Instruction, a teaching order of the Catholic church, will establish a seminary in Plattsburg, having just purchased property here for the purpose. The order conducts a large number of schools in Canadian cities. The seminary will train the teachers, and will make the mother house of the order in the United States. The establishment of the seminary in Plattsburg is a direct result of the banishment of the religious orders from France.

Pope Posted on Philippine Affairs

Rome, Aug. 17.—The pope last evening received Archbishop Harty, who was consecrated archbishop of Manila by Cardinal Satolli, with whom he spoke at length about the situation in the Philippine islands, showing himself fully conversant with the state of affairs there. Pius X said the efforts of the clergy towards the pacification of the archipelago and the triumph of Catholicism would always receive the warmest support at Rome.

Gives School to Journalism

New York, Aug. 17.—Joseph Pulitzer has provided the sum of $2,000,000 to establish a school of journalism at Columbia university to fit young men for newspaper work. A new building will be erected at a cost of $500,000 for the school, which will hold towards the university a relation similar to that of the other professional schools as the law school, the school of medicine and the school of mines.

TREATY IS REJECTED

Colombian Senate Against Canal Across Isthmus

THE NICARAGUAN SCHEME

Will Not Be Taken Up Until President Exhausts Every Recourse to Secure Necessary Authority to Proceed at Panama

Washington, Aug. 18.—The action of the Colombian senate in rejecting the Panama canal treaty, the news of which reached here yesterday, while deeply regretted in official circles, is by no means taken as seriously as would be similar action by a corresponding parliamentary body in any more substantial country. Officers of the state department are by no means convinced that this is a finality on Colombia's part, they suggesting that as the lower house is favorable to the treaty the matter may perchance yet be sent into conference. This would of course be contrary to all legislative practices here, where both houses must pass a bill, although in differing forms before it can go to conference. The plan has, however, been suggested as remotely as possible under the peculiar constitution and customs of Colombia.

By the terms of the Spooner act the president is directed, when Panama fails to proceed, at once to negotiate with Nicaragua and Costa Rica and then to take the necessary steps for the construction of a canal along that route. Unless those countries change front, it would now be easy to complete a treaty with them, since negotiations were undertaken by Secretary Hay many months ago, largely as a spur for the sides of Columbia, and these proceeded as far as was possible when primary negotiations were going on with Columbia. The Spooner compromise made the Nicaraguan route an immediately available second choice, for, had the terms of the law been less liberal, it is doubtful if the necessary support could have been secured from its passage. Accordingly, the friends of Nicaragua will doubtless break forth at once with the demand that the president proceed straightway by that route by the terms of the law.

But President Roosevelt will avail himself of the discretion reposed in him by the Spooner act, by the use of the convenient word "satisfactory" in several important places. This leaves him to decide when that condition has been met. He will move deliberately before committing the country to the Nicaraguan scheme, exhausting every recourse to secure the necessary authority to proceed at Panama. But he can take none of the radical steps which the more aggressive newspapers are already suggesting, even if he were inclined to do so, because he has no warrant of law. The consummation of a "treaty with Columbia" was one of the conditions precedent to canal construction set forth in the Spooner act and if that fails he must await new authority from congress before moving by any other path.

It is not improbable that a secession of Panama from Colombia may bring a new complication in the case. Panama is exceedingly desirous of having the canal and our recognition of the little republic would probably give it sufficient standing, after the Hawaiian analogy. But the president, under the present law, will doubtless await developments, if the Colombian treaty has finally failed, until the assembling of congress in its early session. Public sentiment has grown rapidly in favor of Panama since the passage of the Spooner act and the Nicaraguanists will find it harder to force hasty action by their favorite route than it would have been several years ago.

A cablegram has been received at the state department from Minister Beaupre, at Bogota, saying that the Panama canal had been rejected by the Colombian senate.

It will be impossible for President Marroquin to again submit the treaty to the Colombian congress in its present form. The senate having rejected it, the treaty cannot again come before that body except by the senate's own vote. President Marroquin, however, can send the treaty slightly amended to the senate and reopen the canal debate. It is believed at the Colombian legation that he will adopt some such procedure.

Colombia Will Be the Loser

Panama, Aug. 18.—The unanimous rejection of the Panama canal treaty by the senate has caused a profound impression here in all circles. The question on all lips is what will become of Panama? The only consolation the isthmians have is that the rest of the republic, with the exchange at a very high figure and with an upward tendency, will suffer a great deal more. It seems that the government never expected the treaty to be ratified, and it was not supported at all in the senate.

Blow to Property Owners

Colon, Aug. 18.—The rejection of the canal treaty by the Colombian senate has produced a tremendous sensation on the isthmus. It was generally believed that the treaty would pass with some modifications. The rejection is a heavy blow to property owners here who have been investing heavily on the prospects of the treaty being ratified.

Binnacle Wager on Cup Race

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 18.—During the review of the North Atlantic fleet by the president he and his guests discussed at some length the international yacht races which are to begin on Thursday. The discussion finally resulted in the making of a wager. Sir Thomas Lipton, if the Reliance should win, will present the binnacle of the Shamrock to the New York Yacht club, while, if the Shamrock should win, the binnacle of the Reliance will be presented to the Royal Ulster Yacht club, which the Shamrock represents.

Passenger Trains Met on Curve

Chicago, Aug. 18.—In a headon collision between two passenger trains near Long Lake one trainman received injuries which resulted in his death, an engineer and fireman were probably fatally injured and a number of persons were more or less seriously hurt. Several of the victims were buried beneath the mass of wreckage and were removed with great difficulty. The trains were running at a high rate of speed and met on a curve. A mistake in train orders is given as the cause of the accident.

End of Paper Strike In Sight

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 18.—From developments there seems a good chance of the writing paper strike being broken. The Riverside No. 2 mill is running nearly full. The Linden mill has started two machines. Many applications for work have been received at Parsons' mill. There now seems some chance of a general application for work from strikers if the present drift continues.

Woolard Convicted of Manslaughter

St. John's, Aug. 18.—In the trial of Captain Woolard of schooner Helen Whitten of Gloucester, Mass., for shooting and killing one of his crew, Patrick Yeitman, while the latter was trying to leave the vessel in the ship's dory, Woolard was found guilty of manslaughter. He will be sentenced later to a term of imprisonment.

Britishers Carry Off Golf Honors

Chicago, Aug. 18.—Captain Low's visiting team of Oxford and Cambridge English golfers won the honors in the first international golf contests in the west, defeating Captain Boyd's all-western team in the scheduled four-ball foursome events, 3 to 2, and winning the team competition by the score of 8 to 3.

FROM THE MAYFLOWER

President Reviews Fighting Ships of Our Navy

A DISTINGUISHED COMPANY

Enjoy Chief Executive's Hospitality and Witness Beautiful Sight in Long Island Sound—Accident to Torpedo Boat Destroyer

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 18.—President Roosevelt has enjoyed a unique distinction, and, at the same time, conferred a distinction unique upon the American navy. For the first time in the history of the country the president reviewed and inspected, in time of peace, a great fleet of United States warships.

The ceremony was a magnificent and impressive naval spectacle. It was unmarred by the slightest mishap until just at its conclusion, when the torpedo boat destroyer Barry rammed the destroyer Decatur, fortunately doing little damage. The incident, however, was exciting. It occurred just at the moment when the president was receiving congratulations upon the success of the maneuvers.

The first squadron of destroyers, consisting of the Decatur, Bainbridge, Barry, Dale and Chauncey, all under command of Lieutenant Chandler, was approaching the Mayflower at full speed. The vessels were in close formation. Orders were signalled from the Decatur to the other vessels to form a wedge. In executing the orders, the Decatur swung across the bow of the Barry. An instant later the Barry rammed her on the starboard side. As the ships were running at a speed of 20 knots, the blow was tremendous. The Decatur listed sharply to port and seemed to be in serious distress. From the Mayflower she appeared to be sinking.

The Mayflower's boats were manned instantly, but were not lowered, as the Decatur was seen to right herself. In a few minutes she hoisted a signal of "no serious damage." Later she steamed alongside the Mayflower and Lieutenant Chandler reported that while his ship had received a bad bump on the starboard quarter she was not materially damaged.

Admiral Dewey ordered Lieutenant Chandler to proceed with the five vessels to the Brooklyn navy yard, where such repairs as may be necessary could be made quickly. After the damage has been repaired the squadron will rejoin the fleet to continue the summer maneuvers.

Both the president and Mrs. Roosevelt noted the accident with calmness, notwithstanding the fact that their son, Kermit, was on board the Decatur at the time of the collision. In commenting upon the accident, Admiral Dewey said that really it amounted to little and would delay the vessels in their movements only a few days. He said that such an accident was a part of the war game and must, at times, be expected.

The review occurred on Long Island sound, 2 1-2 miles off the entrance to Oyster Bay. President Roosevelt, in company with Secretary of the Navy Moody, Admiral Dewey, Rear Admiral Taylor, Rear Admiral Rodgers, Captain Brownson, General Chaffee and General Barry, stood on the bridge of the Mayflower as she steamed slowly down one column of the warships and up the other. The two columns extended 2500 yards. As the Mayflower passed each ship in the two columns the yards and rails of each were manned by jackies in white duck, the marines were paraded and presented arms, the president's salute of 21 guns was fired, the buglers sounded a flourish, the drummers gave four ruffles, the band played "Hail Columbia" and the entire crew stood at salute. As the Mayflower swept past each ship the crew of the saluting vessel gave the president three cheers as the commander-in-chief of the army and navy of the United States.

THE BATTLESHIP TEXAS.

At the conclusion of the review President Roosevelt received on board the Mayflower Rear Admirals Barker, Sands, Coghlan and Wise. He also received the captains and commanding officers of the 22 vessels in the fleet. He received also the naval attaches to the legations of four of the great powers.

Among the other guests of the president on board the Mayflower were Assistant Secretary of War Sanger, Sir Thomas Lipton, C. O. Iselin and other prominent yachtsmen. President Roosevelt entertained his guests and all the commanding officers of the fleet at luncheon on board the Mayflower.

During the luncheon the president rose and said: "We have with us today representatives of the great powers—Great Britain, Germany, Russia and Japan. I ask you to drink to those powers and to their sovereigns."

The toast was drunk standing. Then the president continued: "We also have with us representatives of an international incident. As to that, may the best boat win." The toast likewise was drunk by the guests standing.

Captain Dechair of the British embassy addressed the president as follows: "In the name of my colleagues, in the name of our sovereigns and in the name of our countries, I desire to thank you. I propose the health of the President of the United States." Rising again, the guests drunk the toast heartily.

At the conclusion of the luncheon the officers returned to their ships. At 12.28 the president left the Mayflower in a barge for the flagship Kearsarge to return the call of Rear Admiral Barker. The Mayflower fired a president's salute as the barge cleared the ship. As the president went aboard the Kearsarge his flag was broken out at the main peak and every one of the twelve saluting ships in the fleet fired a president's salute. After chatting with Admiral Barker and casually inspecting the Kearsarge, the president, before visiting the other flagships, to return the calls of the rear admirals, made a short address to the enlisted men and officers of the ship.

As the president and his party arrived and as they departed in turn from each of the four flagships, the Kearsarge, Olympia, Yankee and Texas, every one of the saluting ships in the fleet fired a salute of 21 guns. During the entire ceremonies of the day 2604 shots were fired, all from six pounders.

Upon the return of the president to the Mayflower the vessel got under way and steamed eastward for several miles, coming to anchor then in order that the fleet might pass in review. The vessels of the fleet weighed anchor and in single column, headed by the Kearsarge, steamed slowly past the Mayflower. The yards and rails of every vessel were manned, the marines were paraded, and the bands played "Hail Columbia." President Roosevelt with his distinguished guests reviewed the fleet from the Mayflower's bridge. All were afforded an admirable opportunity to view the ships.

As a termination of the review, Lieutenant Chandler's squadron of destroyers passed the Mayflower in flying wedge formation. The vessels were so close to each other that ordinary conversation between any two of them was easy. Soon after they had passed the Chauncey's steering gear became disabled and she was forced to drop out of line temporarily. The vessels were reforming to pass the reviewing ship as a flying wedge at full speed when the accident already described occurred.

President Roosevelt and all of his guests were enthusiastic over the appearance and action of the fleet. The president remarked that the maneuvers of the day proved the efficiency of the fleet, which he regarded as higher than it ever had been in the history of the country.

Good Afternoon

As the Herald notes, the Blue Hill reservation is now accessible to the Boston street railway district for a ten-cent fare. This does not include Quincy, but does include all parts of Boston, and also Brookline, Newton, Cambridge, Somerville, Medford, Melrose, Arlington, Chelsea and other cities. This item should be taken into consideration when the assessments for Metropolitan parks is next apportioned.

The Herald adds: "A trolley line approach may some day give access to the eastern section of the Blue Hills range by the picturesque winding Furnace parkway from Quincy, connecting with the Quincy Shore reservation of the Metropolitan system." When that day comes Quincy will get some benefit from the Blue Hills reservation, and will be willing to pay a just assessment annually.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mr. Roosevelt is now intensely hated by the money power because he was brave enough to warn the people of plutocratic encroachments. His championship of the people's rights has made him an undesirable candidate to these lords of the land of cupidity. Their hostility, however, should make him doubly acceptable to the people. His nomination and election would be a notice to the money power that its meddlesome activity in politics is resented as pernicious.—Baltimore American.

☞The Boston police commissioners advise the public to keep out of the crowd when police officers are making an arrest, because, since recent assaults upon officers, the latter have been ordered to use their revolvers and shoot when necessary. It is good advice on that score and also because innocent curiosity seekers are often the protection under which the officer is assaulted and a riot started. The lawless element are not likely to start trouble of this sort in the open, but when there is a crowd of the peaceful sort about, in which they can lose themselves, they find their opportunity.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞Many people grumble because others have greater opportunities for success and advancement than they possess, and are always making their boasts how they would make their mark if they had been born with a silver spoon in their mouths, or stood in the shoes of the favored few who have wealth and position. As a rule, such people never amount to much, because they do not make the most of the chances coming in their way. Of course opportunity is a great thing, and comes to some men more frequently than to others, but there are very few whom it does not visit at one time or another. The important thing is to be ready to make the most of an opening when it comes. Generally men who succeed make circumstances, and are not made by them. With good health and average ability no one in this country need complain of his chances of success.—Young People's Weekly.

THE BLUE HILLS.

Accessible to Melrose for Ten Cents —Costs Quincy People Fifteen.

The wilderness reservations of the metropolitan park system will not completely meet the purposes for which they were intended, says the Herald, until they have been made easily accessible by popular transit facilities. A long step in this direction, it adds, has just been taken in the opening of the new line of the Blue Hills street railway that connects directly with the Boston Elevated system and carries passengers speedily to the chief objective point in the greatest of our public pleasure grounds.

The facilities thus provided are in pursuance of arrangements whereby a threatened trolley line invasion of the Blue Hills by a route across the reservation that might have marred some of its most treasured features, including the tranquility of Marigold valley, was abandoned in favor of the present excellent route, so direct almost to make a bee line from the Dudley street terminal, and at the same time give excursionists the enjoyment of much charming scenery on the way.

In pursuance of the general policy of the Boston Elevated, which admits outside systems to immediate connection with its rapid transit service, the cars of the new Blue Hills line come to the elevated terminal at Dudley street to deliver and receive their through passengers. Excursionists are thus taken out toward Franklin Park, so that a visit to that beautiful pleasure ground may thus be easily made a part of the programme for a day's outing. From Franklin Park the route to Neponset river is by Blue Hill avenue. This fine thoroughfare has for some time been amplified to the boulevard type, with a turfed reserved space for electric cars—a shape that it takes at its conjunction with Warren street at Grove Hall.

At Mattapan the Neponset river is crossed by the handsome new parkway bridge just completed. Thence, on the Milton side, the route for a short distance is over the Blue Hill parkway of the metropolitan system, whence it deflects to Blue Hill avenue in Milton—an air line to the base of Great Blue Hill. Blue Hill avenue in Milton, in accordance with the wise policy of that town in permitting street railways only upon highways provided with turfed reserve spaces, has been given a boulevard character at a width somewhat greater than that of the Milton streets that lately were so adapted.

A ten-cent fare takes the excursionist from almost anywhere on the Boston Elevated system to the Blue Hills. The distance from Dudley street is covered in something like forty minutes. At the foot of Great Blue Hill connection is made with the cars to Canton, and also with a line of barges to Hoosic-Whisick pond in the Blue Hills reservation.

The pond is a beautiful piece of water, surrounded by fine scenery. Here too metropolitan park commission has established a casino with opportunities for rest and refreshment, and there are also boating and bathing facilities.

The climb to the summit of Great Blue is easily made from the end of the car route. The Charles Eliot memorial path and bridge will be completed there in the near future.

Claim Allowed.

Thomas & Miller have received word from the Boston agent of the Star Union line of the Pennsylvania railroad allowing his claim for $7, by reason of goods shipped by him arriving at their destination much quicker than he anticipated. The amount will be paid this week. This claim was a unique one and without parallel in the history of railroading. Mr. Miller figured it out that his shipment of granite would arrive in London, O., in about two weeks. Instead of that they arrived in four days and he was obliged to pay demurrage charges of $7. He then put in a claim for that sum which he has been allowed.

Surprise Party.

The home of Misses Evelyn and Katherine McKenzie, Albertina street, was the scene of a merry surprise Aug. 13. The little girls were not only surprised when they saw their friends but were more so when they were presented with tokens of friendship. Kathrine a ring and Evelyn a bracelet. Upon presenting these Miss Ethel McDonald read the presentation address. The evening was spent playing games and singing. Refreshments were served. The little girls accompanied by their mothers left for a vacation in Canada the following night.

BURGLARS ESCAPE.

Police Get No Clue of Fellows Wanted for Daylight Break.

The police were unable to apprehend the two men who were concerned in the daylight robbery on Monday at the residence of Frederic W. Plummer on Greenleaf street. Inspector McKay spent the afternoon in a search for the parties but they evidently made good use of the fifteen minutes start they had and covered their tracks. The boldness of this robbery only shows what chances these thieves will take, and that people cannot be too careful how they leave the windows and doors of their houses unfastened, even if they are at home. Futhermore strangers should not be allowed under any pretence to cross the threshold.

The police were furnished with a good description of the two thieves by Mrs. William Edwards and the servant girl, both of whom would be able to recognize the two men if they should see them again.

It appears that just previous to the men being seen about Mr. Plummer's house that they called at the residence of Hon. C. H. Porter. They were heard at the door and when occupants of the house came to the door the two men made some excuse about being agents taking orders.

A Good Record.

Editor Quincy Daily Ledger:—

I would like to say a few words in praise of Quincy's base ball pitcher, Mr. Arthur Dunn and also call the attention of base ball sports to the fact, that in the game played on Saturday between the Quincys and Merrymounts, Mr. Dunn pitched a ball that was a record breaker, he putting out 16, which beats the record for that date by three balls. The score stood 9 to 4 in favor of the Quincys.

If Mr. Dunn improves as rapidly in the future as he has in the past few months, and adheres to or improves on his present fast and drop balls, there is no doubt but what he will soon be engaged by the big teams and win a national reputation. It may not be known generally, that in the game on Saturday, Mr. Dunn had a badly sprained thumb on his right hand.

Handsome Dahlias.

There are a great many handsome dahlias in Quincy and vicinity, and they are as beautiful and attractive as any flower we have at this season of the year. It is very delightful this month to ride on the cars through the streets and enjoy the fine display along the route; although often the best varieties cannot be seen from the street.

We were reminded very forcibly of this fact this morning when one of the handsomest bunches of dahlias we have ever seen was bought into our office by George B. Pray, who resides on Wharf street, Quincy Point. A side street that leads to the railway power house; and there are very few of our citizens who ever pass that way. The bouquet contains twenty-four handsome blossoms, each of a different shade, and very large in size; one blossom measured sixteen inches in circumference the largest we have ever seen.

The Hardwick Tombstones.

At the time, when all the Hardwicks of Quincy were interested in the German estate which was supposed to be awaiting the descendants of Frederick Hardwick, in the mother country, the tombstones of Frederick Hardwick (1797) and of Elizabeth, his wife (1789) were removed from the graves in the Christ Church grave yard and placed in the Josiah Adams tomb in the Hancock street cemetery, where their existence was almost forgotten. Through the efforts of Mr. H. H. Schumacher, a descendant, they have been replaced in the Christ Church grave yard. Unfortunately the exact location of the graves is not known but the rector of the church has kindly offered to look over the church records, and it is hoped that later it will be possible to have the stones correctly placed.

The Fall River Boats.

With the delivery at Fore River of the steel castings for the sternpost but little remains to complete the framing of the hull of the Fall River line freight steamer. Already the shell-plates are being put on and the heavy castings of the frame for the engines are being assembled in the machine shop. The ribbands are being placed in preparation for the erection of the frames of the passenger boat for the Fall River line and the keel has been made ready.

Building Beach Crowded.

Notable progress is evident on the three carfloats building at the Fore River yard for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad. Four floats were included in the contract but the building beach is so filled with hulls in process of construction, that there was barely room for the three now under way. Hull 116 as the first of them is called officially, is plated on the bottom amidships and above the turn of the bilges and the frames and trusses of this part are in place; hull 117 is more advanced, the sides amidships being almost complete and nine bulkheads having been erected; hull 118 has only a part of the bottom laid.

Shipbuilders Strike Off.

A New London dispatch of Monday to the Herald, says, the result of the decision of the locked-out workmen of the Eastern Shipbuilding Company to declare the strike off will be the return of about 50 men. The remainder had either returned to work or had gone elsewhere. There were about 1200 men at work today, and it is expected this number will be increased to 1800 within a short time.

Sale of a Picture for 75 Cents, Cost Man $100.

Alfred H. Johnson, the Holbrook cigar dealer, who sold Agent Davies of the Watch and Ward society a picture for seventy-five cents will have to pay a fine of $100.

Johnson used this means to increase the sale of his cigars and for seventy-five cents would sell the picture free from advertising matter. Johnson claimed the picture was a work of art, but the Watch and Ward society said it was obscene.

When the case was called this morning, Johnson retracted his plea of not guilty and entered a plea of guilty. The court then continued the case for a month to pay a fine of $100.

BOGUS FOOD IN GERMANY.

Consul General Guenther Tells of Some Adulterations.

Richard Guenther, United States consul general at Frankfort, under date of July 7, sends the following report on food adulteration in Europe to the department of state, says the New York Times:

An article on the adulteration of food products is going the rounds of the German press. It is stated, for instance, that an ordinary liver patty is made into fine "Strassburger" pate de foie gras by means of borax or salicylic acid and of finely chopped and cleverly distributed pieces of black silk, representing truffles.

Cosmos, a German paper, guarantees the fact that under the label of canned lobsters the soft parts of the cuttlefish and crabs are sold.

In Paris snails are of late very popular, and the adulterators mix them with lungs of cattle and horses. Even entirely artificial snails are manufactured. The shells, recoated with fat and slime, are filled with lung and then sold as "Burgundy" snails.

Lovers of fresh rooster combs are imposed upon by a substitute cut out of hogs' intestines. Chopped artificial truffles are made of black rubber, silk or softened leather, and even whole truffles are made out of roasted potatoes, which are given a peculiar flavor by adding ether. They are said to sell well.

Fish spoiled in spite of ice and borax is treated with salts of zinc, aluminum and other metals. Rubbing the fish with vaseline to give it a fresh look and covering the gills with fresh blood or resin—a coal tar color—is resorted to. The latter is also used to intensify the red color of inferior crabs. Imparting a greenish color to oysters is another adulteration. An oyster requires about one month in the beds to acquire the greenish color. As this is too long a time, the dealers help them along with an artificial color.

The chemists in the Paris municipal laboratories have shown that tomato jelly is adulterated with turnips, and powdered pepper contains a large mixture of powdered hard tack.

—An old resident of New York City bought green goods to the amount of two hundred dollars, according to the most approved method the other day, under the impression that he was getting notes made from stolen government plates.

NOT ALL SUN BURNT.

How Papa Page Awarded a Prize to Sheila Crew.

The Yacht Sheila, Capt. Lyman Hewitson, arrived in Marblehead Friday, Aug. 14, homeward bound from Casco Bay, Me. With Fred White, William Jones and "Billy" Patterson he has been cruising since Aug. 2.

On his arrival at Marblehead, Mr. Hewitson telephoned to Mr. C. W. Page, who spent the first week with the boys at Peaks Island, to meet them at Marblehead, and stay over till Sunday and return home by yacht. As Mr. Page has never yet been found guilty of refusing an invitation where a yachting trip was involved, he did not want to break his record by not accepting this one.

So Mr. Page was not long in getting away for Marblehead where he found the boys enjoying themselves and looking many shades darker by exposure to the sun than when he left them at Peaks Island a week ago. Each one was proud of his color and eager to show who had the deepest ebony hue.

The matter was left to Mr. Page, or "Papa" as the boys call him, to decide who would be most likely to get the highest bid for his tan from a pale summer girl. After baring their arms and undergoing a close inspection Fred White was declared to be browned up to the queen's desire, with the captain a close second. "Barney" (Hewitson) protested however, and insisted that "Freddie, the black rascal," be put through a course of cleansing with soap and hot water.

Then it was "Freddie's" turn to put up a kick, but it availed him little for he was set upon and lashed to the deck notwithstanding his strenuous resistance. Then the hot water and soap was brought along by "Oom Paul," (Mr. Jones) and the work of restoration to natural color was begun by the Captain and "Wallop" (Mr. Patterson.)

Mr. White in a few minutes began to turn white under the application of soap and water and the vigorous scrubbing administered by the only too willing Captain and "Wallop." After one arm had passed through the cleansing process and its beautiful pink and white surface had been compared with the elegant logwood tint of its unwashed mate the deception he had practiced upon his innocent associates was so manifest and palpable that the offence was considered of such an unwashed one as to call for punishment not yet set down in any of Judge Emmon's edicts.

The question then arose as to the nature of the punishment that he should be subjected to. A rather severe one was proposed by "Wallop" in the nature of a "ropes-end," but the others had somewhat relented and it was finally decided, as the sun was still two hours up, to march him as he was through the streets of Marblehead, not as old "Floyd Ireson" was, but in a manner that would be equally as humiliating. He was taken on shore and was put through the indignity of marching around before an amused public for an hour, and then made to stand for the ice cream for five, being further subdued by being compelled to eat his cream with his fingers. After this punishment he was released and the incident was closed.

After supper and while on deck enjoying a smoke a schooner hove in sight which proved to be ex-Commodore Frank Burgess on his new yacht Romance, having with him as guests Mr. Arthur Sparrow, Mr. Carl Cochran, and Mr. Jewell of Wollaston. A salute, of course, was in order, and was given.

Sunday morning found all hands up early and after a visit to Mr. Burgess the Sheila broke anchor. A light wind prevailed for several hours, but when off Bass Point the wind freshened up and the Sheila made good time to her moorings off the Wolloston club house after an absence of fifteen days.

Many stops had been made en route, both ways, and many old friends had been met and new ones made. Mr. Hewitson reports that while every day was not sunshine, the great majority were and he with the others declare the cruise just ended to be the most pleasurable one since they began taking their vacations by living on a yacht along the coast of Maine. Eniam.

CHOICE MISCELLANY

A Postal Clerk's Feat of Memory.

The wonderfully retentive memory of railway postal clerks in the service of Uncle Sam was recently exemplified by Frank J. Thrasher of Roxbury, who solves the mails between Boston and New York. Mr. Thrasher has been in the railway postal service for about a dozen years. A short time ago he took the "case examination," embracing all of the post offices in New York state and also in the New England district. In New York state there are 37,000 post offices and in the New England states about 5,000, making a total of about 42,000 places to which mail in those districts may be directed and which have to be handled by the railway mail clerks during the quick transit of trains between Boston and New York or Albany.

The "case examination" taken by Mr. Thrasher consisted in the sorting of a series of cards representing the whole number of 42,000 post offices embraced in the above named districts and properly distributing them. His task was accomplished without an error, and his distribution was at the rate of 33½ cards per minute.

In performing this wonderful feat of memory Mr. Thrasher has the distinction of having broken the record, and in recognition of his ability he has received a letter of commendation from General Superintendent James E. White of the railway mail service at Washington.—Boston Herald.

The City of Seville.

Seville is today as much a Moorish city as it was 300 years ago at the expulsion of the Saracens. The arrangement and plan of the dwellings are the same as on the Euphrates and Tigris, but they are more beautified and ennobled by art and by the wealth which these Moslems in Spain and Sicily had at their command. It is a remarkable fact that the Arabs, who in their native land have never risen above the lowest stage of civilization, but have always been a nomadic, pastoral people, became in Europe the bearers of knowledge and refinement. Poetry and history, mathematics, astronomy and architecture flourished with them when the Christian west had sunk into dark barbarism.

There is no more beautiful poetry than their lamentations for their lost paradise of Granada, and in their encounters with Christian chivalry they often displayed a romantic valor and generosity which served their enemies for a model.—Moltke.

☞The beginning of honest administration will come when the people wake up to the fact that the problem of good government is simply a question of proper business organization, and not before. Mere declamation about the enormity of bribe giving and bribe taking is not helpful.—Pittsburg Gazette.

NOT IN FAVOR.

Annexations to Boston Have Been a Failure to Districts.

The Boston Globe, in a leading editorial last week, shows the impracticability and unpopularity of any proposed annexation of the suburbs to Boston. "The advocates of a greater Boston," it says, "might perform a commendable public service by studying the problems which Boston should solve before her territory is enlarged by more annexations.

"Those who favored the annexations of Charlestown, Roxbury, Brighton, etc., were very enthusiastic over the fine municipal service those sections were to receive, but what has been the result so far as the care of streets alone is concerned? Former residents of the Bunker Hill district are shocked when they visit Charlestown and compare the condition of the streets with what it was when that district possessed a city government of its own.

"Their verdict is, 'Decay everywhere.' In the days before annexation the streets and parks of Charlestown were always in good condition, as were also the sidewalks and edgestones. They were constantly inspected and promptly repaired. Since annexation it took about twenty years to get one of the main thoroughfares of that district repaired.

"Brighton has gained some boulevards, but Roxbury is worse off than before annexation. Dorchester, West Roxbury and South Boston all send up a cry for better streets, although the last-named place can congratulate itself on being the only district which ever was properly laid out, and that was done before Boston was incorporated as a city."

Annual Clambake.

The seventh annual clambake held by the Wollaston Yacht club took place Saturday at Nantasket Point. While the number participating did not come up to former years, nevertheless those who did attend report a good time. The chief idea in going to Nantasket Point, which was inaugurated last year, instead of Peddocks Island as formerly, was to lessen the work of the committee in charge. While it does lessen the work it also has a tendency to lessen the interest, for an outing on an island with a rough and ready clambake on a rocky beach lends a feature which a dinner at a hotel does not offer to the average yachtsman.

Five Saturdays and five Sundays this month.

LESS THAN HALF CENT A DOSE.

Special Price Offer on Popular Remedy at Chas. C. Hearn's.

In these days of increased cost for nearly all the necessaries of life, it is particularly pleasing to find a chance to get what is of greater value than all else, Health, for a trifling sum.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, through a special arrangement he has made with the Dr. Howard Co., is able to sell the regular 50 cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price, 25 cents. As each bottle contains 60 doses, this makes the cost less than half a cent a dose.

So confident is Mr. Chas. C. Hearn that the specific will do all that is claimed for it, that he sells it on his own personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Out of the hundreds of packages he has sold, only two customers have asked to have their money refunded.

He will continue to sell the remedy in this way, and wants the Ledger to tell its readers that Dr. Howard's specific is absolutely free unless it cures. Even then, the cost is less than half a cent a dose, about 25 cents for a month's treatment.

Won't you call on Mr. Chas. C. Hearn, and hear what he has to say about this reliable remedy? 18-21-25-28

CONNIVE AT OUTRAGES

Turkish Officials Said to Be Backing Bashi-Bazouks

VILLAGES ARE PILLAGED

River Near Monastir Filled With Mutilated Bodies of Women and Children—Reserves Called Out In Bulgaria—Russian Squadron Sails

Sofia, Aug. 18.—Bashi-Bazouks are pillaging and destroying Christian villages in the districts of Debre and Okrida. The river near Monastir, Macedonia, is full of the mutilated bodies of women and children who have been massacred by them.

Their work is believed to have been inspired by Turkish authorities, who connived at the outrages and furnished the Bashi-Bazouks with old uniforms, in order that they might appear to be regular soldiers. It is reported that 600 of these barbarians, under command of Albanian chiefs noted for their cruelty, have destroyed a number of Christian villages at the instigation of the Turks, and it is their victims, presumably, whose bodies choke the river.

The rumor that these butchers have been turned loose by the Turkish authorities has thrown the Christians into the greatest terror, and they are abandoning their villages with such of their goods as they can carry upon their backs. Bashi-Bazouks are cutting down these wanderers wherever they can find them and are showing no quarter. The stories of their cruelties are almost beyond belief.

Orders have been issued for the mobilization of two divisions of reserves. It is rumored that they will be employed in strengthening the forces on the frontier to prevent the passage of Bulgarian bands into Macedonia. The officials, however, state that this rumor is unfounded and that the reserves are called out to undergo their customary training of 15 days.

The Feeling In Rome

Rome, Aug. 18.—The memorandum of the Bulgarian government to the powers regarding the situation in Macedonia has produced a great effect here. The general impression is that the Bulgarian government is no longer able to hold back popular feeling which, unless it is repressed in time, will lead to a war with Turkey. The fate of Bulgaria in that event, it is thought, would probably be the same as that of Greece in the last war with Turkey. The Italian government is exchanging views on the subject with Vienna and London.

Russians Sail For Turkey

Sebastopol, Aug. 18.—The squadron of the Russian Black Sea fleet, which has been ordered to the Turkish coast, sailed today. It is under the command of Rear Admiral Krueger. The squadron consists of four battleships, four torpedo boat destroyers and six mine and torpedo transports.

Servian Sympathy For Insurgents

Belgrade, Aug. 18.—A mass meeting will be held here Aug. 23 to express sympathy with the Macedonian insurgents. Prominent politicians have promised to make speeches.

Glidden's Great Feat In Auto

Washington, Aug. 18.—Postmaster General Payne has received a cablegram from Charles J. Glidden, who is making an extensive automobile tour of Europe, saying that he has so far covered 3590 miles and that he has crossed the Arctic circle in his machine. He also states that he has officially deposited with the Swedish government an American flag which he had carried across the Arctic circle.

The Jamaican Hurricane

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 18.—A slightly more hopeful feeling now prevails among the planters regarding the disastrous situation brought about by the recent hurricane. The work of clearing the banana plantations is proceeding apace and a great quantity of provisions can be saved. Efforts are being made on all sides to retrieve the disaster, but thousands of the peasantry are still homeless.

No Estimate of Cost of Repairs

Washington, Aug. 18.—Acting Secretary of the Navy Darling has received a report of Naval Constructor Gilmore on the condition of the disabled battleship Massachusetts, now at Bar Harbor. It shows that almost the entire bottom of the vessel was scraped. No estimate can yet be obtained of the probable cost of repairing the Massachusetts.

Work For Maine Troops

Augusta, Me., Aug. 18.—The general order covering the mobilization of the Maine troops for the defense of Portland, during the combined army and navy maneuvers, provides for the moving the troops on Aug. 21. The order also deals with the returning home of the men. Special trains will be used by the majority of the commands.

Goods Found on Them

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 18.—Ralph A. Pannerton of Biddeford, Me., and Isaac Moore of Revere, Mass., charged with robbing Louis G. Rabel of Havana at a hotel here of $970 in money, a gold watch and a diamond stud, were

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Jealousy Probably Caused Murder and Suicide at New Britain, Conn

New Britain, Conn., Aug. 18.—Frank Shirtleff, an insurance agent, aged 30, shot and killed Mrs. George Schofield at her home, 275 Elm street, and then shot and killed himself. Shirtleff formerly boarded with Mrs. Schofield. Jealousy and unrequited love is presumed to be the cause.

The body of Mrs. Schofield was in a sitting posture in a rocking chair, and the body of Shirtleff was sprawled on the floor in front of her. Each had a large hole in the right temple. Near Shirtleff was a revolver with six chambers, four of which contained discharged shells, and one an unexploded bullet, while one chamber was entirely empty. One loaded cartridge was found in a pocket of Shirtleff's trousers.

The 4-year-old son of Mrs. Schofield was the sole witness of the tragedy, and from him can be elicited only the statement: "Frank shot my mamma, and he's dead, too." Besides this child, Mrs. Schofield is survived by her husband, two sons, aged 16 and 10 years, and a 6 months' old daughter.

Mr. Schofield when told of the shooting was nearly prostrated. He said he could think of no motive for the crime and that Shirtleff, who is his nephew, and Mrs. Schofield had been the best of friends.

Two Deaths May Result

Rutland, Vt., Aug. 18.—During a heavy rainstorm a building in course of erection at Cuttingsville collapsed last night, seriously injuring F. Martin, Moses Pierson and Edward Harrison. Just as the workmen were about to leave for the day a heavy rain storm came up, and without warning the building collapsed, pinning several men under the beams and lumber. Martin and Pierson were the most seriously injured and their condition is critical. Harrison will recover.

Legacy Provides Good Roads

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 18.—The practical benefits of a legacy amounting to nearly $1,000,000 which was left to the town of Middleboro by the Pierce brothers are becoming manifest. From an appropriation of the legacy made by the trustees of the fund, the town is now building a mile of macadam road. This is the second stretch of macadam road which has been built from money advanced by the trustees.

Epping Buildings Ablaze

Epping, N. H., Aug. 18.—Fire which broke out at 1:40 this morning in the millinery establishment of Miss Eva L. Meader threatens the destruction of the business section and part of the residential portion of the town. Three buildings have been practically destroyed, and seven others are in imminent danger. Apparatus has been summoned from Portsmouth and Manchester, and is on the way here.

One Man Lost an Arm

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 18. — A dummy locomotive crashed into a construction car on the Boston and Worcester street railway at Shrewsbury and John Charles was so badly injured that his right arm was amputated at a hospital here. Two other men on the engine saved themselves by jumping. Slippery rails and failure of a brake to work are given as cause of the wreck.

Woman to Go to State Prison

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 18.—In the superior criminal court here Mary E. Ambler pleaded guilty to the charge of murder in the second degree and she will be sentenced to state prison for life, her plea being accepted by the government. She was indicted on the charge of murder of her infant child at Rutland the latter part of January. It was alleged she abandoned her infant to freeze.

Carpenters Lose Their Strike

Waltham, Mass., Aug. 18.—The strike of the carpenters of this district, which began May 1, has been called off. The trouble included the workmen of Waltham, Mattapan, Newton, Weston and Needham. The men struck because a demand for an increase from $2.80 to $3 a day was refused. The master builders made no concessions.

Carriage Top Obscured Vision

Andover, Mass., Aug. 18.—Patrick Burke, aged 55, was instantly killed at a railroad crossing near North Andover. Burke drove across the track during a shower and had his carriage top raised, which prevented him from seeing the train, which struck both horse and carriage, throwing them 50 feet from the crossing.

Petition For Higher Wages

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 18.—The conductors and motormen of the Boston and Worcester street railway have petitioned the road for a uniform rate of $2.50 for all regular men, an eight-hour day, the eight hours to be completed within a period of 10 hours, and $1.50 a day for spare men on waiting time.

Policeman Caught Robber at Work

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 18.—John Leno was arrested here while in the act of burglarizing the saloon of Robert Shaw. He was held in $500 bonds for the grand jury. Leno was discovered by Patrolman Bolan just before daylight, after he had rifled five cash registers.

Sixth Month of Strike Begun

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 18.—Today is the beginning of the sixth month of the strike of the lacemakers of the American Textile company's mills. But five of the men who went out have

OPEN DOOR VICTORY

Prince Ching Agrees to Demands of the United States

Washington, Aug. 18.—Minister Conger at Pekin has secured a written promise from Prince Ching to sign, on Oct. 8, a treaty with the United States, which will include a guarantee that Mukden and Tatung-Tao shall be open ports.

Pekin, Aug. 18.—The arrangement made by Minister Conger for the signing of a treaty between China and the United States providing for the opening of Mukden and Tatung-Tao, on the date of Russia's promised final evacuation of Manchuria, ends the stubborn resistance by the Chinese which for some time promised to be successful.

Prince Ching made one defense after another, until all were exhausted. When the present settlement was proposed, with the explanation that China must presume that Russia intended to fulfill her exacuation agreement, Prince Ching reluctantly gave in.

Tatung-Tao is a small port which does not promise much business to attract foreigners in the near future. Its opening is mainly important as a victory for the open door principle.

Deliberate Attempt at Arson

Gloversville, N. Y., Aug. 18.—An incendiary blaze early in the morning endangered the lives of the tenants of a large double tenement building on Elm street, burglary having preceded arson. Kerosene had been poured on all the floors of the big tenement house to aid the blaze and surrounding building had also been treated with oil. Mysterious warnings had previously been posted on several Elm street buildings that "all Jews must immediately vacate." Evidence seems to point to a deliberate attempt to burn the inmates after stealing their valuables.

Recognition of Citizens' Rights

St. Louis, Aug. 18.—Beverly S. Warden, who was arrested because he wanted to board a street car and none would stop for him and finally drew a revolver and forced a motorman to come to a halt, was acquitted in the court. Police Judge Tracy said: "Any street car motorman brought before me on a substantiated charge of passing passengers on the street corner will be fined the limit of the law. Citizens have rights that are paramount to those of a street car company."

Won't Lose by Dull Season

Ware, Mass., Aug. 18.—A number of the employes of the cloth department of the Otis mills here, which has gone on half time, have purchased a large tract of standing wood land, and during the three days each week that the mills are shut down the men will chop wood. Each member of the party expects to make enough money out of the transaction to not only get paid for his time by the sale of the wood, but to get the winter's supply of fuel free of all expense.

Veterans at San Francisco

San Francisco, Aug. 18.—St. Louis and Salt Lake are the chief competitors of Denver in the contest for the meeting place of the national encampment of the G. A. R. in 1904. All of the state delegations are now established in their headquarters, most of which have been concentrated within a few blocks of the triumphal arches. Members of California posts were especially cordial in their greetings of their comrades from the east.

Kansas Cities Without Bridges

Kansas City, Aug. 18.—Boats are again being used to transport persons between the two Kansas Cities, two bridges over the Kansas river having been carried out by the strong current. The river is higher than at any time since the June flood and other structures are in danger. The wrecked bridges are temporary pile affairs, constructed hastily two months ago.

Held on Manslaughter Charge

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 18.—John A. S. Power, a motorman, pleaded not guilty to a charge of manslaughter before Judge Bosson here. The case was continued until Aug. 24 to allow the defendant the opportunity to secure counsel. Power was the motorman of a car which ran over and killed James Motherwell, Jr., 14 years old.

Explosion on a Yacht

Boston, Aug. 18.—Gasolene tanks on the pleasure yacht Coyote exploded while the boat was off the New England docks, causing a fire that did $2000 damage. The flames were extinguished by a fire boat and nearby tugs. Engineer Kennedy was severely burned. The yacht is owned by G. B. Webster of this city.

Bennett's Body Reaches Home

New Haven, Aug. 18.—The body of Philo S. Bennett, who was killed in Idaho while on a stage coach in the mountains, has arrived at his late home here. The funeral will occur Wednesday afternoon. Many men in public life in this and other states will attend the services.

Killed Two Policemen, but Goes Free

New York, Aug. 18.—Jefferson Sanders, colored, who on May 2 was terribly beaten and who then shot and killed two policemen and wounded another, was released from custody by Recorder Goff, the grand jury having failed to find an indictment.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Wednesday, Aug. 19.
Sun rises—4:54; sets—6:41.
Moon rises—1:10 a. m.
High water—7:45 a. m.; 8 p. m.
Showers are probable in New England. Elsewhere the weather will be generally fair.

Panic at a South Boston Fire

250 AT WORK.

On Top Floor of Six Story Building.

Most of Them Young Women

Made a Mad Rush to Escape—Many Injured.

Boston, Aug. 19.—Screaming and fighting their way to safety 250 young women rushed from the top floor of a burning six-story building at the corner of Binford and Wormwood streets, South Boston. Several of them were injured in their mad rush down the stairway, and at one time it was feared a loss of life was inevitable. The financial loss is placed at $150,000. The first started in Block 4 of what are known as the five Wormowod buildings, occupying three acres of ground. The burned building was occupied by several firms.

The fire was caused by the explosion of a tank of gasolene in the basement of the building, and it spread with remarkable rapidity. The young women were employed in a lace factory on the sixth floor, and the cry of fire caused intense excitement.

Owing to the inflammable nature of the contents of the building it was soon a seething furnace and within an hour only portions of the walls were standing. The firemen were obliged to use extreme care, as a tank containing 1500 gallons of oil was stored on the first floor.

When they saw that the building was doomed the firemen turned their attention towards saving the other structures on either side of the burning building, and were successful, although the buildings were damaged by the intense heat, and the thousands of gallons of water poured on them played havoc with their contents.

A dense volume of smoke enveloped the building, which made it difficult for the girls to find the stairways. In their haste they left their outer wearing apparel behind. Many were crushed and bruised in the frantic rush down stairs. The members of the fire department performed heroic work and carried down the ladders many of the girls who had fainted or were overcome by the smoke.

The occupants of the other parts of the building escaped without serious difficulty. Two persons, however, were taken to the hospital.

Highwaymen at the Hub

Boston, Aug. 19.—The South End was the scene of a bold holdup just before midnight, when E. F. Winslow was accosted on Washington street by two men, each of whom thrust their revolvers into Winslow's face and secured a gold watch and $200 in bills. A half dozen pedestrians stopped in astonishment when they witnessed the daring robbery. The highwaymen turned upon the witnesses and warned them to move on, which they did without delay. No trace of the men has been found.

Snatched a Diamond Stud

Providence, Aug. 19.—James Brennan, who is alleged to have been one of the participators in the Northampton bank robbery nearly 30 years ago, was taken in custody here on a charge of snatching a diamond stud valued at $150 from the bosom of W. R. Richard's shirt. The latter was walking along Exchange place when Brennan snatched the stud. A crowd witnessed the act and informed a policeman, into whose arms Brennan ran.

Roast Ox and Beans For Visitors

Concord, N. H., Aug. 19.—Tuesday was Old Home day in some 20 cities and towns of New Hampshire. One of the most original and delightful observances was at Chichester, where a basket picnic was held with a barbecue and bean bake as features. An ox was roasted whole for the barbecue, and the beans were baked in the ground and served in individual bean pots made in exact imitation of the old-fashioned kind.

Didn't See Vice President

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 19.—International Vice-President Landers, accompanied by committees of the machinists from Rennselaer, West Springfield and Allston, went to Boston yesterday to confer with Vice-President Van Etten of the Boston and Albany. The train was late and when the delegation reached the office Van Etten had gone. The West Springfield machinists are aroused over what they deem a slight.

Fine Display In Portland Harbor

Portland, Me., Aug. 19.—The searchlights which have been stationed all about Portland harbor for the war game were tried last night, and the harbor was brilliantly illuminated. The forts also signalled by the Ardois system of red and white lights, and at the torpedo station at Fort Gorges rockets and bombs were used. The spectacle was watched by thousands.

Held on Forgery Charges

Woonsocket, R. I., Aug. 19.—A detective from Norwich, N. Y., came here and arrested William B. Smith, a printer, who is wanted in that place for alleged forgery of checks drawn to the order of Edward Morse, proprietor of the Norwich Weekly Union. Smith admitted the charges in part, waived extradition rights and was taken to Norwich.

Contracted Glanders From Horse

Providence, Aug. 19.—In an effort to save the life of a horse which was afflicted with glanders, James A. Hills contracted the disease and died at his home at Silver Hook as a result. The germs entered the man's eyes while he was attending the horse.

Charged With Counterfeiting

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 19.—Fred P. Sellwood and James O'Leary were arraigned before Commissioner Rice and bound over to the grand jury sitting in Boston Sept. 8 on a charge of counterfeiting.

Settled Old Score With Gun

Manchester, N. H., Aug. 19.—A special to The Union from Scott says: Edward H. Bushey, who has been confined to his bed for several years, shot at Michael Dodwell with a gun which was secreted about the bed and seriously wounded him. It is said that Bushey was on trial on a grave charge a number of years ago and that he repeatedly threatened to "punish" Dodwell and others for some grievance which dated from that time.

Rejoice at "Overthrow of Bryanism"

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 19.—Nebraska Republicans in state convention nominated the following ticket: Associate justice of supreme court, John Barnes; regents of state university, C. S. Allen and W. G. Whitmore. President Roosevelt received the heartiest commendation and declaration was made for his renomination. The platform contains a declaration of congratulation on the overthrow of Bryanism in the home of its nativity.

To Settle Venezuelan Dispute

Washington, Aug. 19.—Mr. Riddle, the American charge at St. Petersburg, has cabled the state department that Mourableff, the Russian minister of justice, Lardy, the Swiss minister in Paris, and Professor Matzen of the University of Copenhagen, have been named by the czar of Russia as arbitrators at The Hague of the cases between Venezuela and the blockading powers.

Poison In Icecream

Colorado Springs, Colo., Aug. 19.—More than 50 people, the majority of whom are tourists in this city, have been poisoned from eating icecream made by a local dealer. Analysis by the health officers reveals the fact that the cream was charged with formaldehyde to keep it from souring. No deaths have resulted, although several cases are critical.

No Consolidation of Freight Yards

MORE TRACKS.

South Quincy Also to Have New Freight Yard.

Will Be upon East Side of Track.

Needed to Accommodate Rapidly Increasing Freight.

It is understood from reliable source that the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad have plans completed and will commence work in a few days to improve the freight facilities at the Quincy Adams station.

At present there is but a small freight house entirely inadequate to the needs of this station. There has long been a demand for better facilities for receiving and handling freight, but shippers have been given the cold shoulder when complaint was made.

It is understood that the present plan calls for the building of two long sidings on the east side of Quincy Adams depot, parallel with Presidents avenue. Between these two sidings or rather along Presidents avenue there will be built a large freight house.

Aside from this there will be some necessary changes on the west side track so that it will be easier and more handy loading granite. At present it is only possible for one team to drive up to a car at the granite loading derrick at one time, and it not infrequently happens that teams have to wait an hour or more before they can be unloaded. The contemplated changes will be commenced at once.

Mutinous Sailors In Jail

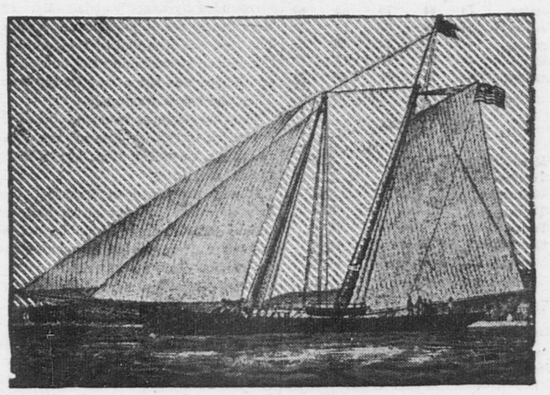

Halifax, Aug. 19.—As the result of mutiny aboard the barkentine Egeria at Hantsport, Captain Langille is in a hospital here badly injured and five of the crew are in jail at Windsor. The Egeria is undergoing repairs there and the five men had been ashore and got some liquor. Returning to the ship in an ugly mood they refused to obey orders and set upon the captain, whom they cut and beat into insensibility and left him lying on deck with a broken leg.

Negro College Propositions

Birmingham, Ala., Aug. 19.—A committee representing the Freedman's Aid and Southern Educational association has arrived here to consider the matter of locating a large negro industrial college in or near this city under the auspices of the above named association. The Birmingham Commercial club has presented two propositions for the location of the college within a mile of Birmingham. The propositions were taken under consideration.

ALLOWANCE FOR THE SHAMROCK.

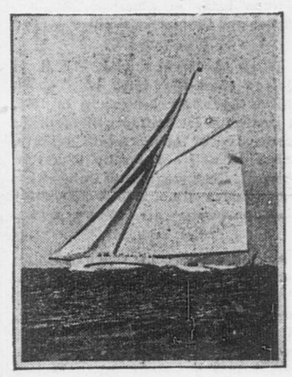

THE FAMOUS SCHOONER YACHT AMERICA, WHICH FIRST WON THE CUP.

New York, Aug. 19.—Reliance and Shamrock III were measured in the Erie Basin by C. E. Mower, the official measurer of the New York Yacht club. As the result of his measurements and calculations it is announced that Reliance would allow the challenger 1 minute and 45 seconds over a 30-mile course.

It was found that the Shamrock III was slightly longer on the water line than the American boat, but the latter proved to have nearly 2000 more square feet of sail area than the challenger, and it was this enormous sail spread that taxed the American boat so heavily.

The announcement of the time allowance in favor of the challenger caused but little surprise at the yacht club, as it was the general belief that the Reliance would prove considerably larger all around than her opponent.

SHAMROCK III. ON A PORT TACK.

THE STRENUOUS CASTRO

Likely to Bump Into Serious Trouble With European Nations

Port of Spain, Aug. 19.—Authentic information announces the imprisonment of French, German and Italian merchants at Cuidad Bolivar, Venezuela (which port was recently recaptured from the rebels by President Castro's troops), for refusing Castro's demand for the repayment of taxes, already paid to the de facto government. President Castro demands the payment of arrears for the period of occupation of Cuidad Bolivar by the revolutionary government. The amount demanded exceeds $65,000. The merchants refused to recognize President Castro's decree abolishing Cuidad Bolivar as a port of entry, and decline to ship goods via Carupano.

The Venezuelan gunboat Miranda went to the district of Nutrias, exacting from the merchants forced contributions and fines amounting to another $50,000. The goods imported during the revolutionary regime were confiscated and double duties were imposed. It is reported that President Castro has threatened to annihilate the commerce and ex... the foreign community of Guayana, on the Orinoco.

A reign of terror prevails throughout the district owing to the extortion, threats and barbarities of the party in power. The entire region of the Orinoco teems with produce accumulated during the last two years, for which there are no adequate shipping facilities. All the American river boats and interests up the Orinoco are at a standstill, being unable to move in consequence of President Castro's determination to destroy the transshipment trade in American and European goods between Trinidad and the Orinoco river country.

Paper Makers Give Up Strike

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 19.—The big strike of the Holyoke paper makers, which has been on since June 15, came to an end last night, when the strikers voted to return to work tomorrow and declare the strike off. About 3500 operatives were originally affected. The strikers also requested the Central Labor union to take the mills from the unfair list. The Millwrights' union took similar action last evening and will return to work with the paper makers.

Dark Outlook In Servia

London, Aug. 19.—The Times correspondent at Belgrade telegraphs that the result of the recent ministerial crisis has shown how completely King Peter is in the hands of the military clique which enthroned him. The coming elections will undoubtedly result in an overwhelming radical victory. The conflict between the radicals and the army will then become acute. The outlook is dark and the country seems to be drifting into anarchy.

In Honor of Grand Army Boys

San Francisco, Aug. 19.—Seldom has a finer parade been witnessed in San Francisco than that which did honor to the Grand Army of the Republic. The veterans were not in line, their procession being scheduled for today, but many allied organizations participated. The order of Red Men added a picturesque feature to the display. The German societies of the city made a splendid showing, as also did the League of Cross Cadets.

Good Afternoon

News today of American, English, French and Chinese battleships.

There has been a great change in Quincy since the birth of Thomas Crane, the city's benefactor in 1803. A centennial celebration will recall the earlier days of the nineteenth century, and it is well occasionally to review the past. The progress in Quincy has been greater since 1880 than in the eighty to nsnety years before that date.

South Quincy people who have looked for a pretty new railroad station on Presidents avenue, will be disappointed to learn that the land which the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. purchased some years ago for the purpose will be converted into a freight yard. Neither will the encroachment of business on the east side be welcomed, but the freight yard to be established will be convenient for the mercantile establishments of Quincy as well as South Quincy. The increase of freight to and from the Quincy stations is something remarkable, and the accommodations in the past have been poor and inadequate. It is well to wake up to the fact that Quincy is growing.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Sam George as gas commissioner will be watched with interest. The ex-senator usually does things, and even as a minority Sam is pretty sure to be a lively one. By the way, he used to say there were too many commissions in Massachusetts and favored abolishing a few dozen of them. Possession of one shouldn't lead him to change his mind.—Beverly Times.

☞Joseph Pultizer's school of journalism, for which he has provided an endowment of $2,000,000, cannot be said to fill a long-felt want, but it is certain to be appreciated as the tribute of a great newspaper man to his profession, and its possibilities in the training of newspaper men are not to be lightly estimated. Of newspaper men, as of poets, it has been rightly said that they are born, not made, but the truth applies to other vocations as well, although perhaps failure does not show itself so plainly as in the newspaper life. A misfit in any sort of a career is unfortunate, and a college training will no more make a preacher out of a wood-chooper or a lawyer out of a dry goods clerk than it will make a newspaper man out of a fellow who hasn't got the instinct in him.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞"I don't know whether it is Rockefeller or Wall street, but one or the other is trying to swallow its own tail; all the big fish have eaten up the little ones, and as soon as it is clearly settled that each big fish can protect himself, Rockefeller or Wall street will stop chasing its own tail. Then the people who sold stocks which they did not own will step up to the captain's office and pass out their money just as fast as they took it in."—A Boston trader in the Commercial Bulletin.

BREAK AT MILTON.

Shots Fired at Patrolman Who Attempted to Hold Up Man.

Patrolman Joseph F. Donovan of the Milton police force had a narrow escape from death early Tuesday morning, says the Globe, when he tried to question a suspicious appearing man on Canton avenue, Milton, and the latter turned upon him and fired two shots before the patrolman had said a word. One of the shots just grazed the abdomen, and the patrolman doubtless owes his life to the fact that he had a police rule book in a vest pocket, which must have deflected the course of the bullet. The other shot went wild. The unknown then jumped over a wall, and after leading Donovan and Patrolman Partelow on a wild chase through marshes and woods, he managed to escape, going in the direction of Hyde Park or Readville.

Later Chief Pierce received a report that house of Wallace S. Pierce, of the firm of S. S. Pierce & Co. had been broken into sometime that night, and a quantity of silver had been stolen.

The house, off Reedsdale road, is surrounded by deuse woods. Mr. and Mrs. Pierce are at present in Europe. The house is occupied by their children the women servants and the housekeeper. There was not a man in the house when the break was made.

The housekeeper said she heard the dog bark in the middle of the night, and went to quiet him, but did not suspect anything.

It was discovered at breakfast time this morning that the silver had been stolen. The thief, presumably, entered the house from a window opening into the parlor. The marks on the window showed that it had been opened with a jimmy, the blade of which was more than an inch wide. The burglar made his way to the dining room, and ransacked the drawers of the sideboard, taking a large quantity of silver, the value of which cannot yet be estimated.

The burglar then went to a shed outside the grain house, where he took a bicycle, and a grain bag, which he emptied of its contents, so that he might use it to carry away his booty. The bicycle was evidently a hindrance to him, for it was found this morning, some distance down the driveway.

It was about a mile and a half from this house, where patrolman Donovan saw the man of whom he was suspicious, on Canton avenue, and there is a direct road from the house to the avenue.

Hotel Men Fined.

Most of the Nantasket hotel men who sold liquor previous to the granting of summer licenses were fined in the Hingham court on Tuesday. A fine of $50 was imposed on Leo E. Bow of the Pacific House, a fine of $100 on John W. Sweeney of the Cleveland House, a fine of $65 on Patrick J. Flood of the Kensmore House, and a fine of $100 on Hannah Kelley of the Randolph House.

Michael H. Burns of the Clarendon House was discharged on one warrant, but will be tried on another.

The cases of David O. Wade and Martin C. Jacobson were continued until Sept. 4.

Battleship a Target.

The interesting experiment of the firing of a live shell at one of the turrets of the warship Suffren, with the object of ascertaining the effects on the mechanism of the turret and guns therein, was carried out at Brest, France, on Tuesday, says a cable to the Boston Advertiser. It was in the presence of Marine Minister Pelletin and numerous high naval officers.

Three trial shots were fired by the turret ship Massena at targets erected on the Suffren. Then a fourth shell was fired at the turret of the Suffren.

The shell struck the turret, which appeared to stand the test well. Fragments of the shell rebounded backward a considerable distance.

Trial of the Hull.

The torpedo boat destroyer Hull was given a trial off Newport on Tuesday and it was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the government officials that the boat is a success. The trial board decided to recommend that she be accepted by the government. The trial was held in a sea that was described by naval men as from smooth to rough. For six hours she not only maintained her contract speed of 28 knots an hour, but at times made 29 knots and over.

Chinese Cruiser Sunk.

Hong Kong, Aug. 18.—A Chinese cruiser and the steamer Empress of India are reported to have collided, and the captain and 13 of a cruiser's crew lost when that ship went down.

Enjoyed a Day at Beach.

About fifty of the patients of the Hospital for Incurable Cripples at Dorchester were given an outing at Houghs Neck on Tuesday, and everybody did their best to have these poor unfortunates have a good time, which they certainly did. It was pitiful to see some of the cripples. Apparently in the best of bodily health, but crippled in such a manner as to be almost helpless.

SERIOUS ACCIDENT

Rev. C. F. H. Crathern Nearly Bled to Death.

Severed Two Arteries in Foot.

While Splitting Wood at Camp in Maine.

Rev. C. F. Hill Crathern of Braintree who is well known in this city, met with a serious accident at Bridgton, Maine, on Monday, reported by the Globe as follows:

Rev. Arthur L. Wetherby of Worcester, and wife, who have been for several weeks tenting on the shore of Woods pond, an isolated, forest-fringed lakelet, in this town, were visited Monday by Rev. Mr. Crathern. The latter was in the act of splitting wood for camp use, when the sharp axe struck his right foot and cut a deep gash diagonally from the toes nearly to the ankle. The wound bled so profusely that it was feared he would bleed to death.

Mr. Wetherby improvised a stout ligament and stopped the blood. Then leaving the suffering man in care of his wife, he started out—his own clothes saturated with blood—to secure medical aid.

He ran a considerable distance to the nearest house, but the owner's horses were away. A like disappointment met him at the next farmhouse; but at the third he found a horse in the stable. This he harnessed and drove to the nearest telephone station, some two miles.

Dr. Frink and Lombard promptly responded. They report the wound as a very bad one, but expect no serious results.

Two arteries in Mr. Crathern's foot were served, and he would have bled to death but for the prompt action of his host.

Arts and Crafts.

The Hingham Society of Arts and Crafts opened at Derby Academy on Main street, Hingham on Tuesday its second exhibition and sale to continue through Thursday.

The society was organized in 1901 with the object of promoting "artistic work in all branches of handicraft. It hopes to bring designers and workmen into mutually helpful relations, and to encourage workmen to execute designs of their own. It endeavors to stimulate an appreciation of the originality and value of good design, and to establish a medium of exchange between the producer and the consumer."

The exhibition includes rugs, embroidery, netting, basket work spinning, weaving, bead work, cabinet work, candles from the wax of bayberry, pictures, etc.

Parade of the Ancients.

It is expected that the following organizations will parade in Boston in October when the Ancient and Honourable Artillery Company of London are here: Fifth regiment, MVM; Roxbury horse guards; battery K, 1st Mass. heavy artillery, Ancient and Honorable artillery company, Highland dress association, Boston Fusilier veteran association, Uniformed Sons of St. George, British military and naval veterans.

W. F. Lakin Assignee.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy has been filed in the U. S. district court against the U. S. Electric Pump Co., doing business at 131 State street, Boston.

The petitioners are the Thos. Hoey Supply and Mfg. Co., with a claim of $601.98; C. A. Lowell, $660, and H. G. Butt, $13.33.

On Aug. 12, the U. S. Electric Pump Co. assigned for the benefit of their creditors to W. F. Lakin of Quincy.

Climbed a Flag Pole.

John Clark performed a feat on Tuesday that many a younger man would have declined doing. Mr. Clark is a painter and is employed by H. H. Faxon. Mr. Faxon wanted the flag pole on Guy's Coliseum painted. There was no way to get the pole down, so Mr. Clark rigged a chain and was hoisted to the top, and he painted the pole as he descended. Considering Mr. Clark's age and his weight it was quite a dangerous undertaking.

TODAY'S COURT.

George Cameron was arraigned for violation of the city ordinances at Houghs Neck, by using profane language. Case continued until next Wednesday.

John J. Corlan and Peter F. Maginnis were fined $2 each for peddling without a license at Quincy.

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

Windy today.

A little warmer.

A patent was issued to George R. Hatch this week.

Smelts have begun to run and some good catches have been taken off Houghs Neck.

Mrs. Emma Lark has returned from a week's visit with friends at Lanesville, Cape Ann.

The Constitution and the Guerriere had their little scrap 91 years ago today, August 19, 1812.

Miss Carrie Blandin has returned from a two weeks' vacation trip, pleasantly spent in Worcester.

J. W. Nash's store has become quite a station for automobiles to stop and have their tanks filled with gasoline.

Brockton is to have through cars to the Dudley street terminal in Boston. Will they go first via Quincy or Milton?

The Montgomery class from the South Street Methodist church at Campello made a trip to Quincy Monday evening and took dinner.

Mr. and Mrs. P. H. Manpex of West Quincy left Boston this morning on the steamer St. Croix to spend a few weeks in New Brunswick.

Mr. J. R. Anderson of Wollaston will speak at Bethany Congregational church Sunday evening of the Floating Hospital of Boston, with which he is connected.

Fred B. Rice, George E. Pfaffmann, Paul R. Blackmur and Herman F. McIntire returned Monday from a week's cruise along the north and south shores in the yacht Velella.

Mrs. Mamie Furbish of Upland road leaves tonight for a six-weeks' tour through Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, spending a week at lake Winnipesaukee, and at Bath, Me., her former home.

Edward J. Morgan and Clara Blandick, the former as "John Storm" and the latter as "Glory Quale," head the big cast of "The Christian" at the Boston Theatre for one week commencing Aug., 24. Miss Blandick is Miss Clara Dickey, formerly of Quincy.

He Saw Things.

"Don't stop me;" "The cattle cars are at Wollaston all loaded;" "I am going to the cattle yard, 17 miles away," was all that Officer Goodhue could get out of a man he found running on Hancock street at 3.30 this morning. All the man had on was a pair of shoes, trousers and shirt. He was apparently demented and he was sent to the police station. It later developed that the man was Dennis McCarthy, and he was suffering from long and over indulgence in liquor, which makes men see things that do not exist. He was not in conditions to bring to court in the morning and will probably be lined up before Judge Avery Thursday morning.

Baptists to Celebrate.

The anniversary of the First Baptist church at Randolph will be appropriately observed in October, and the occasion will be made that of a visit from Benjamin Ide Wheeler, president of the University of California and well known throughout the country, who was a Sunday school boy and youthful attendant at the church years ago. He will be the principal speaker of the occasion. Prof. Wheeler entertained Pres. Roosevelt on his recent pleasure trip to the West.

Bridge on Fire.

The alarm from Box 62 at 12.52 this noon was for a fire on the Quincy end of Neponset bridge. It was but a slight blaze and was extinguished without any loss.

HEAVY BATTLESHIPS

England Will Put Armor Plate the Whole Length.

A cable from London to the Boston Advertiser says: The admiralty has decided to build three new battleships of 18,000 tons, which have been designed by Philip Watts, the director of naval construction. These are the first vessels designed by Watts since his appointment two years ago.

The most notable departure in the new ships will be in the armor plating for the sides and hull. An armor belt of 10 in. Krupp steel, tapering away to 6 in., will be continued the whole length of the broadside. This is the first time this has been attempted in the battleships of any country.

Included in the armament of the new vessels are four submerged torpedo tubes, four 50-ton wire guns, eight quick-firing 27-ton guns and 12 6-in. guns. The vessels must attain a speed of 19 knots an hour.

LINE OF PARKS FOR CHICAGO

System of Outing Places to Girdle the City Contemplated.

Chicago is bent on absorbing every town and hamlet in Cook county now outside of the city limits, says the New York World. An "outer belt line of parks" extending 120 miles around Chicago is the object of a resolution adopted by the county board.

This action was suggested by President Foreman because of the probable rapid increase in the population of the city. He says:

"The time has come when steps should be taken to create an outer belt line of parks and boulevards. Such a system should embrace the east side of the present inner belt line, extended northward, say, to Winnetka and southward to near the mouth of the Calumet river. Thence the outer belt line could extend up the valley of the Calumet to Blue Island, thence northward to the Desplaines river and onward, following the valley of that stream to a point northwest of Chicago and thence eastward, embracing the Skoki valley and finally forming a junction with the Sheridan road at or near Winnetka."

Such Whiskers!

Think of a man with a beard more than eleven feet long! Men with long beards are seen in many side shows, but it is doubtful if there is on record a more remarkable growth of whiskers than that of Vol Tapley, who is a farmer residing east of Mexico, Mo. Some time ago, when he measured his beard, he had his picture taken and gave the photo to Congressman Champ Clark of his district. He keeps his whiskers rolled up in a great wad under his vest.

Tapley combs his whiskers by unrolling them and placing the end in the hinge of a door. He then closes the door, draws the whiskers taut, and the rest is easy.

Were it not for the fact that Mr. Tapley is of a retiring disposition and has a fine farm he would be on exhibition, for he has been offered thousands of dollars to go before the public.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

River Steamers Without Ornament.

"On certain of our river steamers it has been decided to do away with the frills and fancy work on the smokestacks," said a gentleman from Mobile. "These ornaments rust off and fall to the deck, frequently causing serious accidents. Cases have been known where men lost their lives by ornamental flue tops collapsing, and it is predicted that eventually these picturesque but unnecessary adjuncts of the river packet will disappear.

"Personally I am sorry to see this innovation and the passing away of the familiar jagged ring about the top of the stack, which is the first part of the boat to loom up down the river as she rounds the bend. However, this is a small thing to sigh over, for it will not be many years before the boats themselves will be practically relics of the past."—Birmingham (Ala.) Age-Herald.

New York's Milk Supply.

A million and a half quarts! That is the amount of milk left daily at back doors, on dumbwaiters, in tenement halls, milk depots and corner groceries for the inhabitants of New York. Nothing the city eats or drinks is so generally used as milk; nothing else is so dangerous if carelessly handled. A few gallons of bad milk can do more harm than a regiment of doctors can repair and scatter disease and death enough to put a whole community in mourning. When one remembers that bad milk is no respecter of persons the campaign against poor milk during the last three years and the constructive efforts to get good milk become a reason not only for civic pride, but for individual thanksgiving.—Alice Katharine Fallows in Century.

The Coach Still In Favor.

There is something delightfully reposeful and old fashioned about driving on a coach. The gentle crawl of the team is positively delightful after a long course of whizzing through the air on one's friends' motors. We live and move in such a distracting hurry that I foresee a time when a reaction will set in and we shall look upon the Chinaman who tears up railways and telegraphs and lives on tea and rice with far greater respect than we now bestow on the energetic inventors of mechanical and electric horrors.—A Countess in London Outlook.

TRAIL IS WORKED OUT

Police at a Standstill In Case of Defaulter Allen

WAS LAST SEEN AT OSWEGO

From Which Point All Trace of Him Has Been Lost—Immediate Necessities of Those Who Suffer by His Misdeeds Are Provided For

Boston, Aug. 19.—Inspector Morrissey of the department of criminal investigation, Boston police, who since the departure of Willard S. Allen, the defaulting Methodist treasurer, has been looking for him along the northern borders of the United States and in Canada, has returned from the north. He reported at once at police headquarters and was closeted with Chief Inspector Watts for nearly an hour. At the close of the conference both the chief and the detective refused to speak of what had been or what was about to be done, but Morrissey's return without his man is taken to indicate that the northern trail is worked out.

The probability is that the police are at a standstill, and cannot decide which way to turn. It is so long since Allen was seen, and so long since he went away, that the chances in following a trail grow slighter every day. The chief dependence is upon something turning up in an unexpected quarter, and that is much less likely to happen quickly in the case of a man like Allen than with a professional thief. It is the experience of every detective that a man unused to dealing with pursuers can often walk in safety through places where long-hunted criminals could not show their heads. His inexperience, on the other hand, makes his ultimate capture more certain.

Inspector Morrissey, when called from Chicago to run down the trail left in Rochester, where Allen was seen and accosted by a friend, has since that time been mostly in northern New York. From Rochester he traced Allen to Oswego, where he was seen by men who identified him to the detective's satisfaction. At that time he had not shaved his ministerial side whiskers. That is the last definite point where he was seen, for the trail from Ogdensburg to Plattsburg proved misleading.

Though the police seem no nearer than ever to catching the thief, the outlook toward making up the amount of money stolen from the Methodist Preachers' Aid society grows daily more encouraging. By James A. Woolson's gift of $1500, and other smaller subscriptions, the immediate necessities of ministers have been largely provided for, and now a beginning has been made toward replacing the permanent fund of $75,000. The special committee appointed to raise funds is able to announce pledges amounting to $3500, which, when added to a pledge of $1000, make a total of $4500 towards the full amount of the endowment.

These offers, when coupled with the growing public subscription list, are very encouraging to the committee, which hopes to raise the entire amount before October. As an earnest of what ought to be given by the laity, the New England Conference of Ministers is expected to contribute from $8000 to $10,000 to the permanent fund. When it is remembered that the conference, in round numbers, includes only 260 clergymen, and that their salaries make a low average, a contribution like this is remarkable. It may be added that the New England Conference does not by any means include all New England, which is divided into six separate conferences, of which this is the largest. Each of the five other conferences has its own aged veterans to care for, and cannot be called on to contribute.

A Gate Tender's Watchfulness

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 19.—An express train was nearly due here and Gate Tender O'Neil was about to close the gates at the Sterlin street crossing when he discovered that a piece of rail 10 inches long had cracked and fallen away from the ties. Rushing down the track toward the approaching train he waved a red flag. The train came to a stop a few feet from the broken rail.

SARATOGA GAYETY.

Twenty Days' Racing at the Popular Spa in New York.

Saratoga, the dashing resort, the sporting spa, the health giving haunt, where wearied minds and worn out frames find health and delight in the pure atmosphere and the gushing springs, is now at its season's height. Racing has commenced and for twenty days a grand scene typical of American sporting life can be witnessed at the famous spa. The thoroughbred horses, fine limbed and perfectly shaped, the speediest in the world; the midget jockies who have gained fame in France and England; the millionaire who deserts his Wall street office for the exciting race track, the fashionable dressed ladies of Chicago, New York and Boston society, they are all here, and they depict a scene which is strange to everyone but the summer Saratogian.

Note the excitement and enthusiasm at the track, the noise and bustle in the betting ring, the cheers when a favorite wins, the tense silence and the following thunderous roar and shout when a straggler, following the bunch, plods grimly on; ere the half is reached he is gaining, forward he advances, gaining, still onward through the field, on the outside at the turn, second in the stretch, and in a whipping finish is victor by a head. This is an every day scene at Saratoga Springs.

In the evening there is a continual promenade on the beautiful and spacious Broadway, Saratoga's Pennsylvania avenue, hundreds walking up and down, the hotels verandas crowded, their magnificent court yards scenes of festive gayety, the dazzling fountains cooling the breezes for the laughing throng, the strains of sweet music wafts from the hotel orchestral would please old Orpheus himself.

In the morning the proper thing is first a visit to the famous springs, a run across to Congress Spring Park, but see, you are not the first to quaff this purer than nectar, it really seems as though the throng of ladies and gentlemen had come with the first rays of the approaching dawn, for it is yet but 6.30 and hundreds are sitting at the tables drinking this sparkling water.

After breakfast a ride on the cars to the beautiful Saratoga Lake, while away an hour in the rustic theatre or in a sail over the smooth waters, then continue on your trolley trip and ramble through the nearby historic towns of Schuylerville, Gates, Burgoyne, Stillwater, etc.

This is one day at Saratoga, the most brilliant, the grandest, the sparkling resort of America.

The Boston & Maine Railroad runs through cars from Boston to Saratoga, and tickets during the summer months, Boston to Saratoga, can be purchased at a round trip rate of $8.

Six Thousand Tons.

Returns from the three railroad shipping terminals of Quincy, for the month of July, show that the total amount of granite shipped was 12,238,817 pounds, an increase of a little over 2,000,000 pounds over the month of June. All of the increase, however, was from the West Quincy station. The July figures were: West Quincy, 6,579,822 pounds; South Quincy, 4,643,495 pounds; Quarry railroad, 1,015,500 pounds.

Important Contribution to History

Rome, Aug. 19.—A most important discovery was made yesterday during excavations in the Roman forum, consisting of the base of the celebrated equestrian statue of the Roman emperor, Domitian, which is of the greatest interest in determining the typography of the forum in the first century of the empire. The base stands five feet below the present level of the forum. It is 40 feet long, 20 feet wide and over 10 feet high. On the top are three blocks of travertin stone, showing where the feet of the horse stood. The fourth block is lacking, indicating that the right forefoot of the horse was raised. The distance between the blocks is so great that it is calculated that the statue was six times life size.

Divorced Couple Remarry

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 19.—After being divorced for 12 years, Lawrence A. Ring and Abbie B. Ring were reunited in marriage by Rev. Marion Law of St. Paul's Episcopal church. Ring came to Rhode Island from Chicago two years ago. Not long afterwards he became seriously ill and sent for his former wife. She responded to the summons, nursed him through the illness, and the couple decided to have the marriage service again read. Ring is 53 and his wife 48.

DIVINE AUTHORITY.

Mrs. Grant Would Have "Obey" Remain in Marriage Service.

Mrs. T. Grant of 68 Washington street has also written to the Post her opinions on the subject: Should "obey" be omitted from the marriage service? She says: "No, for as it was placed there by divine authority it should remain. As man was first created, he naturally comes first, and, in my opinion, holds first place. Woman is the weaker, and consequently should look up to man as her protector. He is the "sturdy oak," she the "clinging vine," and, as the home is the kingdom, so the man should be king.

"In a marriage where love and confidence exist, the word obey has but a literal sound. It is not hard to obey where love is master. If the words of the marriage service were attended to more strictly, we would not see so many unhappy ones seeking the divorce courts for relief.

"Of course, the word "obey" can be construed to mean slavery, but there is no love or confidence where that state of affairs exists. So I say let the marriage service alone, so that they who enter therein may do so with love and confidence, amenable to all its conditions.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Lion's Love Letter

Soon after the lion fell in love he thought it would be just right for him to write a letter to his sweetheart, and he started out to find pen and ink with which to do it. Almost the first person that he came across was the porcupine, who was just bristling with quills—the finest sort of quills for letter writing.

"Hello, Porky!" cried the lion. "I want to borrow one of your good quills to write a letter."

"I can't spare one of my quills just at present," replied the porcupine.

"OH, MY! OH, MY! OH, ME!"

"But I'll tell you what I'll do. You can tell me what you want to say and I'll write the letter for you."

"No, indeed," cried the lion. "I must write it myself."

"Not with my quills," answered the porcupine. "You might break one of them, and I would never get it back again."

"You won't let me have a quill! You refuse me, the king of beasts! Then I will teach you a lesson. I will eat you alive!"

And with that the lion opened his great big mouth and brought his jaws down with full force upon the little porcupine. The next moment he was howling with pain, while blood flowed from a hundred gashes in his mouth made by the sharp points of the quills.

"Oh, my! Oh, my! Oh, me!" he screamed in pain. "What have you done?"

"I haven't done anything," answered the porcupine. "I haven't moved from this spot."

"Oh, my! Look at the blood!" cried the lion.

"It will make good ink for your letter," said the porcupine.

"You are unkind to me," said the lion.

"And you tried to be unkind to me," said the porcupine.

And then the lion turned on his heel and went home a much wiser animal than ever before.—Chicago Tribune.

A MOST PECULIAR CASE

Maine Officers Thought They Had Myers' Body

FOUND TO BE IN ERROR

When Remains Found In Lake Kineo Were Shown to Be Those of Louis Greenwood of Holyoke, a Fugitive From Justice In Two Places

Kineo, Me., Aug. 19.—As the result of the finding of a body in the lake near this point, the county officials have ascertained that instead of it being that of James Myers of St. John, the woodsman who was pushed from a lake steamer on July 6 by Joseph Scribner, now in jail at Dover on a charge of murder, the remains are those of Louis Greenwood of Holyoke, Mass., a lumberman who was supposed to be in Canada, a fugitive from justice.

On Sunday last the badly decomposed body of a man was found near here. As no person was known to have been drowned recently, other than Myers, it was supposed that the remains were those of the New Brunswicker. Yesterday, however, Frank Jandrow, who occupied a bunk with Greenwood in a logging camp, on viewing the body discovered that it was Greenwood's. The identification was positively confirmed by evidence which the authorities found later.

It develops that Greenwood spent the winter in the camp of Charles Jackson, a Bangor lumber operator, at Socatean. He came to Kineo in the middle of April and obtained employment with a local man. He secured a room with a workman named William King.

On April 28, the date upon which the lake was free from ice, it was the desire of many of the lumbermen to go down the lake on the first boat of the season. Greenwood, King states, appeared to be in an unusual hurry to have him go on the boat, and in the rush for the lake, King forgot to take his money out of his trunk and place it where it would be safer.

Greenwood did not go on the boat. Next day, on King's return, he found that his companion and his money were both missing. Suspicion naturally attached to Greenwood, and King notified the authorities of his loss. Telephone messages were sent to several points, but no one could be found who had seen Greenwood.

A clue was encountered, however, in the shape of a missing canoe. Later a canoe was found at Birch Point, opposite Kineo. It was inferred that the missing man had used the canoe to cross the lake and had escaped to Canada.

Greenwood's companions discussed his disappearance for some time. They say that they understood that he came to the Maine woods because of some difficulty he had in Holyoke, in which a woman was concerned. When he landed in Kineo he had a trifle over $11 in his pockets, and he intimated that he intended to save money and strike for Canada.

When the body was found in the lake Sunday it was so badly decomposed that the features were almost unrecognizable. The general supposition was that the body was Myers'. When Jandrow, who knew Greenwood well, saw the remains, he proved that they were not Myers', but those of the Holyoke man. He recognized the suit and a button worn in the coat lapel. Another convincing proof was the congress shoes, covered by rubbers, which Greenwood wore, an unusual combination in this section.

The body was taken to Greenville, where King viewed it. He identified a certificate representing $20 in gold, a silver dollar and a number of $5 notes which were his property. He convinced the coroner at the inquest that the money was his and it was returned to him. The money was in a roll in the dead man's pocket and was in excellent condition, notwithstanding its long immersion.

It is supposed that Greenwood, after taking a canoe for the purpose of crossing the lake and striking out for Canada, was unable to handle the frail craft and upset it. It is said that he knew nothing whatever about handling a canoe, and his former friends have no doubt that he was accidentally drowned while attempting to escape with it.

Crotians Renew Rioting

Vienna, Aug. 19.—A fresh outbreak of rioting has occurred in Crotia. At Zapresic 1000 peasants destroyed a Hungarian banner. The rioters were resisted by the gendarmerie, who shot three men and wounded many others. At Komesina the peasants pillaged stores and stoned the military, who killed two persons and wounded a number of rioters.

Kramer In a Bad Spill

Providence, Aug. 19.—In the championship 10-mile bicycle race here last night Frank Kramer was badly hurt in a spill with King and Bedell. Iver Lawson won. Kramer received several cuts and bruises, but his injuries are not regarded as serious.

Workmen Have Bad Fall

Lewiston, Me., Aug. 19.—Dennis McCarthy and Joseph Morin fell 40 feet from a staging on which they were at work in the new theatre building. They were both taken to a hospital, where McCarthy died. Morin is in a critical condition.

Murderer Kills Himself

Nyack, N. Y., Aug. 19.—Herman T. Coates, who murdered Louis Hull at Spring Valley on May 19, 1902, committed suicide in jail here by cutting his throat with a rusty razor which he obtained in some unaccountable way. Coates was brought from Richmond, where, when arrested for vagrancy, he confessed to the murder of Hull. Last Sunday he jumped from a steamer off Sea Girt, but was rescued.

The Hull's Behavior Satisfactory

Newport, R. I., Aug. 19.—It was demonstrated to the satisfaction of the government officials that the torpedo boat destroyer Hull is a success from every standpoint, and the trial board will recommend that she be accepted by the government. She not only maintained her contract speed of 28 knots an hour, but at times made 29 knots and over. All the mechanism worked perfectly.

Higher Duty on Pork Products

Washington, Aug. 19.—An amendment to the French tariff bill has been passed by the French senate and chamber of deputies, and will probably be soon promulgated as a law, increasing the tariff on goods important to the American trade, especially pork, ham and bacon. The rate of increase is said to be such as to prohibit our exports of these products to France.

Dropped From Naval Rolls

Washington, Aug. 19.—The war department has dropped from the rolls Second Lieutenant Max Sulnon, who has been absent from the department of Texas without leave for several months. He stands charged with desertion.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Dr. C. F. Hildreth, surgeon, business man and prominent Odd Fellow, died at Manchester, N. H., aged 71. He was a surgeon in the army and navy during the Civil War. He had been county treasurer and president of a savings bank of Suncook.

By the will of Charles R. Hoskins, the last member of a well-known Rhode Island family, an estate variously estimated at from $100,000 to $200,000 is distributed among public institutions of Providence.

The centennial of the Congregationalist church at Littleton, N. H., was closed with a banquet.

CHRISTIANS IN DANGER

Mussulmans Plan Wholesale Massacre at Uskub

NEED BUT SLIGHT PRETEXT

For Descent Upon Unfortunates at a Given Signal—No Aid Can Be Expected From Turkish Troops—Telegraphic Communication Cut Off

Sofia, Aug. 19.—A reign of terror is reported to prevail at Uskub, where the Christian inhabitants are afraid to leave their houses. The Vali has issued the strictest orders to the Mussulman population to remain quiet and not molest their Christian neighbors, but the Mussulmans, meeting in the mosques, have resolved at a given signal to massacre the whole Christian population immediately the first insurgent band appears near Uskub or on any other pretext.

The Christians are terrorized. The Turkish troops, who are their only protection, do not show the slightest disposition to aid them. The attitude of the Turkish troops was recently plainly manifested when a train load of soldiers, shortly after leaving Uskub, fired on the Bulgarian workmen who were repairing the track. Three of the workmen were killed and their bodies were left lying on the line.

Telegraphic communication between Sofia and Constantinople is interrupted, the wires having been cut between Adrianople and Constantinople. No telegrams from Constantinople have been received here since 6 o'clock Monday evening. The Turkish officials at Adrianople refuse to state where the break occurred. Fears are expressed here regarding the safety of the railroad between Adrianople and Constantinople.

According to a report from Uskub, Michailovski, the Bulgarian leader, was killed in the fighting at Krushevo, while Boris Sarafoff, the noted insurgent chief, has been surrounded at Prassbalkan, in the southern part of the Monastir vilayet.

The night train service between Salonica and the Servian frontier has been suspended.

Forty-three battalions of Turkish reserves have been called out.

Bulgarian Army Mobilized

Rome, Aug. 19.—Private advices from the Balkan peninsula state that Bulgaria has practically mobilized an army, as the troops under arms in the principality now amount to more than 70,000, which is double what is considered as the peace effective. The Bulgarian government, however, is unwilling to venture for the time being on any hostile movement against Turkey, as it does not wish to lose the support of Russia. It hopes, however, that public opinion in Russia will force the government to help Bulgaria against Turkey, and the dispatch of a Russian squadron to Turkish waters encourages the Bulgarians in this view.

Frontier Guards Killed

Sofia, Aug. 19.—The Evening Post states that a band of Bashi-Bazouks have crossed the Bulgarian frontier in the district of Teledere, killed three frontier guards and wounded two others. They also set fire to several houses. This raid has created great excitement in the district.

The revolutionary organ, Autonomye, says the insurgents, after two unsuccessful attempts, have succeeded in destroying with dynamite the bridge at Exschesso, thereby absolutely stopping communication between Salonica and Monastir.

Austria's Nightmare

Vienna, Aug. 19.—At a banquet of the general staff of the army, given on the occasion of Emperor Francis Joseph's birthday, Baron Von Back, chief of the staff, in toasting the emperor said: "Heavy cares are oppressing the heart of our noble monarch. May the Almighty avert further trouble. May he free us from the nightmare which at present is weighing down the heart of every patriot."

He Was Not Forgotten

Darlington, Ind., Aug. 19.—James L. Meyers, who came here to attend a family reunion, was arrested last night for a murder committed 28 years ago. Meyers killed Brant Sloan during a quarrel and immediately left. He remained away until yesterday. Meyers is now a prosperous lumber man in Tennessee. He thought his changed appearance would prevent recognition. He says he is ready to stand trial and will prove that he killed Sloan in self defense.

Killed Millionaire and Self

Oshkosh, Wis., Aug. 19.—Thomas R. Morgan, the millionaire sash and door manufacturer, was shot to death by Frederick Hampel, a discharged employe. Hampel was overpowered and taken to jail, where he committed suicide later by hanging himself when no one was watching. Morgan died on the way to the hospital.

Will Go Back to Prison

The Weirs, N. H., Aug. 19.—Orrin D. Hilliard, a convict who escaped from the Strafford county house of correction at Dover about a month ago, was captured here last evening. He was serving a sentence of one year for committing an assault with intent to kill

BETTING ON RELIANCE

Shows Faith In Ability of Defender to Retain Cup

ODDS STAND AT TWO TO ONE

Final Trial Spins of Two Great Racers Give No Opportunity to Compare Them—Remeasurement of Shamrock Gives Her 1:57 Allowance

New York, Aug. 20.—Over the ocean race course outside of Sandy Hook Sir Thomas Lipton's third challenger, Shamrock III, will today try conclusions with Reliance. It is expected that one of the largest crowds which ever witnessed an international cup race will go out to see the initial contest. Again this year, as in the two preceding series, the government will police the course with revenue cutters and the most stringent rules have been laid down to prevent interference by the excursion fleet with the big single stickers.

The big racers are moored inside Sandy Hook ready for the fray. Despite the big time allowance which the defender must concede to the challenger, the friends of Reliance are extremely confident that Sir Thomas is again doomed to defeat, and this confidence in the American boat is reflected in the betting, where the odds are two to one on Reliance. The friends of the British boat, on the other hand, profess the greatest faith in the ability of Fife's latest creation to "lift the cup."

According to the rules the first race will be 15 nautical miles to windward or leeward and return, depending upon the direction of the wind. After that each alternate race will be over a triangular course, 10 miles to the leg. The next race will be sailed on Saturday and the third next Tuesday, and thereafter every other day until the series is completed. The winner of three out of five will be the victor. According to the rules, if the course is not covered within the time allowance, 5 1-2 hours, it is no race. A seven-knot breeze will be necessary to carry the boats over the course in the allotted time.

For the first time the challenger and defender yesterday sailed in company off Sandy Hook, when both boats were taken out for final trial spins. Except when passing, going in opposite directions, the two yachts were never nearer than three miles to each other, so that there was no opportunity to compare them, although some observers thought that Shamrock III heeled a little more and seemed to carry a larger stern wave.

It was announced at the New York Yacht club late last night that C. D. Mower, the official measurer, had remeasured Shamrock III off Sandy Hook, and that as a consequence the challenger will be in receipt of an additional allowance of 12 seconds in the races, making a total time allowance of 1 minute and 57 seconds, against the previous estimate of 1 minute and 45 seconds.

The new measurement revealed the fact that a mistake had been made in measuring the length of the topmast. When Mower ran his tape over the vessel yesterday he found that the throat halyard block was three feet lower down than his figures of Tuesday showed. This made the length of the topmast greater by three feet, reducing the size of the mainsail and thus decreasing the sail area. The new measurement brings the racing length of Shamrock III down to 104.4 instead of 104.77, equal to a time allowance of 12 seconds.

The remeasurement was made at the request of Sir Thomas Lipton. When Secretary Cormack was asked if the re-measuring was the result of any dissatisfaction on the part of Sir Thomas Lipton, he said: "Not at all. Sir Thomas altered his boat by lowering the throat halyard block, then asked for a remeasurement and got it. That's all."

Britons Refrain From Prophecy

London, Aug. 20.—The newspapers are displaying the keenest interest in the coming contest for the America's cup. All the customary arrangements for giving the results have been made. Hopes for Lipton's success run high but the newspapers in their editorials all refrain from indulging in prophecy.

FUND REACHES $5500

Methodists Generously Respond to Call of Preacher's Aid Society

Boston, Aug. 20.—The gift of $1000 towards the Methodist Preachers' Aid fund, recently depleted by W. S. Allen's defalcation, from F. B. Webster of Boston is announced, without any condition or proviso whatsoever. It will be placed towards the account of the permanent fund, which a committee of the society is now trying to restore to the original figure of $75,000. This contribution, when added to the amount previously pledged, brings the total up to $5500.

In this week's issue of Zion's Herald Editor Parkhurst says: "We do not expect the capture of Allen. He is a shrewd and sunning man of a certain successful type. He has had years to plan his flight, for it was likely to become a necessity at any moment as the result of his rascality.

Bank Failure Caused Assignment

Boston, Aug. 20.—Mr. Nutter, one of the assignees of the Mason & Hamlin company, manufacturers of pianos and organs, which assigned yesterday, says that the present financial condition of the company dates from the failure of the Central National bank in November last. The bank was a creditor of the Mason & Hamlin company to a large amount. The company also owed considerable borrowed money to other banks. Nutter thinks the unsecured liabilities will reach $300,000 or $350,000.

Rabbi In Fatal Accident

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 20.—David Richmond, a Jewish rabbi, residing at Boston, sustained internal injuries and a fracture of the right hip during a runaway accident at Uxbridge, Mass. He was thrown from a wagon, and holding onto the reins was dragged some distance, finally being jammed between two vehicles. He took a train for Boston, but upon reaching this city his pain was so great that he asked to be taken to a hospital. He is not likely to recover.

Indictment Against Trolley Crew

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 20.—Leon B. Downs and Daniel F. Daly, motorman and conductor on the Boston and Worcester trolley car that was the cause of the fatal accident in Shrewsbury July 25, were indicted by the grand jury here on the charge of manslaughter in causing the death of Miss Frances Greer. Over 50 people were injured in the same accident.

Small Loss by Big Fire

Portland, Me., Aug. 20.—A fire which for a time threatened considerable surrounding property destroyed a large wooden stockhouse owned by the S. D. Warren Paper company at Westbrook. The burned building was an old one of little value, and although no less than six buildings were on fire at one time, the whole loss is comparatively small.

Collision of Electrics

Marlboro, Mass., Aug. 20.—A head-on collision occurred on the Framingham, Southboro and Marlboro street railway about two miles from this city. Motorman Hamilton had a leg broken and was injured about the head and face. None of the passengers was injured, although considerably shaken.

RACE BULLETINS ON THE THIRD PAGE.

OPPONENTS OF GASTON

Said to Favor Miles For Governor of Massachusetts

"WOULD SWEEP THE STATE"

No Question of Retired Veteran's Eligibility For the Office, as He Is at Liberty to Claim Permanent Residence In the State

Boston, Aug. 20.—An article in a local paper yesterday said that the anti-Gaston Democrats would take Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, retired, as their candidate for governor this fall. The article referred to says, among other things:

"According to those who do not approve the renomination of Colonel William A. Gaston, the nomination of General Miles would absolutely unify the party in the state. Further, they are sufficiently optimistic to believe that the candidacy of General Miles would appeal to enough Republicans to insure his election. They point out that he would get the old soldier vote almost solid, regardless of party, and that public sympathy, resulting from the circumstances attending his retirement from the army, would operate greatly to his advantage at the polls. Further, that the Republican element which is opposed to Governor Bates would as willingly vote for General Miles as for Colonel Gaston. These enthusiasts figure that where, as conditions are at present, Colonel Gaston might win, General Miles would sweep the state."

The first question that arose in the minds of some was as to the eligibility of General Miles. The state constitution says that no person shall be eligible to the governorship unless, at the time of his election, he shall have been an inhabitant of this commonwealth for seven years next preceding. It was pointed out, however, that army and navy officers were exempt from this provision. It was also learned that General Miles has, and has had for some time, a voting residence at Westminster, Mass., and is on the voting lists in that town, which was his birthplace. There seems to be no question, therefore, about his eligibility.

The "boom" was attributed to George Fred Williams, and it was declared that he and his friends would welcome the Miles candidacy. Mr. Williams is on the ocean, homeward bound. His friends, however, deny that he is responsible for the injection of Miles into the campaign. Colonel Gaston and Colonel Hamlin, his last year's rival for the nomination, are both out of town. Congressman McNary, chairman of the Democratic state committee, was not in his office. Secretary McSweeney of the same committee said laconically, "Hot weather politics, that's all."

A special to The Transcript from Washington says: "Whether or not there is a serious movement on among a faction of Democrats in Massachusetts to nominate General Miles for governor, the present status of his citizenship can cut no legal figure in the case. It has always been understood in Washington that Miles, following the general rule of army officers, retained his citizenship and voting privileges in the state from which he was appointed to the army. He entered the army from Massachusetts, his legal residence at that time being Boston, and he was at liberty to return and vote at the polls nearest the place he might designate as his legal residence. Whether he ever exercised this privilege during his 40 years of active service cannot be learned here today, as the general is attending the G. A. R. encampment at San Francisco.

If General Miles chooses to claim permanent residence in Massachusetts now that he has been retired from the army by operation of the law of retirement, he is at liberty to do so. There is neither a state nor federal law that would prevent his exercise of this privilege, nor is there any army regulation that would interfere with the freest exercise on his part of all the political rights of every other citizen. In other words, if General Miles should care for the Democratic or any other party's nomination for governor or other office in Massachusetts, there is nothing in the law or army regulations that would prohibit his acceptance. It is the general impression in Washington, however, that General Miles intends to live here, where he has a comfortable home.

SQUANTUM CLUB.

Start Erection of a $5,000 Up-to-Date Building.

Has All of the Conveniences.

Will Be 250 Feet from Shore—Hall, Lockers, Etc.

The Squantum Yacht club, which has existed in name only for two or three years, owing to their property having been taken by the state, has taken a new lease of life, and from now on there will be something doing, and the Squantum club will take its place among the active yacht clubs of Massachusetts bay.

While the matter of damages for property taken was under settlement it was almost useless to try and do anything. A satisfactory settlement has now been made with the Metropolitan Park Commissioners, and work was commenced this week building its new club house and pier.

Mayor Bryant is the present commodore of the club, and as he is assured a reelection as commodore next year, if he can be prevailed upon to take it, the club will be in a position second to none.

The new club house will be built upon oak piles 250 feet from the shore and will be seven feet above mean high water, and will be reached by a pier eight feet wide.

The main building will be 50 feet by 60 feet, and will have piazzas on the north and south sides, ten feet wide, and on the front seventeen feet wide. On the northeast and southeast corners will be two lookouts, octagonal in shape, 17 by 17.

On the shore end is a covered porch 11-6 by 8. Entrance to the club house will be from this porch which leads to to a small hall.

At the right is a billiard room, 15-8 by 22. Here there will be one of those inviting open fire places. From the billiard room, a door leads to the north piazza.

On the right of the main entrance is a broad stairway, leading to the hall above. There is also a storage room, gentlemen's toilet room, and two lockers, 5 by 6. There is an entrance to the toilet room from the main locker room and from the south piazza.

Entering the locker room from the main entrance, on the left or north side is a kitchen 10 x 7, and seven lockers 5 x 8. On the south side are nine lockers 5 x 8. In the centre of the room with a passage way all around them, are 26 small lockers, each 2 x 6 square. There are also four more small lockers in the corner, each 2 x 6 square.

From the locker room double doors lead to the front piazza, while on the right and left are the two lookouts. From the water front piazza is a runway six feet wide, leading to the floats, which will be moored in the proposed new channel.

The stairway on the shore end leads to a wide landing above, from which entrance is had to the main hall, 31 x 50, and to the ladies' parlor, which is 10 x 12. This also has an entrance to the main hall.

Adjoining ladies' parlor is a ladies' toilet room. On either side of the hall are three large dormer windows, which will be provided with seats. At the water end of the hall is a large balcony, 15 by 20, which will form a delightful place from which to watch the races next summer, and there will be a number of good ones.

A Big Muster.

Fifty-five engines are entered in the firemen's muster at Salem today, and but eight minutes will be allowed each. The Butcher Boy of Braintree will play No. 35. The Conqueror of South Weymouth No. 13; the Active of Weymouth No. 39; the Defender of East Weymouth No. 43, and the Hingham Vets No. 51. Four states are represented.

Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

NORFOLK, ss. PROBATE COURT.

TO all persons interested in the estate of

JOSEPH BAXTER,

late of Quincy, in said county, deceased.

Whereas, George W. Baxter, Jere P. Fenno and Theophilus King, executors of the will of said deceased, have presented for allowance, the first and final account of their administration upon the estate of said deceased.

You are hereby cited to appear at a Probate Court to be held at Quincy, in said County, on the ninth day of September, A. D. 1903, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the same should not be allowed.

And said executors are ordered to serve this citation by delivering a copy thereof to all persons interested in the estate fourteen days at least before said Court, or by publishing the same once in each week for three successive weeks, in the Quincy Daily Ledger, a newspaper published in Quincy, the last publication to be one day at least before said Court, and by mailing, postpaid, a copy of this citation to all known persons interested in the estate seven days at least before said Court.

Witness, JAMES H. FLINT, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this fourteenth day of August, in the year one thousand nine hundred and three.

Good Afternoon

Needham has jumped over Quincy in the wrong direction; her tax rate has increased from $14.50 to $18.50.

The pros and cons of calling the extra session to convene in October are being discussed with unusual interest in Washington.

Joseph Pulitzer has given two million dollars to found a school of journalism. Mr. Pulitzer's paper should profit by a good school.

The effort to attach blame to President Roosevelt for the rapid promotion of General Leonard Wood is unjust. General Wood owes his rapid promotion to President McKinley.

There is no reason to believe that the Steel Trust will become a "Dinkey" institution just because that is the name of its new president.

The street railways have more than doubled their traffic, nearly trebled their mileage and increased their capitalization fivefold since 1890, according to the census experts.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Mr. Graves' suggestion of a separation of the races is manifestly fantastic and impracticable. The Negro neither originated on this soil no did he seek it of his own accord. He was brought hither by whites, not on his own account, but exclusively on theirs. And upon them, as the superior race, devolves the responsibility of devising a solution for all the race questions that come up, including that which is now settled by lynching. That is barbarous, an impossible solution, and cannot be accepted. To accept it would be to degrade the white race more and more toward the level of the savages to whom it boasts itself superior. Some other solution must be found and applied or that retrogression will surely and speedily go on.—New York Times.

☞As time passes comparatively few sections of the public domain remain without the pale of the street car men. They are opening great fields and districts and picturesque plots to the general public and are improving the value of the plots and making life pleasanter for those in other days who would have found themselves crowded in cities or isolated in country villages. The trolley car keeps all sections in close touch with all others. The man from the city and the man from the country meet easily and amicably on all roads and in all parts of the land, and the park, the village and the metropolis are open to nearly all the people readily and speedily.—Brockton Enterprise.

NOT DULL WITH HIM.

J. W. Pratt a Busy Contractor—Several Sales This Month.

J. W. Pratt reports the building and real estate business as being quite good, considering it is just between seasons. He has sold this month to Alfred Bishop, a house and stable and 7,500 feet of land on Bennington street; and on Cranch street a two-family house to Stephen Riley; also to Lillian Talbot a lot and house on Plymouth street.

He is building a two-family house for Helene A. Collins on Federal avenue; a three-family house for Charles Erricson off Whitwell street; a single nine-room house on Independence avenue for investment, and two two-family and one single houses on Claremont avenue.

Mr. Pratt also has a contract to build a seventeen-room house on Winter street for John Farrel of Charlestown, the same being well underway.

The same builder has bought the Graham factory on Washington street, and will remove to land bought of the Sumner Park Land Co. and build three modern houses. The building movers having already got them on the ways. This makes another main entrance to Sumner Park, the new street being laid out just where the buildings have stood.

It is a pleasure to note all this activity, as Mr. Pratt always improves the localities where he builds extensively. Independence avenue and vicinity have become one of the prettiest parts of the city. The removal of the Graham factory from Washington street and the extension of Mill street through the Summer Park property is sure to be an improvement, and in the near future many houses will probably be erected in the vicinity.

Andrew Field.

Andrew J. Field died at his sister's, Mrs. Munroe Crane's, at Dover Plains, New York, on Tuesday evening. His remains will be brought to this city tomorrow, and buried in the Mount Wollaston cemetery. He was a son of William Field who resided at South Quincy, and will be remembered by many Quincy boys who lived in this town fifty years ago.

Boarders Robbed.

The rooms of four boarders at the Gilmore House at Quincy Point were entered Wednesday afternoon by a sneak thief, and two watches, a suit of clothes, a revolver and $14 in cash are among the articles missing.

MILTON.

Rev. Theodore I. Reese will give a talk on the Ritualism in the church, next Sunday morning, at the Mission of Our Saviour church.

Ernest Choat, assistant superintendent of wires, is having a two weeks' vacation.

A number of East Milton residences will be connected with the gas mains that are being laid in the streets.

Robert Sweeney has been confined to his home this week by illness.

The Milton fire department was called to Boston on Tuesday to cover Engine 16 territory, that apparatus having been called to South Boston.

The evening services at the Baptist church will be discontinued for the next two Sundays.

About twenty-five members of the Thursday Evening club participated in the fishing trip last week. The day was all that could be desired, and the sail was delightful. The fish did not bite well, but Peter McIntire captured the prize for the largest fish, which happened to be a dog fish.

Milton firemen united with those of Dorchester in attending the funeral of Capt. John F. O'Connell of Engine 16 on Wednesday.

—The Democratic state committee will meet on Tuesday at the Revere House and decide on the date of the state convention and make arrangements.

TREATY NOT REJECTED

Colombia Shows Disposition to Further Consider the Canal Matter

Washington, Aug. 20.—Unofficial, but what is considered entirely reliable information, has been received by Dr. Herran, Colombian charge of affairs here, indicating an intention on the part of the Colombian senate to resume consideration of the subject of a Panama canal treaty in place of the one disapproved by that body on the 12th inst. This leads Dr. Herran to hope that a measure will yet be passed by congress which will form the basis for the ratification of a treaty between Colombia and the United States for the construction of an isthmian canal.

Dr. Herran's information is that on Aug. 13, the day after the disapproval of the treaty by the senate, that body voted to appoint a committee of three members to act jointly with a committee from the house of representatives in the formation of a measure having for its object the ratification of a treaty between the two countries by the executive of Colombia, after the two houses of the Colombian congress had passed an enabling act outlining the terms and conditions on which a treaty should be drawn.

The president of Colombia by this act would have full power in the premises and the treaty would not have to be afterwards submitted to the Colombian congress.

A more careful reading of the dispatch which Dr. Herran received announcing the action of the senate on the treaty shows that what that body really did was to "disapprove" the instrument and not "reject" it, as has been heretofore stated.

Planning New Canal Treaty

Bogota, Aug. 20.—A bill is ready authorizing the government to make a new canal treaty with the United States upon fixed bases and also providing for modifying the national constitution.

Panama, Aug. 20.—The Colombian house of representatives can do nothing in the matter of the canal treaty unless the senate reconsiders it. Numerous instances are on record of bills becoming law after having been twice rejected.

Verdict In Ball Park Disaster

Philadelphia, Aug. 20.—The coroner has concluded his investigation into the accident at the Philadelphia National baseball park on Aug. 8, which resulted in the death of 12 persons and injury to nearly 300 others. He finds that the accident was due to the rotten condition of the timbers supporting the balcony; that the Philadelphia Baseball club (the former owners) was responsible for not having a thorough examination made of these timbers and in stating at the time of the transfer that the buildings were in first class condition. This verdict absolves from blame the present owners of the Philadelphia National Baseball club.

Not Regarded as Serious

Berlin, Aug. 20.—The foreign officials here regard the arrest of German and other merchants at Ciudad Bolivar, Venezuela, for refusing President Castro's demand for the repayment of taxes already paid to the late insurgent government, as probably being the work of the local governor and for which the Venezuelan president is not responsible. President Castro, it is thought, will cause the release of the prisoners as soon as the facts are made known to him.

Negroes Again Honor Washington

Nashville, Aug. 20.—Some 1500 negroes, representing almost every section of the country, assembled here for the opening of the fourth annual convention of the National Negro Business league. The league put itself on record in reference to the recent disturbance at a Boston meeting, which was being addressed by Booker T. Washington. The program was suspended, and by a rising vote Washington was re-elected president of the league.

Policeman Terribly Slashed

New York, Aug. 20.—Policeman Buchert of the Williamsburg district, Brooklyn, was assaulted by a crowd of ruffians, stabbed in the back and so badly injured that he possibly will die. He struggled frantically to get away and several times broke loose, but the crowd closed in on him and slashed his uniform to shreds. The men escaped.

Flood Danger Has Passed

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

Cut it Out and Save Half at Chas. C. Hearn's Drug Store.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, proposes to save you money and if you will present the following coupon at his store, he will let you have a regular fifty cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, containing 60 dose, at half price.

COUPON.

This coupon entitles the holder to one 50c. package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, 25c. I will refund the money to any dissatisfied purchaser.

CHAS. C. HEARN.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

He will go even further and will give with every package he sells his personal guarantee to refund the money if the specific does not cure. This is certainly a most unusual offer,—a reliable medicine at half price, with the further guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded if the remedy does not cure.

Anyone who is suffering from liver trouble, constipation, sick headache, indigestion, specks before the eyes, melancholy, or tired feelings, should take advantage of this offer. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn does not know how long he will be able to sell the specific at half price, for his sale has been something phenomenal, sometimes being obliged to order supplies two or three times a week.

As the dose is diminished after the first few days, a bottle, that you can obtain now for 25 cents, will generally last a month. And it costs you nothing if it does not cure.

Will Probably Win Today's Race.

Reliance, However, is Leading.

Has Gained on the Challenger Since Start.

New York, Aug. 19—Arrangements are complete for the first great international cup race of Thursday. The start will be as near 11 A. M. as possible. The agreements include the following:

Best three out of five races, each 30 nautical miles in length over ocean courses outside of headlands and with a time limit of 5 1-2 hours. The first, third and fifth races being 15 miles to windwind or to leeward and return, and the second and fourth around a triangle 10 miles to a leg.

"The races shall be sailed on Thursdays, Saturdays and Tuesdays commencing on Thursday, Aug. 20. An unfinished race of one kind shall be repeated until decided.

Each vessel shall stand by the consequence of any accident happening to her after the preparatory signal, and upon the occurance of any such accidents disabling any suchvessel, the other shall sail out the race.

Weather Unfavorable.

The cup racers are at the starting line, but there is a possibility that the race may be declared off as the weather is unfavorable.

Yachts to Start.

10.45.—It has been decided to start the race, and the boats are jockeying for position.

BOB WRINGE, THE FAMOUS BRITISH TAR WHO CAPTAINS SHAMROCK III.

Shamrock Took Lead.

11.30 A. M.—The boats are off, the Shamrock leading the Reliance about two lengths.

C. OLIVER ISELIN, MANAGING OWNER OF RELIANCE.

On Even Terms.

12 M.—The cup racers are now on even terms, as near as an observer can see.

Mist over Water.

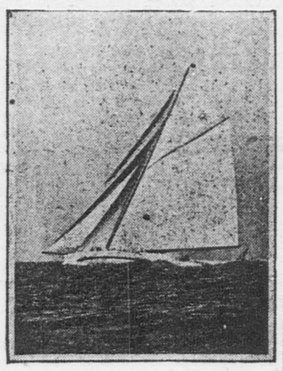

12.45 P. M.—The Shamrock is leading. The weather is unsettled, a heavy mist hanging over the water.

Race May be Off.

12.55—It looks like a thunder shower, and it is possible the race may be called off.

Reliance Ahead.

1.05 P. M.—The Reliance is now ahead. Has a lead of about a quarter of a mile.

SHAMROCK III. ON A PORT TACK.

Finish Before Three.

1.35 P. M.—The yachts should finish before 3 o'clock. The Reliance is gaining and now has a lead of three-quarters of a mile.

Reliance Gaining.

1.45 P. M.—The Reliance is gaining and is now about one mile ahead. The wind is light.

WILLIAM FIFE, DESIGNER OF SHAMROCK III.

Nearing Turn.

2 P. M.—Boats are nearing turn. Wind has changed to advantage. Reliance now leads by half a mile

LIBRARY TRUSTEES.

Only 25 in the 33 Years Since the Establishment.

Since its establishment 1871 the public library of Quincy has been governed by trustees, six in number, who were elected under the town government, and are appointed by the Mayor under the city government.

Since the gift of Thomas Crane memorial hall, the institution has been known as the Thomas Crane public library.

During the 33 years there have been 25 trustees, City Clerk H. A. Keith being the only trustee who was on the original board, and who has served continuously since. Her First Trolley Ride.

Is Holbrook in the backwoods? The Brockton Enterprise reports that Mrs. Josiah Quincy Thayer, 85 years old, who has resided in the town for over 50 years, never saw or rode on an electric car until Tuesday. She was accompanied by Mr. Samuel Dean, and when they had finished their ride Mr. Dean asked her what she thought about it. The old lady, with much complacency, remarked: "Well, I enjoyed it; but it's quite a revelation in rapid transit, to say the least, since the days when I used to ride in the old stage coach when I wanted to go anywhere." Mrs. Thayer is hale and hearty and bids fair to reach the century mark.

An altogether effective way to "pasteurize" milk, rendering it "sterile," is to set a pan of cold water on the stove and put the vessel containing baby's milk into this pan. Just as soon as the water comes to a boil take it off. Add a pinch of baking soda to the hot milk—a little less than half a teaspoonful to a quart. If the milk was sweet and hadn't begun to "turn" it will keep sweet for twenty-four hours or more, even in hot weather, if put in a stoppered bottle.

Professor J. J. Thomson's latest suggestion on the subject of the source of the energy emanating from radium is that there are a few atoms in each mass "in a condition in which stability ceases and which pass into some other configuration, giving out as they do very large quantities of energy." The energy of the radiations of this substance is so great that one of the electrons thrown off by it, if set in chase of a Mauser bullet, would pass through it as though it were standing still.

Of the 85,000 Indians in the five civilized tribes—Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws and Seminoles—less than 15,000 are full bloods; so the Indian will soon lose his racial identity. All the tribes except the Creeks have passed laws admitting the intermarried whites or "squaw men" to full citizenship, and, too, at the time of their removal to the territory many of the Indians owned slaves, who when freed by the war became citizens. Now many members of the tribes have in their veins the blood of three races.

In Chicago in May, at a time when there had been no rain for three weeks, six glass plates two and one-half inches square were exposed in as many streets for one minute. The plates were then incubated so that each particle of dust to which a germ was clinging would soon be surrounded with a colony of germs which could be seen and counted. The average per plate was 1,650 colonies. On the day following nearly an inch of rain fell, and on the next day similar plates were exposed at the same street corners, which after development showed but 270 colonies. A good rain had diminished the number of microbes more than 80 per cent.

[Special Correspondence.]

Robert Shaw Oliver, recently appointed assistant secretary of war, is considered a promising candidate to succeed Secretary Root when the latter retires from the cabinet. There seems to be an understanding that Mr. Oliver meets the requirements, and his appointment will be favorably considered.

There is no secret in the fact that Secretary Root intends to surrender his official position as soon as he can complete certain important matters now in hand and return to New York and the practice of law. The date of his retirement, however, is very indefinite. He will sail for England the last of August to take his place as chairman of the American commission in the Alaskan boundary case. It is understood that he will continue as secretary of war during the time he is abroad. In case the affairs which have been under his especial charge in which he is very much interested are still unsettled when he shall return to this country it is expected that he will continue as secretary of war.

There are other considerations which may prolong his stay as a member of the cabinet until after the next session of congress shall adjourn. The fact that he is familiar with everything pertaining to Philippine affairs, with the administration in Cuba and with the management of all military matters since the Spanish war, all of which subjects may be considered by the next congress, may cause him to continue until then in his present position.

The Marine Band.

The members of the United States Marine band held an informal celebration at the barracks the other day in honor of the one hundred and fifth anniversary of the organization of the band. Lieutenant Santelman opened the programme with a toast to the memory of President John Adams, who on July 11, 1798, approved the act "providing for a drum corps for the marines," which had been passed by congress the day before. He then gave an outline of the history of the band, and afterward the musicians played a number of well known productions, beginning with "Hail, Columbia!" which was composed for and played by the band in 1803.

The Marine band is the oldest in the country and has always been attached to the headquarters of the marine corps in Washington. It has taken no part in the wars of this country and indeed has never left the capital except by official permission, its mission being to furnish music at all White House entertainments of importance and at like affairs of state.

To Reorganize Consulate Service.

Assistant Secretary of State Herbert H. D. Peirce has gone to Europe for the ostensible purpose of inspecting the United States consulates. The work he will perform is of more than ordinary importance, as the result of his investigations will probably have considerable weight upon legislation that will come before the next congress. There is a quiet determination to effect a reform in the consular service, and congress will be urged to assist with the necessary legislation.

There is a good deal of dead timber in the consular service which it is proposed to weed out, and if congress will pass the necessary laws the service will be placed upon a merit basis, and a system of advancement and promotions will be arranged that will offer inducements for capable men to represent the government abroad as consuls.

Fun In the Pension Office.

Pension Commissioner Ware, whose sense of humor is as acute as it is broad and deep, fairly revels in the highly original letters that come to his desk in abundance beyond that of the correspondence of any other government department. But among all those of recent date the following, with its delicate tribute to his predecessor, who had "turned down" the applicant a couple of years ago, in his opinion is entitled to the "bun:"

"Sur—Sum 2 years ago i sent a peal to yure offits and i rite now to let yu no i am alife and to incuire if yu are the saim or if yu hav cuit the ole stan and letten his royn magisty Hott Cakes Evans tend the skillett. If Evans has chaist yu up a tre or put yu under a barl yu sholy cin holler down or tork thru the bung boal and let me no how i stan lessen yure scairt outen yu close."

Revenue Cutters on the Lakes.

The Tuscarora and the Morrill, two of the finest boats in the revenue service, will shortly begin their work on the great lakes. The Tuscarora will be detailed to the Chicago-Milwaukee station, while the Morrill will be sent to Detroit to take the place of the Fessenden, the old side wheeler, which will probably be sent to Key West. The new boats will be started west via the Canadian canals immediately after the international yacht race, during which they will be employed in policing the course.

No More Age Limit on Veterans.

An important order has been issued at the direction of the president amending the civil service rules removing the age limit that has for some time operated to exclude veterans of the civil war from appointments on the roll of laborers in the federal service. Under the order veterans who meet other requirements will no longer be debarred by age.

Russia to Select Arbitrators.

Secretary Hay has invited the czar of Russia to name and appoint from the members of the permanent court of The Hague three arbitrators to constitute the tribunal which is to determine and settle the questions submitted to it under the Venezuelan claims treaty.

THE BALKAN WAR CLOUD

A Most Critical Moment In Bulgaria's Affairs

RUSSIAN DEMAND ON TURKS

Likely to Be Interpreted by Macedonians as Being First Step Towards Intervention In Their Behalf—Fears of Massacres In Salonica

Sofia, Aug. 20.—The Vedomosti, discussing the situation in Bulgaria in the event of a war with Turkey, says at the recent visit of the King of Roumania to Emperor Francis Joseph the monarchs arrived at an understanding that in the event of such a war Roumania should mobilize her army and occupy the triangular territory between Rustchuk, Varna and Silistria, including these towns, in order to maintain the equilibrium of power in the Balkans in the event of Macedonia becoming an autonomous province, which would otherwise give Bulgaria a too predominating influence in the peninsula.

The Vedomosti points out the isolated position that Bulgaria occupies. Austria, it says, is determined to repress the Slav power, while Russia has no confidence in Prince Ferdinand and France is backing Russia. Now is the most critical moment in Bulgaria's affairs and Prince Ferdinand is away. But he is a German, remarks The Vedomosti, without sympathy with the Slavs.

The revolutionary Autonomye says the insurgents at Zer are using small quick-firing Austrian cannon and that the insurgents captured near Rezen a Turkish courier who was carrying important orders to the Turkish troops at Okhrida.

The Russian demands on Turkey, growing out of the recent murder of the Russian consul at Monastir, M. Rostkovski, were formally presented at Yildish palace yesterday. Notwithstanding the warning which Russia addressed to the Bulgarian government, it is very generally believed that the Russian naval demonstration in Turkish waters will dangerously encourage the Macedonians, who, it is claimed, will interpret Russia's action as being the first step towards intervention in their behalf.

The insubordination of the Turkish troops is regarded as being one of the greatest dangers of the present Balkan crisis. The lack of discipline among the soldiers is marked. It is found necessary to humor them in order to prevent conflicts between the soldiers and their officers. For instance, a regiment while on the way from Uskub to Monastir demanded that the train be stopped at Salonica for 12 hours, instead of for the scheduled half-hour, so that the soldiers might amuse themselves in the town. After futile endeavors to prevail upon the men to allow the train to proceed, the officers were obliged to grant their demand. The killing of Bulgarian workmen who were repairing the railroad track near Uskub is another grave instance of the insubordination of the Turkish troops.

Consular reports just received from Salonica continue to emphasize the danger of an outbreak of Mohammedan fanaticism there. The consular representatives have asked for protection, and the question of again dispatching warships to Salonica is being discussed by the representatives of the powers. Dispatches from Turkish sources say the insurgents have destroyed another village in Macedonia.

The ambassadors of the powers have again drawn the earnest attention of the porte to the fears of massacres at Salonica, and have demanded the measures for the protection of the foreign consulates and the subjects of the various powers. Letters received from Uskub say there is evidence there of a great feeling of unrest. The mosques are guarded by troops, and it is feared they may be attacked. The monastery of the Holy Virgin, near Kitchero, has been burned by Albanians, after a determined struggle between the defenders of the monastery and the insurgents, during which both sides lost heavily. Servian refugees are arriving at Uskub from Dibra, having fled from that place owing to fear of a massacre. The Albanians in that district have burned a number of Bulgarian villages.

What Is Heard at Vienna

Vienna, Aug. 20.—The newspaper Die Zeit asserts that M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador at Constantinople, yesterday presented another note to the porte demanding that severe official censure be passed upon Hami Pacha, the inspector general of Macedonia, for his negligence in permitting excesses by Turkish soldiers. The Austrian ambassador personally supported the demand.

The Politische Correspondenz, in an official communication, estimates that there are 150,000 Turkish troops in the Salonica district alone.

An unconfirmed rumor from Sofia says the insurgents have captured the town of Utschebo, in the vilayet of Monastir. They are reported to have murdered the mayor and to be holding the inhabitants to ransom.

Preparing For Eventualities

London, Aug. 20.—The Daily Mail asserts that the admiralty of Great Britain, Russia and Turkey are laying in abnormal quantities of Welsh steam coal, presumably in preparation for all eventualities. The Daily Mail further understands that unless the Macedonian situation improves all the powers will probably send squadrons to Turkish waters.

The Daily Chronicle hears that Admiral Domville, commanding the British Mediterranean fleet now off Portugal, has received urgent orders to detach some vessels to the neighborhood of Salonica immediately.

Turkey Promises Protection

Rome, Aug. 20.—The Italian ambassador at Constantinople has telegraphed to the foreign office saying the porte has declared it will soon be able to re-establish order in Macedonia, and that it has already secured effective protection for all the foreign consuls there.

Wants Police to Find Husband

St. Paul, Aug. 20.—Thomas A. M. Crabtree, aged 60, left St. Paul last March for Maine, to collect a legacy of $4000 which had been left him, saying he would return in July. His wife now asks the police to aid her in finding her husband, saying she has not heard from him since he went away.

Rioters' Cases Come First

Indianapolis, Aug. 20.—Governor Durbin has been informed by Judge Rasch of Evansville that the case of the men indicted for rioting during the disturbances that occurred in July have been set down for Sept. 1. These cases will take procedure over all other criminal prosecutions.

Paced a Mile In 1:59

New York, Aug. 20.—The world's pacing record was broken by Dan Patch at Brighton Beach, making the mile in 1:59. The quarter was made in 28 1-4, the half in 58 3-4 and the three-quarters in 1:29 1-4. Star Pointer held the record, which was 1:59 1-4.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Friday, Aug. 21.
Sun rises—4:56; sets—6:38.
Moon rises—3:26 a. m.
High water—9:45 a. m.; 10 p. m.

Conditions are very much unsettled from the Mississippi valley eastward, with low pressure which extends from the north limits of observation southward through to the entreme south portion of the gulf of Mexico. There will be showers in New England.

VETERANS ON PARADE

Make a Pathetic and Impressive Spectacle at San Francisco

San Francisco, Aug. 20.—The parade of the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic in this city will be long remembered by the thousands of people who packed the streets along the line of march to witness it. Not a few of them recognized that for them this meant the passing of the heroes of many a bloody struggle in defence of union for all time in a collective body, so far as this city is concerned. Although there was little variety of uniform in the parade, the color feature was amply furnished by the great abundance of flags and banners.

Ten thousand survivors of the Civil War passed in review, marching to the martial tunes that inspired them to endeavor 40 years ago. Above the national colors, borne by every marcher, proudly floated torn and tattered flags. These, with empty sleeves and limping gait, were eloquent reminders of the sorrow and glory of war. Unlike the parade of Tuesday, with the quick marching line of youth, this procession was the measured and steady tread of age. As the different divisions marched along, waves of sentiment passed over marchers and spectators. There were many still vigorous in line, but they waited for their weaker comrades and the column halted often on its two-mile course.

In the long line were men from every corner of the nation. Almost every delegation had its emblem, Ohio its buckeye, Connecticut a wooden nutmeg, Minnesota a loaf of bread, and so on. The men from Vermont, "the Green Mountain State," bore a line of seven green banners, each containing a letter, the whole spelling the name of the state.

Will Break Trolley Records

Chicago, Aug. 20.—One hundred miles an hour in a trolley car is what the management of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago Electric Railroad company promises its patrons. This electric line has in many instances developed high speed in ordinary runs, 60 and 70 miles an hour for short runs being not uncommon. The roadbed is rock-ballasted and the rails are of the 80-pound type, making the line as solid as a steam railway of the highest type.

Clue to Bonds Stolen by Allen

Halifax, Aug. 20.—Michael Nolan, proprietor of Hotel Nolan of Glace Bay, C. B., says that he has in his possession the bonds stolen by Willard S. Allen from the Preachers' Aid society of the Methodist Conference of New England. He refuses to show the bonds before they are placed in the hands of the proper authorities. Nolan says that he found the bonds in a valise which was left in his hotel several days ago and was not called for.

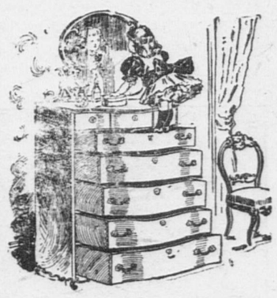

Kaiser Opposed to Jesuits

Berlin, Aug. 20.—The conservative Reichsbote gives reasons why the Jesuits will not be permitted to enter Germany. The Prussian evangelical council, it says, protested to Emperor William regarding the question. The latter complained that he had been misinformed as to the real sentiment of the country and he has asked the Prussian vote in the bundesrath to be given against the admission of the Jesuits.

AMERICA CUP IS SAFE

In Opinion of Witnesses of First International Race

CONTEST IS DECLARED OFF

But Reliance Easily Showed Her Heels to Challenger In Weather Admitted to Be Best Suited to Mug-Hunter—Mile Astern at the Finish

New York, Aug. 21.—One of the biggest crowds of sightseers and yachtsmen that ever sailed down Sandy Hook to witness an attempt of a foreign mug-hunter to wrest from America the yachting supremacy of the world returned to New York last night disappointed because the sea had refused a field of combat to the racers, but, nevertheless, jubilant in the conviction that Sir Thomas Lipton's latest challenger, like the two Shamrocks which had preceded her, was doomed to return to England empty handed.

Of course, the race yesterday will be not absolutely conclusive owing to the light and shifting character of the airs, but in a 15-mile beat to windward, a portion of which was sailed in a driving rain, Reliance showed her heels to Shamrock III in commanding style and in weather conditions which were supposed to be to the particular liking of the challenger.

Fife's latest creation has been heralded as a veritable wizard in light breezes in windward work, especially with a jumpy sea on, while the bigger and more powerful defender, Reliance, in her trials had showed best reaching and running in a whole sail wind.

Yet, with a breeze varying from 11 to 12 knots and against a long ground swell, the defender outfooted and outpointed her. The Shamrock did not turn the outer mark and there is therefore no way of knowing absolutely how badly she was beaten, but it was estimated that she was more than a mile astern, or about 16 minutes in the existing strength of the wind when Reliance rounded. As a result of the trial the experts believe, blow high or low, that Reliance will win this, the 13th series for the America's cup.

The day was a miserable one for those who went down to the ocean race course. A mist lay over the city and bay in the morning, and when the starting line was reached black, threatening clouds were gathering over the Jersey highlands. The breeze was not over six knots and the murky waves spilled no white froth from their crests.

The course was set 15 miles south southwest, straight down the Jersey coast and return. At the very start Captain Barr, the Yankee skipper, who has twice piloted cup defenders to victory, cleverly out-generaled Captain Wringe, the boasted best English captain afloat, sending Reliance over the line 33 seconds behind the challenger, but in the windward berth. In the first 20 minutes of sailing the defender showed her windward qualities, drawing up on even terms with the challenger, besides being about 300 yards to windward.

Then the storm broke, blotting out the racers and making the excursion fleet look like a line of phantom ships. For 30 minutes the rain came down in torrents, drenching the thousands of people on the steamers who were unable to find shelter in the crowded cabins. While the storm lasted the wind increased to 12 knots and those aboard the press boats, who caught occasional glimpses of the yachts as they smashed into the seas, saw that Reliance, with great geysers gushing from her bow, was footing faster and pointing higher, heeling less to the puffs than her more tender adversary. When the storm had passed the excursionists came out on deck to find the defender firmly established on the weather bow of Shamrock III. She was never afterward headed.

During the last two hours of the race, when the wind had backed around to the west and was blowing straight off the land about four miles an hour, Reliance steadily increased her lead, rounding the turn to the stentorian chorus of the excursion fleet a mile ahead of Shamrock. Heading back for home close hauled, she had just reached Shamrock, still outward bound, when the race was officially declared off.

The work of the patrol fleet was perfect. Moving at right angles, line ahead and line abreast, the revenue cutters kept the yachts in the hollow of a moving angle as free from interference as if they had been sailing in mid-ocean.

Under the rules the first race, 15 miles to leeward or windward and return, is now postponed until Saturday.

Intense Interest In Scotland

Glasgow, Aug. 21.—Not since the contest between the Thistle and the Volunteer has there been such excitement over the race for the America's cup as prevails here now. From the time of the start of the race the streets were filled with crowds that blocked vehicular traffic wherever a sight of a race bulletin was obtainable. At Dunbarton the citizens subscribed for a colored searchlight service by which the results of the contests can be notified to the surrounding country. The announcement that yesterday's race had been called off was received with bitter disappointment, but there is a general feeling of confidence that the Shamrock III will make a better showing in Saturday's race.

Lipton Not Disappointed

Sandy Hook, Aug. 21.—Sir Thomas Lipton was the first of the owners to return to the Hook, coming back on the Erin with his guests. He said: "I am not in the least disappointed with my boat or its efforts. The wind was so variable neither boat had a good chance and particularly mine, with the smaller sail area. Wait till we get a good breeze."

The two single-stickers did not arrive at the Hook until after 6 o'clock. The captains of both boats refused to talk for publication and all Mr. Iselin would say was, "We are perfectly satisfied. We always have been."

Think Shamrock Will Win

Belfast, Aug. 21.—While the showing of Shamrock III in her first race against Reliance is a great disappointment to the challenger's supporters here, none is willing to admit that she has not still a good chance of lifting the cup. The excitement in Belfast and elsewhere was intense during the progress of the race and the streets were filled with eager crowds. The universal sentiment is that Shamrock III is sure to reverse the positions when a fair and steady breeze is secured.

London Is Disappointed

London, Aug. 21.—The calling off of the race for the America's cup has caused disappointment in London. The papers published hourly editions throughout the day. The first reports regarding the weather at Sandy Hook inclined the public to believe that Shamrock had ideal conditions, and the news that Reliance had out-footed her in the drifting match was a complete disillusion.

Taylor's Denial of Complicity

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 21.—As evidence in the case of Caleb Powers, his counsel has filed the deposition of former Governor Taylor, now a fugitive in Indianapolis. The deposition contains a general denial by Taylor of the charges against him in the indictment returned of complicity in the murder of William Goebel, and also denial of any knowledge of the complicity of any one in the alleged conspiracy to assassinate Goebel or any other member of the general assembly of 1900.

Missing Bonds Were Left In Charge of Hotel Keeper

WERE LOCKED IN A VALISE

Not Being Called For at Appointed Time an Investigation Was Made and Contents Were Found to Be Property of Preachers' Aid Society

Halifax, Aug. 21.—There seems but little doubt in the minds of the Halifax police that the bonds found in the valise by Michael Nolan of Glace Bay are the ones stolen by Willard S. Allen, the absconding treasurer of the Preachers' Aid society of Boston. Chief Inspector Watts of Boston was in communication with Nolan all day yesterday and as a result the latter declines to give out any information other than that which he has already disclosed by saying he positively identified the bonds as those belonging to the Preachers' Aid society. He positively refused to make public a description of the men who left the valise at his place, or of the bonds.

Nolan said he had seen the published accounts of the defalcation, and that the bonds in his possession tally with the numbers as published of the missing securities. Three men called at the hotel and asked if they might leave a grip in his charge for a day or two. They impressed him with the fact that the contents were valuable and asked that the best of care be taken of the grip.

The valise was left at his hotel last week, but it was not opened until last Monday night, as Nolan expected the men to call back for it. When they did not return he became suspicious, broke the valise open, and discovered the bonds. The following day he wired the Halifax police of the find. The wire merely stated that he supposed the bonds had been stolen from some bank in the New England states. Numerous telegrams were sent by the Halifax police to Nolan asking him for description of the bonds, but he did not reply.

The men who left the valise were strangers in the place, and they made no acquaintances. It is supposed that they went to Glace Bay on one of the coal boats from Quebec or Montreal.

Last evening Nolan sent a telegram to Chief of Police O'Sullivan of this city, telling him that he had discovered to whom the bonds belonged and that he need not interest himself in looking for an owner for them. This telegram is taken to indicate that Nolan has satisfied Chief Watts that the bonds are the missing ones.

PLAYOUT OF HAND-TUBS

Won by Marblehead Company In Contest of Veteran Firemen

Salem, Mass., Aug. 21.—Fully 50,000 people witnessed the parade and playout of the New England States Veterans Firemen's league here, in which 4000 firemen, on the active and veteran lists, participated, representing over 50 companies. The Okommakemesit company of Marblehead captured first prize of $250 in the playout, with a record of 220 feet 8 1-4 inches. Nonantum of Newton won second prize of $150, with 218 feet 11 3-4 inches; Neptune of Manchester third, with 216 feet 2 1-8 inches, and fourth and last prize went to City of Lowell of Lowell, with a play of 215 feet 9 1-2 inches.

The city was thronged with spectators and the city was lavishly decorated with flags and bunting, while the bright uniforms of the fire laddies gave added color to the scene. Lieutenant Governor Guild, who is at present acting governor, rode in the parade with Mayor Peterson, and the mayors of a dozen other cities were present. The Common presented a lively aspect, with tents for the visitors, officials, Woman's Relief Corps, lunch room and scores of booths occupied by fakirs of every sort.

Curious Case of Somnambulism

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21.—Mortimer Snow and wife are occupying a third-story room in the Evans house. While Snow was asleep on the couch, leaving his wife asleep on the bed, she managed, while still asleep, to get half way out of the large window and when seen by a patrolman was hanging head downward with the window closed upon her body. After much difficulty the window was raised and she was rescued.

To Talk With High Officials

Springfield, Mass., Aug. 21.—In an effort to have the demand of the striking machinists of the Boston and Albany division of the New York Central railroad brought before the head officials of the company, the executive committee of the Machinists International union has gone to New York for the purpose.

Middleboro Flooded

Middleboro, Mass., Aug. 21.—A severe rainstorm visited this town, and within about 10 minutes an immense quantity of water filled the streets. The sewers were inadequate to carry off the water and it backed up in the cellars of some of the stores and business blocks, doing considerable damage.

Work Stopped on Sanitarium

Pascoag, R. I., Aug. 21.—Fifty carpenters employed on the state sanitarium for consumptives have struck work. They object to the present scale of wages and to a recent change in overseers, and refuse to return to work until their demands are complied with.

SUNDAY POLICE

Will Be on Duty at Quincy Woods.

Also on the Shore Reservation.

Picnickers at Former Place Will Be Regarded as Trespassers.

Because of the almost weekly disturbances at the seashore resorts on Sundays, Mayor Bryant has given orders for a police patrol on that day. The owner desires that all picnickers shall be regarded as trespassers and that they shall be arrested and prosecuted. There would have been no objections to orderly parties had not the disorderly element taken possession. Assaults and drunken brawls have giving Quincy a bad name, and it is well prompt action was taken to stamp it out.

Out of town parties have also been too numerous on the Quincy Shore reservation between Black's creek and Squantum, now controlled by the Metropolitan Park Commission. Mayor Bryant requested the commission to police the beach and has been successful as will be seen by the following letter:—

Boston, Aug. 19, 1903.

Hon. Charles M. Bryant, Mayor City of Quincy, Mass.

Sir:—I am directed by the Commission to acknowledge receipt of your letter of Aug. 17, in regard to policing Quincy Shore reservation on Saturdays and Sundays until Oct. 1, and to say that your request seems to them a most reasonable one.

It so happens, however, that just at this time, by reason of illness of several of the Commissions police force and other causes, there appear to be no officers they can assign for this duty.

They, therefore, suggest that one, or if you think necessary two, of the Quincy police be sworn in as special officers of the Metropolitan Park Police and assigned to this duty, and a bill from the city for their services will be cheerfully approved by this commission for payment by the State Treasurer.

Please let me know if this arrangement is satisfactory and send me the names of the officer or officers, and I will send warrants as special officers.

Very truly yours,
John Woodbury, Secretary.

Mayor Bryant was quick to accept this arrangement, and has sent the names of Malcolm J. Stewart and Thomas F. Maloney, who will go on duty this week.

Good Afternoon

Athol, one of the big towns in the western part of the state, has a tax rate of $23 this year; an increase of only $4.50 per $1000.

Another try tomorrow for a leg for the America's cup. Since the attempt of Thursday there is a more bouyant feeling that the cup is safe.

That representative of King Melenek who came to this country to find an expert to run the national mint has discovered that there are nearly 400 persons who are qualified by experience to make and shove the queer.

People who are clamoring for a revision of the present tariff should reflect that thirteen of the leading nations of the world protested against the present tariff when it was adopted in 1897, yet from 1898 to 1902, there has been an increase in our total imports from those countries of $108,000,000, or about 75 per cent.

Twenty-one of the hand engines entered at the muster at Salem made a record of over 200 feet, and all played over 170 feet. In the first class were the Hingham Vets, Conqueror of South Weymouth and Defender of East Weymouth in the order named. Old Marblehead with the Okommakamesit took first money but we notice that the Neptune from the same town was next to the last. It was a great day for the firemen, for Mayor Peterson, Congressman Gardner and others.

The latest move of Mayor Bryant for better order at the shore resorts of Quincy is in the right direction, and is something that was needed. It is unfortunate that it should have been delayed until the clash at Quincy Woods which resulted fatally to a Quincy man at the hands of Cambridge toughs. Sunday picnics should not be encouraged anywhere, and where beer is the principal item they are very objectionable. Not only Quincy Woods and vicinity are to have protection but also the Wollaston and Atlantic beaches along Quincy bay.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Complaint is made that the "Star Spangled Banner" is not treated with due respect when played at places of amusement and in explaining that it is not popularly recognized as the national anthem, "America" is decried, with the observation that "since the air is borrowed, we cannot look upon it as our own." The critics of "America" do not seem to know that the "Star Spangled Banner" is in the same case, since its tune is that of the eighteenth century English drinking song, "Anacreon in Heaven." Imaginative people have found in the music to which Francis Scott Key's verses were written the very genius of patriotism, battle, triumph and glory, but its splendid and stirring strains were not wrought Fort McHenry in view.—Springfield Republican.

Auctioneer Johnson will sell the household furniture of Doctor Bamford next Tuesday.

REDSKIN CAPSIZED IN HULL CUT

Party of Well Known Quincy Gentlemen Guests of Capt. Sturtevant.

Nine in All Cling to the Hull and are Rescued by Lighthouse Tender.

Four well known Quincy gentlemen accepted an invitation of Capt. Sturtevant of the Redskin on Thursday for a sail from Boston out into the bay. In the party were Messrs. J. L. Sturtevant, Thomas L. Sturtevant, Joseph C. Morse, J. Henry Emery, Timothy Read and Lucius W. Lawton, and there were three others aboard, the captain and a crew of two.

The Redskin is a handsome schooner, 65 feet over all, 38-8 water length, and 5-foot draught, and was built by Embree Bros. of Quincy in 1900.

The yacht left Boston about 12 M., and for over two hours a delightful sail was enjoyed. Capt. Sturtevant was making for Hull when the squall, at 2.20 came up, and it found them in the worst place in the bay, Hull gut. The Post reports what happened as follows, but has exaggerated the facts somewhat:

Hull Gut, so often in the past the scene of death and disaster, came near to adding another chapter to its tragic history Thursday afternoon, when the schooner Redskin, with nine men aboard, was struck by a squall and capsized in the very midst of the seething maelstrom.

For more than an hour the overturned schooner, with nine despairing men clinging to the gunwale, washed and drifted about among the eddies, until the government steamer Mayflower and the Hull life saving crew came to their rescue.

In the midst of the fearful storm that nearly tore a score or more of the smaller craft at anchor in the bay from their moorings, the crew and passengers on the Redskin, clinging in terror to the overturned boat, were swept wildly about, every instant expecting to be torn from their dangerous position by the waves in which they were almost continually engulfed.

At the same time a small-sized yacht, the name of which, as well as those of its two occupants, is as yet unknown, was capsized but a short distance from the big schooner and whirled on through the gut toward Peddock's Island.

Those on the Redskin could plainly hear the cries for help from the men on the smaller boat, but they were in no position to render aid. Fearing to lose their hold upon the schooner, they were compelled to see the two unfortunates drift away in the distance without being able to help them in any way.

Drenched by the waves which swept continually over their little craft, the two unfortunates finally ceased to call for aid. At last accounts the yacht, almost entirely under water, was seen drifting south of Peddock's and out to sea. Nothing was seen or heard of its two occupants, and it is feared that they perished.

The Redskin, a trim little pleasure schooner of some 30 tons, is one of the fastest and best known vessels of its kind in these waters. All along the coast, from Portland to Provincetown, its gleaming reds side and cutter-like shape are known to yachtsmen and sailors alike. So is its captain, W. W. Staples, who has been sailing her for several years past. The two other members of the crew are the captain's son, Melvin, and Calvin Stockbridge.

The schooner is owned by Messrs. J. L. and W. H. Sturtevant of Quincy, and yesterday, with a party of four well known business men of that town, including Mr. J. C. Morse and Mr. Emery, a leather dealer of the same place, they started at 12 o'clock from South Boston on a pleasure trip.

For two hours or more, according to Captain Staples, the schooner lay becalmed between Moon and Peddock's islands, and it was nearly 3 o'clock when the entrance to Hull Gut was reached.

Suddenly the sky darkened and the crew and passengers realized that a storm was imminent. In the calm that always heralds the approach of the squall the steersman headed the boat directly for the entrance to Hull Bay and prepared to furl the sails.

The topsail had been taken in and the foresail partly furled when the squall caught the craft fairly, just as Mr. J. L. Sturtevant, by the captain's directions, had started to pull on the main sheet.

Struck by the full violence of the gale, the schooner careened and fell squarely on its side, the big sails striking the water with a slap that was heard hundreds of yards away.

Luckily, as the boat toppled over all hands, with the exception of J. L. Sturtevant, who held on to the main sheet, sprang to the other side, and clutched desperately at the gunwale. By a superhuman effort Sturtevant was finally able to get a grasp on the deck and was then pulled up beside the others.

In full view of hundreds along the shore, as well as those on the Pemberton pier, who had witnessed the accident, the nine drenched and frightened occupants drifted in and out through the gut, while those at Hull were preparing to set about the work of rescue.

Word was at once sent to the Hull life-saving station, and the buoy-tender Mayflower communicated with. Still it was almost a whole hour before the rescuers reached the side of the capsized schooner.

By this time the Redskin, floating helplessly upon its side, had drifted almost two miles. The waves which ran exceedingly high for a while washed repeatedly over the side of the schooner, drenching the boat and its occupants, and several times the men were nearly torn by the grasp of the sea from their perilous position. Still, with the courage born of despair, they held grimly on until succor finally reached them.

In the meantime the small yacht mentioned above, with the two unfortunates clinging in the same relative position as those upon the Redskin, and which had been overturned at the same time as the latter, drifted by them, within a hundred yards and in the direction of Peddock's Island.

Finally the Mayflower, with the life-saving crew on board arrived. The men were at once transferred to the government boat and then a rope rigged to the latter's derrick mast was hitched to the mainmast of the capsized schooner. In this way the latter was righted. It was found that no apparent injury had been sustained.

The party was at once taken on shore, and after a change of clothing had been effected they returned at once by train to Quincy.

AN INTERVIEW.

This morning all the men are none the worse for their experience. Mr. Morse was interviewed by the Ledger, and said the Post story was exaggerated very much, and that young Joseph Sturtevant was the only one who was wet by the sea. That at no time did the party appear to be in great danger and that they did not drift two miles as reported. The schooner was capsized as represented in the illustration, but the Lighthouse tender probably reached them in fifteen minutes and took off Messrs. Emery, Lawton, Reed and Morse. That it then returned and secured the tender of the Redskin, and then the schooner was righted, and found to have been damaged but little.

Later, Capt. Sturtevant gave his guests a grand dinner at the Hull clubhouse, and in the early evening they were taken to Quincy in the launch of the club. For gentlemen of their age it was, however, quite an experience, and one probably they would not care to repeat. It was on the whole a fortunate escape.

Representative Fallon will please accept thanks for a copy of the Manual for the General Court.

Four "Regdel" coupons have already been published. Ten consecutive numbers and one from the Quincy Patriot are necessary to obtain this fascinating Quincy game of 64 cards. It is purely local and of historical value and worth $1.

Inadvertently the name of one of the most prominent ex-Trustees of the Public Library was omitted from the list published Thursday. The late Charles A. Foster was active in the establishment of the library, and was elected on the board the first year. He served continuously for seventeen years with Messrs. Keith, Adams, Barker and Anderson.

No More Defaults.

It will not be so easy in the future for drunks to get a continuance of their cases, to enable them to pay their fine, as it has been in the past. Heretofore it almost invariably happens that when a fellow was fined in court for drunkenness he asked for time to raise his fine which was granted. Of late however it has been necessary to default some of the men as they did not come to time. The court does not like this and hereafter if a man is fined for drunkenness and he is shy, the chances are he will have an opportunity to work it out at Dedham.

Furniture.

It will be noticed by an advertisement in another column that R. Berman invites the attention of our readers to their immense stock of new and second hand furniture, at 1625 Hancock street, which they are selling at very low prices. If you wish good bargains just call and examine their stock and prices.

☞Believers in the eternal fitness of things must have been rudely shocked by a report that a cure for lockjaw has been discovered at the university of Chicago. If there is one place in the universe where a sympathetic world would more willingly see an epidemic of that disease than another it is the place from which emanate alternately denunciations of Shakspeare as a cheap wit and phrases of cannibalism as a means of race regeneration.—New York Times.

What are Humors?

They are vitiated or morbid fluids coursing the veins and affecting the tissues. They are commonly due to defective digestion but are sometimes inherited.

How do they manifest themselves?

In many forms of cutaneous eruption, salt rheum or eczema, pimples and boils, and in weakness, languor, general debility.

How are they expelled? By

AT THE SEASIDE.

Cottagers Who Have Recently Arrived at Houghs Neck.

Rev. Mr. Cates has been joined by his wife and family at the Woodbine cottage.

Rev. A. A. Ellsworth preached very acceptably at the Houghs Neck chapel last Sunday.

The season at Houghs Neck is drawing to a close, next week the cottagers will begin to move homeward so that they may get settled in their winter homes before the schools reopen. In some ways the season has been a success, and in other ways it has not. There are undesirable people at the beach every year, but it seems as though there had been more this year than ever. It is no fault of the real estate agents who let the cottages. People who are apparently respectable rent cottages and then turn about and let them to crowds of young men who behave themselves during the day time but make things hum after the police officer has gone home for the night.

H. D. Fisher and family of Winchester are in the Fleur de lis cottage on Charles street.

Merton H. Willis and family of Brockton are tenting on Charles street.

J. F. King and family of Somerville occupy a cottage on Parkhurst street.

A. Blomberg and family of Dorchester are enjoying the sea breezes at the Willow cottage on River road.

H. M. Jones and family of Somerville occupy the Grand View cottage on Bay View avenue.

J. F. Heckman and family of Dorchester are in a cottage on River road.

C. M. Hickey and family of Brockton enjoy life in the Virginia cottage.

Will the flying houses fly or not, is the question now under discussion.

Fifteen minute cars are run on the street railway afternoon and evenings.

J. M. Fitzgerald and family of Dorchester have rented the Rena cottage on Parkhurst street.

H. D. Padelford and family of Somerville are in the Abby M. cottage on Rogers street.

Frank Caroll and family of Hyde Park are in the Clara Finch cottage on Charles street.

Daniel J. Leary and family of Boston are occupants of the Foxey cottage on Winthrop street.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Ford and James Savage of Quincy, Lawrence R Shaw of Weymouth were fined $3 each for drunkenness.

John Atchinson was arraigned for drunkenness at Cohasset. Case placed on probation.

Jeremiah O'Neil was arraigned for violation of the town by-laws at Randolph and was fined $3.

James Hart was arraigned for assault on Benjamin A. Baker at Quincy. The complainant acknowledged satisfaction and the case placed on file on payment of costs amounting to $1.50.

Eugene A. Pinkham was arraigned upon two complaints for violation of the liquor law at Cohasset, and Hattie M. Pinkham upon one complaint. Mr. Pinkham was fined $100 on one complaint. The second complaint and that against Mrs. Pinkham were placed on file.

The continued cases of Edwin F. Souther and Rosa Souther of Cohasset, for assault were heard. Both parties acknowledged satisfaction and the cases were dismissed.

☞More or less recklessness is charged to motormen, and no doubt in many cases justly charged. When that recklessness results, as it sometimes does, in catastrophe involving loss of life the voice of condemnation is loud. So it should be, but on the other hand no acute observer who rides much on the electric street cars can fail to be impressed by the readiness of many of these men in an emergency. There are numberless cases in which they save small accidents, and occasionally they prevent a great one. Few of these instances are recorded, because few are known except to a limited number of observers. Yet over against the choruses of blame that are directed against motormen, they ought to have at least on occasional recognition of their capability to meet and control a dangerous situation.—New Bedford Standard.

Cotton Corner Doing Mischief

Washington, Aug. 21.—Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department declares that infinite mischief is being done to the cotton manufacturing industry and to the cotton growing industry by the speculative movement in cotton. "The speculators have cornered the market," said the secretary, "and put up the price so high that manufacturers cannot use raw cotton. At existing prices there is no profit to them. The price of manufactured goods cannot be manipulated as can be the price of raw cotton."

The Kieff Strike Riot

London, Aug. 21.—A dispatch from Nikolaiev to the Daily Mail confirms previous report of a military onslaught on a crowd of strikers at Kieff, Aug. 11. The dispatch says the mob stoned the Cossacks, who thereupon fired three volleys and then madly charged. Between 20 and 30 strikers were killed on the spot, 40 others were dangerously wounded and nearly 300 received slight injuries.

LESS THAN HALF CENT A DOSE.

Special Price Offer on Popular Remedy at Chas. C. Hearn's.

In these days of increased cost for nearly all the necessaries of life, it is particularly pleasing to find a chance to get what is of greater value than all else, Health, for a trifling sum.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, through a special arrangement he has made with the Dr. Howard Co., is able to sell the regular 50 cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price, 25 cents. As each bottle contains 60 doses, this makes the cost less than half a cent a dose.

So confident is Mr. Chas. C. Hearn that the specific will do all that is claimed for it, that he sells it on his own personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Out of the hundreds of packages he has sold, only two customers have asked to have their money refunded.

He will continue to sell the romedy in this way, and wants the Ledger to tell its readers that Dr. Howard's specific is absolutely free unless it cures. Even then, the cost is less than half a cent a dose, about 25 cents for a month's treatment.

Won't you call on Mr. Chas. C. Hearn, and hear what he has to say about this reliable remedy? 18-21-25-28

SLOW COMMUNICATION

Delays Information Regarding Colombia's Attitude Toward Treaty

Washington, Aug. 21.—Minister Beaupre at Bogota has been asked by the state department to send more definite information concerning proceedings about the Isthmian canal treaty, but there is no way of telling how long the message will be delayed owing to the interrupted telegraphic communication between Beneventura and Bogota. The fact that two messages of the same date reached the department with an interval of four days between them shows how irregular this mode of communication has become. The trouble seems to be with the land lines and it is understood that heavy tropical growth has interfered with the wires.

The only dispatch received yesterday from Minister Beaupre was dated the 12th, and was very indefinite, although it conveys the impression that further efforts are being made to secure favorable action upon the treaty.

The Costa Rica minister called upon Acting Secretary Adee yesterday but it was stated that his visit was one of courtesy and had no reference to the Isthmian canal.

Charged With Swindling

New York, Aug. 21.—Alfred Owen, 28 years old, is locked up at police headquarters, charged with passing two worthless checks on Waldorf Astoria and Fifth Avenue hotels. The police believe they have the man who has been spending the last few weeks in the west chartering special train and posing as the son of Stephen B Elkins. When arrested Owen simply said that he was well acquainted with Senator Elkins and his son, and that he would get out of the trouble all right.

Washington, Aug. 21.—Alfred C Owen is well connected here, being the son of a former naval officer. He was in the naval service with rank of ensign until his dismissal from the navy in December, 1902. He was at one time a member of the Army and Navy and Metropolitan clubs.

Rampolla Supplies Information

Rome, Aug. 21.—Pius X having several times received Cardinal Rampolla in long audiences, the rumor obtained currency that the cardinal might be reappointed secretary of state to the Vatican. A denial, however, of this rumor, is obtained from a reliable source. The conferences were due partly to the desire on the part of the pope to become personally acquainted with all foreign questions and partly to the fact that Cardinal Rampolla, being the executor of Pope Leo's will must consult with the pontiff when ever controversial points arise.

Building Operations Suspended

Minneapolis, Aug. 21.—By the quiting of 200 union bricklayers because they were not supplied with union helpers, building operations, involving more than $1,000,000, are tied up The Building Laborers' union demanded higher wages and recognition The contractors conceded the wages asked, but refused to employ only union men.

Steamer Destroyed by Fire

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 21.—Steamer Massena was burned to the water's edge here. For 15 years the Massena has run between Ogdensburg and the Thousand Islands daily. The crew escaped in their night clothes and the cook and deckhands were badly burned while running through the flames from the forecastle. The loss is $12,000.

Employers' Terms Accepted

Detroit, Aug. 21.—After being on strike since June 1 last, the boiler makers of this city have accepted the terms of the employers' association and the majority of them resumed work today. The settlement affects all the large machine shops and ship building plants in the city.

Bark Lost In Hurricane

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 21.—The captain of the steamship Brattan reports the American bark John R. Stanhope was lost in the great storm which swept the island of Jamaica and that the crew was picked up by him and is safe at Puerto Cortes.

ACCEPTS ALL DEMANDS

Turkey Wants Russians to Depart From Her Waters

GREECE ENTERS COMPLAINT

Says Her Subjects In Macedonia Suffer More From Excesses Than Bulgarians or Turks—Skirmishing Appears to Be Vigorously Proceeding

Constantinople, Aug. 21.—Tewfik Pasha, the Turkish foreign minister, visited the Russian ambassador, notified him that the Turkish government accepted all the Russian demands, and begged that the Russian squadron be withdrawn from Turkish waters.

The news of the impending arrival of the Russian squadron is spreading, notwithstanding the continued suppression of all telegrams and announcements on the subject. The general opinion of the Europeans here is that the time has arrived for a vigorous intervention and the abandonment of all semi-measures, which are regarded as the cause of the present rising.

According to the Turkish official reports, the strongest positions of the insurgents are at Krushevo, Merihoro and Florina. Contrary to previous reports, it is now stated officially that Krushevo is still occupied by the insurgents.

The headquarters of the revolutionists are in the Peristeri mountains, in the vicinity of Monastir. Women and children are not molested by the insurgents, who have destroyed only fortified dwellings occupied by rich Turks. It is not denied that they kill all Bulgarians and Greeks found acting as Turkish spies, but the strictest orders have been issued not to interfere with women or children.

Greece Makes Serious Complaint

Athens, Aug. 21.—Premier Ralli has communicated to the representatives of the powers the gist of the reports made by Greek consuls in Macedonia in which it is stated that the Greek church schools and 322 houses belonging to Greeks at Ketcheri have been blown up by dynamite and burned and that a number of Greek subjects have been killed. M. Ralli appeals to the powers to terminate the excesses in Macedonia from which, he says, the Greeks are greater sufferers than the Bulgarians and Turks.

Progress of the Revolution

Salonica, Aug. 21.—Although a week ago the Macedonian revolutionary committee notified the foreign consuls at Monastir that they were no longer able to prevent reprisals in vengeance for the Turkish atrocities, Boris Sarafoff, the Bulgarian leader, has now addressed a circular to the Turkish notables on behalf of the committee announcing that the insurgents will not attack the peaceful Turkish population except in self-defence.

Fugitive families from Krushevo, who have arrived at Monastir, give terrible details of the situation which prevailed in the town of Krushevo after its capture by the Turks. The latter, they say, acted like fiends, running from house to house and street to street, slaughtering everybody they met. The town is now a heap of ruins.

A dispatch from Burgas to The Autonomye says the town of Vasiliko, thirty miles south of Burgas, and the villages of Urunkoi and Poturnakovo are in flames, and the sound of cannon can plainly be heard from the Bulgarian frontier.

Skirmishing is reported to be proceeding at Vodena and Ostroro. Small bands are operating in the Doiran district. A large band has crossed the frontier and is advancing on Drama, the commandant of which town has urgently requested reinforcements.

It is reported that the government has authorized the formation of a corps of Christian Albanian volunteers. Servian bands are said to be forming with a view to operations in Old Servia. Turkish families are leaving the Servian towns of Nish and Vranja and a number have arrived at Salonica.

Italy With Russia and Austria

Rome, Aug. 21.—In official circles it is declared that the fact that Italian war vessels are preparing to start for Turkish waters must not be interpreted as a counter demonstration to the movement of the Russian squadron towards the Bosphorus. Italy, it is affirmed, is in agreement with Russia and Austria with regard to the enforcement of reforms in the European provinces of Turkey.

Vali Evades Responsibility

Sofia, Aug. 21.—The Austrian and Russian consuls at Uskub have requested the vali to court-martial the officers and soldiers who fired on and killed several Bulgarian workmen who were repairing the railroad line near Uskub. The vali declined all responsibility in the matter and said he would refer the consuls' request to Hilmi Pasha, the inspector-general of Macedonia.

Cold Comfort For Bulgaria

Vienna, Aug. 21.—Count Goluchowski had a long conference with M. Sturdza, the Roumanian premier, on the Macedonian question. It is reported that Count Goluchowski declared if Bulgaria went to war the powers would give Turkey a free hand.

KITCHEN HELPS.

The bright steel ornaments of your range can be made to shine like new by rubbing with vinegar.

Enameled kitchenware that is burnt and discolored may be easily cleaned by scrubbing with salt, moistened in vinegar.

To prevent an oil stove smelling put three or four pieces of charcoal into the oil and there will not be the slightest smell.

If grease is spilled on the kitchen table sprinkle the stain at once with coarse salt. This prevents the grease from soaking into the wood.

To brighten the inside of a coffee or tea pot, fill with water, add a small piece of soda, and let it boil about forty-five minutes. Rinse thoroughly.

Keep a piece of pumice stone (not soap) by the kitchen sink to use in scraping dishes. It is effective even when a wire dishcloth fails, and may be used on ware that the wire would injure.

Common tacks are useful for cleaning carafes and bottles. Put a few of these—broken ones will do—in the bottle with a little soapy water and shake briskly. The sharp edges will scrape off all the stains.

A Battle With Africans

London, Aug. 21.—Dispatches from Zunguru, Northern Nigeria, dated Aug. 17, give details of the destruction of the town of Burmi by a British force of 30 whites and 500 native rank and file. The enemy's loss was 700 killed, including the former Sultan of Sokoto and a majority of the chiefs. The British loss was 11 men killed, including one officer, and 62 men wounded. The enemy made a desperate house to house resistance.

No Danger of Friction

London, Aug. 21.—As a result of communications exchanged between Ambassador Choate and the foreign office here it is expected that a treaty will soon be signed referring to arbitration the question of the ownership of the group of islands off the coast of Borneo, claimed by both Great Britain and the United States. There is no danger of friction on the subject of their ownership.

Steel Trust's Acquisition

New York, Aug. 21.—The deal for the purchase of iron ore lands on the Mesaba range, Minnesota, by the United States Steel Corporation, is verified by local officials of the corporation. In all about 70,000,000 tons of excellent quality ore, much of it high grade bessemer, has been measured up on the land acquired, and it is estimated that an even larger yield will be obtained.

A Stradivarius at Auction

Berlin, Aug. 21.—A dilapidated violin, found among the effects of a coachman at Strasburg who had married his former employer's rich widow, and who obtained possession of her money and fled to Russia with another woman, proved to be a genuine Stradivarius. It was sold at auction for the benefit of the coachman's creditors and was knocked down for $3500.

Sentence None Too Severe

Berlin, Aug. 21.—Sergeant Breidenbach, of the Eleventh infantry, has been sentenced to 3 1-2 years' imprisonment for mistreatment of soldiers. There were 1500 mild and 300 serious offences charged against Breidenbach. He so severely whipped a recruit recently as to cause the man to commit suicide.

From a Russian Standpoint

St. Petersburg, Aug. 21.—The situation in the far East is becoming more acute. Even in Manchuria the Chinese are assuming an insolent attitude towards the Russians, particularly towards the troops. While all Russians are the objects of insult, a spirit of opposition to the Chinese government is also manifested.

For Repose of Leo's Soul

Rome, Aug. 21.—A month having expired since the death of Pope Leo, several requiem masses were celebrated yesterday for the repose of his soul, in various churches, which were crowded by the faithful.

High water—10:30 a. m.; 11 p. m.

The weather has cleared over the eastern half of the country. The warm wave in the northwest will move slowly eastward. It will be fair in New England.

A German Steel Combine

Essen, Aug. 21.—The steelmakers of Germany have reached an agreement not to sell partly finished goods abroad below certain prices. The object is both to obtain better returns for the product and to preclude German finished goods coming into competition abroad with foreign work manufactured from German material exported at lower prices than sold at home.

Bay State Gas Property at Auction

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 21.—George W. Pepper, receiver of the Bay State Gas company, has sold the local property of that company, pursuant to an order of the United States court. The property was purchased by President Dobson of the Wilmington Gas and Electric company for $25,000. The terms of the sale were cash.

Gives $200,000 In Memory of Sons

Rome, Aug. 21.—Pietro Cartoni, a land owner, has given $200,000 to found a sanitarium for consumptive patients at Rome, in memory of his two sons, who succumbed to tuberculosis.

SHAMROCK III. AND RELIANCE RACING ON THE INTERNATIONAL COURSE OFF SANDY HOOK.

RELIANCE

Overhauls the Shamrock in Beat to Outer Mark.

The Challenger Had the Advantage at the Start.

FAITH IN SHAMROCK III

Lipton and His Men Do Not Appear Disheartened

HOPING FOR A STRONG WIND

Which They Claim Will Tell a Story In Favor of the Challenger—Both Contestants Have a Sail-Stretching Spin—Preparing For Race Today

New York, Aug. 22.—Sir Thomas Lipton, his captains and the crews of his fleet at Sandy Hook are by no means disheartened. Sir Thomas is as optimistic as ever and cheerfully explains that Thursday's race was not conclusive, while Captain Wringe of Shamrock III is as good-natured and hopeful as ever. All appear to believe that there will be a different story to tell if the next races are sailed in fair racing wind.

It is pointed out by an officer of the Erin that Shamrock had never been exceedingly fast in drifting. The only race in which Shamrock I ever beat her was sailed in little better than a calm and in many cases under similar conditions. Shamrock III had been unable to drop her pacemaker until the wind increased to five knots or better, after which she showed a remarkable increase in speed. The friends of Shamrock III are hoping for a wind that will enable the boats to sail the race an hour within the time limit.

Sir Thomas passed yesterday in entertaining the Earl and Countess of Shaftesbury, Colonel and Mrs. Sharman-Crawford and Adjutant-General and Mrs. Corbin. By the invitation of General Corbin the whole party visited the Sandy Hook proving grounds and witnessed a test of the big guns.

Yesterday the American yacht Reliance lay at her moorings in Sandy Hook riding the swells that tumbled the waters to a considerable extent The wind was blowing from the northwest and hardly a cloud could be seen. The American yacht raised her mainsail and clubtopsail to dry them after the wetting they got in Thursday's showers. Her head sails were up in stops and the Yankee crew were busy preparing for today's race.

The challenger lay at her green moorings 500 yards astern of Reliance. Her crew were likewise preparing for today's contest. Near her lay the steam yacht Erin and the rest of the fleet. Numerous steam yachts and sailing craft of various classes were anchored or sailing about the racers.

At 10.42 Reliance cast loose from her moorings, set her jib and staysail and stood out into the bay for a sail Shortly afterward Shamrock III hoisted her mainsail with the apparent intention of going out for a sail stretching. At 11 o'clock Shamrock had up her clubtopsail and jib run up in stops. Reliance, after several short hitches and maneuvers in Sandy Hook bay, returned to her moorings at 11:20. Jib and staysails were taken in and sent below. The challenger left her anchorage at 11:22, set jib and staysail and on the starboard tack headed out to the point. The challenger had been out less than half an hour when she set a balloon jib and headed for her moorings.

After the Shamrock and Reliance had had their little spin about the bay Captain Wringe and Captain Bevis of Shamrock I spent the day amusing themselves. The two captains were invited on board a yawl boat which was sailing about the bay and Captain Wringe was placed in command while Captain Bevis sought shelter from the sun under an umbrella and a big Panama hat.

On board the challenger there were few signs of activity. Her crew were taking a rest; but on board the Reliance her men were busy stretching out the head of the mainsail along the gaff and overhauling her spars and sails.

The wind at Sandy Hook this morning is from the southwest, 12 miles an hour. The weather is clear and the sky cloudless. Indications are that the wind will hold through today.

British Sporting Paper Comment

London, Aug. 22.—The Field, commenting on the respective sail areas of Reliance and Shamrock III, thinks it is strange that a yacht challenging for the America's cup in the hope of winning should go to the starting line with 11.5 per cent. less canvas than her opponent. Everybody knows, it says, that the time scale of the New York Yacht club, like the old scale of the Yacht Racing association, under the length and sail area rule, is distinctly in favor of the larger boat, and an allowance of 117 seconds is but poor compensation for 11.5 per cent. extra sail, if the race is likely to occur in a light wind.

Day of Accidents to Racers

Holyoke, Mass., Aug. 22.—John Bennett of Jacksonville, Fla., known to horsemen all over the country as Senator Bennett, broke his arm while coming to the race here on a trolley car. He was struck by a car coming in the opposite direction as he leaned his arm out. In the first heat of the 2:16 pace Ned Perry, driven by Eugene Sullivan, stopped short before the home stretch was entered and fell, breaking his leg. He was shot. In the last heat of the 2:20 trot Juno was forced against the fence on the last turn. The sulky was smashed but Driver Sayles was uninjured.

The New Grocery.

V. E. Miller's new store in Quincy centre is attracting much attention. His stock is fresh and new, and his store is full of customers. One of the busiest places in the city. Our readers should keep watch of his new advertisements and see the bargains he offers.

—The tax collector of Weymouth advertises for sale several lots where the total tax is less than $1, one as low as sixteen cents.

—The tax rate of Bridgewater this year is $20.70, an increase of $2.70 per housand over last year.

The Social Realm.

O blackbird, what a boy you are!
How you do go it!
Blowing your bugle to that one sweet star—
How you do blow it!
And does she hear you, blackbird boy, so far?
Or is it wasted breath?
"Good Lord! she is so bright
Tonight!"
The blackbird saith. —By T. E. Brown.

The speaker of the evening is Mr. D. W. Waldron, City Missionary, Boston, and his subject will be "Glimpses of Progress in the 19th Century".

A feature of the evening's exercises will be the singing furnished by two well known soloists of Boston; Mrs. E. C. Page, musical director of the Bunker Hill Baptist Church, Charlestown, and Mr. William F. Chicks of St. Andrews branch of Trinity church.

WOMAN'S WORLD

MRS. CARRIE JACOBS-BOND

A Chicago Woman Who Is Composer, Publisher and Author.

Mrs. Carrie Jacobs-Bond of Chicago has been writing music during the greater part of her life. When a child of four years, living in a small Wisconsin town, she began to attract attention by her improvisations. Before she was seven years old she had written several simple melodies. It was not until eight years ago, however, that Mrs. Bond took seriously to the writing of music.

Several years before that time she had married Dr. Bond. The next few years of her life were spent in the northern peninsula of Michigan. Her husband was a lover of music, and had more than an ordinary understanding of it.

Under his continual encouragement Mrs. Bond wrote many ballads and other pieces of a serious turn. Very few of these were published, and it was not until after her husband died and she came to Chicago that she turned all her attention to music and the making of it. Then, during the following five years, she gained for herself more than a national reputation.

She has never catered to the rowdy spirit in music, but has held to her original purpose to write music of a high order. How well she succeeded is shown by the universal popularity which her productions enjoy.

Mrs. Bond writes the lyrics for more than half her songs. The others she adapts from wherever she chooses, and she has made well known many pretty pieces of verse that would otherwise have been carried away with the other thousands of little things that have not become anchored to melodies that accentuate and interpret them. Mrs. Bond is one of the few women publishers of music. She is her own promoter, publishes her own music, and even draws the cover designs.

In addition to her work as a composer Mrs. Bond is a writer of children's stories and has published one book of verses. She now has in preparation a new book of nine songs and a new volume of stories.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Washing Embroidery.

In washing embroidered pieces make a soapsuds with good white soap before putting in the linen and rub the soiled pieces with a brush. Rinse in several waters, for it is the soap which affects the colors and makes the linen yellow. Only a single piece of work should be washed at a time, as embroidered articles should not be left long in water. Do not wring the article, but press the water out with the hands, stretch carefully and hang in a shady place to dry. Embroidery should always be ironed on the wrong side until thoroughly dry on a soft, thickly padded surface. A blanket folded eight times makes a good pad. A clean, soft cloth should be used to iron on and a similar one laid over the article. Iron with a moderately hot iron until nearly dry, then remove the cloth covering and continue ironing on the wrong side until perfectly dry. Always iron with the weave of the linen, so the article will retain its shape. Laundered in this way, the design will be beautifully brought out. —Pilgrim.

Girls, Be Womanly!

Girls, all of you, everywhere, this is a word to you: Be womanly. Be true to yourselves and be guided by the promptings of those who have been through it all and know by experience the best line of conduct to pursue. You may lose the companionship of some whom you think very gay and jolly, but their evanescent friendship will be replaced by sincere respect and commendation. It is great fun, perhaps, to be a bit slangy in your talk, to take surreptitious puffs of a cigarette or to deceive your chaperon as to your whereabouts. Possibly for a time such a line of conduct will appear amusing and clever, and you will undoubtingly think you are pleasing Tom, Dick and Harry by being hail fellows well met and willing to deceive those who have your best interests at stake. But when your back is turned no one will be so quick to censure you as they. Remember that and don't yield to the temptation to be flippant and untrue. Again, be womanly.

A Pretty Bath Basket.

To the woman who is denied the luxury of a private bath, where she may keep all her toilet articles at hand, a bath basket will be a convenience and comfort. Select a large sized baby toilet basket, into the inside of which sew little silk rubber pockets of various sizes to hold the toothbrush, nailbrush, bath brush, the wash cloth and sponge. The list may be extended indefinitely to include bags or pouches for the talcum and rice powder, while the manicure articles, such as the scissors, file, orange wood stick, etc., should be secured together in a roll of chintz or silk, like a "housewife." The bottom of the basket should be reserved for the cold cream, soaps of various kinds, almond meal, vaseline and similar articles. Such a basket will be found a pretty convenience, easy to carry from one room to another, and combining in one receptacle the numberless trifles which the fastidious woman requires for her grooming.

A Dusting Set.

A dusting set for housekeepers comprises cap, sleeves and an apron with pockets. The last named article is made long and wide, fully protecting the dress. From twelve to eighteen inches of it is turned up at the bottom and on the underside. By two rows of machine stitching this is divided into three pockets. These are most useful to receive the odds and ends always found out of place on a dusting tour, as well as the silk, chamois and linen dust cloths for quick use. These serviceable dust sets are made of crossbar linen toweling, colored crash, dainty linens or, indeed, any other washable material.

The First Corset.

The first corset—not counting ancient modifications of the Grecian zone or girdle—was introduced into France by Catherine de' Medici. It was a strange affair and fashioned after the style of a knight's cuirass. The framework was entirely of iron, and the velvet, which decorated the exterior only, served to hide a frightful and cumbersome article of torture. In the days that followed ladies of the court laced themselves frightfully and wore the dreadful prison night and day in their efforts to obtain what they considered a perfect figure.

The Perfumed Bath.

No artifice augments woman's witchery more than the subtle, faint fragrance which she contrives to impart to the fluttering folds of her gowns and belongings. Another means of obtaining the same charm is the perfume bath, whose fragrant aroma clings to the body for hours afterward. Not only does the delicate scent cling, but the perfumed bath gives to the skin a soft, velvetlike appearance. Such a bath is an admirable substitute for aromatic toilet salves and sweet scented soaps.

The Skirt Gauge.

A useful little aid to the dressmaker is the skirt gauge, an instrument for marking skirts at the length desired. It measures from the floor, thus giving the proper length evenly in spite of any irregularity in the figure fitted. We often find some inexplicable "dip" in a skirt after the most careful measuring, resulting from a little inequality in figure. A woman who stands unevenly or with knees bent is always harder to fit than one naturally erect.

Sewing on Buttons.

When sewing on buttons with holes through them, lay a pin over the button, so that the thread with which you are sewing will take in the pin. After passing the thread through the button as often as necessary pull out the pin and wind the thread around between the button and the cloth. This will form a neck for the button, making it at once easier to fasten and stronger.

Deep Breathing.

Deep breathing has a close bearing on the nerves. The author of a famous work on nervous tension and rest advises as a means of calming oneself out of a nervous flutter the taking of fifty long breaths, opening and closing the eyelids gradually with each breath. Such a simple method of "keeping cool" mentally is certainly worth trying, to say the least.

St. Petersburg Women.

A woman's club in St. Petersburg which has a membership of 1,000 was organized for the purpose of befriending women in the city who are lonely and in need of help. The president of the club is a woman physician, Dr. Schabanow, who is at the head of a children's hospital founded by the Prince of Oldenburg.

To Renovate Crape.

To renovate crape lay it on a table and cover it with a damp cloth. Then pass a hot iron over the cloth as closely as you can without actually touching it. This treatment will freshen up the crape beautifully, for the steam will cause it to wrinkle just as it does when new.

Neck Wrinkles.

To remove wrinkles from the neck make a pomade by mixing lanolin, two ounces; cold cream, two ounces, and vaseline, two ounces. Perfume with any agreeable scent. Apply to the neck every night and wash off in the morning.

White cotton crepon makes very serviceable and pretty bedspreads. It is light weight and washes beautifully and needs no ironing. The crinky effect is very pretty.

Light colored or white shades should not be used in bedrooms, as they are injurious to the eyes. Dark green is the best color.

Let thy child's first lesson be obedience and the second will be what thou wilt.—Franklin.

A room in which soiled clothes or shoes become moldy is too damp for health.

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

August Buying Shows an Increase Over All Previous Years

New York, Aug. 22.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business is well maintained, aside from the quieting influence of the vacation season, which somewhat restricts trade and retards collections. Sensational stories of the large number of buyers now at this center and the fabulous sums that they spend cannot be accepted as statistically accurate, but it is probable that an increase over all previous years is actually occurring, despite the demoralization in cotton goods caused by speculation in the raw material. Sanguine sentiments are expressed in a dispatch from Philadelphia, where the textile plants are again busy, and especial strength is reported in lumber and building materials. Merchandise is in good demand at Boston, business in some quarters is above the average for August and the footwear industry continues fully occupied. A fairly liberal tonnage of iron has been placed during the past week, providing abundant demand for all the pig that is being made.

Somewhat easier prices for the great food staples testify to brighter crop prospects. Visible supplies are low and liberal inquiries for foreign account encourage hopes that profitable returns may be secured by growers, but efforts to force prices beyond the limits of reason will curtail demand, especially for export.

Vessels Taxed For Sanitary Purposes

Washington, Aug. 22.—The department of state has received a dispatch from the consul at Colon stating that for the purpose of meeting the expense incident to the maintenance of necessary quarantine and sanitary measures, the government of Panama has issued a decree temporarily establishing a tax of 100 pesos, Colombian silver, on every vessel of more than 1000 tons burden arriving at the ports of Panama or Colon, this money to be kept as a separate fund to be expended for sanitary purposes.

Parks Guilty of Extortion

New York, Aug. 22.—Samuel J. Parks, the labor leader, charged with extortion in demanding and receiving money from various employers under threat that he would call strikes, was found guilty last night. Recorder Goff remanded him until Monday. The penalty for the offence for which Parks was convicted is imprisonment for not more than five years. When Parks had been remanded for sentence he was taken to the Tombs and locked up.

Root Sails For England

New York, Aug. 22.—Secretary of War Root sailed for England on the Celtic to act as a United States representative in the Alaskan boundary dispute. Before sailing the secretary declared that he would, according to his present plans, leave the cabinet about the middle of the winter. He would not enter into any discussion of his future plans.

Leases Ready For Ratification

Washington, Aug. 22.—Minister Quesada of Cuba announces to the state department that the Cuban government is ready to conclude the formalities connected with the leasing of the coaling stations in Cuba to the United States. The state department probably will take action in a few days to carry the leases into effect.

The New Lead Combine

New York, Aug. 22.—Details concerning the organization of the United Lead company are announced. The company will have a capital stock of $27,000,000, $12,000,000 in bonds and the balance common stock. Payment for the constituent companies will be made in large part in the bonds of the parent company.

Marlborough's Chauffeur Broke Law

London, Aug. 22.—The chauffeur of the Duke of Marlborough was fined at Reddington yesterday for furiously driving the duke's motor car to Blenheim. The Duchess of Marlborough and Ambassador Choate were occupants of the car at the time of the violation of the speed regulations.

A Hitch on Reciprocity

Paris, Aug. 22.—A dispatch from Madrid says that one of the chief difficulties encountered in negotiating the Franco-Spanish reciprocity treaty is the expectation that Germany, the United States and Great Britain will claim the same concessions mutually granted by France and Spain.

Uneasy Head Beneath Crown

London, Aug. 22.—From a Russian official source at Belgrade it is asserted that King Peter twice within 10 days has threatened to abdicate, not only personally but on behalf of the Karageorgevits dynasty, if the present distracting situation in the Servian capital continues.

Brig May Have Been Lost

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 22.—Some anxiety exists regarding the safety of the American brig Gabrielle of Boston, which left Ponce Aug. 7 and was due to arrive at Fajardo Aug. 10. She was only in ballact and it is feared that she may have been wrecked in the recent gales.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Sunday, Aug. 23.
Sun rises—4:58; sets—6:35.
Moon sets—6:59 p. m.
High water—11:30 a. m.; 11:45 p. m.

Temperatures have risen generally over the east under the influence of a marked low pressure area that is moving eastward across the north portion of the country. The weather will be fair and warmer in New England.

BOSTON'S WATER PARK

Proposed Scheme to Improve the Back Bay District.

PLEASURE GROUNDS FOR PUBLIC.

The Charles River Basin to Be Developed, With Esplanades on the Boston and Cambridge Sides—Parkways and Ample Opportunities For River Pleasures Some of the Features.

The governor of Massachusetts and council expect to receive in a few days the preliminary report of the new Charles river basin commission for the improvement of the Back Bay district of Boston which is not yet filled in and which is susceptible to development as a great water park. Boston hopes to have here the most unique and handsome pleasure grounds for the public, combined with a wide area of water, which can be found in any city in the United States, says the special correspondent of the New York Post.

A permanent level of high water is the first desideratum in this dream of a beautiful land and water view. To secure this the legislature this year passed the act for the building of the Charles river dam at or near the site of the present Craigie bridge. This is the foundation of the entire enterprise. A million and a half dollars is to be spent, according to the estimates, in building this dam. Over its ample width of 100 feet at the top will be not only a highway to supplant the removed bridge, but such proportion of parks or parkway as the commission sees fit. A lock of sufficient size will preserve all rights of commerce to the use of the wharfs above the dam. The United States government, which owns a wharf at the Watertown arsenal, six miles or more up the river, has a veto upon the entire enterprise. That wharf can be reached only by drawbridges, and the Charles above Craigie bridge is a part of navigable waters. But it is expected that the consent of the government will be given without opposition.

One provision of the law is that the water above the new dam must be at least eight feet above the water below, figured by the Boston base. Therefore tides will never enter into the region again. Only fresh water will flow in. The current will be very slow, for the volume of the Charles is not large when all tide water is removed, and the water above the dam will be permanently as safe as a mill pond and nearly as free from currents. A high level can be maintained, and banks can be grassed to the water's edge without any ebbing tide twice a day to expose flats of noisome mud, as at present.

One feature of the enterprise is the construction of an esplanade 100 feet wide all along the Boston side south from the West Boston bridge to the right angle which brings the water of the river near the Public garden, and thence westward all along the rear of the aristocratic section which backs upon the river and fronts on Beacon street. Half way up this side lived Oliver Wendell Holmes. The house is still in possession of the family. The University club is in the same locality, and plenty of fine residences may be added to the list of buildings which will profit immensely by the improvement. Their most beautiful side would be where are now their back entrances, and a proper recognition of the situation would require a reconstruction of the water side of the houses. Over on the Cambridge side the scene will be duplicated. Already, farther up the river, the yellow signboards bearing the legend "Charles River Reservation," erected by the metropolitan park commission, show how the thrifty and nature loving people of the district have pre-empted the borders of the river before real estate has become too valuable, and private interests have been warned that they are trespassers and must stand aside when the all powerful and imperative public wishes to enjoy a clear view of the water or to boat or canoe upon its surface.

The banks of the Charles up through Watertown, Waltham, Newton and Needham, to Dedham, have been taken for the public by the metropolitan park commission. The policy of the state in aiding the enterprise is similar to that in establishing mountain park reservations.

When the system is complete there will be boating up the Charles for over fifteen miles to Dedham. There are falls at Watertown, again at Waltham, and again at Newton Lower Falls and Newton Upper Falls, but portages for canoes and locks for river steamboats will make it possible to traverse this distance and enjoy one of the most charming river trips in the country.

Nearer Boston there is a further chapter to the story. When the new dam is finished the water in the Fenway, which is in the limits of the city and surrounded by the made land, will be on the same level as the water in the Charles river basin. Boats and canoes will have free entrance into this large and adorned part of Boston's aristocratic section, improved by all that landscape engineers with liberal appropriations can accomplish. If further improvements now contemplated are realized, quite an excursion can be made by water up the river in this direction also, always in the midst of scenes where nature has been beautified by art.

Diminishing Heights of Floods.

It is suggested that the height of the Mississippi's floods could be diminished, with great incidental profit to agriculture, by building reservoirs in its western branches.

MILL CURTAILMENT

At Fall River Amounts So Far to Ten Percent of Production

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 22.—The cotton mills situation in this city will show considerable improvement next week over the present conditions, resumption of manufacturing being planned in several mills. Compared with the present week there will be 2300 more operatives working; $17,000 more will be paid out in wages and 26,000 more pieces of cloth will be manufactured. There will be 535,000 spindles in operation, against 300,000 this week. This improvement, it is thought, will be confined to next week, however, as notices are already issued by several mills to the effect that these mills will be shut down during Labor day week.

A curtailment of production will be limited next week to five corporations, operating eight mills, as against 14 mills closed this week.

In addition to the complete shutdown of these several mills other mills operating 450,000 spindles will have more or less idle machinery. The Cornell and Strafford mills are installing new boiler plants. The Cornell will not be able to resume for three or four weeks and the Strafford mills not for more than two weeks at least. The Davol will resume Monday after five weeks' idleness, during which new machinery has been put in place.

The total curtailment up to date amounts to about 10 per cent. of the normal production.

Sympathetic Strike Possible

New York, Aug. 22.—Representatives of the most important trades engaged in the shipyards about New York city conferred with a committee of the Metal Trades' association, endeavoring to obtain a settlement of the strike of the marine machinists. No agreement was reached, the employers, it is stated, refusing absolutely to grant the demands of the machinists for a minimum daily wage of $3. The question of a general sympathetic strike to aid the machinists will now be considered.

Salisbury Fighting For Life

London, Aug. 22.—Since the bulletin issued Thursday night announcing that the condition of Lord Salisbury was critical, the members of his family have been gathered in the vicinity of the sick room awaiting the final call. It is realized that death is inevitable, though the patient is making a wonderful struggle. He is fighting for every breath, helped by a continual supply of oxygen. He does not suffer much pain and has only brief periods of consciousness.

Macedonians Want Funds

Sofia, Aug. 22.—"Thirty notables from different districts of Macedonia now settled in Bulgaria have issued an appeal to all Macedonians abroad to assist with funds "the revolutionists who have been forced into a life or death struggle after vainly waiting for Europe to interfere." They are also sending a deputation with the same object in view to visit the European countries, beginning with Russia.

Roosevelt and Odell In Accord

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 22.—Governor Odell of New York had a three hours' conference with President Roosevelt at Sagamore Hill. They reached a perfect understanding on all points which they discussed and are in entire accord regarding all matters of either personal or party concern.

Domestic Discord Dispelled

Sussex, N. B., Aug. 22.—The troubles of Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Atwood of Malden, Mass., over the possession of their child, which culminated in the father kidnapping the little one at Waterford, are settled. Atwood has returned to Malden and his wife and child will shortly join him there.

To Relieve Philippine Troops

Washington, Aug. 22.—Instructions have been given for the beginning of the movement of troops to and from the Philippines, which will continue during the autumn and winter. The Fourteenth cavalry and the Second battalion of the Seventh infantry will sail on the Logan Sept. 5.

Rewards For Conclavists

Rome, Aug. 22.—The pope has decided to issue a brief according compensations to the priests who acted as conclavists. To some will be given ecclesiastical dignities, to others spiritual favors and to the rest of them pensions, the amount of which depends upon the pope.

NEWS IN BRIEF

William Kelley, aged 25, a brakeman, was instantly killed at Fall River. He was standing on the front end of a flat car when a sudden slackening of speed threw him across the rails and the wheels passed over his body.

Dr. J. H. Giles of New York, who is spending the summer at Goshen, Mass., received severe injuries in a carriage accident. His left arm and two ribs were broken and his hip was severely wrenched.

The body of Hugh H. Riley, 29 years old, who had been missing from his home, was found floating in the river at Taunton, Mass.

Martha J. Smith, 21 years old, was killed by a train at a private crossing near Gilbertville, Mass. Her head was severed and thrown 40 feet.

Despondent because he had been ill and unable to work, Jacob Horton ended his life at Wakefield, Mass., by taking laudanum. He was 63 years old.

G. E. Finn, 13 years old, was knocked down by an auto car at Chelsea, Mass., and so badly crushed that physicians say he cannot live. The driver of the car escaped.

THEY CAPTURED A TOWN

Insurgents Drove Turkish Officials to the Frontier

THEN BURNED VILLAGES

Outbreak In New Quarter May Be a Ruse to Draw Turkish Troops From Other Districts—Places Bulgaria In Extremely Delicate Position

Sofia, Aug. 22.—All the dispatches received here indicate that the revolution in Macedonia is spreading. The situation is causing intense anxiety in official circles. The most alarming news relates to an outbreak covering a considerable area in the eastern part of the Adrianople vilayet, where the insurgents have captured the town of Vasiliko. They took the chief Turkish officials prisoners and brought them to the Bulgarian frontier, where they liberated them. The Turkish officials, fearing to return to Vasiliko, sought refuge of the Bulgarian authorities, who sent them to a hotel in Burgas, where they are at liberty to remain or depart.

The insurgents burned the villages behind Vasiliko and attacked a Turkish military post at the monastery of Elijah, south of Tirnovo. The eastern part of the Adrianople vilayet is a mountainous region and the villages are few and scattered. The strength of the insurgents is unknown.

It is thought that the outbreak is not an organized movement, but is intended as a diversion to draw the Turkish troops from the other districts.

The insurgents completely burned Vasiliko and also 12 villages in the neighborhood. The Bulgarian officials arrested the insurgents who brought the Turkish officials at Vasiliko to the Bulgarian frontier.

Severe fighting is reported to be proceeding near Gerghele, with heavy losses on both sides.

The Sofia Dnevjnjk declares that all the Turkish vilayets in Macedonia will be in full revolt Aug. 28, and that the revolution is spreading from Salonica into the districts towards Seres.

A general panic prevails in the vilayet of Uskub, where the inhabitants are hiding their property. The Turkish and Christian inhabitants at Kumanovo have agreed mutually to support each other in the event of an attack either by insurgent bands or Turkish soldiers. At Kratovo half of the Turkish garrison has deserted, the men saying that they had enough to do at home. The Turkish authorities have mobilized their whole forces in Macedonia, numbering 18,000 men. A large body of Asiatic troops is ready to move. Twenty-four regiments are only awaiting their marching orders.

The Macedonian revolutionary organizations are preparing heavy assessments on the rich Macedonians resident in Bulgaria. They have drawn up a complete list of names, with the amounts to be demanded against each.

The peculiar danger of the latest outbreak lies in its proximity to the Bulgarian frontier, thus creating a situation long foreseen and dreaded by the Soffia government. The Turks are now certain to send a considerable force to this territory to suppress the outbreak, which will necessitate the strengthening of the Bulgarian troops along the frontier. With the two armies close to each other under the present strained relations the situation becomes extremely delicate. The Bulgarian government is taking every possible step to prevent a calamity, but the officials express the greatest concern.

In addition to the danger of a collision between the military forces there is the no smaller one of popular excitement getting beyond control and forcing the government to adopt a belligerent attitude. Meanwhile the country remains quiet.

Russia's move in sending warships to Turkish waters has caused surprise in diplomatic circles and disapproval and regret in government circles. The feeling expressed here is that it can only do harm in inclining the insurgents, who are ignorant of the complications of European politics, to the belief that Russia is supporting their cause against the Turks. It is also conjectured that Russia having apparently acted without first consulting Austria, some rift has occurred in the concert of the powers. Whatever may be the true explanation, the feeling here is that Russia's move can only have the effect of giving a great impetus to the revolutionary movement.

Sensational Stories From Vienna

Vienna, Aug. 22.—Among the sensational reports circulating here it is stated that all the guard houses along the Monastir-Salonica railroad line have been destroyed; that 20,000 Turks under Marshal Omerrushti Pasha have surrounded and annihilated 1200 insurgents in the Monastir district, and that at Constantinople a Turkish soldier insulted and attacked an official of the Russian postoffice, who was severely wounded and had to be taken to the Italian hospital.

Turkish Outrages Reported

London, Aug. 22.—According to a Belgrade dispatch to The Daily Mail, the Turkish troops, under the pretext of pursuing revolutionary bands, have destroyed the villages of Armenska, Strebeni, Letschani, Peckopanje, Nolkazi, Zelignich, Patele and Banitza, massacreing the women and children.

HEAD SEVERED WITH AX

Young Girl Says She Witnessed Horrible Murder In Woods

Melrose, Mass., Aug. 22.—A 10-year-old Italian girl rushed into police headquarters last night, greatly agitated, and, gesticulating wildly the while, addressed the officers in Italian. None being able to understand her, she was hurried to an Italian, who acted as interpreter. The girl said that she lived on Swains Pond avenue, and that late in the afternoon, while returning through the woods near her home, from a place where she had been picking blueberries, she witnessed a cold blooded murder. She said she had seen two men fighting; that one of them picked up an ax from the ground, felled the other with a blow, and then deliberately chopped off the fallen man's head.

Chief McLaughlin immediately dispatched a detail of police to the scene of the tragedy as described by the girl. A thorough search of the vicinity last night failed to reveal evidence of a crime, but the chief is not satisfied and several officers will again visit the spot.

The girl is bright and apparently truthful, but the police are inclined to the opinion that she witnessed a fist fight and that in her fright her imagination played pranks with her.

Magazines Improperly Constructed

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 22.—Captain B. W. Dunn, a government powder expert, investigated the two magazines of the United States Cartridge company in this city yesterday and recommended that they be instantly removed. Captain Dunn said that had the Riverside Park magazines been properly constructed they would have exploded without casualties. He suggested that if they had had an embankment sloping from the top and made of earth, the full force of the explosion would have been exerted vertically instead of laterally.

Many Thousands Idle at Lawrence

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 22.—The Pacific, the Pemberton and the Everett mills, three of the largest corporations in this city, shut down today for a period of two weeks, thus throwing out of work about 10,000 operatives. It is possible that nearly all the other mills will fall into line and close. To the 10,000 people who became idle today can be added the 6300 hands idle when the Washington mill closed on Aug. 15 for two weeks. This will make a total of 16,500 idle, almost one-fourth of the city's population.

Charged With $6000 Swindles

Boston, Aug. 22.—After an investigation extending over several months police inspectors last night arrested W. P. Chapin on a charge of obtaining goods valued in the aggregate at more than $6000 by false pretences. According to the police Chapin would purchase goods to the value from $5 to $500 and have them delivered to addresses in this city, Dorchester or Worcester. When the collector called for the amount of the bill, neither Chapin nor the goods would be found. Chapin is about 35 years old.

Massachusetts Starts For Brooklyn

Bar Harbor, Me., Aug. 22.—Battleship Massachusetts, damaged on the pinnacles of Egg Rock, while leaving the harbor with the fleet a week ago for Long Island Sound, has left under her own steam for the Brooklyn navy yard for repairs. She was preceded by the Indiana and followed by the government tug Nina and the collier Lebanon. The Massachusetts set lightly on the water, showing a foot of her copper paint under the waterline forward.

Killed In Baseball Game

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 22.—Dr. Allen M. Newman, a Providence dentist, and formerly an amateur baseball player, died last night as a result of being struck by a foul tip during a baseball game here. While at bat he reached for a straight ball but did not strike it fair, and the sphere glanced from the bat, striking him squarely in the right temple.

Solitary Worker In Rubber Shop

New Haven, Aug. 22.—Four hundred girls employed at the rubber factory of the L. Candee company have struck, leaving only one girl at work in the entire department. A proposed increase in the amount of work required of the girls without a corresponding increase in pay is given as the cause of the strike.

Accidentally Killed Himself

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 22.—George A. Nelson, who had charge of the subpower station at Hudson, was out practising with his rifle and had returned to the power house. In putting away the gun it became accidently discharged and the bullet entered his brain, killing him instantly.

Brilliant Close of Old Home Week

Concord, N. H., Aug. 22.—The closing day of New Hampshire's fifth annual Old Home Week was favored with as delightful weather as that which greeted its opening. Its success was greater than any of its predecessors, the number of observances being over 100.

A Girl Champion,

Plucky Miss Margaret MacDonald and Her Swimming Exploits.

Girl athletes are numerous in these twentieth century days, when we find fair femininity on the golf links, the tennis courts, in basket ball games, and even in running and jumping contests, as we learn from the newspaper accounts of athletic doings at such well known women's colleges as Vassar, Wellesley, Smith and Bryn Mawr.

Even in aquatics, a class of sport requiring the masculine attributes of nerve, muscle, determination and endurance, the skirted enthusiasts have developed more than ordinary ability. Yachting, rowing and swimming number among their feminine followers many able and accomplished performers, and it is probable that no one of them is entitled to higher rank than Miss Margaret MacDonald of New York city.

Recently Miss MacDonald swam from Washington Point, N. Y., to her home, bordering the Hudson at One Hundred and Eighth street, New York city, a distance of seven miles, in record time. A year ago she participated in a race off Shelter Island, N. Y., in Long Island sound, in which two other young women and four men started. The race was one of five miles. The water was very rough and Miss MacDonald was the only competitor to cross the finishing line.

One of Miss MacDonald's most notable exploits was her swimming across the Hudson recently, starting from One Hundred and Eighth street. The current was unusually strong at the time, running in more swiftly than she had estimated, and she was swept swiftly up stream.

Friends following in a boat endeavored to lift her from the water and take her ashore, but the plucky young woman resisted these efforts, saying, "I'm going across if I'm carried half way to Albany," and cross the river she did, finally touching bottom at a point on the New Jersey shore more than three miles up the river from her place of starting.

Miss MacDonald also has a record as a life saver. Early in the summer, while swimming outside the life lines at Manhattan Beach, N. Y., she heard cries of "Help, help!" Noticing a man struggling desperately several hundred feet out at sea, she swam quickly to him and told him she would take him ashore if he promised not to take hold of her. On the exhausted swimmer's promise not to do anything that would endanger both their lives, Miss MacDonald seized the collar of his bathing suit, and, turning him over on his back, towed him toward the shore. The life guards in the meantime rushed to the aid of the stout hearted girl rescuer. She surrendered to them the man she had rescued (he had become unconscious) and as the guards carried him up on the sand Miss MacDonald calmly resumed her swim, none the worse for her adventure.

While Miss MacDonald is a speed swimmer of wonderful ability, she prefers long distance races and now devotes herself entirely to that branch of the sport. Her mother, Mrs. Margaret MacDonald, conducts a bathing and boating establishment at West One Hundred and Eighth street and the Hudson river, and consequently it may readily be realized that Miss Margaret has ample opportunity to keep in practice. Her younger brothers, James and Frank, are also swimmers of unusual accomplishment.

A WEAK STOMACH.

It May Be Strengthened by Wearing a Wide Flannel Bandage.

All who suffer from poor digestion should wear a ten inch width of flannel bandage next the skin, pinned fairly tight round the body over the stomach. No liver or digestive pill or pepsin preparation helps the stomach a twentieth part as much as his flannel prescription. A poor circulation in the stomach, causing that chilly, "miserable" feeling, is at the root of half the indigestion that mortals are heir to. That is why hot water drinking gives relief. It helps the circulation. A flannel bandage worn day and night all the year round cures the faulty blood circulation of the stomach; consequently it cures dyspepsia. Five hours' interval between meals, avoiding fried foods, made dishes and mixtures and observing three or four "Lenten meals" in every week are golden rules for good digestion. A good dinner at night is necessary for those whose pleasure or work keeps them up very late, but for ordinary folk who dine at 7 and go to bed about 10:30 only a light, wholesome repast should be taken at the end of the day, when the muscles and nerves are more or less exhausted. A "tired stomach is a weak stomach" is a golden rule to remember, yet how often one hears people say:

"I've been rushing about all day and am tired to death. I must have a big meal to make up for it." You may put the big meal into the stomach, but you cannot make the stomach digest it.—Exchange.

Killed Him In Cold Blood.

It was after dinner in the little cafe beloved by literary Bohemia and the diners at the end table were swapping stories of their most startling experiences. Each had told a thriller, and all eyes turned to the long haired poet who wrote only martial lays.

"I had a terrible experience once," he said. "The memory of it haunts me now. I inflicted the most awful fate possible to imagine upon a fellow creature. It was in Germany. I didn't know the language very well, and I suppose I must have made some blunder in addressing a fiery looking chap at a hotel there. What it was I don't know, but at any rate he declared he had been insulted and demanded a duel on the spot.

"'One of us,' he cried in tones of fearful wrath, 'shall never leave this room alive!'

"I knew him to be an expert swordsman. But was I afraid? No! 'So let it be,' I said. And then I rushed out of the room, locked the door behind me and left him there to die!"—New York Press.

A Boarding House Superstition.

"Speaking of bad luck," said a landlady the other day, "did you ever hear that it was bad luck to go back to a house you had once lived in? Well, it is. I heard some one say that when I was a little girl, and some way it has always remained in my mind. If any person who has lived in my house goes away and talks of coming back I always try to dissuade him. One young fellow scoffed at the idea, yet the day after he came back to live with me he lost his position and did not get another until he moved away from my house. He would have stuck it out only I told him I would have to have my room. So he went away, and at once secured another and better position than the one he had when he first came to me."

The Best Bargain on Record.

Probably never in the history of the world was a better bargain made than the purchase of the island of Grenada, in the British West Indies. It was bought by the French from the Caribs by a solemn treaty in the middle of the seventeenth century, and the price paid was two bottles of rum. Esau's mess of pottage was a good stroke of business by comparison. The Caribs soon regretted having sold their birthright and vainly tried to get the island back by force. It is now one of England's most prosperous colonies in the West Indies, with a population of over 50,000 and a big trade.

Why He Quit.

Hal—What, you've stopped calling on the girl with the plaid waist!

Tom—Yes; it's all over there.

Hal—Why? Father object?

Tom—Bless you, no! And I had nerve enough to dodge all her hints about popping the question also, but the last time I called she had the sign "Do It Now" stuck on the center table. That floored me, and I've quit.—New York Times.

The Real Thing.

"This," said the young Benedict, who was just realizing that he had caught a Tartar, "is what I call real married life."

"I'm glad you're satisfied with something," she snapped.

"Oh, I'm not. I merely meant to inform you that it is not ideal."—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Why She Liked Him.

"Why do you like Harry?" asked one fair maid of another. "He kisses you most awkwardly, I've noticed."

"That's just why I like him," was the quick retort. "If he went about it in a graceful manner I would know he had been practicing before he met me."

A General Thought.

"I tell you, I'll be master of my house when I'm a man!" said little Bennie.

"That's what your father thought when he was your age, Bennie," replied the boy's mother.

Self reliance is good capital in any business, and the young man who has this to start with, together with unlimited energy, is bound to succeed.—Maxwell's Talisman.

Good Afternoon.

Wakefield's tax rate is $19.60, an increase of 40 cents. The total valuation is $8,064,920.

Fifty two years ago today (Aug 22) the Americans won the famous international cup at Cowes, England. Suppose the Shamrock should get the first leg today to get it back.

The payment of taxes come hard fo many, and it is surprising that there is not greater remonstrance because some have to pay what others escape. The last City Book shows that there were back taxes aggregating $21,169.05 uncollected for the years 1895, 1896, 1897, 1898 and 1899. At the same time the report of the City Treasurer to July 31 this year shows receipts of only $162. 34 of these back taxes collected this year. The summary is as follows:

	Uncollected Jan. 1, 1901.	Collected Since.
Tax of 1895,	$4,326.27	None
1896,	2,644,33	None
1897,	3,261·53	None
1898,	3,829.14	$18.55
1899,	6,106.78	143.79
	$21,169.05	$162,34

These uncollected taxes are regarded as an asset of the city, yet for the years 1895, 1896 and 1897 not a cent has been collected this year. It would require an assessment of $1 per $1,000 on all the taxable property of the city just to pay these uncollected taxes.

In Brockton there are only two years of uncollected taxes, 1901 and 1902, but in Quincy there are eight years. The city needs the cash and should have it.

The Boston Advertiser makes a grave error in its editorial today on Park Police, when it says Mayor Bryant declines to send police to the scene of disorder along the Quincy Bay Metropolitan reservation within the city. The police records for a month show that the Quincy police have been very busy on Sundays at the seaside resorts and that they have been very successful in arresting disturbers, notably a gang of twelve from Cambridgeport. If picnickers are to continue to come from Boston, Cambridge and other cities in the Metropolitan district and disturb the peace of our city, it is proper that the Metropolitan Park Commission who have taken the shore front for a reservation shall assist in furnishing police protection which they have agreed to do.

The reservations in Quincy are entitled to protection as well as the Charles River reservation, the Revere Beach reservation and others. The Advertiser admits at the outset that "It has now become a settled policy for the Metropolitan park commission to hold itself responsible for the maintainance of law and order upon all reservations, boulevards and parks which come under its jurisdiction. The recent crusades at Nantasket, Revere Beach and along the Charles river have determined this course."

SHIPYARD STRIKE.

A Sympathetic Affair in New York and Vicinity.

Efforts to avert the threatened strike of shipyards employees, involving 20,000 men, failed today, and there is every prospect of a tie-up, says a New York dispatch of Friday to the Herald. All the shipyards in this vicinity are busy now, and most of them have important contracts to fill. If a strike is declared the yards will be tied-up, as non-union men cannot be had to fill the places.

If a strike is ordered, eight trades, between whom and their employers there is no question of wages or of hours, will be involved. It will be a sympathetic move in aid of the marine machinists, who struck recently for a $3 a day minimum wage, and whose places have nearly all been filled. The yards now pay $3 a day and upward to all able machinists, but flatly refuse to make an agreement with the International Association.

Gave His Wife a Lesson.

There was a report in City Square last evening that sneak thieves had entered the house of G. B. Bates on Dimmock street and taken several valuable rings belonging to Mrs. Bates.

It seems however that there had been no robbery but for a time Mrs. Bates thought there had been, and thus the story started. It appears that Mrs. Bates left her rings down stiars on the sideboard and went up stairs. While there Mr. Bates entered and thinking to give his wife a lesson so that she would not be careless and leave her valuables lying about, he put them in his pocket and walked out. When Mrs. Bates came down stairs she missed the rings and after a fruitless search she became frightened and called in a neighbor who advised notifying the police. While debating as to what was best to do Officer Goodhue, who had heard that there had been a robbery, appeared on the scene.

A little later Mr. Bates appeared and the mystery wes cleared up.

Less Pay for Shipbuilders.

The Brotherhood of Boilermakers and Iron Ship Builders has agreed with the Ship and Marine Engine Builders' Association at Baltimore, says a dispatch to the Herald, to accept a cut-down in overtime pay on new work—a decrease from 2 3-4 to 1 1-2 times the pay received for the usual working hours. Double pay is received for overtime on old work. This action was taken on the representation of the employers that it would be impossible for them to compete with out-of-town firms at the existing rate of wages demanded for overtime. The agreement is for one year. The men also agree to submit any disagreement to arbitration.

Hustler First at Provincetown.

The Hustler of the Quincy Yacht club, owned by Whittemore and Robbins, entered the open race of the Cape Cod yacht club off Provincetown yesterday and was an easy winner in the sweepstake class.

Only A Mask.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Now, notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little if any stronger than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well. What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates appetite, and makes sleep refreshing, and that is Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils and teachers generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which, as we know, "builds up the whole system."

The BEST is None too Good for Our People.

TROLLEY TRIPS.

How Quincy People Can Go to New Hampshire.

In summer weather no more profitable or pleasant day can be spent than in trolley rides about the country. The advent of the trolley car, with its miles upon miles of track has brought nearly every city and town, in Massachusetts, and adjoining states, in close touch with each other, and affords an opportunity of seeing the country that can be had in no other way.

We look about us, especially in large cities, and see almost every inch of grouud occupied by buildings and the wonder is how the ever-increasing population is to be accommodated.

A day's trip through the state by trolley cars will quickly solve the question, for one can get an idea of the vastness of the commonwealth and how large a territory there is yet to be built upon.

Aside from affording the opportunity to become better acquainted with our neighbors, it also forms an inexpensive day's outing.

The cheapest that one can travel on the steam railroads is about two cents a mile. Often it is more, and but little of the places through which trains pass can be seen.

On the street cars, however, the fares average less than one cent a mile. Take for instance the trip from Quincy to Nashua, N. H.

By trolley cars, the distance by the shortest route from Quincy is 59 miles, and the fare is but 50 cents or 60 cents by a long route of 67 miles.

There are several routes from Boston, three of which are direct.

By the first route starting from Sullivan square, Charlestown, a through car can be taken every thirty minutes for Lowell. This line runs through Arlington Heights and Lexington and the run is made in just two hours from Sullivan square.

From Lowell to Nashua is a ride of one hour and fifteen minutes. After leaving Lowell the line crosses the Merrimac river, thence through Lakeview Park on the banks of Lake Mascuppic, thence through fields and woodland, following Beaver brook, thence across the Merrimac again into Nashua.

At Lowell close connection is made with a through car for Nashua. This trip can be made from Quincy square in 4 hours and thirty minutes. Fare from Quincy 50 cents.

A second route which consumes the same time, and the same fare, is to take a through car at Sullivan square which runs via Medford, Winchester, Wilmington and Tewksbury.

This route follows what is known as the old Middlesex canal. From Winchester the line runs up the valley through farms and woods to Woburn, past Squaw pond and the famous "Ox-Bow;" thence through Wilmington and Tewksbury to Lowell.

A third route, and one which affords an unusual variety of scenery, is that via Reading and Lawrence. To follow this route one takes a car for Malden square when a change is made for a car for Reading via Melrose. The line passes the Pine Banks Park, one of the finest pleasure grounds in America.

While in Melrose a view is had of the escarpments of Middlesex Fells Reservation, also along Crystal Lake to Wakefield and along the shore of Lake Quannapowitt. At Reading another change is made for an hour's run to Lawrence.

Leaving Reading the car passes along the old turnpike road 66 feet wide across the Ipswich river through a beautiful country to Andover, that ancient academic town.

At Lawrence another change is made for Lowell, and the ride from there to the Spindle city is a beautiful one. A short distance outside the city proper the line leaves the main street and enters the woods and for miles runs along the shore of the Merrimac.

In places the car is within fifteen feet of the river and through this strip of woods are hundreds of summer cottages. As the car comes once more to the main thoroughfare the city of Lowell comes in sight and crossing the Merrimac the car comes to a stop in City square from which cars leave for all points.

This ronte is the longest of these direct lines, and while passengers have to make some change of cars the changes on the whole are welcome as one doe not become so cramped as on a through car.

The fare by this route as noted above is 60 cents and is paid as follows: From Quincy to Neponset 5 cents; Neponset to Malden, 5 cents; Malden to Reading, 10 cents; Reading to Lawrence, 15 cents. On paying the last fare between Reading and Lawrence a few transfer may be had which saves five cents between Lawrence and Lowell. From Lawrence to Lowell, 10 cents and the free transfer; Lowell to Nashua, 15 cents; total 60 cents.

By the other routes the fare is 5 cents to Neponset; 5 cents from Neponset to Arlington Heights or Medford and 20 cents to Lowell.

Fair Sunday.

Delightful today.

The Wollastons are playing at Dedham this afternoon.

There will be a yacht race off Fort Point this afternoon.

Fred Sharpe of Whitman is visiting friends in Quincy.

Association foot ball on the Ward Three playground this afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Clark from N. Y. have apartments at the Greenleaf.

Mr. M. Healy and sister of Westerly, R. I., are guests of Dr. Maloney at The Greenleaf.

The West Quincys are playing the Roslindales this afternoon on the Boston American grounds.

A delegation from Granite Lodge, S. of St. G., visited Commonwealth lodge of Hyde Park this week.

Mr. Charles Ewell, Jr., and wife of Norfolk Downs have had their family made larger by twin boys, all are doing well.

A tall flag pole arrived at the Woodward Institute grounds yesterday and will be raised on the lawn on the Hancock street side of the building.

The two Norfolk county senatorial districts have been ably and well represented the past year at the State House and it is a pleasure to note that there will be no opposition to the renomination of Messrs. Brackett and Bemis.—Hyde Park Gazette.

The Congregational church will meet with the Atlantic M. E. church in union services the last two Sundays of this month. To all the services we extend a cordial invitation to every one. The evening services will be a continuation of the special study of the misunderstood books of the Bible. If the story of Solomon and the book of Jonah have troubled you come out and study them with us.

The second of a series of meetings under the auspices of the Law and Order committee of the Washington street Congregational church will be held Sunday evening at 7.30 o'clock. D. W. Waldron, City Missionary of Boston, will speak on Glimpses of progress in the 19th century, with an outlook message for the 20th century. Mrs. E. C. Page of Bunker Hill Baptist church and William F. Chicks of St. Andrews church will be the soloists.

Golf Prizes.

G. F. Kelley of the Wollaston club won the consolation cup at the golf tournament of the Great Island club at Hyannis this week. In the handicap stroke competition, C. B. Corey of the Wollaston club won the gross prize with 155, and C. T. Crocker, Jr., also of Wollaston the net prize with 165—16—149.

Street Railway Men Dance.

A social dance under the auspices of the local branch of Street Railway Employees union, for the relief fund, was held last evening at the Casino, Houghs Neck. There was a large attendance of young people and a good time was enjoyed. McInness orchestra furnished music for the dancing, which was continued until midnight. After the dance special cars were run to all points.

Beautiful Dahlias.

Mrs. A. A. Brackett of East Milton, wife of Senator Brackett, brought to our office on Friday morning, the finest display of dahlias, we think, that can be found in Norfolk County. They were in two large boxes, sixty varieties, no two alike. The largest specimen measured eighteen inches in circumference. The bulbs from which these rare blossoms were raised were obtained from Mr. Lothrop at East Bridgewater, who has the finest garden show of this plant to be found in the State.

Of the sixty varieties brought to us by Mrs. Brackett, each specimen has its particular name. Some blossoms are quite small, others very large; some with single sprawl leaves, others thick and compact as a rose. One looked very much like a pond lily. But no one can easily imagine the variety or beauty without seeing them.

Base Ball at Highland Park.

Mt. Wollaston lodge, No. 80, I. O O. F., ball team will go to Highland Park on Tuesday afternoon to play the crack team from Brockton lodge. Brockton lodge has made this a field day and are raising funds in this way to erect a large Odd Fellow's monument in Brockton.

This game will be one of the amusements of the occasion and of much interest as to the results, as the teams met a short time ago and played an even game, the Brocktons winning in the ninth inning. Many of the Quincy Odd Fellows and their friends are going to cheer on the Mt. Wollastons and the boys are determined to keep Quincy in the front row.

Another Atlantic Fire.

The alarm from Box 61 at 8.48 this morning was for a slight fire in the house of James Ago on Hodges avenue, caused by the upsetting of an oil stove. The fire was extingushed without any loss. The recall was within five minutes.

—One of the most interesting exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition will be the liquid air factory. A kettle of the air will be shown boiling on a cake of ice while "steam" issues from the spout and the boiling will be increased by throwing a cake of ice into the kettle. The air, thrown on a lighted candle, will make it burn more brightly while alcohol and whiskey will be promptly frozen by it. Strawberries will be frozen and steel melted by this extraordinary substance at one and the same time. A snow storm in summer will also be produced by it.

—There is another change in the "educational system" in the Philippines. Mr. Bryan, who succeeded Mr. Atkinson, less than a year ago, as general superintendent, has resigned on account of ill health, and is in turn to be succeeded by Mr. Barrows, formerly head of the normal school in Manila.

PEGGY OF THE PINES

By TEMPLE BAILEY

Copyright, 1903, by T. C. McClure

"John Carter!"

The name seems to come out of her dream. Peggy opens her eyes, a little dazed.

Of course there are other John Carters. Carter is a rather commonplace name after all. So is John.

The high heels of Peggy's patent leathers click on the polished floor of the alcove and Peggy's blue kimonoed figure appears between the curtains of the arch that divides the room.

"Sleepyhead!" is Catherine's scornful welcome.

Peggy smiles and trails languidly over to a low chair by the fire. She sits down and shakes a veil of soft, red brown hair over her flushed cheeks.

Edith passes her the box of chocolates and the conversation goes on.

"I wonder which one of us it is," sighs Louise.

"If the corner of the conservatory could speak I think it would whisper 'Catherine,'" says Edith.

The color that flames up into Catherine's cheeks matches the red of her crape gown.

But Peggy, looking through her veil of hair, sees that she likes it—likes to be teased about Jack; Peggy's Jack—well, not exactly hers—yet, but he has proposed to her every year since she was in pinafores, and if she hasn't said "Yes"—

"A box for Miss Catherine," states the soft voiced maid at the door.

The box is full of red, glowing roses—American Beauties.

Catherine takes the card out of the little white envelope and looks at the girls complacently.

"John Carter," she reads.

Oh, little Peggy, little Peggy, it is well that your face is hidden by the silken veil, for the blushes are gone.

Edith's lips are set in a rather tense line.

"What does he say?"

"Red as a rose is she."

"Rather hackneyed for a clever man," comments Edith.

"There is another box for Miss Edith," says the maid, "and one for Miss Louise."

"Not a single valentine for you, baby," says Louise to Peggy. "But the men haven't found you out yet."

She opens her box, gives one glance at the card and leans over to see Edith's.

Then the two girls laugh.

"John Carter!"

Across Catherine's smooth forehead there flickers just the shadow of a frown, but she rallies.

"How impartial. What does he say on yours, girls?"

Louise has orchids, Edith violets. Each card contains a maudlin valentine sentiment, but Peggy listens to the conventional lines with prejudiced ears. There is only one consolation—Jack isn't a Mormon! He can't marry all three of them.

But over Catherine's face there broods something of dissatisfaction, and Edith gathers up her violets and slips out of the room without a word. After awhile the other girls follow, and Peggy is left alone.

She goes and stands by the window, where, through the gray mist, she can see the blurred lights of the big city. Oh, how homesick she is! She wants to see Mammy Chloe and Aunt Sophia, and most of all she wants to hear the wind sighing through the pines.

She goes over to her trunk and from its very bottom she drags out a big box, and as the darkness comes on she muses sadly over the bits of lace paper and faded ribbons.

The girls find her thus when they come in later.

"Valentines?" says Louise. "Old ones?" She picks up a tiny lace paper affair with two red hearts and a Cupid.

Roses red and vilets blue,
Sugar is sweet and so are you.

"That came when I was seven," says Peggy.

"Are they all from one man? Oh, Peggy, Peggy, I believe you have a romance."

"They are all from Jack," says Peggy without malice, and then she stands blushing, for what will they think of Mr. John Carter now?

But the name suggests nothing to the three girls.

"Some one you know in Virginia?" asks Catherine.

And Peggy knows that, after all, she has told nothing, and she resolves to hold her own.

"He has sent me one each year since I was five. We grew up together."

"Why, what a little romance," says Edith indulgently, with amused and uplifted eyebrows behind Peggy's back. "Of course he loves you."

"Of course," says Peggy with an assurance she is far from feeling.

"And you love him."

"I haven't told him so," says Peggy, and the girls look at her open eyed. They are not used to small Virginia princesses who have to be wooed long.

"A box for Miss Margaret," announces the maid.

"Margaret? Oh," says Catherine, puzzled. "Oh, Peggy, she means you."

"Yes," says Peggy and reaches out her hand.

The girls watch her while she unties the string.

"Do you wish a light, miss?" asks the maid.

But Peggy does not hear her, for there steals into the room a faint, wonderful fragrance, the fragrance of the pines of Virginia.

Louise steps forward and lifts the cover. Under the waxed paper in the box are silky tassels of shining green, wet still with the moisture of the woods.

There is an envelope, half hidden under the mass of green. Peggy's hand shuts over it; she has seen the writing. No prying eyes shall read John Carter's message to—"his fourth girl," as she calls herself bitterly.

"Read it, Peggy," cries Louise.

But Peggy stands up defiant, the box in her arms.

"Go and dress!" she commands. "We shall never get ready."

"The country lover," comments Catherine, as the girls go to their rooms.

But when the girls are gone Peggy does not move for a little while. She stands very still, with a pale little face. Then suddenly she buries her face in the scented green. At last, with trembling fingers, she tears open the envelope. But no single line of wornout sentiment confronts her. Within is a sheet of closely written paper:

My Dear Peggy—I am in paradise, with the Eve left out. I am in the woods, but the spirit of the pines is away, and the old, old trees sigh and sigh and whisper with me, broken heartedly, "Where is our Peggy?"

When Mammy Chloe told me that you had joined Louise Dalton's house party the light went out of the sun. I want you here, and I had traveled all these miles that I might come to you on St Valentine's day and ask you again—for the thirteenth time, dear—if you wouldn't.

Mammy Chloe says that you are homesick. So, dear heart, I send you a bit of home. To the other girls I have sent flowers and verses that mean nothing, but to my Peggy I send her own pine.

I shall get back to New York with this and send it up to you to let you know that I shall dine at the Daltons' tonight. I found a note from Louise and will telephone her. Come down early, and I will meet you at the foot of the stairway. And, Peggy, oh, Peggy, if you mean to say "Yes" this time wear a bit of the pine, and I will know that my Peggy is my own—at last. JACK.

An hour later a wonderful little figure in a pale green trailing gown, with a rope of pearls around the young neck and a silken bit of pine among the laces at her breast, comes out of the door and glides down the hall. As she reaches Louise's room she sees through the open door that the rest of the girls are there, but she passes by unheeding.

Down the long corridor to the stairway. The girls follow her, and look over the railing as she turns the curve below them.

"She is really beautiful," says Catherine, as the light falls on the upturned radiant face.

"Poor Virginia lover," laughs Edith; "if Peggy looks like that all the evening, he will have rivals."

Just then a man comes across the broad hall and advances to meet Peggy.

He is tall, strong and handsome.

"John Carter," breathes Catherine, and starts to descend.

But Edith holds her back.

"Look," she says.

They meet half way up the stairway—little Peggy and John Carter. He takes her hand in his. Then there is a breathless moment and the watchers slip away discreetly.

"Jack!" they say, with a light breaking in upon them.

And then they know—beautiful Catherine, and stately Edith, and gracious Louise—that it is little Peggy, after all—little Peggy of the Pines.

Getting on In the World.

A tortoise, plodding along, was approached by a pigeon hawk, which dropped from the ether like a bullet and perched upon its shell.

"Come; let's race," he said banteringly.

"On one condition," replied the tortoise.

"Name it."

That we make it a week's journey."

"Done."

They immediately set out. The tortoise knew that if he gained the victory it must be by great diligence; he must never pause or turn aside; he must strike a bee line and not permit himself to be distracted. So he crawled along, intent only upon one thing—reaching the goal.

The hawk, on the contrary, knowing what an easy task was before him, made sport of the contest. He circled in the air, ascending into the clouds, descending to earth again, sailing, soaring, giving himself up to the pleasures of flying here, there, everywhere. He visited one acquaintance after another and had a good laugh at the tortoise. Finally so much time had been wasted that when he came within sight of the winning post the plodding, earnest tortoise had just reached the goal.

Moral.—The tortoise won the race, but the hawk had all the fun.

Hats and Heads.

A hatter had just finished selling a hat to an Irishman.

"The Irish," he said, "have heads of a graceful shape—long and oval and very large. The American has a head shaped very much like the Irishman's only it is smaller and slightly rounder.

"The German has a square head, flat on top and very wide between the ears. A German's hat always looks too big for him. It looks so because it is so. In order that it may encompass the head's great breadth it must be bought a little too loose in its other dimensions. Some Germans who are particular have their hats made to order on this account.

"I sell hats all over the United States, and I find that heads run bigger in the west than anywhere else. The Chicago man has the biggest head in America. The southerner has the smallest. We easterners—Philadelphians, New Yorkers and Bostonians—all have heads about the same size. That size is, on the average, 7. The westerner's size is 7¼; the southerner's is 6⅞."—Philadelphia Record.

Career of The "Iron Man"

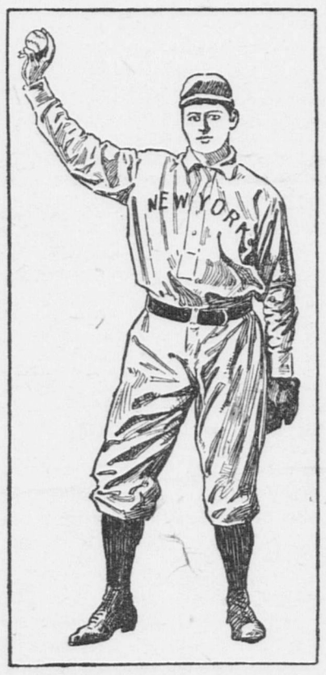

Pitcher Joe McGinnity's Notable Feats of Endurance ⁘ How He Once Won a Twenty Inning Game ⁘ Gossip.

Joseph E. ("Iron Man") McGinnity of the New York National league baseball team is destined to rank as one of the best pitchers of the year. McGinnity has for several years enjoyed an enviable reputation as a twirler of unsurpassed endurance; hence his appellation, the "Iron Man," and this season he has eclipsed all records.

It was only recently that he pitched two games against Boston, in Boston, in a single afternoon and won them both. A few days later he repeated the performance against the heavy hitting Brooklyns, this time on the Giants' home grounds. Here is a feat unique in baseball annals and the "Iron Man" has been receiving a steady downpour of compliments, which he well deserves. Baseball sharps are still talking about the accomplishment and are waiting to see McGinnity turn the trick once again before the season closes.

It is conceded on all sides that McGinnity had proved his right to the title of the "Iron Man," bestowed on him when he pitched the Brooklyn club into the championship in 1900 by officiating in five games in six playing days. This happened when Pittsburg was making a spurt that sent Bill Kennedy, Frank Kitson and the other Brooklyn pitchers up in the air, where they remained until the "Iron Man's" willingness and gameness under fire brought them back to earth again.

The Pirates weakened under the strain, and the final weeks of the campaign were a cake walk for Brooklyn. In the postseason series, played in Pittsburg, McGinnity won the first game, with Rube Waddell opposed to him, and also won the final game that gave the champions the series. The handsome silver cup won by Brooklyn was turned over to McGinnity by his fellow players in appreciation of his splendid work during the season.

JOE M'GINNITY, THE "IRON MAN."

McGinnity began his professional career in 1897 with the Springfield (Ill.) club. In 1898 he helped Peoria win the Western association championship, and during that season pitched one of the most remarkable games in the history of baseball and the most sensational of his career. Peoria was playing St. Joseph, and at the end of the twentieth inning the score was 4 to 4. The Saints went to pieces in the twenty-first inning, and Peoria tallied four runs. The Saints, in their inning, made but one run.

McGinnity held his opponents down to eleven hits and in fielding made three put outs, ten assists and one error. From the fourth inning to the twentieth the Saints drew sixteen consecutive blanks.

George Pinckney, the old Brooklyn third baseman, recommended McGinnity very highly to President Ebbets of the Brooklyn club. When the Brooklyns and Baltimores were consolidated in 1899 John McGraw signed the "Iron Man" for Baltimore. McGraw and his supposed team of "dubs" set a hot pace for the National league that year, and McGinnity was the principal factor in the pitcher's box. He pitched in forty-five games, winning twenty-eight. His percentage of victories was .622, while Baltimore finished the season with .581 per cent.

In 1900, when the National league circuit was reduced, McGinnity was transferred to Brooklyn. In 1901 he signed with the Baltimore American league club. During that season he twice pitched in both games of double headers, winning one and losing the other each time.

How many players have survived the Brotherhood war of 1890 up to the present time? In the two big leagues the following men are playing who were in the speedy tribes of the old days: Lave Cross, Ryan, Kittridge, Kid Gleason, Patsy Donovan, Van Haltren, Burkett, Beckley, Daly and Dahlen.

Jack O'Connor, the veteran catcher, speaking of the late Ed Delehanty, says: "If Del had a weakness at the bat I could never discover it. I remember one day the Clevelands were playing at the Philadelphia grounds and we were one run ahead. There were two men on bases and Del came up. I told Cy Young to let him walk. Cy pitched one about two feet outside the plate and Del stepped back and clouted it. I think the ball landed somewhere in Fairmount park or some other corner of the Quaker town. Of course we lost the game and were all sore. 'I told you to let him walk,' said I to Cy on the way to the hotel. 'Oh, I know you did,' said Cy, 'but I had to pitch the ball somewhere, and I thought I had made a wild pitch until I saw it going over the fence.'"

CHARLEY BENDER, THE INDIAN TWIRLER.
[Bender, of Connie Mack's Philadelphia Americans, is a full blooded Indian. He is doing good work in the box and has been signed for next season by the Athletics.]

"Silk" O'Loughlin is a unique character in baseball. He is undoubtedly one of the best umpires in the country, even though he slips up on his decisions occasionally. His peculiar actions and calling of strikes and balls keep the crowds in a good humor, and when any trouble is brewing "Silk" is on the spot to take up his share of it.

It is noticeable that none of the rowdy players takes many liberties with O'Loughlin, for he is quick as a flash in suppressing all players who violate the rules. "Silk" has been charged with drinking and carousing, when the fact is that he never drank intoxicating liquors in his life and does not carouse. When off duty he may be found at his hotel surrounded by a crowd of fans and friends, and he can entertain them with a fund of good stories.

Never was an umpire more fearless. One time a crowd in New England wanted to mob him, and some friends suggested that he return to his boarding place under the escort of the police. "Silk" said: "Not for me. The street cars are good enough for 'Silk.'" And he cowed the entire crowd, which was amazed at his nerve and bravery and apparent unconcern.

Every now and then some old pitcher is "born again" and does wonderful work for a time. The last of these is "Roaring Bill" Kennedy, who is the most successful twirler of the Pittsburg Pirates. It was believed that when his time with the Brooklyns expired he was "all in" so far as major league company was concerned.

Jimmy O'Rourke, the former Yale infielder, is now playing professionally with Bridgeport of the Connecticut league. It is one of the few instances on record where father and son have played on the same team, for the patriarchal Orator O'Rourke is manager and a member of the team.

When Roger Bresnahan of the New York Nationals goes to the ball field he seldom knows what position he is to play. Roger has tried about everything but umpiring. He is the best utility player in any league and seems to be familiar with all positions.

Noted Irish Hurdler.

Rice Kent, one of the best hurdlers in Ireland, will visit America this year and will take part in athletic meetings. Kent is a wealthy young Irishman, who is in the game for sport's sake alone.

Pulliam and Herrman.

President Pulliam and President Herrman recently had a little love feast in Cincinnati, and now it is believed there is a better understanding between the two National league officials.

The America's Cup.

The America's cup, first sailed for in 1851 in British waters, was offered for competition by the Royal Yacht squadron, and not by the late Queen Victoria, as many people suppose.

Speedy Dave Fultz.

Says a New York paper, "Dave Fultz of the Americans is the fastest man between first base and home seen around here this season with the possible exception of Sheckard."

Barr's Fortune.

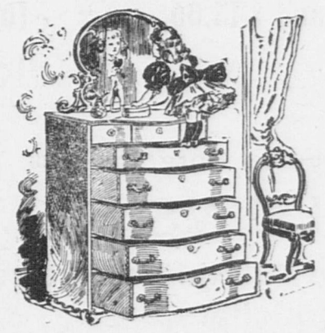

Charley Barr, former captain of Columbia and now of Reliance, has laid away a snug fortune, as also have other skippers who have held the helms of cup yachts.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

HOW MR. TOM CAT CULTIVATED HIS VOICE

There were few cats in all animal land who had better voices than Mr. Tom Cat. He knew all the latest songs and could sing them with an earnestness and vigor that aroused the admiration of his friends and the envy of his enemies. It was his proud boast that nobody within three blocks of him could sleep through one of his nightly open air concerts.

If Mr. Tom Cat had been given a penny for every window that had been opened, for every head that had been stuck out, for every missile that had been thrown at him while he was singing, he would have been a very wealthy cat indeed.

But, like a great many people, Mr. Tom Cat was not satisfied. He was not contented to let well enough alone. He wanted to become still more famous. He wanted his voice to swell out upon the night air until its volume was so great that it would sound like two cats singing instead of one. As he did not know exactly how to attain this end he decided to consult some one who could enlighten him. And it was just here that he made his mistake.

HE SAT DOWN AND BEGAN TO THINK.

Instead of going to a friend for advice he sought a rival, a cat that could sing as well as he. This cat naturally did not want Mr. Tom to improve, and so he was not liable to give any good advice.

"Eat a pound of sawdust," he said to Tom, and Tom very foolishly went off to a carpenter shop and bought the sawdust and ate it.

Then he sat down and began to think, and the longer he sat the more he thought. And while he thought he suffered the worst pain that he had ever been called upon to suffer in all his life. The sawdust weighed on his stomach like a ton of lead. The tears came into his eyes, and he could not stop them. It was almost enough to kill him, and it is a great wonder that it did not kill him.

It was three whole days before he could resume his nightly songs, and he found his voice had not improved one whit. But there were two good lessons he learned—first, to be contented with what he had, and, second, never to try to make a meal on sawdust.—Detroit Journal.

—There is no longer any room in this country for the so-called "tin soldier," and he will soon be a thing of the past, if the new militia law works as is expected. In commenting upon this new law, the New York Sun says: "Every man who joins the National Guard under this law will do so with his eyes open. He will hold himself subject to the call of the National Government in time of need, and he will see the necessity of satisfying the medical examiners that he is fit for such service. He will be drilled according to the methods of the regular army, and he will get five days' field service every year. His uniform will not be as pretty as it used to be, but he will know a heap more. He will play soldier much less and be far nearer to the real thing. It is a good law."—Weymouth Gazette.

WANTED: 50 MEN AND WOMEN

To take advantage of Special Offer Made by Chas. C. Hearn.

Chas. C. Hearn, the enterprising druggist is advertising today for fifty men and women to take advantage of the special half price offer he is making on Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, and get a fifty cent package at half price, 25 cents.

So positive is he of the remarkable power of this specific to cure these diseases, as well as sick headaches and liver troubles, that he agrees to refund the money to any customer whom this medicine does not quickly relieve and cure.

With Dr. Howard's specific at hand, you can eat what you want and have no fear of ill consequences. It strengthens the stomach, gives perfect digestion, regulates the bowels, creates an appetite, and makes life worth the living.

This is an unusual opportunity to obtain 60 doses of the best medicine ever made for half its regular price, with the personal guarantee of a well known business man to refund the money if it does not give satisfaction.

If you cannot call at Chas. C. Hearn's store today, send him 25 cents by mail, and he will send you a package, promptly, charges paid.

"A BUNCH OF ONIONS."

Unique Title of a Club Formed by Amateur Journalists.

MEMBERSHIP LIMITED TO TEN

When an "Onionite" Meets an "Onionite" He Is to Take a Bite or Draw a Tear, Says the Club's Constitution—Onions of Every Variety to Be Cultivated In Gardens of the Members.

Undoubtedly the "strongest" and strangest club ever organized is the one formed in Chicago recently under the unique title of "A Bunch of Onions," and it is not composed of truck gardeners either, says the Chicago Chronicle.

It was born under very happy circumstances at a well known downtown restaurant during the annual national convention of the Amateur Press association. There are just ten members in the organization and each one holds an office.

There are seven states represented in the club and the members are all enthusiastic writers for amateur publications. The object of this unique organization, as has been announced, is to bring "tears to the eyes of amateur writers."

The membership is limited to ten, and the only way to resign from the club is to die or get married. There is but one meeting each year, and at that session vacancies are filled. Each year one of the members must marry in order to create a vacancy in the club.

The onion is the favorite flower of the organization. The motto is, "In onion there is strength." The officers are as follows:

Chief odor, Louis St. Elmo, Ohio, sliced onion, Edwin Hadley Smith, New York; collector of tears, Miss Maisie McLoughlin, Illinois; gatherer of scents, Miss A. Eunice Frees, Illinois; official editor, Miss J. Irene Maloney, Illinois; executive board, scullion, Albert Gillespie, Indiana; fertillzer, George A. Alderman, North Carolina; sprouts, Foster Gilroy, Pennsylvania; proxy committee or guardians of the scents, Miss E. Merle Hegert, Illinois; Miss Alemdia Thomas, Missouri.

The election takes place annually, and all proxies are thrown out by the proxy committee. The members of the club may nominate, second their own nominations and vote for themselves.

The official organ of the club is to be called the Onion Skin. The publication will be in the form of an onion and printed on onion paper. What is more, the meetings of the club are to be called "reonions." The club has one "onionary" member, and that is Charles R. Burger of Colorado. He, it is said, has brought more tears to the eyes of amateur writers during the past year than any other one person. One "onionary" member is elected each year, and "onionary" mention is made of any member where such mention is due.

One of the strange laws of this stranger club is that when a member of the "bunch" visits a town wherein resides another member the visitor must invite the resident member to dinner at his or her expense. The annual dinners, which are very elaborate affairs, must be held on the last night of the annual convention of the National Amateur Press association, and members of the bunch only are allowed to attend. If only one member attends the convention he must eat his dinner with the vacant chairs of his comrades surrounding the table.

The badge of the club is an onion and it must be worn conspicuously during a convention of amateur journalists. The constitution of the club is the shortest on record and is as follows:

"When an onionite meets an onionite he is to take a bite or draw a tear."

When the chief odor makes a decision it is perfectly in order for any member to take a-peal. The executive office is called the onion patch. Membership in the organization is eagerly sought, and there is already a campaign on for the first vacancy.

Carl Hegert of Chicago thinks the politics in the bunch is "odoriferous," and he has started an antionion crusade. He is also running for the place of onionary member in 1904.

The members announce that the club is in its salad days. All members are asked to become vegetarians and live as much as possible on the succulent onion. One of the aims of the society will be to make fried onions popular, and onions in every variety will be cultivated in the gardens of the members. Instead of confetti the members will use onion seed in time of carnival. After eating a hearty dinner recently in which onions figured extensively one member dreamed the following bill of fare:

"Onions; young onions; old onions; onion sets; fried onions; boiled onions; stewed onions; pickled onions; preserved onions."

This member is trying now to have this menu adopted as the official bill of fare. No member may, upon pain of a heavy fine, eat anything to remove the scent of onions from his or her breath.

The New English Rifle.

England is also to adopt a new army rifle which will do equally well for cavalry and infantry. It will be twenty-five inches long instead of thirty, as the British service rifle now is. It is covered completely with wood, like the new American arm. Its caliber is 303, but there is increased twist in the rifling. There will be a few trifling changes in the breech mechanism.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 23—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Lessons from Paul: How to make our lives count like his.—II Tim. 1, 6-8; II Cor. xi, 23-28.

Few lives have counted for more than that of the apostle Paul. Converted under most miraculous circumstances, he at once inquired, "Lord, what wilt Thou have me do?" and from that time on the doing of the will of God was his chief business in life, and as the apostle to the gentiles he achieved undying fame in the annals of the church and had the most conspicuous part in spreading the gospel throughout the Roman empire. And in the letters that he wrote to churches and to individuals he left the church a legacy of inestimable value, and being dead his life still counts for God and for Christianity in a most powerful way in spite of the intervening centuries.

But what was the secret of Paul's success? How was he able to make his life count for so much in his own day and to exert an influence that is still felt today after nearly nineteen centuries have passed away? Without going into any detailed analysis of the apostle's character we may be satisfied with asserting that his success was due to his sublime faith in God and in the gospel of Christ and his absolute consecration of himself to the one great idea of saving the souls of men. Paul had a great faith and a great desire that all men should possess the same faith, and he considered no sacrifice too great that this might be accomplished. As a minister of Christ he was "in labors more abundant, in stripes above measure, in prisons more frequent." He was beaten, stoned, shipwrecked, "in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren, in wearyings and painfulness, in hunger and thirst, in fastin often, in cold and nakedness." Such a record abundantly explains the secret of Paul's success. A life of such self sacrifice could not but count. "He that loses his life shall save it."

But how can we make our lives count like Paul's? By following in his footsteps. If we, with a faith and power born of God, as in the case of the apostle, "make ourselves partakers of the afflictions of the gospel according to the power of God" our lives shall also count for God and for the uplifting and saving of humanity. Any one who believes strongly in God and in the power of the gospel to save men, and will at any cost or self denial act up to these beliefs, can make his life mean much for God and much for his fellow men. Paul's success should inspire us to imitate his example, for

Lives of great men all remind us
We can make our lives sublime,
And departing leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time.

Rev. F. H. Jacobs, who, with Mr. Percy S. Foster, directed the splendid choruses at the Denver convention, is an "Endeavorer through and through."

REV. F. H. JACOBS.

He is a member of the New York state executive committee and holds the responsible position of state superintendent of evangelistic work. He is the director of the famous Fulton street noon prayer meeting in New York city. He often leads the singing at Moody's summer conferences at Northfield, Mass., and is also much in demand as a Christian Endeavor convention speaker. His voice is wonderfully sweet and sympathetic in gospel solo work. He has also given to the world several very effective song compositions.

Interdenominational.

Christian Endeavor has been interdenominational from the beginning, and its fellowship has grown steadily through the years. It now includes more than forty evangelical denominations. No organization in Christendom compares with it in unifying power. This has made for the society a host of friends among far seeing Christians.—A. R. W.

Endeavor Where Paul Preached.

Thessalonica, where Paul preached and taught, has a flourishing society of Christian Endeavor of twenty members and an average attendance of twenty-five.

92. L. M. Y., Denver, Colo.—In 1892 and 1893 Dr. Clark made his first worldwide tour. He visited large conventions in Australia, where the movement was already established, and other meetings in China, Japan, India, Turkey, France and Spain.

93. I. F. B., Selma, Ala.—The United Society of Christian Endeavor is simply a bureau of information. It claims no authority and exercises none. The Christian Endeavor principle is that all authority over a local society is vested in the church and pastor. The united society simply records the names of local societies, tabulates statistics, issues information in the form of leaflets and booklets and provides the programme for the international conventions.

WAR GAME HAS BEGUN

Secret Service Gives Notice to Army at Portland

FLEET LEAVES "TROPICS"

Defense Has Two Days to Prepare For the Invasion—Contest Continues Until a Week From Today—Portland Has Warlike Appearance

Portland, Me., Aug. 22.—Theoretically the army has been notified by its secret service that the "enemy's fleet has started from the tropics for an attack on Portland." The fleet does not leave Rockland, where it has gathered, until Sunday, but the defence has been allowed two days in which to prepare for the invasion. The mimic war will continue until a week from today. The reinforcements began to come into town and enter camp duty yesterday, the first and second regiments which constitute the entire state militia arriving in special trains from the east at noon. Naturally, as in case of a sudden attack, the local batallion was heard from first, and by noon all the companies had gone into camp and taken up their active duties.

This afternoon the First regiment of Massachusetts Heavy Artillery will arrive. A number of different signal corps detachments are expected from now until Sunday noon. Two companies of the New York signal corps will arrive Sunday noon, and dividing into small detachments will be sent to the various stations located by Colonel Dunwoody, chief signal officer. Their location is not known. Colonel Dunwoody admits, however, that 21 points will be covered.

Admiral Barker, who is in command of the North Atlantic fleet, has received sealed instructions relating to the attack, but the contents are unknown to General Chaffee, in command of the army. According to the rules for the maneuvers the blues, two squadrons of battleships being located at Guantanamo and Culebra, are covered by a superior allied fleet of red and black, when the political situation in the United States is suddenly strained to rupture. A strong red fleet consisting of —— vessels, including torpedo boats, sails at 6 p. m., Aug. 23, from the port of X, heading south with the following sealed orders:

"The red fleet at X will proceed at once to Portland, Me., seize and hold the same as a base of operations."

Information of the sailing fleet from X is received at Portland six hours after its departure. Time required for red fleet to reach Portland is 54 hours. It will be assumed that prior to the sailing of the red fleet from X no channels are mined or obstructed. Thereafter all enterprises sanctioned by the international law are permitted. It is desirable that the operations of the fleet should include all channels of approach to Portland and embrace a reconnaissance in force, an attempt to destroy mine fields, a day attack, a night attack, and, if practicable, the forcing of a passage. Preparations will be made to resist attacks on forts by landing parties. The period of hostilities shall be from midnight of Aug. 25 to noon Aug. 29. The period from midnight, Aug. 23, to midnight, Aug. 25, shall be known as the period of preparation.

Not since the Civil war has Portland presented such a warlike appearance as when the two regiments of National Guard state militia arrived in regular and special trains. The Portland battalion, consisting of four companies of the First regiment, are located at the Two Lights and Silver Spring, at the Cape, four companies are at Fort Preble, and the other four at Fort Williams. The Second regiment has six companies at Long Island, two at Fort McKinley and four at Fort Levett. The Maine signal corps are at Fort Preble. The Maine naval reserve Monday will embark on the battleship Illinois at Rockland and participate with the "enemy."

Prepared to Repel Invaders.

Newport, R. I., Aug. 22.—Today the troops in the various forts in this district went into camp on a war footing, and for one week the drills will be carried on as if a state of war existed. This is in conjunction with the joint war games off the coast of Maine, and although it is not expected that any of the ships of the "enemy" will make their appearance off Newport, the troops will be ready to repel any attempt to land, if one is made. There will be practice with heavy guns and all soldiers will be kept within the government reservations and do duty as in war times. The searchlights are mounted at the forts and there will be practice with them, and possibly the torpedo boats will be brought into use for an attack, to give the troops practice in picking them up.

Adjournment of Grand Army

San Francisco, Aug. 22.—The national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic has closed its 37th annual session. The newly elected officers with the exception of Junior Vice-Commander Kessler, who is now on the way from the Philippines, were installed.

Major Reber's Assignment

Washington, Aug. 22.—Major Samuel Reber, signal corps, general staff officer, has been detailed as secretary of the army war college. He is a son-in-law of Lieutenant General Miles, retired, and formerly was his military secretary.

BECKY'S CHECK.

Boy Baby Identified His Sister, and She Got the Money.

Becky smoothed it out carefully on the table and read it again. That made the fourth time. How important and grown up "Becky Dearborn" looked on a check—a truly check that was going to be cashed!

She had earned the 2 cents clearing up after Boy Baby noons and nights. Mamma said it ought to be sent to a "clearing house" to be cashed, she thought—whatever that meant.

"I guess I'll go an' get it cashed now," the little girl murmured. "But first I've got to indorse it. You can't get any good out o' checks unless you indorse them; then they're just zactly as good as money, only they don't jingle any."

She got the pen and the ink bottle and sat down soberly before mamma's desk. It was a regular business proceeding, indorsing checks. You had to take plenty of time.

First she turned the check over, and then about a third of the way down from one end (the top end) she wrote in big, careful letters, "Becky Dearborn," spelling it aloud as she went, to be sure it was right. She was quite satisfied with the result.

"There, now I'll go to the bank an' get my money," she said, with a little breath of relief.

The "bank" was Papa Joe's desk. He looked up at Becky gravely, and then down at the check. "Becky Dearborn," he read. "You are Becky Dearborn?"

"Yes, she's me," said Becky promptly.

"H'm, h'm! But I think you must be identified, madam. It is our rule. If you will bring a friend of yours that is known to us"—

"Oh, yes, I will," and Becky hurried away. She had been identified once before, so she knew how. But there was nobody but Boy Baby to bring this time.

"Here's somebody," she announced at the bank, dimpling all over with fun.

"Ah, h'm, h'm! Can you identify this lady as Becky Dearborn, sir?"

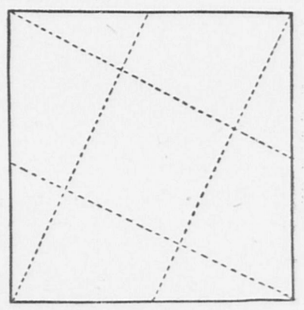

Beck pinched Boy Baby, and Boy Baby said "Ow!"

"Very well. Here is your money, madam. I shall have to give it to you in small change."

Papa Joe gravely handed out two pennies. "And Co." (that was Mamma Joe) was laughing over by the window. Becky laughed, too, and Boy Baby looked important.—Youth's Companion.

The Elusive Square.

Here is a puzzle, called the elusive square, with which you can test the skill and patience of your little friends and which may even make papa and mamma try very hard before either can solve the problem.

HOW TO CUT THE SQUARE

Cut the square from a sheet of strong paper or cardboard and then cut it into nine sections, as shown by the four dotted lines. Now shuffle the pieces and invite a friend to put them together again so as to form the original perfect square.

Spectacles.

It is hard to realize what our ancestors did without the help of spectacles. The first mention of them seems to be toward the end of the thirteenth century, when convex spectacles were invented, it is supposed, by Roger Bacon. Concave glasses were introduced soon afterward, but the Spectacle Makers' company of London was not incorporated until 1630. It seems that the ancients knew nothing of these aids of vision, and it is more than likely that Homer and even Milton might have been spared their blindness had they understood the use of a powerful lens. Eyeglasses came in much later, when the spectacles were considered too cumbersome for fashionable wear, and lorgnettes came even later when the great ladies wished an ornamental case for their eyeglasses. The eyeglasses of today fit on the nose with a spring; formerly they were held in place with the hand.

"On the Rocky Road."

It is fun for the boys. One boy sits down on the floor with his knees up, another sits down in the same fashion on the other fellow's toes, and the other fellow sits on his toes.

Then each holds on to the upper part of the other's arms and rocks. You can go a long distance this way.

Queer Things.

A clock can run, but cannot walk;
My shoe has a tongue, but cannot talk;
A comb has teeth, but has no mouth;
A north wind blows the smoke straight south.

Bottles have necks, but have no heads,
And pins have heads, but have no necks,
And needles have to hold their threads
Right in their eyes. How it must vex!

If I were needle, comb or shoe
I never should know what to do.
My head is really in a whirl.
I'm glad I am a little girl.

—Recently a British merchant ship took fire, and it became necessary to call the assistance of a German man-of-war lying near by. The German bluejackets arrived on the scene of the fire promptly, clad in asbestos suits, being practically fire-proof. An English journal, in commenting on the incident, asks: "Have we any provision in the British navy for the protection of our bluejackets and stokers under like conditions?"

BRAINTREE.

Basketry is now all the rage and pleasant afternoons find several young ladies seated on their piazzas with bunches of rattan and grass, making scrap baskets, etc.

The shoe factory of W. A. Ross has been sold to J. H. G. Robinson, who is tearing it down and removing same to Braintree, where it will be built into tenements.

Mr. Michael Levangie and wife of Pond street with their children George and Mary Avis started Tuesday on the boat for Nova Scotia to visit his old home for two weeks.

The Victor Metal Company of East Braintree have issued attractive samples of the Victor metal, consisting of two polished models, Defender and Shamrock, mounted upon highly finished wood. One sample can be seen, supported by red white and blue, and green ribbon at Kent & Lothrop's waiting room.

Rev. Joseph Kyte preached at Abington last Sunday and is spending the week there.

Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Rowlee of Pond street and their guests, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Killian, are visiting relatives in North Bennington, Vt.

A beautiful doll, the gift of the firm of Jordan and Marsh to the St. Francis church society, will be awarded the person guessing correctly its name, at the coming lawn party.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burke of Central avenue are rejoicing over the birth of a son, born Thursday, August 13th.

Clifton Neal of Arnold street has returned from a three weeks' visit to friends in Nova Scotia.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Belcher have moved from their home on Washington street, to Dorchester.

John Doull is entertaining his aunt Mrs. Isabel Weatherbee and her niece Miss Bohanan of Lot No. 49, Prince Edwards Island, whom he has not seen for more than 40 years and had long supposed to have been dead.

Miss Hannah C. Whelan, teacher at the Union school and Miss Ida M. Callahan of Weymouth are spending a few weeks at Saratoga Springs, N. Y.

The Willing Workers met at the home of Ollie Belcher on Tuesday evening.

Mr. J. J. Hammers, Ph. G., who has been connected with the Braintree Pharmacy for several years, will leave Braintree about Sept. 1, to associate with Mr. C. M. Wesley, under the name of Wesley and Hammers, prescription pharmacists, at 705 Tremont street, Boston. Mr. Hammers has a large circle of friends here who wish him success in his new field.

Yesterday morning Mrs. Stephen Arnold of Washington street, fell and received a severe cut upon her forehead.

John Griffin of Elliot street has been spending a few days in South Boston, the guest of John Farley. They both enlisted at the time of the civil war and served three years in the same regiment, and had not seen each other up to a few weeks ago; each supposing the other dead.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Green are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter, Thursday.

The Christian Endeavor society connected with the Union church will discontinue its meetings for the balance of the month of August, so there will be no services of any kind at the Union church the rest of this month.

A special meeting of Antietam L. A. S. was held with the president, Marion Holbrook, Tuesday evening. The societies voted to invite the societies in Quincy and East Weymouth to attend their second anniversary, September 5.

A big red auto went through here last Saturday night at 9.30 with two big locomotive head lights on front and a red light on the rear. Its speed was about forty miles an hour, so it easily overtook and passed the Brockton bound electric which was late and endeavoring to make up time.

Carry the Head Gracefully.

A double chin can be corrected by proper breathing. The woman with a short neck should hold her head high. Deep, systematic breathing is the best remedy for stoutness, for the great amount of oxygen taken into the lungs burns out the carbon, which is fat. The best time for this exercise is just before dressing and just after undressing. Tight clothes and lacing make a woman appear stouter, and any ideas to the contrary are delusions. Tight fitting garments accentuate the lines of the body, making stoutness more conspicuous. All women can learn to carry their bodies gracefully. It is merely a matter of throwing out the chest, drawing in the chin and walking on the balls of the feet. When these three rules are observed it would be rather difficult to walk ungracefully.—American Queen.

Blankets.

Blankets can be beautifully washed in cold water and borax, although I know I am challenging the questioning wrath of many a housewife by saying cold instead of hot water. But experience is an inimitable and not to be evaded teacher. Just try my way and see if it is not preferable to toiling over tubs of steam. Use a tablespoonful of powdered borax to each pail of water. Rub the blankets thoroughly, using a little good soap on every soiled place. Rinse well and hang by the edge in the sun. They are as soft as new when dry.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

A Novel Shoe Bag.

Shoe bags are usually noted more for utility than beauty. Something quite novel in this line is also pretty enough to hang in the corner of the room if closet space be lacking. On a flat, triangular piece of stout goods are stitched four pockets, cut like the sections of a parasol, and setting out like one half opened. An old parasol handle is fastened down the center of the back and serves to hang it up by. Cretonne, denim and gray green linen are good materials.

Mending Broken China.

The Chinese method of mending broken china is to grind thin glass on a painter's stone till it is reduced to an impalpable powder. Then beat it with the white of an egg to a froth and lay it on the edge of the broken pieces, match and bind them together firmly and let them remain several weeks. It is not at all likely it will ever break again in the same place.

EAT LETTUCE DAILY.

Then You Will Be In No Danger of Catching Smallpox.

Lettuce is an absolute preventive of smallpox. No one is in the least particle of danger of catching smallpox who eats a little lettuce every day.

Smallpox belongs to the scorbutic class of diseases. Sailors at sea, deprived of fresh vegetables, get scurvy. Scurvy is a typical scorbutic disease. Smallpox is another. Smallpox always rages during the winter season, when the poor people are deprived of fresh vegetable foods.

Celery and onions are good for this purpose, but there is such a long interval between their being gathered and being eaten that they lose most of their antiscorbutic properties. Lettuce is served shortly after it is picked, and hence contains the valuable properties which will prevent smallpox.

We say without the least hesitation or reserve that lettuce will prevent smallpox. It is a thousand times better than vaccination. It has no liabilities, like vaccination, to produce other diseases. We are willing to stake our professional reputation on the broad statement that any one who eats lettuce daily will not catch smallpox, whether he be vaccinated or not.—Medical Talk.

Birds as They Fly.

No bird can fly for any appreciable distance tail first. The nearest approach to such a movement is shown in the tumbler pigeon when that bird slews his wings forward and, suddenly turning back his head, throws a somersault, but this is not true backward flight.

When a bird wishes to reverse its motion it tilts its body laterally, as a railway carriage would be tilted in taking a curve, or increases the number of beats given by one wing as compared with the other or keeps one wing extended while the other is partially flexed. But a bird can no more fly backward than a ship can sail astern.

Some birds, however, and particularly the albatross, can fly half upside down—that is, with the wings pointed in a direction nearly perpendicular to the sea—and when turning quickly in this position the appearance is sometimes almost as though the bird were using its wings in a backward direction, though their structure is not really adapted to any such movement, and when poised, facing a strong wind, birds may seem to move astern.

Rossetti and Whistler.

Dante Gabriel Rossetti once showed Whistler a sketch for a painting and asked him how he liked it. "It has good points," said Whistler. "Go ahead with it by all means."

A few weeks later he asked how the work was progressing. "All right," answered Rossetti cheerfully. "I've ordered a stunning frame for it."

Happening in at Rossetti's in Cheyne Walk, Whistler asked to see the canvas, which was brought out beautifully framed.

"You've done nothing to it since I saw it, have you?" said Whistler.

"No," replied Rossetti, "but I've written a sonnet on the subject if you would like to hear it."

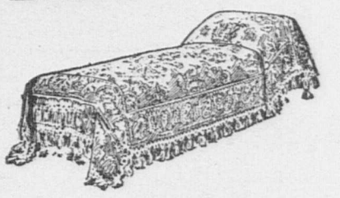

The former of course assented, and the poet-painter thereupon recited some lines of peculiar tenderness and melody. They were barely ended when Whistler broke in with:

"Rossetti, put the sonnet in the frame."

Indian Tribes of the South.

The Cherokees, as far back as the whites have any knowledge of them, occupied portions of northeast Alabama, southeast Tennessee, western North Carolina and a portion of northwest Georgia. They were essentially a hill people and their homes were among the mountain ranges. The Choctaws, on the contrary, occupied the comparatively level regions of middle west Alabama and eastern Mississippi. Between them and the Cherokees were the Creeks on the northwest and the Chickasaws on the north. The Cherokees and Choctaws were widely separated and were never neighbors, at least in historic times.—Montgomery (Ala.) Advertiser.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The Castle Square management will continue the engagement with Mr. J. H. Gilmour two weeks longer before the beginning of the regular Fall and Winter season of the stock company. Next week's bill at this theatre will consist of the modern society play by Bronson Howard, "Aristocracy" first produced in Boston ten years ago by A. M. Palmer's company at the Hollis Street theatre. This play has had one earlier production, some years ago, by the Castle Square theatre stock company but the cast in the coming performances will show many changes in the organization since its former presentation.

The opportunities for effective stage settings will be fully improved in the coming production and the ladies of the company will display some elaborate and beautiful toilettes to add to the beauty of the stage pictures.

At the Monday matinee the usual distribution of souvenir boxes of choice chocolate bonbons will be made. The summer season will be brought to an end by an elaborate production of Belasco and De Mille's comedy, "The Wife."

KEITH'S THEATRE.

Isabelle Urquhart has the only sketch in the Keith show for the week of Aug. 24. Its title is "Even Stephen", and it is certainly an amusing conceit. Of course it will be well acted by Miss Urquhart and her support. The Variety proper will be very fast and very laughable, for it has all the constituents of a popular program: Its acrobatic comedy there will be Blocksom and Burns, two of the cleverest of American eccentriques, and Boyce and Wilson, who disguise their features with burnt cork. James F. Kelly and Dorothy Kent are two of the liveliest entertainers in vaudeville, their East side song and dance being one of the best specialties on the stage. The Golden Gate quintet is made up of five of the best colored singers and dancers in the business, their character changes being equal to those of any white performers, and Kelly and Violette have the reputation of being neatest singing duo north of Mason and Dixon's line. It will be the closing week for the Fadette woman's orchestra, and their numerous admirers and friends are preparing to gives them a big send off, especially on the closing night of the week.

"QUINCY ADAMS SAWYER."

The Boston theatre management looks upon "Quincy Adams Sawyer" as one of its most successful attractions of the entire season and it is naturally expected that during the coming annual engagement there for three weeks, commencing Monday, Sept. 28, it will surpass all its former famous records for "standing room only" business. This will be its fourth visit to the Boston theatre and it has yet to see a Boston performance which has not been either attended by a filled house or one which has not only tested the capacity of the theatre but has been enjoyed by additional hundreds of people occupying all the available standing room.

LANDSMEN ALL ALERT

Taking Advantage of Period of Preparation

WIRELESS STATION TAKEN

Bridges Over Nonesuch River "Blown Up," Making It Impossible For Naval Force to Land West of the Stream—Warfare Begins Tonight

Portland, Me., Aug. 24.—Although no actual hostilities can commence until Tuesday night in the war game that is about to be played between the army and navy, yet Rear Admiral Barker's fleet had the official right to start for Portland, the city to be besieged, at 6 o'clock last night. This will give the navy 54 hours in which to get to their destination, reconnoiter or deploy, as they may wish.

At 12 o'clock last night the officer in command of the land forces assembled for the defense of Portland was notified officially that the fleet had started six hours before. At midnight the work of towing the mines to their respective positions in the harbor was commenced. This will probably take over 24 hours.

Major Welch, N. G. S. M., late yesterday afternoon, captured the wireless telegraph station near the Two Lights, and put a guard into the building to prevent Electrician Burbank, who was in charge, from giving any information to the enemy with whom he is supposed to be in league.

Brigadier General Hoyt, inspector general of the Maine National Guard, was in the station at the time and Burbank was explaining to him how the machine worked when Major Welch appeared on the scene under orders from the commanding officer and asked Burbank which side he fought with. Burbank said he had rather not tell him and Welch then said that it was his duty to make him a prisoner of war and to take possession of the station. Burbank bowed to the inevitable, since Welch had taken the precaution to have with him more than three times the number of men employed at the station and it was all over with the Two Lights station.

The bridges over the Nonesuch river, Scarboro, have been "blown up." This will not alarm anyone who wants to drive over them unless he is a naval man. If he is, he cannot go. Any one else will be able to ride over them as usual. The blowing up of these bridges, of course, makes it impossible for a landing party to make good to the west of the river, and having taken care of this the army will do the rest on the east side of the river.

Since actual warfare is not legitimate until midnight Tuesday it might seem inexplicable that bridges could be blown up and wireless stations captured before that time. In an interview last night General Chaffee said: "These are merely precautionary measures which it is legitimate to pursue during the period of preparation which we are allowed before war is actually declared."

The extreme outposts along the outer Cape shore were thronged with visitors Sunday, but notwithstanding this they were doing business. The camps have all been built up in such fine shape that the regular army officers who have visited them complimented the officers and men of Major Welch's volunteer battalion.

Lieutenant Bigelow, commanding officer of the naval reserves, was an interested visitor to the camp at Two Lights, but for obvious reasons he was not warmly welcomed.

Major Welch and his officers and those of the light batteries that are camped at Silver Springs went out scouting yesterday to pick out all the places where the navy would be likely to try to land. It seems to be the general belief that there are some cable cutters among this section of the navy and every precaution will be made to ward off their attacks.

Bookwalter Withdraws From Race

Springfield, O., Aug. 24.—At the close of a long conference between Thomas T. Johnson and Charles Solen of Cleveland and John W. Bookwalter of this city, the latter issued a signed statement withdrawing from the race for endorsement for United States senator before the Democratic state convention.

To Keep Sharp Eye on Poachers

Ottawa, Aug. 24.—The affair between the Canadian cutter Petrel and the American fishing steamer Silver Spray on Lake Erie has resulted only in the renewal of the determination of the Dominion government that the next time a Canadian cutter chases a poaching fishing boat it will not get away so easily.

Memorandum Disclosed Identity

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 24.—A track walker found the badly mangled body of a man on the tracks at Sandy Beach, R. I. A memorandum book in his pocket said that he was George Russell, 21, of Valley Falls, R. I. A memorandum in his pocket asked that the New Bedford police be notified.

German Editor In Hot Water

Berlin, Aug. 24.—Carl Leid, editor of The Vorwaerts, has been arrested, charged with lese majeste. Leid stated in his paper that Emperor William intended to build a fortified castle on the island of Pichels Werder, in the river Havel.

A Vicious Slasher

Lancaster, Pa., Aug. 24. — John Brown, a laborer, was at a hotel at Elizabethtown, when he got into a quarrel with Harvey Foltz and struck him on the head with a club. Foltz was being assisted home by William Briggs, when Brown, who had been ejected from the hotel, attacked the two men. He stabbed Foltz and Briggs. Brown then returned to the hotel and, mistaking Cyrus Sherbourne for the proprietor, stabbed him half a dozen times. Foltz and Sherbourne are in a critical condition. Brown was arrested.

VERY QUICK RESPONSE

To Demands Made by Russia Upon Turkey.

A BIG BATCH OF OFFICIALS

Relieved of Their Posts and Handed Over to Justice as a Result of Rostkowski Murder—Russian Warships Leave Turkish Waters

St. Petersburg, Aug. 24.—The Russian Black Sea squadron which was ordered to Turkish waters and which arrived at Iniada, Eastern European Turkey, Aug. 19, in order to support Russia's demands on the sultan growing out of the assassination of M. Rostkowski, Russian consul at Monastir, has sailed from Turkish waters to Sebastopol, the squadron's point of departure. The recall followed on a notification from the porte that the sultan had ordered all the Russian demands to be complied with.

The dispatch received from M. Zinovieff, Russian ambassador at Constantinople, announcing that the sultan had yielded completely to Russia's demands, was as follows:

"The porte has taken the following measures to fulfill the demands of the Russian government: In addition to the condemnation and execution of M. Rostkowski's murderers and the punishment of their accomplices, those officers who made disrespectful allusions to M. Rostkowski are dismissed from the service. A careful search is being made for the persons who fired at the consul's carriage. All the officials, 24 in number, whose names were handed to the porte as objects of unfavorable comment by the Russian ambassador, are relieved of their posts and handed over to justice. All private persons mentioned in the same list as guilty of various offences will likewise be tried.

"Ismail Haki Pasha, the chief of police at Palanka, province of Uskub, is restored to his post. The persons under arrest for accusing Mussulmans of outrage and abuse are liberated.

"Hussein Hilmi, inspector general of Macedonia, is reprimanded. The chiefs of gendarmerie and police at Salonica are replaced.

"The porte has ordered the appointment of the gendarmerie of several foreign officers whose names will be announced later; and, finally, all the military, civil and judicial authorities have received the strictest orders to take measures to secure order and tranquility."

Constantinople, Aug. 24. — The porte's reply accepting the Russian demands was delivered 12 hours after the presentation of the Russian note—a promptitude most unusual in the history of Turkish diplomacy. Tewfik Pasha, the foreign minister, and Naum Pasha thereupon called on M. Zinovieff, the Russian ambassador, and requested the withdrawal of the Russian squadron from Turkish waters on the ground that its presence tended to encourage the insurrection.

On the receipt of a favorable reply from St. Petersburg, M. Zinovieff telegraphed the order of withdrawal to Admiral Krieger, commanding the Russian squadron at Iniada.

A rumor has been current that the sultan appealed to the German emperor to use his good offices at St. Petersburg in favor of the recall of the squadron.

An extraordinary council of ministers assembled at Yildis Kiosk yesterday to consider the situation in the interior and discuss the military measures rendered necessary by it. The sultan had previously sought the advice of the French ambassador.

News from Adrianople represents the situation in that vilayet as verging on a panic. The insurgents have destroyed telegraphic communication at several points between Adrianople and Kirk-Kilise, 35 miles to the northeast, and have burned and pillaged several Greek and Mussulman villages.

Troops have been dispatched to the environs of Adrianople.

Two sailing vessels crowded with Mussulman refugees from villages on the Black Sea coast have arrived at Kavak, at the entrance to the Bosphorus.

Villages Reduced to Ashes

Sofia, Aug. 24.—From eastern Adrianople come reports of more fighting, which appears to be resulting chiefly in favor of the revolutionists. Many villages have been burned and their inhabitants have taken refuge across the Bulgarian frontier. After a long fight at Stoilovo the insurgents defeated a detachment of Turkish troops, which lost 20 killed and wounded.

At Bulanikzera 75 revolutionists are credited with defeating a Turkish battalion. The villages of Amdermis and Enrik have been burned to ashes.

The Turks have bombarded and destroyed the monastery of Constantine, near Losengrad, where 50 insurgents had fortified themselves. The villages of Bakdgik, Konakara, Evren, Dingisco and Brusherva have all been burned and their inhabitants have fled. The village of Urumbeg has been burned by Bashi-Bazouks. The villages of Buch, with 300 houses, and Bakovo, 200 houses, situated in the vilayet of Monastir, have also been burned by Turkish troops. Two hundred women and children from these villages are now begging in the streets of Monastir.

—The law forbidding the naturalization of anarchists, or allowing them to become citizens of this country became operative July 3d, and will be strictly enforced. Its intent, as interpreted by the state department is, that the naturalization court records must show that the persons naturalized is not opposed to organized government in any form, or connected with any anarchistic or revolutionary movement.—Athol Chronicle.

Good Afternoon

The Shamrock III crossed the line at the finish in Saturday's race at 26 minutes and 34 seconds past three o'clock. The Ledger printed the news before 3.35. We doubt if any newspaper printed it quicker.

Mayor McNamee got after the valuation of property around Harvard University this year, and by increasing the valuation of real estate $6,669,900 and the personal $3,400, has reduced the tax rate of Cambridge from $18.30 to $16.90. The amount of the tax levy is about $25,000 more than last year.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Carrie Nation is a very good example of what women will do for liquor. The world would be better and Carrie Nation particularly so if she would leave liquor alone.—Holyoke Telegram.

☞Unless the commanders of the navies of other nations of the world are better sailors than our own, it seems as if this country might be tolerably safe from disastrous attack by relying upon our natural coast defences. We might safely invite the other navies over here to a dress parade along our Atlantic coast and trust to Nature's rocks and shoals to send them back to the repair shop as she sends so many of our own fleet.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞The University of Chicago, unable to pay its water tax! and asking relief from the city by reason of poverty! Such is the news, and if it suggests anything it is that there is too much "easy come, easy go" in the management of the institution. No matter how much a college may need to enlarge its field of education no such need is as imperative as that of paying the small simple debts that every one else pays, and the payment of which is a matter of dignity and self-respect. Hartford Times.

☞It is noticeable that the leading trade union interests of the state as represented at the hearing before the commission on the revision of labor laws are opposed to compulsory arbitration, compulsory profit sharing, state employment for the unemployed and the rest of the extraordinary scheme of state interference with the affairs of individual men which has been developed under Socialist influences in recent years, and which that party is desperately trying to fasten on to the trade unions. What the Massachusetts workingman wants is a fair show under our institutions. He isn't asking to be made a ward of the state or to become a pensioner on the state's bounty.—Haverhill Gazette.

Merrymounts Defeat South Quincys in League Game.

West Quincys Win Their Game.

The Quincys Win Two, While Wollastons Lose.

Only one game in the Quincy league was played on Saturday, the Merrymounts defeating the South Quincys 11 to 5 at the park.

The South Quincys were the only team to score in the first inning, and they were ahead at the end of the second inning, but after that they were unable to score while the Merrymounts increased their runs to 11 and won handily.

The number of safe hits were equally divided between the teams, but some of those of the Merrymounts were for two or three bases. A. Bennett having a double and a three bagger.

Patterson of the South Quincys struck out ten men, while Kolson only struck out four. The Merrymounts excelled in field work.

Wollastons Lose.

The Wollastons were defeated by the Dedhams Saturday in an interesting game. The Dedhams were strengthened by the Dartmouth College battery, Keady and McCabe, while Wollastons were weakened by the absence of two regular players.

The Wollaston battery did not seem to work well until the fifth inning, when Billings was replaced by J. Gill, and Fountain settled down, with the result that Dedhams failed to score from their out.

"Billy" Eaton was taken from the outfield and tried at third base, where he played a masterly game. Eaton also led his team at the bat, and Leach played a good game at first base.

H. McKenna played a good game for the Dedhams in the field, and Manning excelled at the bat for his team.

The Wollastons had nine men left on bases to three for the Dedhams.

West Quincys Win.

The West Quincy-Roslindale game on the American league grounds in Boston on Saturday was not a brilliant exhibition of base ball, as there were several loose plays. Reardon went in to pitch for the West Quincys, and the Granite City boys took the lead. The Roslidales pulled up, however, and at the end of the seventh and eighth innings the score was a tie at 9. Reardon retired from the box in the eighth, and in the ninth won glory by knocking a home run when two men were on bases, winning the game 12 to 9.

Quincy Points Win.

The Quincy Points met and defeated on Saturday the strong Braintree team at Ward 2 Playgrounds. Braintrees never had a chance from the start. Martell, who pitched for the visitors, received very poor support, while Froelick of Quincy Point got the best there was.

The score by innings:

Wollaston Park Defeated.

The Boylstons of Jamacia Plain defeated the Wollaston Parks at Merrymount Park Saturday afternoon by a score of 25-12.

The Boylstons' challenge said that they wanted a game with a strong 17-year old team, but they were a strong 19 year old team, being the same that defeated the Copelands of West Quincy.

The features of the game were the perfect all around playing of the Boylstons and the clean home run by Kapples, also the beautiful assist by Hay to Woodman of the Wollaston Parks.

Two for Quincys.

The Quincy base ball team won two victories at the picnic at New Downer Landing on Saturday, defeating the Roxbury club 7 to 2, and a nine from the Sunday school of St. Paul and St. Peter 6 to 2.

Birthday Surprise.

George Monk of Washington street was given a little surprise on Sunday, it being his birthday. A number of friends of the Tremont theatre orchestra called to congratulate him in having traveled thus far in safety, and to wish him many happy returns of the day. After Mr. Monk recovered from his surprise, all were invited to the dining room where a well laden table was waiting, which had been quietly prepared by Mrs. Monk. Besides good wishes. Mr. Monk was the recipient of many tokens of love and of friendship which showed the high esteem in which he is held by his many friends and fellow musicians.

Sale of Six Houses.

Auctioneer Johnson held another large real estate auction sale on Saturday when he sold six houses and 25,000 feet of land, formerly property of B. F. Curtis, to the following persons.

Double house, 3,360 feet of land for $810 to Ellen O'Keefe.

Double house, 3,990 feet of land, for $630, to Ellen O'Keefe.

Double house, 7,520 feet of land for $800 to Agastino Puperani.

Vacant land and single house 4,150 feet land to Col. William B. White for $650.

Double house 4,400 feet land to Ellen O'Keefe for $1,010.

Single house, 3,072 feet land, for $750, to John H. Dinegan.

No Large Sunday Picnics.

The new regulations relative to picnic partes along the shore of Quincy Bay and at Quincy Woods, went into effect Sunday. As a result everything was very quiet and orderly.

There were a number of family parties along the beach from Squantum to Blacks creek but they gave the officers no trouble.

At Quincy Woods there were also one or two family parties. They had obtained a permit from the owners to spend the day there. There were also very quiet and orderly.

Now that the beach is patrolled by policemen, and Quincy Woods closed, no further trouble is anticipated.

Annual of Joss Bros. Co.

The annual meeting of the Joss Bros. Co., granite manufacturers, was held Saturday evening and these officers elected: President, John Joss; Treasurer and Manager, James Joss; Directors: John Joss, James Joss, Alexander Emslie, Robert R. Smith and Jonathan Dinnie.

CITY BREVITIES.

Observations in Daily Walks of Ledger Reporters.

Sunday was a grand day.

Long trolley trips are now popular.

Miss Eleanor Nelson of Atlantic is at Martha's Vineyard.

Miss Annie S. Johnson and brother Fred, are visiting friends at Worcester, Mass.

Doctor Bamford and family leave this week for England where they will make their home.

VALUABLE COUPON.

Cut it Out and Save Half at Chas. C. Hearn's Drug Store.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, proposes to save you money and if you will present the following coupon at his store, he will let you have a regular fifty cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, containing 60 doses, at half price.

COUPON.

This coupon entitles the holder to one 50c. package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, 25c. I will refund the money to any dissatisfied purchaser.

CHAS. C. HEARN.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

He will go even further and will give with every package he sells his personal guarantee to refund the money if the specific does not cure. This is certainly a most unusual offer,—a reliable medicine at half price, with the further guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded if the remedy does not cure.

Anyone who is suffering from liver trouble, constipation, sick headache, indigestion, specks before the eyes, melancholy, or tired feelings, should take advantage of this offer. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn does not know how long he will be able to sell the specific at half price, for his sale has been something phenomenal, sometimes being obliged to order supplies two or three times a week.

As the dose is diminished after the first few days, a bottle, that you can obtain now for 25 cents, will generally last a month. And it costs you nothing if it does not cure.

A BAD LEAK.

Schooner Romance Makes for Provincetown.

And is Grounded on Beach.

Reported She Could Not Have Floated 20 Minutes Longer.

The schooner Romance, which had a close call according to a Provincetown dispatch in the Sunday papers, is owned by Frank Burgess, a former commodore of the Wollaston yacht club.

Mr. Burgess has had the Romance but a short time, it having arrived at Wollaston July 18. Since then he has been on a cruise along the coast of Maine.

The Provincetown despatch to the Herald says: With some of her sails in ribbons and water pouring in torrents through her gaping seams, the 32-ton schooner yacht Romance of Quincy was driven with all speed for this harbor Saturday, and run aground, when almost at the sinking point, upon the beach at the eastern end of the harbor.

The Romance came scudding before the fresh southwesterly gale just when the few boats of Massachusetts Yacht Racing Association that had ventured out were thrashing through a riotous sea off Long Point, and was pitched by the head, with several feet of water over her skin, and settling rapidly as she crossed the harbor.

To the spectators on the wharves it looked as if the craft must sink before she could reach the flats. Only the head sails and the peak of the mainsail were hoisted, as it was feared the exposing of more canvas would cause the craft to capsize in her waterlogged state. As soon as the craft was run aground a strong shore force boarded the Romance and with pumps and buckets partially freed the vessel, which will be repaired here.

The Romance was from Marblehead. Off Race Point she lost her tender and developed an alarming leak. The sea was very rough, the wind blowing fully 25 miles an hour. The crew could do little to stem the flow of water, and it seemed that, despite their utmost endeavors, the craft must go down from under them.

But they stuck to the brakes, trusting that the scant show of canvas spread would speed them to the sands before the craft should founder, and they won by the narrowest margin, fishermen everywhere along shore asserting that she could not have kept afloat over 20 minutes more at the longest.

Mrs. Burgess received word from her husband on Sunday, who says that the Romance is not disabled, and that she is now riding at anchor. Mrs. Burgess thinks the above report is exaggerated.

Among those with Capt. Burgess on the boat were: Dr. W. G. Curtis, Parker Sheldon, Harry Jewell and others.

PREFERRED DEATH.

A Stone Cutter Who Objected to Going to an Asylum.

Andrew Henrikson, age 27, a stone cutter's apprentice, committed suicide this morning by hanging himself in a clothes closet at his boarding house at 10 Clark avenue.

Henrikson is a Finn, and as far as known has no friends in this country. He has been somewhat demented of late and the physician who was called to see him on Sunday said he should be sent to an asylum, and it was decided it should be done today.

This morning the family discovered him hanging in a clothes closet in his room. The young man had used a piece of small binding rope, one end of which had been thrown over a hook. The rope was so small that it had cut deep into the neck.

The police were notified and Chief Hayden drove to the house and cut the body down. Life was extinct, although the body was warm.

Medical Examiner Jones was notified.

The Gabrielle Probably Lost

San Juan, Aug. 24.—Hopes for the safety of the American bark Gabrielle of Boston have been abandoned. The Gabrielle left Ponce Aug. 7 and was due to arrive at Fajardo Aug. 10. Captain Mundy was 65 years old and his son acted as mate. It is thought that the bark foundered during the recent gale.

Explosion Caused Serious Fire

Lubec, Me., Aug. 24.—Factory B of the Lubec Sardine company was burned as a result of an explosion of gas from an oven, causing a property loss of $40,000 and throwing 400 persons out of employment. Several firemen were badly hurt by falling timbers while at work between the floors.

Engineer and Fireman Killed

Little Falls, N. Y., Aug. 24.—A special train of the New York Central railroad carrying New York city newspapers jumped the track and was wrecked at Gulf bridge, in this city. Engineer Lilley and Fireman Conley were killed. A number of others were injured, but none fatally.

The Weather Forecast

Almanac, Tuesday, Aug. 25.

Warm weather will continue in New England.

—Have you seen a woman on a street car or train take two white mice out of an air-filled reticule, caress them fondly and then kiss them? asks the New York Press. Her husband was with her the other day, but the wee small pets occupied all her attention. The reticule had little air openings in the sides, with a rubber tube attachment, through which occasionally fresh air was blown, for the day was sultry and wee mousie might suffocate. "Hubby" was utilized to blow in the air. He looked henpecked and thoroughly subdued. Occasionally the woman would open the reticule, when the little white mice would clamber out over the top. Is this to be a new fad.

THE DATE FIXED.

Douglas to be Launched on Saturday.

Is a Six-Masted Steel Schooner.

Built by the Fore River Ship Company.

The six-masted schooner William L. Douglass will be launched at the works of the Fore River Ship and Engine Company, Quincy, Mass., shortly before high water at 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, August 29.

Owing to the crowded condition of the water-front of the yard, it has been deemed advisable not to open the yard to the public. Persons desirous of witnessing the launching can do so from the Fore River bridge or from the opposite shore.

RUSH TO BLUE HILL.

A Number from Quincy Made the Trip by Electrics.

Big Blue Hill in the Metropolitan reservation was the objective point of many on Sunday, and Quincy contributed a goodly number. By actual count, by officers, between 7,000 and 8,000 passed the gates to make the ascent. They were of all ages from the man of 70 or more, to the child of two years or less. Had the new Blue Hill line of electrics from Mattapan to the base had more cars, the number of visitors would have been much larger.

When you reach the top you are on the highest elevation anywhere along the New England coast. Quincy bay is one of the finest sheets of water to be seen from the top, and the stone water tower on Third hill, Wollaston, is quite prominent. One can see from this eminence many miles in all directions, in pleasant weather, and it is well worth a journey to the summit.

The journey can be made from any part of Quincy to the base of Blue Hill in several ways for 15 cents. The shortest is via the West Quincy line of of electrics to East Milton. There the Milton cars made good connections and carry passengers to Mattapan, a transfer sometimes being required at the transfer station on Reedsdale road, but there is no long wait. On Sundays there are big crowds, but on other days, the cars for Blue Hill may be taken before reaching Mattapan, as they run on Blue Hill avenue.

Another route by electrics requires a change at Neponset, a free transfer at Uphams Corner in Dorchester to a green Columbia road car, and a change at Mattapan to the Blue Hill line. Or one may continue on the electrics from Neponset to the Dudley street terminal and there take a car direct to the base of Blue Hill.

A Soldier's Gift.

Ex-Councilman George H. Wilson who continues to send newspapers each week to the soldier boys in the Philippines, occasionally receives mementoes from them. A highly prize box came by mail this week from Rene Wilson, a commissary sergeant U. S. V. at Salomague, Ilocos Sur, P. I. The box contained 25 Perfectos cigars, each encased in wax paper and tin foil. Being a soldier's gift it came free of duty.

GRAND LAWN PARTY

Church of Sacred Heart Raises a Large Sum of Money.

A lawn party under the auspices of the Church of the Sacred Heart of Atlantic, which has recently been set off as a separate parish and given in charge of Rev. John P. Cuffe, was held Saturday afternoon.

The party was held on what is known as Mahoney's field, between Old Colony and Madison streets. There were numerous booths situated about the grounds for the sale of useful and fancy articles. These were prettily trimmed with flags and bunting.

In the evening hundreds of electric lights and Japanese lanterns made the grounds as light as day. There was a large attendance both afternoon and evening, at times over a thousand being present.

In the afternoon there was a series of field sports for the children, for which suitable prizes were given. In the evening the older people enjoyed themselves with dancing, music being furnished by Cuff's orchestra.

Among those present were Rev. A. F. Roche of West Quincy, Rev. Matthew McDonnell of Braintree, Representative Peter T. Fallon and Henry H. Faxon.

Mr. Faxon had his pockets full of change and all the children had ice cream at his expense. Mr. Faxon also patronized the tables liberally.

The tables and those in charge follow:

Park and Downs—Mrs. John Derringer, Mrs. A. Boisclair, Mrs. J. E. Poland, Mrs. Henry Faircloth, Miss Mary Ago, Miss Fannie McKeon.

Squantum—Mrs. Charles Duggan, Miss Lizzie Curley, Miss Maggie Dolan, Miss Catherine Sullivan, Miss Nellie Mahoney, Miss Mamie Flynn, Miss Nora Sullivan, Miss Lizzie Duggan.

Wollaston—Mrs. Martin Burns, Miss Kittie Twohey, Miss Katherine Havilan, Miss Rebecca Clifford, Miss Annie Maloney, Miss Katie Maloney, Mrs. Ellen Granahan, Miss Katie Mahoney, Miss Nora Leary, Miss Bessie Mahoney, Miss Mary R. Sullivan, Miss Annie Lyons, Miss Annie Connors, Miss Nellie McGuerty, Mrs. James Riordan, Miss Katie Granahan.

Fortune teller's tent—Sig. Christoforo, Mrs. Hannah Duneen.

Tonic—Michael Barry, Dennis O'Neil, John Cunningham, William Ryan.

Law and Order.

The meeting held in the Washington Street Congregational Church Sunday evening was the second under the auspices of the Law and Order committee was largely attended. The speaker of the evening was Rev. D. W. Waldron, Chaplain of the House of Representatives, and his subject was "Glimpses of Progress in the 19th Century. The order of exercises was as follows:

Organ Voluntary,—Herbert Hayden.
Solo,—Mrs. E. C. Page.
Prayer,—Rev. D. L. Martin.
Solo,—Wm. F. Chicks.
Scripture Reading,—Rev. D. W. Waldron.
Solo,—Mrs. E. C. Page.
Address,—Rev. D. W. Waldron.
Solo,—Wm. F. Chicks.

The success of these meetings is such as to warrant a continuance of the same, probably every two weeks, and the committee has secured speakers of ability to fill the several dates.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Collins and Charles Anderson were fined $3 each for drunkenness at Quincy, and William White $3 for the same offence at Milton.

George N. Fenno and Walter Costello were arraigned for drunkenness at Quincy. Cases placed on probation.

Death of Naval Warrior

Detroit, Aug. 24.—Lieutenant Commander F. O. Davenport, U. S. N., retired, died at his home here from heart failure. Commander Davenport graduated from the naval academy in 1860, being a classmate of Admiral Schley. He served in various vessels during the Civil war and was retired in 1870 at his own request. He had been engaged in business here for a number of years.

The Massashusetts at New York

New York, Aug. 24.—The battleship Massachusetts, which was damaged by striking on a ledge of rock during a fog while off the Maine coast, reached New York harbor last night. She was convoyed by the battleship Indiana and the navy tug Potomac. The Massachusetts will go in drydock at the Brooklyn navy yard for repairs.

Africander Takes Saratoga Cup

Saratoga, N. Y., Aug. 24.—Africander defeated Heno and Water Boy for the Saratoga cup of $9000 at the racing park. Heno led all the way to the stretch, Water Boy running second to the three-quarter pole, where Africander passed him. Fuller rode the latter in fine style, winning in a hard drive in the last 100 yards of the route.

In Sympathy With Machinists

New York, Aug. 24.—At the close of a stormy session of the Central Federated union it was voted to stand by the Marine Machinists' union in the strike for an increase in wages. This is taken to mean that a sympathetic strike tieing up all the shipyards in New York and vinicity may be ordered this week.

RACE WAS EASILY WON

Reliance Headed Shamrock Nine Minutes at Finish

CHALLENGER OUTCLASSED

Her Skipper Outgeneraled at the Start—Contest Under Ideal Conditions Was Fairly Won, but Lipton In Hope of Better Luck Next Time

New York, Aug. 24.—In a splendid 12 to 15-knot breeze over a windward and leeward course of 30 miles, sloop Reliance beat Shamrock III in commanding style by exactly nine minutes, actual time, or seven minutes and three seconds, after deducting the 1 minute and 57 seconds which the defender concedes to Lipton's third challenger on account of her larger sailing plan as at present measured. It was a royal water fight for the ancient trophy which carried with it the yachting supremacy of the world, and by a strange coincidence the first victory in the cup series of 1903 occurred on the 52d anniversary of the day on which the old schooner America captured it in her famous race around the Isle of Wight. Reliance beat the British boat 3m. 24s. in the thresh to windward and 5m. 36s. in the run down the wind.

The nautical sharps regard the test as conclusive, although they hardly anticipated so everwhelming a victory. The race even dampened the ardor of Sir Thomas, who insisted after Thursday's fluke that his confidence in his beautiful craft was greater than ever. Still he does not acknowledge defeat and hopes for better luck next time. It must be conceded that Shamrock showed herself a wonderful boat in beating to windward.

For 12 miles the great single stickers raced like a team of horses and during that portion of the duel the patriots made no attempt to conceal their nervousness.

The racing conditions were ideal. The honors of the start were captured by the American skipper. Captain Wringe timed his approach to the line with the Shamrock very badly and in an effort to keep off until the gun boomed he almost lost his bowsprit as he luffed up to cross. Barr went over in the windward berth, four seconds behind his rival. Both were close hauled on the starboard tack. It was a magnificent sight as they plunged seaward in the 12-knot breeze, pounding fountains of spray from their convex bows and leaning to it until the water swirled and bubbled along their lee rails. The crews in white duck were piled up along the weather side as ballast to hold the great racing machines up.

The first few minutes of the thresh to windward were watched with intense interest. Both were footing like mad. They showed yards of their underbodies to windward and shipped a good deal of spray and some solid water forward. But after 15 minutes of sailing their positions had not varied perceptibly and there was alarm among the experts. Those who had expected to see Reliance walk away from her adversary were disappointed. Shamrock hung on with bull-dog tenacity and tack after tack she seemed to be holding her own.

For 13 miles challenger and challenged fought out the magnificent duel, sailing between two lanes of excursion boats as free from interference as if they had been in the middle of the Atlantic. All the time the wind was increasing and the whitecaps were whitening the waves in tumbled ardor. The critical point in the race came a little less than two hours after the start. The mark float was two miles away and the relative positions of the boats were about the same. Both were on the starboard tack, Reliance ahead, but to leeward. Suddenly the wind dropped and hauled a trifle to the west. The shift enabled the yachts to head up for the mark with Reliance in the lead by about 200 yards. This was the only thing which marred an otherwise truly run race. But from that time on Reliance steadily increased her lead in the windward work until she was three-quarters of a mile ahead. As she tacked around the outer mark the whistles, sirens, bands and the voices of the unnumbered thousands on the excursion fleet swelled into a vast chorus.

Turning for home her spinnaker boom, poised along the mast like a lance in rest, fell to port and the big sail burst out like a cloud, while at the same moment her enormous balloon jibtopsail bellied out forward. The smart work of the Yankees cheered the patriots, but a moment afterwards there was dismay when the guy which held the spinnaker pole parted or was carried away. The enormous sail soared aloft and tumbled over the jibtopsail stay, collapsing like an empty meal sack. But the spar was soon hauled back into place and then, with her three balloon sails setting like plaster, the stately yacht fled homeward before the wind.

The fleet remained to salute the Shamrock as she rounded and then with a jingle of bells in the engine rooms, scampered away for the finish line to be in at the death.

In setting her balloon jib the Shamrock encountered another piece of bad luck. One of the stops would not break out and the sails hung for some minutes like a limp rag on the stay. When both had squared away for home, it was seen that Reliance was making a runaway race of it. With her crew aft to keep her head up she skimmed along the surface of the water, leaving the Shamrock farther and farther astern. The pace was so fast that many of the tugs and not a few of the steam yachts were left behind.

The scene at the finish was soul-stirring. Under her towering cloud of canvas, rolling rythmically in the swell, Reliance bounded across the finish line. The excursion boats gathered there fairly awakened the echoes of heaven with the terrific din which they let loose. Such pandemonium can only be heard when an American yacht is victorious in a cup race. Every skipper wasted enough steam to carry him back to New York. Several of the yachts threw their powder into smoke and the patriots shouted themselves hoarse.

Then the immense concourse waited nine minutes longer until Shamrock, with a slight rent in her spinnaker, but majestic looking even in defeat, swept by between the stake boats. The reception she received was, if anything, more hearty than that accorded to her successful rival. Such tribute Americans gladly pay to the game British sportsman who has so valiantly tried to win back the trophy which the old schooner America captured from a fleet of English yachts 52 years ago.

England Admires Lipton's Pluck

London, Aug. 24.—Saturday's race for the America's cup receives an ample share of attention in this morning's papers. Both in the editorials and in the dispatches from the New York correspondents of the papers it is unanimously admitted that Reliance proved herself the better boat in a fair and square contest. Only the most slender hopes are entertained as to Sir Thomas Lipton's chances now of "lifting" the cup. Great sympathy and admiration are extended to him for his plucky and sportsmanlike fight.

Attempt to Wreck Trains

Kansas City, Aug. 24.—An apparent attempt to wreck two passenger trains on the Missouri Pacific railroad was made near Quindaro, Kas. A charge of dynamite was exploded under the engine of a train from St. Joseph and an open switch was placed for one outbound. The latter train was uninjured and the in-coming train escaped with only the headlights and the windows of the cab of the engine shattered.

Famine Threatens Cayman Islanders

Kingston, Jam., Aug. 24.—A schooner just arrived reports that the Cayman islands were devastated by a hurricane. Many houses at Georgetown were demolished. The vessels in the harbor were driven out to sea; two subsequently returned, but the others have not been heard of. It is feared that serious loss of life has occurred. All the trees and crops were destroyed and a famine is imminent.

Pure Water Plant In Operation

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 24.—The turbine pumps which deliver water to the new Fulton plant of the Ithaca Water company have been set in motion and the citizens of Ithaca and the students of Cornell university are assured for the future an abundant supply of pure and wholesome water. Cornell university loaned to the Ithaca Water company $150,000 for the building of the purification plant.

The Humberts Found Guilty

Paris, Aug. 24.—One of the greatest criminal trials in the history of France culminated when a jury rendered a verdict of guilty against Therese and Frederic Humbert and Romain and Emile Daurignac. The court sentenced Therese and Frederic Humbert each to five years and to a fine of 100 francs, Emile Daurignac to three years and Romain Daurignac to two years.

Hawaiian Loan of $2,000,000

Honolulu, Aug. 24.—Governor Dole and other territorial officers have decided to try and float the $2,000,000 loan authorized by the last legislature. It is thought here that the local banks will take the entire issue. An exhaustive statement has been sent to President Roosevelt in response to his request for information before approving the loan.

Brothers In Fatal Quarrel

Philadelphia, Aug. 24.—Frank Engle, aged 25 years, of this city, was killed during a quarrel by his brother, Nathaniel, aged 18. The elder brother was scolding one of his sisters and Nathaniel interfered. A scuffle followed, which was ended by Nathaniel striking his brother with a brick.

"Doctored" Milk Kills Infants

Denver, Aug. 24.—Complaints are being prepared against dairymen who have been dispensing milk treated with poisonous preservatives. It is alleged that in four days 15 infants have died in this city from diseases which can be traced to milk preserved with formaldehyde.

American Priest Made Bishop

Rome, Aug. 24.—The consecration of the Rev. Thomas A. Hendrick of Rochester as bishop of Cebu, P. I., was performed by Cardinal Satolli in the church of the Franciscan missionary nuns.

NEWS IN BRIEF

George C. Smith, a retired baker, aged 64, committed suicide at Fall River by inhaling illuminating gas.

Fire, caused by the explosion of a gasolene stove, destroyed the summer residence of W. E. Plumer of Somerville, on the Methodist camp ground at Sterling Junction, Mass. The loss is $2500.

Nicholas Imilio, 40, fell head first from a staging upon a pile of brick 40 feet below while at work on a building at Providence, and death resulted from the injuries he received.

SAVED BY POLICE

Life of a Syrian Editor Was Sought by Mob of Countrymen

Boston, Aug. 24.—Mobbed by a crowd of 50 or more Syrians, A. A. Zraick, editor and publisher of a weekly newspaper devoted to the interests of the Syrian people, narrowly escaped with his life on Beach street about 10 o'clock last evening.

But for the interference of a sergeant and a patrolman Zraick would undoubtedly have been shot. The two police officers arrived just in time to see someone brandishing a revolver in front of Zraick, who was backed up in a doorway, surrounded by a howling mob. The man with the revolver made a dash through when the police arrived and succeeding in escaping, the crowd rapidly breaking away.

According to Zraick, the trouble started over an article published in his last week's issue he referred to the recent massacres in Macedonia, and the Syrian colony took it up as a reflection on them as a race, and also as to their morals.

Zraick stated he had received several letters warning him that his life was in danger, but had paid no attention to them.

Wide Open Sunday at Revere

Revere, Mass., Aug. 24.—A beautiful day and an immense crowd had the effect of convincing the amusement proprietors at Revere Beach that they should keep open yesterday, and every place was running at full blast and was largely patronized. Special permits were granted by the Revere selectmen for the Sunday opening, and all were run, according to the notices posted, as under the direction or by some charitable association, excepting the Nautical Gardens and the Old Mill. These asserted they were doing a legal business under the protection of the public statutes regulating the letting of boats.

Trolley Cars Collided

Malden, Mass., Aug. 24.—A trolley car ran into the rear of another trolley on Salem street last evening. Motorman Foley had his right foot crushed and sustained several body bruises. The passengers escaped with nothing more than a severe shaking up. The dashboards of both cars were doubled up and the brakes on the colliding ends disabled. Foley's injuries are likely to incapacitate him for some time.

To Wed Boston Woman

Boston, Aug. 24.—Sir Gilbert T. Carter, governor of the Bahamas, arrived in Boston last night and tomorrow afternoon will be married to Miss Gertrude C. Parker, daughter of the late Francis V. Parker. Mr. and Mrs. Parker and their daughter passed last winter in Nassau, and in March Mr. Parker died there. Between the governor and the Parkers a strong friendship developed, resulting in a betrothal.

Bootblack Saved Child's Life

Boston, Aug. 24.—Joseph Lagoosa, aged 11, a bootblack, jumped from the end of T wharf and rescued Megallo Brigalio, aged 6, from drowning. The child, while playing on the wharf, pitched headforemost into the water, and while the men on the wharf were running about too excited to attempt a rescue, Lagoosa sprang to the child's aid and swam with him to the pier, where they were pulled out.

Crowd Kept Busy Dodging Auto

Salem, Mass., Aug. 24.—William G. Rantoul was returning from a trip along the north shore and left his automobile outside a florist's shop while he went inside to make some purchases. In some manner the machine was started and circled about among over 1000 frightened spectators until it struck a telegraph pole and was reduced to kindling wood.

Girl's Eyes Deceived Her

Melrose, Mass., Aug. 24.—The story of the 10-year-old Italian girl that she witnessed the murder of a man by his companion in the woods off Swain's pond has been shown to be unfounded. The police learned that two men took a companion into the woods to sleep off the effects of liquor and it was upon their actions that the girl's story was evidently based.

Suicide While at Prayer

Norwich, Conn., Aug. 24.—Joseph L. Coughlin, aged 22, committed suicide by cutting his throat at his home. His mother went to church and left him praying in his room. Upon returning she found him lying dead with a crucifix in his left hand and an open razor near his body on the floor. Coughlin had been acting queerly for some time.

Fifty Thousand Idle Operatives

Boston, Aug. 24.—Fully 50,000 textile operatives in New England will be idle this week through the closing of cotton mills which have adopted a curtailment policy or are repairing machinery and water power, and by the general vacation now in progress among the majority of the numerous plants owned by the American Woolen company.

Brings Suit at Age of 101

Middletown, Conn., Aug. 24.—Miss Louisa Shaller of Lyme, aged 101, is the plaintiff in a suit for $600 damages against the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. She alleges that sparks from a locomotive caused a fire and consequent loss to property owned by her.

Two Men Drowned

Narragansett Pier, R. I., Aug. 24.—While three men were rowing from the pier along shore their boat capsized and two were drowned, one of them a Swede and the other named J. Stoughton. The third man was rescued by Surfmen Card and Clarke.

Reliance at	2	15	07
Shamrock at	2	19	20

NO CHANGE IN RATING

Found Necessary In Remeasurement of Shamrock—Has New Mainsail

New York, Aug. 25.—After having removed 1100 pounds of ballast and taken on board a cable and anchor weighing that much, Shamrock III was remeasured in a dry dock in Erie Basin. The net result was that there was no change in the time allowance of 1 minute and 57 seconds which Reliance is compelled to give her. The challenger was just .03 of a foot shorter than before the change, and that difference was not sufficient to make a second's increase or decrease in her time allowance. Her load waterline length is now 89.78 feet and her racing length 104.375.

In today's race Shamrock III will carry a new mainsail. The new sail is a Ratsey, and is a much better fit than the old one.

Mr. Lipton said last night: "I see I am accredited with being despondent and unhappy over Saturday's result. Well, I'm neither. I wish we might have won, 'tis true. I am not at all willing to concede that Reliance is a winner. My boat will make a good showing yet. I also want it understood that I have not criticised Captain Wringe's sailing of the Shamrock III on Saturday."

Reliance will go out today with a new jib, but otherwise in the same trim as the first day. Mr. Iselin and Captain Barr declined to talk of Reliance's ability in a triangular race or why they had changed their jib.

Politicians In a Tangle

Columbus, O., Aug. 25.—The contest between Mayor Johnson of Cleveland and John L. Zimmerman of Springfield for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination before the state convention to be held here tomorrow is as much disputed as ever. It is conceded that the one securing a majority of the committee on credentials will be nominated for governor, as 145 seats out of 690 are contested and neither candidate can win without having all of his delegates seated.

Official Statement About Schwab

New York, Aug. 25.—Chairman Gary of the executive committee of the United States steel corporation has issued the following statement: "I know of no arrangement or understanding for the return of Mr. Schwab to the presidency of the corporation. It has been officially stated that his salary was $100,000 per annum, and that in addition he received something out of the bonus fund the same as other officials. These statements can be relied upon."

Lumber Schooner Launched.

The three-masted schooner Emma S. Lord was launched from the shipyard of Sawyer Bros. at Millbridge, Me., on Monday. The Lord is of 350 tons, and is owned by Henry Lord and others of angor. She will be commanded by Capt. George A. Erskine of Bucksport, and will be used largely as a lumber carrier.

Good Afternoon

A new world's record was established on the Readville track on Monday, when Lou Dillon trotted a mile in two minutes. It is a mark which horse breeders have been striving to reach for some time. Now to beat it.

The annual postal receipts of Quincy are in excess of those of Somerville, or South Boston, or Charlestown or Malden; in fact only eight of the 36 offices in the Boston postal district have larger receipts than the Quincy office, which are now over $52,000 annually.

"The only newspaper in Southeastern Massachusetts with the correct news of the launching of the Douglas!" This was what greeted the editor by telephone on arrival at the office of publication this morning. "We have been referred to the Ledger for the correct date for the launching; the Boston papers report it for this afternoon!" Yesterday, the Ledger reported the date of the launching as Saturday next at 4 P. M., and that is the hour fixed by the Fore River Company.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Cambridge real estate valuations have gone up nearly seven millions, and her tax rate has gone down $1.40 on each thousand. And there you are. You pay your money and take your choice.—Herald.

☞It required courage of a high order for the President to issue the order he did in regard to labor. He favors unionism, but no trade union can override the laws of the United States while he is President. What he said was founded in justice, and on such foundation it is bound to stand —Lynn Item.

☞The American warship gets along nicely in wartime, but in time of peace she gets aground and runs on rocks and collides with sister ships and otherwise acts much like some of her crew when peace is declared and they get ashore. They don't know how to steer and they run into all kinds of unnecessary trouble, and the ships in time of peace seem to do the same.—Brockton Enterprise.

Peasants Invade Princes' Land

A MILE BY LOU DILLON

Proves Her to Be Long-Awaited Two-Minute Trotter

MADE IT WITHOUT A SKIP

Two Running Horses Acted as Pacemakers and Helped Peerless Mare Wrest Honors From Cresceus, Lowering His Record by 2 3 4

Readville, Mass., Aug. 25.—Before a large crowd, and with track and weather conditions perfect, Lou Dillon accomplished at Readville track yesterday afternoon what American trotting horse breeders have labored years to produce—a mile in two minutes. Fearing that to delay until late in the day would result in a breeze rising, Millard Sanders, driver of the great mare, decided to make the attempt as early as possible. Therefore after one heat in the regular events had been decided he brought the daughter of Sidney Dillon out for the purpose of breaking her previous record of 2:02 3-4 and the world's record of 2:02 1-4, held by Cresceus. For pacemakers were two running horses hitched to road carts, Peggy from Paris, driven by "Doc" Tanner, and Carrie Nation, driven by Scott McCoy.

The first score was fruitless, Lou Dillon making a break just before reaching the wire. On the second attempt, however, the word was given, though Starting Judge Walker rang his bell; but Tanner nodded for him to say "Go," and turning to Sanders called to him to come along. Tanner Kept Peggy from Paris directly in front of the peerless chestnut trotter, while McCoy laid at her wheel. In this way the trio were to the quarter in 30 1-4 seconds.

With never a skip Lou Dillon went so smooth-gaited down the back stretch as to lead those not timing the mile to believe that her speed was not alarmingly fast. The half was clicked off in 1:00 3-4. Around the turn to the three-quarters pole the clip quickened, the third quarter being in 30 1-4 seconds, making that mark of her journey in 1:31.

Then came the crucial test. Faster and faster came Tanner with the runner and right with him trotted the handsome California bred mare. Sanders was sitting perfectly still, but McCoy was crying aloud to his runner to cheer on Lou Dillon. To the amazement of all the quarter was in 29 seconds, thus making the mile in the wonderful time of 2:00.

When Sanders jogged the mare back to the wire everybody present stood on their feet and sent forth cheer after cheer. Lou Dillon was apparently as fresh as though she had only been out for a jogging exercise. Sanders said he fully believed that before the season closes he will drive the mare in 1:59 or better.

Conditions for a remarkable performance could not have been better. The track had been worked into the finest possible condition to make the best footing for the fast one. The temperature was warm enough to heat the blood of the spirited racer and to loosen her muscles for a grand try. What wind there was blew across the track toward Great Blue Hill, whose rounded expanse showed distinctly against the blue sky and made a beautiful setting for one of the greatest horse meetings ever held in America. With the wind as it was Lou Dillon did not have to overcome such a handicap on the home stretch as she did last week at Brighton Beach, when she went the half-mile in 59s. and the mile in 2:03 3-4, falling a second below her record.

Although the first race was not called until 2 o'clock, the trains, electric cars, carriages, automobiles had landed hundreds at the track by 1. From then on, men and women horse-lovers came in thousands.

Under the grand stand there was a land-office business conducted between those who wished to put knowledge or luck with their money and place it against the experience of the talent.

Ketcham's Congratulations

Toledo, Aug. 25.—George H. Ketcham, owner and driver of Cresceus, upon being informed of Lou Dillon's wonderful mile, sent the following telegram to George K. Billings at Readville, Mass.: "I congratulate you on the wonderful performance of your mare. Cresceus transfers the crown to good hands."

Once Offered For Sale at $150

Santa Rose, Cal., Aug. 25.—Lou Dillon was bred and raised on the Santa Rosa stock farm. It is said when a yearling Lou Dillon was offered for sale for $150, with no takers. She is by Sidney Dillon, out of Lou Milton, both local animals.

Pirates Attack Missionary

Hong Kong, Aug. 25.—A German missionary named Homeyer was attacked by pirates near Nanhung. He, his wife's maid servant and their boatman were robbed and badly wounded. The affair occurred where the American engineers were recently attacked.

Vesuvius' Big Smoke

Naples, Aug. 25.—The slight increase in the activity of Vesuvius continues. The eruption is accompanied by detonations, while the stream of lava flowing in the direction of Pompeii is still slowly advancing.

FORMER ADVERSE VOTE

Has by No Means Killed the Canal Treaty In the Colombian Congress

Washington, Aug. 25.—Two dispatches from Mr. Beaupre, our consul general at Bogota, received at the state department, while vague in their general tone, confirm the view that the situation regarding the Panama canal treaty is by no means hopeless. His messages were written on the 12th and the 15th, and in both he gives it as his opinion that the Colombian congress is still trying to bring about some favorable action on the treaty, despite the former adverse vote of its senate. It is explained at the state department that when a treaty is first taken up for consideration in the Colombian senate a vote is taken to see if it shall be immediately accepted, without debate or conference. In this case the committee was still considering amendments and many of the members besides had personal views which they wished to voice. The vote in the negative simply meant that they preferred to reserve all chances until the consideration had proceeded further, much as the accused in a criminal trial pleads "not guilty."

This view of the situation coincides with the department's observance several days ago, from comparing the two dispatches of Aug. 12 which proved so disquieting, that the one which said the treaty "was not approved" came in plain language, while the message which bore the word "rejected" had come in cypher and so was rendered twice liable to perversities of translation. The contest at Bogota is by no means over.

Riot Winds Up Negro Picnic

Chicago, Aug. 25.—To prevent a possible lynching a Chicago colored man and woman were spirited away from a crowd surrounding the jail at Batavia, Ills., last night and locked up in the county prison at Geneva. The prisoners had been arrested after a series of violent encounters between residents of the village and participants in a church picnic of negroes. About 3000 negroes made up the picnic party. They took possession of the lawn of Mrs. George Burton's place and when she ordered them to leave she was repeatedly struck by two of the negro women. City Marshal Kelly arrested the two women, but was at once attacked by a crowd of 200 negroes and a general mixup followed.

Lost Water and Provisions

Halifax, Aug. 25.—After having been at the mercy of wind and wave in the Bay of Fundy for 10 days the 19-foot dory Columbia 2d, which sailed from Boston Aug. 11 for Germany with Charlie Schuz and Ludwig Eisenbraun, has arrived here. The boat stood the sea well, but the supply of water was swept away and all the provisions destroyed. Schuz will abandon the trip and return to Boston. Eisenbraun says that as soon as the wind is favorable he will continue the voyage alone.

Brutality to Soldiers

Halle, Aug. 25.—Sergeant Wilhem Nebelung is charged with brutalities toward soldiers. When in a bad temper he would tear the buttons from the men's coats and compel them to sew them on again. He forced soldiers to go through rifle drill on their bended knees until they were exhausted, and on other occasions he made men take rifles in their mouths and crawl around on all fours. The court martial has one case under advisement.

Hunting For Child Slayer

Detroit, Aug. 25.—The police have sent out circulars asking for the arrest of Charles Price on suspicion of being the murderer of little Alphonse Wilmes, whose mutilated body was found in a field last Tuesday. The police say they also have a person to whom Price recently made a proposition to get a child and cut the child open to see what was inside. They also claim to have other evidence which they will not divulge at present.

Discovery of Old Murder

Rochester, Ind., Aug. 25.—A handsomely dressed body of a man of medium weight was found by a huntsman's dog in a clump of bushes near here last evening. From the fact that the body was badly decomposed and that a heavy beaver overcoat formed part of the clothing it is thought the man was murdered some time last spring. Both sides of the head had been crushed in.

Peace For a Year

New York, Aug. 25.—A nine-hour conference between members of the New York Metal Trades association and delegates representing one of the strongest unions interested in the threatened shipbuilding strike has resulted in the adoption of an agreement, effective Sept. 8, which practically makes a strike on shipbuilding interests an impossibility for one year.

NEWS IN BRIEF

A. C. Cleveland died at his ranch in White Pine county, Nev. He was one of the largest cattle raisers in the west. He was born in Maine in 1839. In 1898 he was an independent candidate for the United States senate.

Richard Chaffee, 56, familiar to many tourists, was killed at Bethlehem, N. H. He was driving a street sprinkler, when the horse became frightened and ran. Chaffee fell from the top of the cart, a wheel passing over his body.

MANY CANDIDATES.

Six or More Republicans Want to Go to State House.

While the caucuses are some weeks off, the aspirants for political honors have begun to shoot forth their feelers, and to cause nomination papers to be circulated. This is more particularly true as regards Representatives to the General Court.

A number of names are already mentioned for this position. Among them on the Republican side are Representative R. R. Freeman, ex-Mayor Hall, ex-Representative John McKnight, Edward J. Sandberg, George E. Adams and Charles H. Alden.

No gentleman has been mentioned from Ward Three as yet, but as that ward is never backward with candidates it is safe to say that some name from South Quincy will be brought forward. It is also probable that other names may be brought out as the time for filing nomination papers approaches.

Among the Democrats the only name mentioned is that of Representative Peter T. Fallon. It is possible that George H. Wilson may again become a candidate, unless it is decided to run him again for Mayor.

Day Nursery.

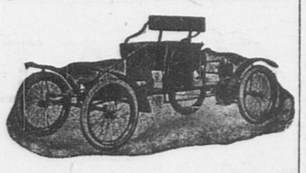

The Quincy Day Nursery Association hopes to open its rooms by the middle of Sept. so that no child old enough to go to school need be kept at home to care for a little brother or sister while the mother is away at work. The use of the nursery will not be confined entirely to the care of children of working mothers. The Association intends adding to its funds by giving for a fixed sum per hour care and attention to any child entrusted to the Nursery by parents able to pay for the services rendered. That there need be no delay in opening the Nursery an extra meeting is called for Tuesday, Sept. 1, at 3 o'clock, in the Council room, City Hall. A full attendance of all interested is earnestly requested.

CHAFFEE IS SATISFIED

With Preparations For Defense of Maine Coast

AWAITING NAVAL ATTACK

Coast Patrol and Searchlight System Will Prevent Landing of Small Boats of "Enemy" In Coves—North Atlantic Fleet Has Left Rockland

Portland, Me., Aug. 25.—So far as the defending forces are concerned the war maneuvers have developed nothing but a watching and waiting game. Almost all the mines have been placed in position and every one is in perfect working order.

General Chaffee has strengthened by entrenchments what he considered the most vulnerable point, the approaches by land in the rear of the forts, and in so doing has rendered Fort Preble, which is the keystone of the defending system, almost impregnable.

When General Chaffee had returned to the city last night after his inspection of the forts and the coast defences, he said in an interview:

"So far as I can see, ample preparations have been made to meet any ordinary exigencies and all that is left to do is to wait and see what the navy will do. If the navy undertakes to rush matters it will be up to the army to rush equally or even more so. If, on the other hand, as some of the conservative officers think probable, the naval people, taking the loss of the Massachusetts very much to heart, will not try to play around the rocks and reefs too closely, but will content themselves with laying off the coast, shooting their searchlights and guns perhaps, but not coming near enough to get into any danger, then the work of the army will be greatly simplified."

At sunset last night the coast patrol system of the defending forces was put in operation for the first time since the official notification of the departure of the naval forces for Portland. The patrol stretches from Fort Preble to Bowery Beach, a distance of about 10 miles. Without this precaution the naval forces could land small boats without number in the many small and thickly wooded coves along this vulnerable part of the coast.

A heavy artillery company has been assigned the wireless telegraph station taken by Major Welch near the Two Lights.

A searchlight signal station which overlooks the whole stretch of coast from Boone island light to Cape Elizabeth has been established at Biddeford Pool. The station is manned by four men from the Maine signal corps, who patrol the coast on bicycles for a radius of five miles and report frequently to the other stations to the eastward and to the government vessels off Cape Elizabeth.

All the battleships, cruisers and other vessels of the combined North Atlantic fleet except the collier Marcellus have left Rockland harbor. The preparations for sailing began early yesterday morning and all were in readiness to leave at 3 p. m., when the signals were set on the flagship Kearsarge for the ships to assume their positions for sailing.

Prepared For Defense

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—Newport received a mild shaking up when the troops at Fort Greble trained the 12-inch breech-loading rifles on a floating target and spent some time in practice. The vibrations were also felt in Narragansett Pier and Saunderstown. Renewed charges of 100 pounds of powder and 600 pound shells were used. The gun practice was a part of the program in connection with the joint army and navy maneuvers. Everything is in readiness for a strong defence of Newport in case Admiral Barker elects to bring the North Atlantic squadron this way.

White Men In Slavery

Montgomery, Ala., Aug. 25.—United States officers have arrested Marion Priestwood on the charge of holding an old man and his son, named English, white men, under threats of imprisonment and without trial, to work out a pretended justice court penalty of $50. The justice of the peace in the case was a son of Priestwood, and the acting constable a man in his employ.

Schooner and Crew Lost

Mobile, Ala., Aug. 25.—A telegram from Cienfuegos, Cuba, tells of the loss of the American schooner G. E. Bentley, lumber laden. The cablegram says the passengers are safe, but the crew is supposed to be lost. Eden was master of the Bentley and his crew numbered eight.

Ames Owes State $10,000

Minneapolis, Aug. 25.—Ex-Mayor Ames is still indebted to the state in the sum of $10,000, the amount of his defaulted bail bonds. The motion to have the default set aside, which had been pending several months, and has been argued at two hearings, has been denied.

Porto Rico's Leper Scandal

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 25.—The executive council has ordered a committee of three of its members to immediately investigate the leper colony scandal and make their report at the earliest possible moment. The ugly disclosures continue.

TRUSTEES AT ODDS

Over Doings at Certain Pauper Institutions of the Hub

Boston, Aug. 25.—There was a scene of great excitement at the hearing upon charges of general mismanagement of the city's pauper institutions at Long Island, preferred by Henry Dobbins, one of the trustees of the institution, when Dobbins threateningly shook his fist in the face of Walter Hunnewell, a fellow trustee, and openly accused him of perjury. Dobbins' ire was aroused by an accumulation of charges against himself implied in the testimony of Hunnewell.

Hunnewell said that Dobbins had taken away part of the records of a special meeting of the trustees and had failed to return them, although he had promised to do so at the request of Hunnewell. This, to Dobbins' mind, implied that he had stolen them because there was something in them he wanted to hide.

Dobbins explained after the hearing that the paper he had taken away from the trustees was in relation to the appointment of a superintendent, and having been read at the meeting was left to be copied. Later, he said, he took it away, since it was his own property. The other trustees believe that it was properly a part of the records, and should have been left until a copy had been made of it.

Two Tragedies on One Street

Boston, Aug. 25.—Saverio Cataldo, 26 years of age, was shot and fatally wounded by Michele Christo at the former's home at 42 Tileston street last night. The assailant escaped and the police are still looking for him. The quarrel was the result of an old feud.

In a fire in a sailors' boarding house in the rear of 21 Tileston street this morning, Charles Anderson, the proprietor, was burned to death, and Charles Matheson was injured internally by jumping from the building, his life being despaired of.

Order to Remove Powder House

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 25.—The Tewksbury selectmen have ordered the removal of the powder house situated on the farm of Porter Livingston. Livingston has been notified that as the powder house is within 500 feet of a dwelling the former must be abolished. The relief fund for the victims of the explosion now amounts to more than $14,000.

Escaped Life In Asylum

Derby, Conn., Aug. 25.—George Hester, a citizen of this town, dropped dead as he was entering the gates of the Middletown insane asylum, to which institution he had just been committed. Hester was 60 years old and a widower. He is said to have become insane over money losses. Heart disease is assigned as the cause of his death.

Cruiser Cleveland's Trial Spin

Bath, Me., Aug. 25.—The cruiser Cleveland has arrived here from her unofficial trial spin over the Southport measured mile course. The speed of 16.5 knots required of vessels of her class was slightly bettered. There were also stability and anchor tests among others. The trial, it is said, was quite satisfactory.

Cattle Disease In New Spot

Wakefield, Mass., Aug. 25.—The first cases of the hoof and mouth disease among cattle in this town have been discovered in the herd of George R. Tyzzer. State inspectors shot four cows that were found to be affected with the disease in its worst form, and the premises were thoroughly disinfected.

Thieves In Dentists' Offices

Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 25.—Three dental offices have been entered and robbed in this city. In each instance entrance was effected through the transom above the door. The victims were Drs. Chase, King and Mitchell.

Judge's Son a Scorcher

Newport, R. I., Aug. 25.—Because he speeded his automobile at a rate said to have varied from 25 to 30 miles an hour on Ridge road, William Blanchard, son of Supreme Court Judge Blanchard, was fined $12.60.

Over a Hundred Victims of Fire

Buda Pesth, Aug. 25.—Fire broke out last evening in a four-story building, the two lower floors of which were occupied by a fancy goods firm and the upper floors as residential flats. There were 200 workpeople in the building and the escape of many of them and of the residents on the third and fourth floors was cut off by the flames. It is reported that 126 persons were killed.

Headed Off a Strike

Watertown, N. Y., Aug. 25.—The Bagley & Sewall company, manufacturers of paper making machinery, have discharged the 98 employes of their foundry. The company received intimation that the men were to be called out on strike. Hereafter the plant will be run entirely with non union men.

Church Treasurer Misused Funds

Chicago, Aug. 25.—Henry T. Elby, treasurer of the Olivet Baptist church (colored) of this city, is under arrest on a charge of having embezzled the church funds to the extent of $21,000. It is said he loaned it to a friend, who lost it in speculation.

Czar to Visit Austrian Emperor

Vienna, Aug. 25.—It is definitely settled that the czar will pay a five days' visit to Emperor Francis Joseph here at the end of September. Foreign Minister Lamsdorf will accompany the czar.

SCENES OF SLAUGHTER

Awful Atrocities Committed In Macedonia

MASSACRE OF CHRISTIANS

By Mohammedan Population of a Town Whose Military Outpost Had Been Attacked by Insurgents—Unspeakable Crimes of Turks

Sofia, Aug. 25.—With the rumors of massacres, atrocities and the murder of prisoners in Monastir, now authenticated, the general situation is considered here as fast becoming intolerable. Officials and diplomatic circles are alike concerned, having every reason to fear that only a part of the horrors enacted in the interior of Macedonia have yet come to light.

Travelers who arrived here last evening from Adrianople state that a massacre of Christians occurred there Sunday morning. One version says the guns in one of the forts opened fire on an insurgent band which had attacked a military outpost. A panic followed inside the town and the Mohammedan population fell upon the Christians.

According to another version, a Turkish officer tried to force an entrance to a Bulgarian house in order to molest the inmates. The latter resisted, whereupon the Mahommedans became excited and bands of soldiers and Bashi-Bazouks attacked the Bulgarian quarter of the town.

The revolutionary committees are doing their utmost to force the hands of the Bulgarian government and the immediate outlook is exceedingly serious. It appears that the Turks have obtained the upper hand in the vilayet of Monastir, and the insurgents are planning to remove the centre of their activity to unpleasant proximity to the Bulgarian frontiers.

Dispatches arriving from the disturbed area are exceedingly gloomy.

While many of the reports remain without confirmation, sufficient authentic details are forthcoming to cause the authorities the gravest anxiety. According to the latest accounts the Turks committed unspeakable atrocities at Krushevo. The mutilated corpses of 90 women and children were found in one building and pieces of the bodies had been thrown into the street. Fifteen of the principal merchants of the town were killed and their heads exhibited on poles at Monastir. The churches were demolished, the houses sacked and the town is now a heap of ashes. The populace fled to the hills, where they are in a starving condition.

It is also asserted that a general massacre has occurred in the whole vilayet of Monastir. Nearly all the villages have been destroyed. The treacherous murder of 80 insurgent prisoners by their guards near Monastir has made an especially bad impression here.

Anarchy exists at Losengrad. Fighting is proceeding everywhere in the neighborhood. Insurgent bands have occupied the strategic points around Malkoternovo. Eight villages to the north of Losengrad have been burned by Bashi-Bazouks, while the insurgents attacked two Turkish posts in the vicinity of the same town and killed their entire garrisons, consisting of 60 soldiers and one officer. At Almogic 60 insurgents engaged in fighting with 30 Bashi-Bazouks. The result is not known.

The town of Bunar-Hissar has been burned and a part of the Bulgarian population was massacred. The rest of the Bulgarians fled to the mountains. At Burgas-Majura, after 18 hours' fighting, the garrison was killed by rebels, who also destroyed the garrisons of Silkilhor and Kalovo. At Karacunovo the insurgents killed 57 Turks, while another 15 Turks were destroyed at Kurkolibi, in the vilayet of Uskub. The outbreaks are reported from the vicinity of Kresna, where serious fighting has occurred.

The Macedonian organizations in Sofia and throughout Bulgaria are busily planning to help their brethren across the border. It is said that the rival committees have buried their differences and are now working in harmony, confident that the rich Bulgarians who have hitherto withheld their contributions on account of the committee's dissensions will now give liberally. The Macedonian leaders admit that the insurrection in the vilayet of Monastir is practically at an end, and they appear to pin their hopes on the transfer of active operations to the territory near the Bulgarian frontier. Within three weeks, they assert, eastern Macedonia will be in full revolt and then the Bulgarian government will be forced to take action.

A Call on Prince Ferdinand

London, Aug. 25.—A deputation has left Sofia to visit Prince Ferdinand, who is in Hungary, to invite him to declare publicly his Macedonian policy, says the Berlin correspondent of The Morning Post. The prince will be allowed 10 days to reply. In the event of his declining it is understood that the deputation bears a mandate from the Bulgarian people to depose him.

Turks Called to Arms

London, Aug. 25.—A dispatch from Uskub to The Daily Mail reports that every able-bodied man in the European vilayets of Turkey will be called to the colors, a sufficient proof of the gravity of the situation.

THE HAT CAME BACK

A Big Story But It Is Vouched for as O. K.

A passenger on the Houghs Neck steamer met with a funny experience the other day. He was making the trip from Quincy to Boston. He sat on the deck enjoying the scenery when there came a puff of wind, which took off his hat and sent it sailing seaward. It landed in the water some distance from the steamer. He was lamenting the loss of his head piece when the wind shifted and another puff came. The hat was lifted out of the water and went sailing through the air again, and landed the hat on the head of the eagle on the bow of the steamer. Everybody laughed. The passenger secured his hat and placing it firmly on his head kept on smoking his cigar just as though nothing had happened.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

The Adjutant Bird

Did you ever see an adjutant bird? Well, it is a peculiar looking bird that has been given its name on account of its military appearance.

I shall tell you a story of the adjutant bird. He felt so much like a soldier that he began to think that all the birds should become soldiers and go to the bird store and release the birds that were in captivity. Well, he paid a visit to all of his friends and urged them to join in this scheme, but none of them was in favor of it.

"It is of no use to try any such plan as that," they said to him. "We will all be caught or killed. We cannot do any good by making any such attempt as you propose."

He talked and talked to them, but they would not believe that the idea was a good one.

"Well, then, I know what I will do," he cried boldly. "I will go alone and release all the birds that are kept in cages in the bird store and at private homes."

So he put on his uniform and buckled on his sword and started off, feeling that he was a very mighty fellow indeed.

Now there isn't very much more to my story except this: As soon as the bird store man saw him coming he got out a big net and threw it over the adjutant bird's head. Then he took off the bird's sword and pretty uniform and put him in a cage with his other birds. And not long after that the adjutant bird was sold to a lady, who hung him up in her parlor to show her friends what a fine creature he was.

LESS THAN HALF CENT A DOSE.
Special Price Offer on Popular Remedy at Chas. C. Hearn's.
In these days of increased cost for nearly all the necessaries of life, it is particularly pleasing to find a chance to get what is of greater value than all else, Health, for a trifling sum.
Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, through a special arrangement he has made with the Dr. Howard Co., is able to sell the regular 50 cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price, 25 cents. As each bottle contains 60 doses, this makes the cost less than half a cent a dose.
So confident is Mr. Chas. C. Hearn that the specific will do all that is claimed for it, that he sells it on his own personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Out of the hundreds of packages he has sold, only two customers have asked to have their money refunded.
He will continue to sell the romedy in this way, and wants the Ledger to tell its readers that Dr. Howard's specific is absolutely free unless it cures. Even then, the cost is less than half a cent a dose, about 25 cents for a month's treatment.
Won't you call on Mr. Chas. C. Hearn, and hear what he has to say about this reliable remedy? 18-21-25-28

Chapin Arrested.

It seems that Walter P. Chapin who operated in Brockton and Quincy about a year ago is at his old trick, Inspector Rooney and Wolf of Boston having arrested him last week for obtaining goods to the value of $301.14 under false pretenses.

The methods employed were simple in most cases. Chapin simply went into a store where he thought he needed some furnishings for his home, ordered what seemed to be a fair amount—tables, dressers, clothing, anything that struck his fancy—and ordered them to be sent to his residence.

As he furnished references, the goods were sent, but soon Chapin and the goods were missing.

LEADING LADY.

Miss Clara Dickey Formerly of Quincy Appears as Glory Quayle.

Although press opinions seem to very as to the success of Glory Quayle as presented by Clara Blandick in "The Christian" at the Boston theatre, the acquaintances of Miss Blandick feel that she is on the road to success or she never would have been assigned the part. She is known off the stage as Miss Clara Dickey, and when a child she attended the Coddington school and resided on Faxon avenue.

Here are a few press comments:

THE HERALD:

"There was a new Glory Quayle in the person of Miss Clara Blandick, and the principal attention was centered upon her appearance and work. In presence, always, she was an ideal Glory, young, handsome, of splendid figure and vigor, with clear resonant voice and evident high intelligence. While a trifle nervous in her opening scene and consequently unable to put the proper brake upon speed of speech and action for a short time, she rapidly recovered her control and composure, and never lost her grip upon her character during the rest of the evening.

"Miss Blandick is a remarkably good Glory Quayle. While excelling principally in her comedy work, she rang true in her serious tasks, such as the hysterical leave taking from John Storm at the end of the second act, and in the strenuous scene in Glory's apartments, when she brings Storm back to his senses from his temporary period of religious frenzy by her confession of her love.

"It seemed last night as if this scene had been greatly improved over former presentations. There was less of the robust theatrical about it, and it seemed the real logical outcome of the existing conditions, not weakening in the least any of the sympathy rightfully belonging to the hounded and struggling priest or the distracted girl, and only made closer the bond of mental and heart union between the two principals. Never has this scene been better done by any other players. It had a wonderfully intense, yet quiet and subtle fascination, just about what the author intended. Miss Blandick was charming in her moments of love making, and always a pretty picture."

THE ADVERTISER.

"In early scenes Miss Blandick frequently offended. Glory's hoydenish. tendencies were exaggerated to roughness and her emphasis in climaxes was vociferous. She improved somewhat as the performance progressed.

THE POST.

"Miss Blandick is scarcely equal to Glory, save in the lighter scenes, where she was quite effective. In the third act her work was marred by too rapid and consequently indistinct reading."

THE GLOBE.

"Miss Clara Blandick, who had not before been seen here in the character of Glory Quale, readily won the interest and kindly regard of the audience by her agreeable personality. There were moments in the lighter scenes when she was really charming, but the more impassioned scenes proved beyond her powers. Her appearence in a role more suited to her temperament and nearer within the present range of her art will be awaited with interest, for there was much in her acting last evening to awaken pleasant expectation."

The Hustler of Quincy was second in the handicap class of the Cape Cod Bay Racing Association at Wellfleet on Monday, the Vim being first.

Boston Addresses.

An examination of the latest issue of the Boston Directory in the street section will show that after each street is given in smaller type, inclosed in parentheses, the postal division from which mail for the streets is delivered. While clerks in postoffices are supposed to be thoroughly familiar with the proper distribution for the mail which comes into their hands, it is a help to have the name of the postal station in the superscription on mail matter, and the directory may be readily consulted for this purpose. The information given therein is accurate, as the data was furnished by the Boston postoffice.

A Strike That Failed

Chicago, Aug. 25.—The attempt of the officials of the Hotel and Restaurant Employes' union to tie up the Chicago restaurants has proved a failure, not a single establishment having been compelled to close for lack of help. Out of the 9000 members of the different unions ordered on strike, not over 10 per cent. responded to the summons, and the places of those who did quit work were quickly filled with non-union employes.

What a Street Car Strike Cost

Richmond, Aug. 25.—The street car strike has been declared off. It lasted 69 days, and is estimated to have cost the street car company $125,000, the strikers $50,000, the state $75,000, and the city $5000. One man was shot and killed by soldiers during the trouble and one motorman was fatally stabbed by another, while scores of persons have been more or less seriously injured in various ways.

"Bill Arp" Passes On

Cartersville, Ga., Aug. 25.—Major Charles H. Smith, widely known as "Bill Arp," died at his home, "The Shadows," last night after an illness of many months. Following an operation in the removal of gallstones he became gradually weaker, most of the time being unconscious until the end. He was born in 1826.

Kaiser Buys Another Estate

Berlin Aug. 25.—The emperor has added his 54th residence to the 53 he already owned by buying the estate of Damm-Muehle, called the "The Pearl of Bradenburg" for $300,000. It was owned by a country squire, Von Mollank. The present residence will be converted into a hunting castle.

Canadian Cricketers Beaten

Toronto, Aug. 25.—The first day's play in the international cricket match indicates an easy victory for the United States eleven over the Canadian team. The visitors showed much superiority in bowling and with the bat. The score was 167 to 47.

Dance at Houghs Neck.

A largely attended social dance in aid of St. Francis church was held at Houghs Neck on Monday evening. John Cavanagh was floor director and was assisted by Mathew J. Connors, Dennis Coveney, Frank Dimmack, Thomas McCormack and Thomas O'Neil. The reception committee were: Francis Wall, William Cavanagh, John Dimmack, Joseph Donahoe, Timothy J. Murphy and Peter Daley.

A STORY OF WHISTLER.

The Picture That Was His Even Though It Had Been Sold.

A certain Lady So-and-so, who admired Whistler's genius to the extent of purchasing one of his pictures, never was able to obtain possession of her property. One day she drove to the studio in her victoria. Mr. Whistler went out to the sidewalk to greet her.

"Mr. Whistler," she said, "two years ago I bought one of your pictures, a beautiful thing, and I have never been able to hang it on my walls. It has been loaned to one exhibition or another. Now today I have my carriage with me, and I would like to take it home with me. I am told it is in your possession."

"Dear lady," returned Whistler, "you ask the impossible. I will send it to you when I have it again, but it is not here. You have been misinformed." And so forth, and so forth, to the same effect, and the lady drove off without her picture.

After she had departed Whistler commenced to poke around the studio, and, to the great astonishment of a friend who had been an involuntary listener to the above conversation, he brought forth a canvas.

"Here it is," he said. "She was right about one thing—it is beautiful." And it was beautiful.

"But the impudence of these people," he continued, "who think that because they pay a few paltry hundred pounds they own my pictures. Why, it merely secures them the privilege of having them in their houses now and then! The pictures are mine!"—Harper's Weekly.

Weird Music of Moro.

Moro music is strangely unrhythmical to European ears, says a writer in Everybody's Magazine. It consists mainly of a monotonous reiteration of sound, even a supposed change of air being almost imperceptible to an ear unaccustomed to the barbarous lack of tone. The Moro piano is a wooden frame shaped like the runners of a child's sled, on which small kettledrums are balanced by means of cords and sticks laid horizontally. These rather resemble pots for the kitchen range than musical instruments, but each is roughly tuned, forming the eight notes of the scale. Women crouching on the ground before this instrument beat out a wailing sound from it with shaped sticks, while from larger kettledrums, hung by ropes from a wooden railing at one side, two men accompanied the piano, and one old woman in the background drummed out an independent air of her own on an empty tin pan.

CITY BREVITIES.

Cool today.

Local news on all pages today.

Mrs. Kelley and daughter Josephine are at Brant Rock.

A well educated boy is wanted at the Daily Ledger office to learn the trade.

Edward Mitchell, clerk at the Wollaston post office is enjoying his vacation.

Several houses on Butler road have been connected with the gas main recently laid on that street.

William J. Parker, the well known newspaper correspondent, goes to Philadelphia today for a two weeks' trip.

Mrs. John Shaw of Goffe street, with her guest Mrs. Slade of Buffalo, is registered at Hotel Gifford, Provincetown.

Another daughter was born to ex-councilman and Mrs. H. M. Faxon on Sunday. It is said Grandpa Faxon would have been better pleased had the new arrival been a boy.

Commissioner Knowlton has been obliged to suspend work resurfacing Washington street until the sewer is completed. The sewer has now been extended both ways from Washington court, a cut of over twenty feet being necessary at the intersection.

TODAY'S COURT.

William B. Hussey was arraigned for breaking and entering the house of Horace A. Hussey at Milton, and the larceny of a bicycle and silverware. Case continued until Saturday.

Hussey was also arraigned for having an obscene picture in his possession at Milton, and fined $100.

Benjamin C. Banner was arraigned for drunkenness at Braintree. Case continued until Wednesday.

Jeremiah Doran was arraigned for disturbing the peace at Weymouth.

City and Country Girls.

The girl who as bookkeeper, clerk, stenographer, milliner or teacher in her village home receives a weekly salary of $5, $6 or $7 is far better off financially than the girl in the same occupation in the city who gets $9, $10 or $12 a week. In the first place the living expenses are much smaller in the country than in the city—one gets very much more for her money in the way of home comforts; the wear and tear of clothing is much less and as a rule the work less harassing to the nerves, since there is not the same hurry and rush, keeping brain and nerves stretched to the tightest possible tension, so that after the day's work is over one is too tired to go in search of enjoyment. Working long hours at muscle wearying, brain wearing, nerve rasping tasks in shops, offices, counting rooms and stores causes the city working girl to long for rest above everything else, and in itself precludes the chances of her making desirable acquaintances except such as may be offered through church affiliations, and even these she is too tired to improve.

Tiny Feet No Longer Desirable.

Time was when to have tiny feet was the great desire of all womankind. The athletic girl has changed all that, and by the next generation feminine extremities will have grown to almost classical dimensions. As it is shape, not size, that makes or mars the beauty of a foot, this evolution is very desirable, proving as it does that the change is owing to the healthy outdoor life of the modern girl. She is so much on her feet that she does not think of squeezing them into shoes a size too small for her. Never was foot wear prettier than it is at present. Well shaped shoes are within the limits of the most modest income, and as for the stockings they are simply dreams. With the demand for larger shoes the stockings have also grown in size until where 8, 8½ and 9 were worn five years ago the call today is for 9½, 10 and 10½.

THE CUP WON'T BUDGE

If Reliance Repeats Her Wonderful Performance

WINS BY A NARROW MARGIN

Yankee Skipper Secured Start Over Challenger and Held Lead All Over the Course In a Pretty and Hard Fought Contest

New York, Aug. 26.—In a glorious wholesail breeze, over a triangular course, 10 miles to a leg, the fleet-footed cup defender, Reliance, again showed her heels to Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger, taking the second race of the cup series of 1903, by the narrow margin of 1 minute and 19 seconds.

It was as pretty and as hard a fought contest as has ever been sailed off Sandy Hook, and, had the wind not fallen during the last 10 minutes, the record for the course, 3h. 12m. 15s., made by Columbia, two years ago, in her memorable race against Shamrock II., would have been beaten. As it was, Reliance sailed the 30 miles within 2m. 35s. of the record, which speaks wonders for her speed in the wind that was blowing.

Reliance's victory, narrow as it was, would have been even smaller had not Captain Wringe, the skipper of the British ship, bungled the start, sending his craft over the line 19 seconds after the last gun, and handicapping her to that extent.

At every point of sailing, the defender's superiority was demonstrated. She gained 1m. 51s. in windward work, 40 seconds on the run to the second mark, and 45 seconds on the close reach for home. Based upon the magnificent showing she has made in the two races already sailed it is the belief of many experts that the cup is safe, and that it will take something better than Fife's latest creation to even budge it.

An assemblage of excursion vessels almost as large as that of last Saturday poured down through the narrows and out into the broad Atlantic to witness the vanishing glory of the challenger. The early morning had held out but little hope of a race. A smoky haze hung over the sea and the wind was very light from the south. But as the day wore on the curtain lifted slightly and the wind blew strong and clear out of the south. The excursion fleet lined up rail to rail in a great semi-circuit to witness the start. The course, a beat due south into the wind for 10 miles, then a broad reach or run as the case might be, off toward the cholera banks and thence home again to the old red-hulled lightship, had been set.

The spectators watched the jockeying for the start with eager interest. To the unitiated it was hair-raising to see what close company the giant single stickers kept. It seemed momentarily as if their spars and hulls would clash, but they wheeled and circled, tacking, gybing and putting about with wonderful ease and grace. At last when they bounded across the line, close-hauled, for the thresh to windward, it was seen that the American skipper by his extremely clever work had again out-generalled his rival and secured the weather gauge. Not only was the challenger's captain defeated in his effort to secure the windward berth, but he actually failed to cross in time to save a handicap, an almost unpardonable sin in a cup contest. Barr never relinquished his advantage after the start, holding the challenger under his lee all the way to the first mark.

As the clean-limbed racers got farther out the weight of the wind steadily increased and the waves began to spill froth from their green crests. Both boats, with every stitch of canvas set, smashed into the seas, heeling down in the puffs under the press of thousands of yards of light canvas, until their lee rails were awash in the foaming brine. Their crews, piled up to weather, were repeatedly deluged with the showers of spray sent aloft by their shark-like bows.

Slowly but surely the Reliance gained, opening a wider and wider stretch of water between her and the challenger. As soon as Reliance rounded the patrol flotilla blew their whistles and clanging bells in the engine rooms sent the whole fleet at full speed to leeward of the last leg of the course. There the vast concourse of steam craft lay wallowing in the trough of the sea, until the yachts, bowling along at a terrific pace, turned the second mark. Reliance sailed this leg of 10 miles in 56m. 20s.

Then the fleet started for the finish line, steaming a course parallel with that of the flying yachts. This last leg was also covered at roaring speed, Reliance still increasing her lead, her wake streaming also a path of dancing white on the deep blue bosom of the sea. The guide boat, sent ahead to show the course, was too slow, although everything aboard her was wide open, and Reliance passed her before the line was reached. All the ocean-going tugs and many of the steam yachts were left astern in the mad race.

Just before the finish the wind died down, but Reliance went across in ample time to win, having covered the 10 miles in 57m. 40s. There followed the usual riot of whistles, mingled with the wail of sirens, the clamor of bells, the exultant shouts of patriots and the booming of cannon. Shamrock was about a mile astern and crossed 4m. 40s. later, to a repetition of the riot which had welcomed Reliance's victory.

The official time:

Yachts.	Start.	Finish.	Corrected Time.
Reliance	11:00:36	2:15:30	3:14:54
Shamrock III.	11:02:00	2:20:10	3:16:13

Then the great observation fleet headed back to New York at top speed, not waiting to follow the racers in. And it was well that it was so. Before half the fleet had reached the upper bay a green-gray squall out of the northwest, raising a curtain of spray as it came, struck the fleet, bringing grief to many excursionists and carrying away yacht and steamer awnings and top hamper generally. Had the squall found the racers and the attendant fleet out on the ocean race course, yesterday might have chronicled a great marine disaster.

The next race will be sailed on Thursday.

Opinions of Lipton, Barr and Iselin

New York, Aug. 26.—After the race Sir Thomas Lipton said: "You have all seen the results and the only thing I can say is that we did better today than in the last race, which is hopeful. I figure my defeat at a little over one minute. If I make as much progress in the next race as I did in this over the last I will be a good bit ahead in the finish of the third race. It is hard to admit it, but the best boat won. Perhaps with more wind at the finish the result might have been different. But I don't want to throw any cold water on the victor. It is hard to win every race in such a series and I hope our turn will come next."

Captain Barr said: "That's number 2; now we will get ready for Thursday."

C. O. Iselin said: "I don't suppose anybody ever saw two boats better handled than those two were today. It would seem, however, that Reliance has proved her superiority in all kinds of weather and under all conditions."

American Supremacy Recognized

Glasgow, Aug. 26.—There was a marked diminution in the crowds around the newspaper offices waiting for the result of the yacht race for the America's cup, and there was no excitement when the finishing times were posted up. It is generally admitted that Captain Barr's seamanship is unequalled and the experts are willing to concede that Herreshoff is a cleverer designer than has yet been produced in the United Kingdom.

Belfast's Hope

Belfast, Aug. 26.—There was a large crowd of members at the house of the Royal Ulster Yacht club to wait for the bulletins of the America's cup race, but the news of the challenger's defeat was received almost listlessly. There is still some hope among the Irish experts that the Shamrock III will secure at least one race.

No Surprise at London

London, Aug. 26.—The news of the second victory of the Reliance was received in London with little surprise. The papers devoted many editions to the progress of the struggle.

A RATTLE OF MUSKETRY

Tells of Beginning of Conflict In Portland Harbor

FORTS "PICK UP" WARSHIPS

Troops Defending Fort Preble, Key to the Defense, Open Fire on Launches From Naval Fleet Filled With Landing Parties

Portland, Me., Aug. 26.—At 1:15 this morning a large vessel, evidently a battleship, came into range and was fired upon with one round from Forts Williams and Levett, and three rounds from Fort McKinley. The vessel returned the fire of both the Fort Williams and Fort Levett batteries. The ship appeared to come in a short distance and then stand off to a point opposite the Two Lights on the Cape.

General quarters were sounded at Fort Preble, the fortification farthest inside the harbor, when the fire was opened from the other forts.

The rattle of musketry was heard in the direction of Fort Levett and it was supposed an attempt had been made to land men from the fleet.

At 1:35 the harbor near Fort Preble was filled with launches from the fleet with landing parties, and the troops defending Fort Preble, the acknowledged key to the harbor defense, were firing in force. The firing at 1:40 was general from all the forts in the harbor. At 1:43 all the forts had ceased firing except fort Levett.

Another warship came in opposite Fort Levett at Cushing's island, the divisional headquarters, but soon turned about and withdrew from the shore. It was supposed the musketry heard at Fort Levett was caused by a landing party from this ship.

The harbor was filled with smoke at 1:30, and when the batteries were all engaged the cannonading was deafening. The smoke and thick weather made it almost impossible to observe the movements.

A cutter and launch from the ships was captured by the land forces at Fort Preble shortly after 1:40.

A torpedo boat destroyer came into the upper harbor in the dense smoke and was opposite Fort Preble before she was picked up by the searchlights and fired upon by the Fort Preble batteries.

From the heavy cannonading off Cushing's island heard at 2 o'clock it was supposed a part of the enemy's fleet was attempting to force White Head passage, between Peaks and Cushing's island.

General Chaffee made a round of official visits yesterday in the army automobile. The roads towards Cape Elizabeth and the Two Lights were in very bad shape on account of the steadily falling rain. He made careful inspections of the camps of the national guardsmen and made some suggestions as to changes in the intrenchments he had ordered thrown up.

The camps of several companies of state militia were changed again, and the volunteer soldiers got a taste of the real thing, wading and splashing through the mud in heavy marching order, and pitching new camps in the midst of the driving storm.

Passing of a "Republic"

Berlin, Aug. 26.—Altenberg, the little neutral district barely covering 1 1-2 square miles and having a population of some 2500 souls, has ceased to be, Prussia having surrendered her claims, dating from the Napoleonic period, to Belgium, in view of a cash consideration that at present is not disclosed. Holland, Belgium and Prussia meet at this nook of territory. Since 1814 it has been practically a republic.

Excursion Cars In Collision

Newport, R. I., Aug. 26.—An open electric car, loaded with excursionists for Easton Beach, crashed into a similar car ahead on Bath road. The second car was wrecked and a man named Richardson was severely injured. The first car stopped suddenly to leave a passenger and the motorman of the car following was unable to stop his car in time to avoid a collision.

LOOKING FOR ALLEN

But Boston Police Are Still Ignorant as to Embezzler's Whereabouts

Boston, Aug. 26.—For more than two weeks now the Boston police, aided by the departments of all the principal cities in this country and foreign ports, have been looking for traces of Willard S. Allen, the East Boston embezzler, but Chief Watts states that he has received absolutely nothing of value in the way of information. Ten thousand circulars containing a likeness and description of the missing man have been sent to all parts of the world. The first public information of Allen's wrongdoing appeared in the Sunday papers of two weeks ago. Two days previous to that, telegrams and cablegrams were sent to American and foreign seaports, the border line between this country and Mexico, and to all places where it was thought probable or possible that the man might flee. Answers to these inquiries have been coming in to the chief inspector, but none contain the news desired.

Whether the man disguised himself in some way, and eluded the officials at some seaport, and is now safely hidden in a foreign country, is a matter of conjecture. The local police will continue to do all in their power to bring about the capture of Allen, as Judge Emmons realizes that his own personal friendship for Allen is well known, and for that reason, as well as others, wishes to have the embezzler caught.

Machinists Will Return to Work

Boston, Aug. 26.—A conference between Edgar Van Etten, vice-president of the New York Central railroad and manager of the Boston and Albany division, and a committee from the road's machine shops was held in Van Etten's office here. The machinists' strike in Boston, Springfield and Rensselaer, N. Y., was ended and the strikers will return to work in their respective shops tomorrow morning. Settlement was reached through a compromise, but all the road conceded was that the men shall be paid overtime after nine hours instead of 10.

Rubber Strike Still On

New Haven, Aug. 26.—A conference was held last night between Superintendent Pearce of L. Candee & Co.'s rubber factory and a committee of the 400 girls who are out on strike. Although the conference lasted two hours it was without result and no settlement was arranged. It is said that unless the company concedes the strikers' demand the whole factory, employing 2500 hands, may be forced to shut down.

Campers Stunned by Lightning

Ridgefield, Conn., Aug. 26.—During a heavy thunder shower lightning struck the camp of the Brooklyn Young Men's Christian association at Lake Wacoaduc and Edward Monsees and D. C. Rogers were seriously shocked, while others were stunned temporarily. Monsees and Rogers were unconscious for several hours, but after the arrival of a physician they were revived and are expected to recover.

Teachers Resign and Others Elected.

A Balance of Over $47,000 to the School Appropriation.

Rev. William J. Foley, who was elected a member of the School Committee from Ward Four last December sent his resignation to the School Committee at its meeting on Tuesday evening.

When Rev. Mr. Foley was elected he was stationed at St. Mary's church at West Quincy. Since that time, however, he has been transferred to St. John's church, and moving from the district was probably his reason for resigning, although no reason was given in his communication.

Messrs. Porter, Churchill, Hallowell, Hunting and Smith were the members present at the meeting.

TEACHERS RESIGN.

The following resignations of teachers were accepted:

Harry A. Blake, of the High school.

Miss Caro E. Wyman of the Massachusetts Fields school.

Miss Marion E. Hood of the Wollaston school.

NEW TEACHERS.

The following new teachers were elected:

B. C. Merry to the High school.

Miss Norma C. Lowe to the High school.

Good Afternoon

Today is the anniversary of the birth of Charles J. Paine who was interested in yachts that defended the America's cup. He was born Aug. 26, 1833.

Anti-expansionists can find food for reflection in the fact that during the fiscal year just ended the commerce of the United States with its non-contigious territory amounted to over $100,000,000. This includes $5,000,000 worth of gold bullion shipped from Alaska, but commerce in merchandise alone amounted to $95,518,000.

Again yesterday the Daily Ledger secured a big scoop in reporting the cup race. Frequent bulletins kept the people posted on the progress of the race, and at 2.30 it was announced that the Reliance had won. It was not until 2.20.10 that the Shamrock crossed the line. The regular edition of the Ledger, which went to press at 2.45 P. M. had a complete story from start to finish. An official bulletin at 4 P. M. announced the corrected time.

Forty-three foreign nations have accepted the invitation to make exhibits at the St. Louis Exposition. Forty-two countries having appropriated sums aggregating $6,359,660 to defray the expenses of their exhibits. Eleven countries which have accepted the invitation to exhibit have not made their appropriations and fourteen countries are still to be heard from.

Tomorrow will be the anniversary of the birth in 1790 of Gridley Bryant, the engineer, who invented the portable derrick. The school house at West Quincy was named for him. At one time he was agent of the Granite Railway Co., and was a petitioner for the incorporation of the first railway in the United States from the Quincy quarries to tide water at the Neponset river.

A Boston paper has carried out its program to the letter. Yesterday it reported that the schooner W. L. Douglas would be launched at Quincy that day; and today it reports that the Douglas was launched. The same paper will have an opportunity to report next Sunday that the Douglas was launched on Saturday, the date set by the Fore River Co. But then it is not surprising that a daily newspaper is a little off on some items on a cup-race day. These events in themselves require a lot of extra attention to secure promptness and accuracy both in printing and in bulletin service.

Drift of Opinion.

☞Five years in prison does not seem an excessive punishment for so colossal a swindle as that perpetrated by the Humberts. — New Bedford Standard.

☞Tom Lawson says he'd rather be a stud colt in a pasture with his ma than to be a woodchuck grubbing carrots for a living and in mortal fear of a gun or a trap, and therefore he prefers to continue as a stock broker than become a politician. And he proves himself a wise guy by his decision.—Haverhill Gazette.

SIXTEEN DELEGATES

Will Be Quincy Representation at Democratic Conventions.

The Democratic State committee at its meeting in Boston on Tuesday decided to hold the State convention in Tremont Temple, Boston, Oct. 1. The caucuses outside of Boston will be held Thursday, Sept. 24, the day following the Republican.

The apportionment of delegates to the State convention was fixed at one delegate at large for each ward of a city and each town, and one for each 150 votes or majority fraction thereof in cities or any fractional part in towns cast for the candidate for governor at the state election in 1902. This will give the convention about 1800 delegates.

The Quincy representation will be:

	Vote of 1902.	Delegates
Ward One,	197	2
Ward Two,	228	3
Ward Three,	248	3
Ward Four,	400	4
Ward Five,	143	2
Ward Six,	200	2

TODAY'S COURT.

Lorenzo Cacesse was fined $50 for violation of the liquor law at Weymouth.

The continued case of Frank Casner was called and he was fined $5.

The continued case of George Cameron for violation of the City Ordinances at Houghs Neck was heard. He was found not guilty and was discharged.

English Battleships.

The Princess Louise (Duchess of Argyl) at noon on Tuesday launched the battleship Dominion, at Barrow, says a London cable to the Herald.

The Dominion is the last of the three ships known as the King Edward VII class. When completed she will have cost $6,500,000.

The next battleships to be laid down will be of 18,000 tons displacement, or 1,650 tons heavier than the Dominion.

September Magazines.

The September number of the Four-Track News carries one in imagination from Siberia past Heligoland, through Scotland by way of Switzerland, France and Bermuda, through Mexico, Texas and California to Oregon, and back by way of Wyoming, Chicago, Spy Island, Mount McGregor to New York city; and all this tour graphically described and beautifully illustrated can be had for five cents without leaving your own home.

Open Tennis Tournament.

The Quincy Tennis Club will hold an open handicap tournament in singles on Labor Day, Sept. 7, at 10 o'clock. The preliminary rounds will be played on Saturday, Sept. 5, at 3 P. M. A suitable prize will be offered.

THE DOUGLAS.

First Six-Master of Steel Ever Built.

Will Be Launched at Quincy on Saturday.

Her Full Cargo will be 5,700 Tons of Coal.

The schooner William L. Douglas to be launched from the Fore River shipyard at Quincy at 4 P. M. on Saturday is the first six-masted steel schooner ever built, and is the second largest sailing vessel ever built in this country. She is named for W. L. Douglas, the famous shoe manufacturer of Brockton, Mass., who is one of the principal shareholders in the syndicate that owns her.

This vessel was started at Fore River on Dec. 9, 1902, when the keel was stretched, and since that time she has steadily grown till now her clean, graceful hull is a thing of beauty, and a worthy bearer of a worthy name.

She is built of 3-4 steel, joggled plated; is 339 feet 6 inches long over all, 306 feet on the water line, 48 beam, 29 feet 9 inches deep and when loaded will draw 24 feet.

The loaded displacement is 7700 tons, and a full cargo of coal will be 5700 tons, which can be stowed on the two lower decks and the bottom. Two large tanks for either cargo or water ballast are built in the hold, amidships.

The six masts are each of steel, with topmasts of Oregon pine, the trucks of which will be 120 feet above the deck; on them will be spread 22 sails, with an area of 32,000 square feet, which, when set, will give the schooner a sailing speed of between eight and nine knots an hour.

On the schooner's deck will be four engines for raising the anchor, hoisting sails and cargo and for moving any of the heavy weights on the vessel; steam will be furnished by a boiler, which will also supply the energy for the dynamo engine that lights the whole vessel, as well as serving the pumps and the steam steering gear and heating the quarters of the officers and the crew.

Launch at Bath.

The Elizabeth Palmer a five-masted schooner will be launched by Percy & Small at Bath, Me., today. The vessel is of the following dimensions: Length, 300.4 feet; beam, 48.3 feet; depth of hold, 28.3 feet; gross tonnage, 3065 tons. She is to hail from Boston, and will be in command of Capt. D. B. Smith of Boston, formerly of the schooner Rebecca Palmer. She has a two-tiered keelson of birch and maple, while the main keelson is six-tiered, and the sister keelsons on each side are three-tiered of the same material.

Big Ships for Lakes.

Announcement will soon be made by Cleveland offices of the American Ship Building Company, says a Duluth, Minn., dispatch to the Herald, of the closing of contracts for some of the largest ships ever built for fresh water. The first of these ships will be out some time the coming year. They are to be built for A. B. Wolvin of Duluth, and associates, and will be 550 feet long over all, about 57 feet beam and 31 feet deep. They will carry not less than 11,000 tons of freight.

HOUGHS NECK CASE.

Proprietor of Merry-Go-Round Was Arraigned

For Using Profane Language on Streets.

After Hearing He Is Found Not Guilty.

The strained relations that exist between different parties at Houghs Neck was brought out in the district court this morning, at a hearing on a complaint against George Cameron for violation of the City Ordinances by using profane language in the public streets.

The affair took place last week, when according to Officer Curtain, who made the complaint, Cameron met him on the street and had a conversation with him about his stopping Cameron from operating his flying horses. During this talk, it is alleged, that Cameron used profane language which resulted in Cameron being placed under arrest.

Mrs. Cook was the only other government witness, and she testified to hearing Cameron use profane language. Mrs. Cook, it appears, was on her piazza at the time, and hearing a racket came across the street. She testified to the profane language Cameron used.

Cameron testified that he met the officer, and after some conversation about stopping the flying horses, said, "I want justice and by —— I am going to have it." He denied using any stronger language.

James E. Cavanagh, who was also on Mrs. Cook's piazza, heard no unusual noise or profane language. Mrs. Cook said, "He is going to take him," and then she got up and went across the street. Other witnesses for the defendant, including Mrs. Emma J. Abbott, who runs a restaurant opposite the Cook place, and near the point where the affair is alleged to have taken place, testified to hearing no profane language other than Cameron saying, "I want justice and by —— I am going to have it."

Mrs. Abbott was within a few feet of the parties. She did not know Cameron but her sympathies were with him. She did not hear all of the conversation. What she did hear was by Cameron who asked the officer by what authority did you order my horses removed from the land which is all paid for? The officer replied that his orders came from the Chief.

Cameron then made the statement about getting justice, at which the officer placed him under arrest.

The officer's story was that Cameron said the Chief of Police was a liar, and the officer was too. That he also used profane language.

It came out during the testimony of the different witnesses, that Cameron had hired land of Cook and set up flying horses, paying $100 for the use of land. That he had made application to the City Council for a license, but the City Council had adjourned before action had been taken upon it; that Cook, of whom he had hired the land, upon which the horses were set up, had made a complaint to the police about running the horses, and that Officer Curtain, acting under orders from the Chief, had ordered Cameron to stop running them.

That Cameron in conversation with the officer asked why he should be stopped, and Cook permitted to run his place, when he, Cameron had also made a complaint against him for running his place on Sundays.

J. W. McAnarney, counsel for Cameron severely arraigned Mrs. Cook in his argument, for volunteering the information that she had heard the profane language, and that her statement made was not borne out by the facts or by her own testimony.

The only evidence to bear out the complaint was that of the officer.

The Court said that if profane language was used it was after the arrest.

Cameron was found not guilty and discharged.

Cost of False Noses.

People sometimes lose their noses by disease or by accidents, and some have lost them in war. For noseless persons the most appropriate organs are said to be made of wax, and the best ones cost about $175, though a really good one can be got for $75. A nose made of papier mache may be bought for $5. Noses made of this material are enameled and are deceptive, and for a poor man they are said to answer all the purposes that are required. Waxen and paper noses are, in case of disease, preferable to those made by the planting of flesh on the diseased part, for several cases have been known where the transplanting of the flesh of the nose has endangered men's lives.—London Tit-Bits.

Fight Until the End.

Life can be made a success. It is not a question of climbing above poverty; it is a question of understanding life. So many of us have been lured away and fascinated by what turn out to be phantoms and false gods! We have had to wheel back and begin over again and fight along against tremendous odds, and yet with all that life can be made a success, for success consists in doing right, in doing the best you can with what you have, of years of experience, of sorrows, of chances, of joys and of hope. Fight until the end.—Schoolmaster.

Brave and Brainy.

"The man I marry must be both brave and brainy."

"When we were out sailing and upset I saved you from a watery grave."

"That was brave, I admit, but it was not brainy."

"Yes, it was. I upset the boat on purpose."—La Vie Parisienne.

An Excess of Nerve.

"I like to see a young man energetic and able to push himself," said the old banker sadly. "But when he borrowed the money from me to buy an automobile in which to elope with my daughter it was carrying things a little too far."

Her Superstition.

"Are you superstitious?"

"Not in the least," answered Miss Giggins. "I used to be, but, do you know, I found that whenever I got to believing in signs I had bad luck."—Exchange.

"I saw you kissing my daughter. I don't like it, sir."

"Then you don't know what good, sir."—Life.

F. R. Guernsey Writes H. H. Faxon on Mexican Laws.

After the recent dispatch from Mexico relative to the enforcement of the liquor laws, which stated that Mr. Faxon of Massachusetts was outdone, the Quincy apostle wrote to F. R. Guernsey and has received the following letter:

Office of The Mexican Herald.
City of Mexico, August 17, 1903.

My dear Friend Faxon:—

Glad indeed to hear from my dear and cherished old friend, who may be 80 years old as time is reckoned, but whose heart is, I am sure, young and strong.

We old newspaper boys don't forget Henry Faxon, the bright and alert reformer, and practical worker.

Well, down here when they make a law it has to be obeyed or something falls on somebody's head. When the government says to the bar-rooms, "Close at 1 P. M. Sunday," they close and there are no side doors, no police pull, no nonsense.

Bars have to close at 10 P. M. week days and they are shut up tight.

Mexican laws are made to be obeyed, and no damned heelers and ward ruffians haunt the city halls to undo the work of respectable citizens.

Well, my dear Mr. Faxon, I hear of you through the press occasionally and it does me good, warms the cockles of my heart, to know that you are "on deck," and working in your great cause. President Diaz in this country throws his influence for temperance. He is a great man and a great patriot.

With affectionate regard,
Your old friend,
F. R. Guernsey.

Henry H. Faxon, Esq.
Quincy, Mass.

The Moon and Rain.

"When you see the new moon hangin' straight up and down, lookin' sort of sour like, you're not goin' to have rain for at least two-thirds of the month," said an old observer. "When she comes up lookin' like she wouldn't spill, then it's goin' to be good weather for two-thirds of the month.

"You can bank on that, boy. I've been watchin' the moon for weather more'n thirty years on land and sea, and the dip tells the story better than any weather prophet that ever called turns on the weather from headquarters down in Washington.

"Further than gettin' a cue on the weather," he continued, "you can tell by the color of the moon whether it's goin' to be a warm or cold rain.

"If the 'wet moon' looks red it's goin' to be a warm rain. If it looks bright and silvery like it's goin' to be a chilly rain.

"I've been watchin' Luna, as they call her, come up over Jersey for a number of years, and I haven't found her sign to fail yet."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

A MAN OF MYSTERY.

Peculiar Life of Metastasio, the Celebrated Italian Poet.

Metastasio (1698-1782), the celebrated dramatic and operatic poet, spent fifty-five years in Vienna with the Martines family without ever learning German or wishing to learn it.

Besides his utter indifference to all speech but Italian, Metastasio possessed many peculiarities of character. None might mention death in his presence. Those who alluded to smallpox before him he made it a point not to see again. In all his fifty-five years in Vienna he never gave away more than the equivalent of $25 to the poor. He always occupied the same seat at church, but never paid for it. He took all his meals in the most mysterious privacy; his greatest friends had never seen him eat anything but a biscuit with some lemonade. Nothing would induce him to dine away from home. He never changed his wig or the cut or color of his coat.

Metastasio was to have been presented to the pope the day he died and raved about the intended interview in the delirium of his last moments. Mrs. Piozzi (familiar to readers of Boswell's "Life of Dr. Johnson" as Mrs. Thrale) collected these particulars from the ladies of the Martines family, with whom Metastasio was so long domesticated without speaking or understanding a word of their language from first to last.

A CORPSE-STREWN CITY

Removal of Bodies at Kruschevo Forbidden by Turks

A RAID BY INSURGENTS

Followed by Bombardment of Once Beautiful City by Squadrons of Turkish Cavalry, Who Killed Women Who Resisted Being Ravished

Monastir, Aug. 26.—The once beautiful city of Kruschevo is a heap of ruins. The women and children are homeless, exposed to the weather and famine. The town is rendered uninhabitable by the odor of corpses which are being gnawed by dogs and pigs, the Turkish authorities refusing to allow them to be removed under the pretext that an inquest will be held.

Kruschevo is situated on the summit of a hill, eight hours distant and to the northwest of Monastir. It contained 2000 houses and 10,000 inhabitants, mostly Vlachs, calling themselves Greeks. There were only 100 poor Budgarian houses. The Vlachs are prosperous merchants who travel abroad on business, leaving their families in Kruschevo. After making fortunes abroad by their diligence and economy they return to spend their wealth in Kruschevo, where they own fine houses, furniture and jewels.

The Macedonia committee, in concert with Bulgarian bands, has been completing arrangements during several months with a view to occupying the town. In July last the authorities of Kruschevo, observing the threatening movement, begged the vali of Monastir to send reinforcements, as the garrison of 50 soldiers was insufficient to cope with an insurgent attack. These warnings were ignored.

On Aug. 2, the day fixed for the Bulgarian attack on Kruschevo, while four marriages were being celebrated in the Greek church, a number of Komitajas by prearrangement remained hidden in the church and were locked in by the sacristan on the conclusion of the ceremonies. At 10 o'clock at night they sounded an alarm ringing the church bells. Simultaneously a band of 300 insurgents entered the town, discharging their rifles. The terrified inhabitants remained indoors. The band first burned the residence of the mudir and massacred the garrison of Turkish soldiers and the officials of the town, but the invaders spared the Turkish harems.

On the following morning the Komitajis established a provisional government and instituted a new police and municipality. They killed 10 Christians who they believed had betrayed the plans of the committee. The notables of the town were compelled to contribute $10,000 to the revolutionary fund. The Bulgarian villagers in the neighborhood, hearing that Kruschevo was in the hands of the insurgents, entered the town and demanded ammunition, which, however, was unobtainable. The provisional government constructed a rampart enclosing the town and the inhabitants were ordered to melt down their spoons to make bullets.

The Turks, informed of the capture of the town, sent from Porlepe three squadrons of cavalry, which were attacked en route and compelled to retire with a loss of 100 killed.

On Aug. 13 the Turks concentrated seven battalions and one battery on Kruschevo. They made an offer to the Komitajis to allow the women and children to leave the town. This proposal was declined and the bombardment began.

The Komitajis quickly abandoned the town and escaped to the neighboring forest, where pursuit was impossible. The Turks entered the town and, guided by Turkish villagers from the neighborhood, attacked the houses of the Greek notables and ordered the inmates to be searched and stripped. They seized the money and jewels and ravished the women, those who resisted being immediately killed. A Greek priest who sought to protect his daughter was killed. The girl's earrings were torn out and her hand was chopped to secure a bracelet.

When the houses had been pillaged the Turkish peasants loaded their horses with whatever the soldiers left and the residences were burned. The sack of Kruschevo lasted three days,

Barbarism Indeed

London, Aug. 26.—According to a Sofia telegram to The Times the Turkish repressive measures in Macedonia have reached the utmost limits of barbarism, and it is evident that it is the intention to accomplish by degrees the total extirpation of the Bulgarian population. Within the last few days 12 more Christian villages have been handed over to fire and sword and the women, children and the aged have been massacred indiscriminately. Convoys of prisoners dispatched to Monastir have been murdered by their escorts on the way.

War Seems Inevitable

London, Aug. 26.—In the special dispatches from the near East published this morning a gloomy view is taken of the crisis in the Balkans. According to reports from Constantinople a rumor was current that war had already been declared against Bulgaria. It was proved to be unfounded, but the state of popular feeling is said to be such that no other issue is regarded as possible.

UNION OFFICIAL MISSING

Accounts Said to Be Short and Investigation Is In Progress

Burlington, Vt., Aug. 26.—The accounts of C. E. Jones, financial secretary of Federal union, Burlington No. 10,279, are being investigated. Jones is not here, having gone away after stating that his books had been lost or stolen. The union is composed of unskilled laborers, and John Leith has been its treasurer, but all money of the union was paid to Jones. Leith decided to resign, and asked that the books be audited. It was then that the trouble was discovered. When a demand was made upon Jones for the books, he claimed that they were lost or had been stolen.

It is claimed that 200 books have been examined and that they show over $1000 dues paid that have never been paid over to the union. There are still more books to be examined, and the full amount of the shortage cannot be stated until the examination is completed.

Jones was the man who started unionism in its career in Burlington. Under his leading the union forces have increased from about 150 to about 3000, embracing something like 30 separate unions and a central body.

Thinks Democrats Can Win

Salem, Mass., Aug. 26.—William A. Gaston of Boston held a protracted conference here last night with the members of the Democratic city committee. Mr. Gaston said that he believed the time was ripe for a Democratic victory throughout the state. He believed there was much dissatisfaction in the Republican party, and if those eligible to vote could be registered and afterward gotten to the polls, a Democratic state ticket would be elected.

Wright to Govern Philippines

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 26.—General Luke E. Wright of Memphis will succeed Judge Taft as governor general of the Philippines when the latter becomes secretary of war next January in succession to Elihu Root. President Roosevelt last evening authorized the announcement that the post had been offered to Wright and that he had accepted it. General Wright is a life-long Democrat.

Senator Hanna Sick

Cleveland, Aug. 26.—Senator Hanna was taken so ill at his office as to require the services of a physician, who stated after an examination that the senator was suffering from stomach trouble. Senator Hanna immediately left for his home and is reported to be somewhat better. He may not be able to take as active a part in the state campaign as he had anticipated.

Theatre Audience Panic Stricken

Newark, N. J., Aug. 26.—During a heavy thunderstorm the lights in Blaney's theatre were suddenly extinguished and the audience became panic stricken and rushed for the fire escapes, many of the women fainting and being trampled on. Florence Halriget, aged 6 years, was probably fatally injured. No one else was seriously hurt.

Cloudburst In Kansas

Marysville, Kas., Aug. 26.—A cloudburst struck this vicinity, causing the Big Blue river to rise 16 feet within a few hours and sending a great flood of water down the bottoms along that stream. Many inhabitants in the lowlands were driven from their homes and heavy damage to property was done. One death by drowning is reported.

Facilitates Newspaper Delivery

Washington, Aug. 26.—The postmaster general has issued a formal order authorizing the delivery of unpouched newspaper mail by baggage masters. It is required that publishers shall have printed in bold type on wrapper of package for outside delivery the words: "United States mail for outside delivery at publisher's risk."

No Trace of Mrs Kelliher

Lawrence, Mass., Aug. 26.—It is now a month since Mrs. Ellen Kelliher left this city for San Francisco, and disappeared so completely after leaving Rotterdam Junction that no trace of her can be found. City Marshal O'Sullivan has taken up the case and will make a special effort to get some trace of the missing woman.

Washington's Hot Day

Washington, Aug. 26.—The thermometers on the street at 4 o'clock last evening registered 103 degrees. Ten prostrations from the heat were reported up to 9 o'clock last night.

NEWS IN BRIEF

The attachment placed on the Videx Automobile and Carriage company of Marlboro, Mass., has been raised, and the company will resume business at once.

Mrs. Mary Masse of Indian Orchard, Mass., was struck by a freight train which was backing down a siding. Her body was frightfully mangled and she lived only 20 minutes.

The body of G. E. Skinner, manager of the Boston Rubber Stamp company, who had been missing for three days, was found in a private room above his office. Death was pronounced due to natural causes.

Hostile Fleet Makes Another Attack on Portland

DEFENSE WAS PREPARED

Two Vessels Surrender and Attempt at Landing Is Defeated—Shots From Big Guns In the Forts Responded to by Warships

Portland, Me., Aug. 27.—The enemy's fleet made the second demonstration against the harbor last night, the evident purpose of which was to counter-mine the harbor. Two vessels, one of which was a torpedo boat destroyer, surrendered during the engagement. An attempt at landing was defeated. The attack concluded at 11:15, the vessels withdrawing to Half-way rock, where at 1 o'clock eight had gathered. All lights were shown on the ships after the demonstration. One or two searchlights were seen some distance out, evidently signalling to the fleet.

The Fort Levett batteries opened fire on two cruisers opposite the Two Lights and about a mile from the fort, with the searchlights covering the vessels during the firing. It was thought an attempt would be made at a landing. A big ship was reported opposite Fort Levett pouring broadside after broadside into the fort. The Levett batteries replied and four shots were fired from the Fort Preble mortars.

Fort Williams picked up a big cruiser at 11 o'clock and opened fire on her, being answered in kind by the ship. Four big ships at 11 o'clock could be discerned firing at Forts McKinley and Levett. These ships could be seen plainly and it was supposed there were others following.

Yesterday morning's demonstration was a mere skirmish compared to what was transpiring at this time. The ships were laying outside of Peaks island out of range of Fort Williams.

At 11:10 a large ship came into the harbor showing the signal of surrender. The second vessel to surrender, which proved to be a destroyer, was seen entering the harbor at 11:15. She came to anchor off Preble. Several small boats attempted a landing. When they were discovered a general call to arms was sounded and the entire garrison turned out, driving the invaders back.

At 10:45 the 12-inch rifle at Fort Levett opened on the section of the fleet which steamed rapidly in from seaward in the direction of Whitehead passage. It looked as if the vessels were going to force entrance into the harbor that way and the searchlights in the various forts were promptly turned on them. When nearing Whitehead the vessels swung round to starboard, making a circle in the direction of Long Island, and for a time were exposed to the fire of the great guns in both McKinley and Levett.

While this movement was in progress two battleships, laying in a direct line from Cushings over Ram islands, also opened fire. One of these ships displayed a searchlight and the other was hidden by a cloud of smoke which rose many feet over her masts. The flashes of the guns were incessant and they showed there was a ship hidden in the smoke.

From Portland Head to the Two Lights all the searchlights were trained on the entrance to the harbor and it soon became apparent what was the real reason of the attack. Slinking under the smoke were the torpedo destroyers of the fleet. They were readily picked up by the searchlights on Fort Williams as they reached Portland Head and immediately there broke out the din of the rapid-fire guns. The destroyers kept on and came to a standstill in the channel. It looked as if the movement was an attack on the mine fields.

While the destroyers were removing the mines their names were distinguished. Lying opposite Cape Cottage was the Lawrence, farther up the channel was the Truxton, while the Whipple ran up to Fort Scammel and came to a standstill there. Before she reached the shelter of the old fort, the rapid-fire guns of Preble took several shots at her. After lying some time in the channel the destroyer ran back toward the sea.

WIND DIES OUT.

Reliance First to Cross and Gained Steadily.

Had a Big Lead Over the Challenger at the Turn.

New York Aug. 27, 10 A. M.—The course for the Cup race today is the same as on Saturday of last week—fifteen miles to the windward and return. At this hour the wind is southeast and blowing six knots per hour.

Signal Given.

10.47 A. M.—The signal has just been given for the start of the third and perhaps the decisive race for the America's cup this year,

Reliance First.

11.15 A. M.—The official time for the start of the race was 11.02, and the boats crossed as follows:

Reliance at	11	02	45
Shamrock at	11	03	47

Reliance Gaining.

11.20 A. M.—Both yachts are on the starboard tack, and the Reliance is gaining slowly.

Half Mile Ahead.

11.40 A. M.—Reliance is one-half mile in lead.

Gaining.

11.45 A. M.—The Reliance has gained thirty seconds since the start.

Port Tack.

11.55 A. M.—Both the Shamrock and the Reliance are on the port tack.

Half a Mile.

12.05 P. M.—Reliance has covered 6 miles of course, and is leading the challenger by half a mile.

Wind Fluky.

12.10 P. M.—Wind continues fluky as at first.

One Mile Now.

12.15 P. M.—The Associated Press reports the Reliance one mile ahead.

Wind Freshening.

12.20 P. M.—The atmosphere is clearing out at sea, and it looks as though the wind was freshening.

Half Way.

12.25 P. M.—Reliance has covered half the distance to the windward mark.

Will Finish in Time.

12.30 P. M.—If wind holds the boats will finish within the time limit. Boats still on port tack at east end of Long Branch.

CAPTAIN CHARLEY BARR, SKIPPER OF RELIANCE.

To the Windward.

12.35 P. M.—Reliance is fully half a mile to the windward of the Shamrock.

Both Tack.

12.36 P. M.—Shamrock comes about on the starboard tack.

12.37 P. M.—Reliance about.

One Mile Ahead.

12.40 P. M.—Nine miles of the first leg have been covered, and Reliance is fully a mile ahead.

More Wind.

12.50 P. M.—Wind is now about ten knots.

Three Miles More.

1 P. M.—Reliance has covered twelve of the fifteen miles to outer mark.

Shamrock Gains.

1.10 P. M.—Both yachts go onto the port tack. Looks as though Shamrock had gained on last tack.

THE AMERICA'S CUP.

Eight Minutes Ahead.

1.15 P. M.—Marconi system says Reliance leads by eight minutes.

Both Tack.

1.20 P. M.—Both boats go on to the starboard tack.

In a Mist.

1.36 P. M.—Boats have entered a mist and cannot be seen. Chances are that when next seen they will have rounded mark.

Has Turned.

1.36 P. M.—Reliance has probably turned the outer mark.

Close to Mark.

1.40 P. M.—The Reliance has not turned but is close to outer mark.

Flying Home.

1.45 P. M.—Both boats are now flying home.

BOB WRINGE, THE FAMOUS BRITISH TAR WHO CAPTAINS SHAMROCK III.

Time at Turn.

1.55 P. M.—The boats rounded the outer mark as follows: (not official.)

Reliance at	1	42	00
Shamrock at	1	48	00

Finish Before Three.

2 P. M.—Wind holds strong. Boats should finish between 3.30 and 3.45.

C. OLIVER ISELIN, MANAGING OWNER OF RELIANCE.

Eight Miles More.

2.35 P. M.—The Reliance has covered seven miles of last leg.

A Big Lead.

2.32 P. M.—The Marconi system says the Reliance led Shamrock 12 minutes and 30 seconds at turn.

Well Home.

2.35 P. M.—The Reliance is eight and one half miles on run home.

May Not Finish.

3.20 P. M.—The wind has dropped to four knots per hour. Reliance is five miles from finish, and there may be no race.

Newport Tennis.

Newport 2 P. M.—Dorherty beat Marnock at tennis this afternoon in three straight.

If there were more garden spots like Mr. Elcock's in West Quincy, or even more grass, that section of the city would be more attractive than it is. A little local pride is necessary.

There are conflicting opinions regarding the rejection of the Panama canal treaty by the Columbian Senate, but those who have studied Colombia's constitution most carefully the action is not final.

A French feminine writer suggests that every couple before marriage should be compelled to insure the future of their children at a rate of not less than 1 cent a day. The lady fails to suggest for how many children the couple should insure.

Faxon Hall is celebrating; it will be 27 years ago next Monday that the hall was dedicated, and now it is being painted. Over the entrance on Revere road this inscription still remains, and it will be regilded: "Faxon Hall, founded upon the principle of total abstinence from all intoxicating drinks by the Quincy Reform club, A. D., 1876."

Drift of Opinion.

☞The labor unions have done a great deal for their members, and they have improved the conditions of the worker. There is a very large field of usefulness for them if their efforts are continued and confined within the proper channels; but they were not elected to conduct the United States government, and those who have that responsibility, from the president down, who should surrender their functions to the unions or to anybody else, would be the object of much scorn and merited obloquy for their faithlessness to a sacred trust.—Philadelphia Ledger.

☞This talk about Gen. Miles as a presidential candidate is idle. The country needs, never more than at this time, a seasoned and level headed statesman at the helm of state, rather than a soldier, be he of the genuine brand or only the tin variety—the hero of many battles or the spectacular and widely exploited star reformer in a single engagement. Gen. Miles can afford and should be allowed to retire on his well-earned military laurels. He can add no lustre to his name and achievements by entering the political arena. Rather would he be likely to sacrifice much that he has won in his legitimate sphere of action, without any compensating reward to console him for the loss.—Fall River Globe.

☞Perhaps with a few more hundred years of civilization the world will get so good that there will be no occasion for lynchings. The main trouble with the situation now is that there are some idlers and loafers in every community who should be put at work. These fellows should be run in on sight and made to do service on some public work. There should be no hesitating in the matter. Whenever a fellow is found with no occupation he should be investigated. And when tramps, no matter whether black or white, show up they should be put at work. If every town and city were to employ this method there would soon be an end to the tramp nuisance and there would be fewer assaults on women and girls. Get rid of the idlers and tramps and much of the danger is passed.—Muncie Herald.

SUPT. B. J. WEEKS.

He Moves on from Tacoma to Seattle in Same State.

Presented a Diamond Ring at Tacoma.

As Popular There Evidently as He Was at Quincy.

The issue of the Daily Ledger of Tacoma, Washington, under date of Aug. 18, informs us that Benjamin J. Weeks, formerly superintendent of the street railway of Quincy, has resigned his position at Tacoma to build up the street railway system in the boom city of Seattle. His success in Tacoma led to his selection for the new place.

Seattle is the largest city in the State of Washington, the census of 1900 reporting a population of 80,671, against 37,714 for Tacoma and 36,848 for Spokane.

The progress of the three cities is remarkable as will be seen by the census figures:

	1880.	1890.	1900.
Seatle,	3,533	43,914	80,671
Tacoma,	1,098	36,858	37,714
Spokane,	350	19,922	36,848

The presentation to Supt. Weeks was reported as follows:

Benjamin J. Weeks, the general superintendent of the Tacoma Railway & Power company, last night called the members of the force together to say good-bye. The most convenient hour for the gathering of the car men is always a half hour after midnight, and that was the time fixed for the last meeting of himself and his men.

Naturally the occasion was taken advantage of by the committee in charge of the beautiful presentation prepared for the popular superintendent. J. S. Simpson, auditor and assistant treasurer and J. F. Fitch, claim agent of the company, had been entrusted with the funds subscribed by the men, and last night produced the handsome gold ring with the heavy solitaire diamond setting which they had purchased.

J. C. Franklin, who succeeds Mr. Weeks in the superintendence of the local street car system, was chosen to make the presentation speech. The gathering of the men in the lobby was of itself a tribute to the retiring official, and Mr. Franklin put into words the feelings of all present when he declared the presentation of the ring to be more genuinely the outpourings of real admiration and appreciation than is often the case on such occasions.

He pointed to the fact that Mr. Weeks had been at the helm in stormy times such as try men's souls. Times when friendships are often strained, many times never again to be healed. Yet a couple of months after an affair in which the recipient of the testimonial had to stand between the men and the company, the men of the company were united in showing him their substantial regard.

Mr. Franklin's remarks were cheered heartily by the men and Mr. Weeks briefly replied. He had called the men together to say goodby to them. If good feeling for himself had been generated among the men, it was hardly a tithe of the sentiment he had learned to entertain for them. Never in his experience had he had the pleasure to control before so able a body of street car employes and, as they would remember, this was not the first time he had expressed the same sentiment.

It was impossible that he should be held in any higher regard by the men than he had long ago learned to entertain for them. He only hoped that where he was going he might gather round him a corps of assistants as capable and painstaking as the men he was regretfully leaving behind here. He was leaving Tacoma with regret. The ring he would never part with to his dying day, whatever his change of fortunes might be.

To do his duty by his employers and and at the same time retain the regard of the men he must often chide and discipline, was honor enough for any man, and he was prouder of the declared regard of the men than he could possibly be of all the jewelry in New York.

Mr. Weeks then produced a supply of excellent cigars and all bands regaled themselves, while indulging in mutual and informal felicitations.

Mr. Weeks takes the train for his new field of operation in Spokane tomorrow, Wednesday, Aug. 19.

A RUNAWAY ACCIDENT

Results In Woman's Death and Her Companion Becoming Insane

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—Jennie Montague, aged 23, a telephone operator, and John F. Bannon, aged 22, were driving down a steep grade last night when the hold back straps gave way, permitting the carriage to run into the horse, which made a wild dash down the hill. Bannon lost control of the horse and the carriage was flung from one side of the street to the other, crashing into the curbing on either side until it was a wreck.

For half a mile the two people clung to their seat in the carriage. Then the girl jumped and 100 yards further her friend followed her example. Miss Montague landed head foremost on the pavement, and her neck was broken. She died an hour later. Bannon escaped with painful body bruises, but no sooner had he learned of his companion's condition that he became violently insane and was with difficulty restrained from taking his life, declaring that he was to blame for the accident. Bannon's home is at Central Falls, where he is an overseer in a woolen mill.

Four Warren Wills

Pawtucket, R. I., Aug. 27.—As a sequel to the setting aside by the supreme court of a paper purporting to be the last will of the late Peter Warren, in which his daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth Bates, the only direct heir, was cut off with allowance during her life of $25 a month from an estate of $100,000, another instrument has been presented for probate. This allows the daughter an income during her life from the estate of $75 a month. If the last instrument is proven it will be the fourth will credited to Warren.

Complaint Against Anarchist Sheet

Montpelier, Vt., Aug. 27.—A. A. Adee, acting secretary of state, has complained to Governor McCullough of the revolutionary and anarchistic character of The Cronica Sovversiva, a paper published at Barre. The governor has turned the matter over to State Attorney Bailey with instructions to investigate the matter thoroughly and if the laws justify such action, to suppress the sheet. The publication in question is printed in Italian. There are a large number of anarchists in Barre.

Murder Theory Unfounded

Boston, Aug. 27.—Medical Examiner Harris, who performed an autopsy on the body of Charles Anderson, who was burned to death in a fire at his boarding house, says there is nothing to confirm the suspicion that the man was murdered. Anderson's habit of smoking in bed is said by the authorities to have caused the fire.

Cattle Quarantine Raised

Concord, N. H., Aug. 27.—The state board of cattle commissioners announces that "the order of the board issued under date of Nov. 28, 1902, establishing certain quarantine regulations on account of the foot and mouth disease, is hereby revoked."

Want to Catch Cattle Poisoner

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 27.—At a meeting of the board of selectmen last night it was voted to offer a reward of $300 for the arrest and conviction of the Faircroft cattle poisoner, whose work has resulted in the death of several cows during the past week.

CENTRE OF GRAVITY.

Must Be Figured Before Launching Large Vessel.

Few realize the work necessary in connection with launching of a big steel schooner like the William L. Douglas to be launched on Saturday at 4 P. M. at the Fore River plant in Quincy.

Franklin Matthews in Outing says: "The launch of a vessel is primarily a matter of mathematics. In a ship of immense size it calls for a vast amount of calculation before the first step is taken in the actual work. In the first place, the specific gravity of the vessel must be figured out so as to allow for the various strains to which the hull is subjected on its slanting journey into the water with its sudden plunge, as the bow drops from the ways.

"An enormous amount of data must be collected to fix this centre of gravity. The weight of all the material that has gone into the vessell up to the time of the launching, the distribution of this weight, the weight of chains and anchors, and other materials placed on board preparatory to the launch, must all be considered.

"When the centre of gravity is fixed the successful shipbuilder knows just how to build his launching ways, and just where to strengthen them. He knows then, by a little calculation, how long each part of the vessel will be subject to certain strains and how to best prepare for them. He can figure almost to the second how long the ship will be in sliding into the water."

Investigating Land Grab

Washington, Aug. 27.—A vigorous and exhaustive investigation of the Indian territory scandals, which have revealed an organized system of graft, involving lands worth at least $150,000,000, is about to be instituted. A special examiner will proceed at once to Indian territory, and will carefully scrutinize the alleged connection of United States Marshal Colbert with the Tribal Development company and other concerns engaged in securing control of the Indian lands.

A Hot-Tempered Judge

Little Rock, Aug. 27.—Judge Carroll L. Wood of the Arkansas supreme court, who is opposing Governor Davis as a candidate for a third time, knocked Governor Davis off a speaking stand to the ground, during the campaign at Bismarck. Governor Davis was not hurt and his friends prevented further trouble. Wood was arrested on a charge of assault and battery. Later the matter was adjusted and Wood returned to Little Rock.

No Polish Bishop In America

Rome, Aug. 27.—Rev. Wenceslaus Kruszka, deputy of the Catholic Polish congress of the United States, and R. B. Mahany, general counsel for that body, are in Rome trying to obtain the appointment of a Polish bishop in the United States, to have jurisdiction over all American Polish Catholics. Their proposal has been received coldly both by the Vatican and the congregation of the propaganda and it is not likely to be accepted.

To Investigate British Project

Basel, Aug. 27.—The Zionist congress on the British proposal to set apart a portion of British East Africa for colonization by the Jews has closed. The congress, by 225 votes to 177, adopted a resolution to appoint a committee of nine who should be sent on an expedition to East Africa to investigate the situation. The Russian delegates opposed the project and left the hall as a protest.

"Our forecast man gets a good rest in July and August."

"How's that?"

"Why, when a lot of convention and excursionists are coming to town the hot weather just naturally runs itself."

PLEA OF MACEDONIANS

Powers Asked to Check Pouring Out of Blood

WILL BE NOBODY TO SAVE

If Present Conditions Continue Another Fortnight—Demand Appointment of Christian Governor—Seventy Villages Already Destroyed

Sofia, Aug. 27.—An immense mass meeting of Macedonins took place here yesterday afternoon. The proceedings were most enthusiastic. It was resolved that a memorandum should be presented to the representatives of the great powers here, urging their governments to take action.

The recent visit of the Russian squadron to Turkish waters was much commented upon at the meeting. It was described as "a moment of sunshine which quickly passed." The speakers appealed for the immediate intervention of the powers in Macedonia, declaring that if the pouring out of blood in Mcedonia continued another fortnight Europe would find nobody there to save. The Bulgarian ministers were urged not to stand by while their brethren were dying in Macedonia.

Resolutions were also adopted thanking the publicists who have defended the cause of the Macedonians; regretting the hesitation on the part of Europe to take steps to ameliorate the lot of the Christians in Turkey; demanding the appointment of a powerful Christian governor who would ensure security for the country, and inviting all Bulgarians to aid in securing the triumph of the work already commenced.

The Macedonian committee has issued a black-bordered list of 70 villages which have been pillaged and destroyed in the vilayet of Monastir, to which are added instances of revolting outrages perpetrated on women. The publication of this sheet has created a sensation.

No news was received in official circles yesterday from the interior of Macedonia. The revolutionists at Kischevo are reported to have six quick-firing guns. In a fight which has just occurred in that district the insurgents defeated and slaughtered an entire detachment of 80 soldiers. A Turkish courier carrying 40,000 francs intended for the pay of the troops was captured by insurgents near Surovitchovo. The rebels have blown up an iron bridge over a deep ravine on the high road between Losengrad and Demirdgeland.

Rumors are current here of serious massacres at Vasiliko and Kirk-Kilisseh. Three hundred persons are said to have been killed. Details and confirmation are lacking.

Turkey Says Bulgaria Is at Fault

Vienna, Aug. 27.—It is stated that the porte is preparing an answer to the recent Bulgarian memorandum to the powers by a note declaring Bulgaria to be directly responsible for the rising in the vilayet of Adrianople and declining to be answerable for the consequences.

As Viewed by General Wallace

Crawfordsville, Ind., Aug. 27.—General Lew Wallace, former United States minister to Turkey, when asked last night for a statement regarding Macedonia and whether the United States should take any action toward stopping the outbreaks and massacres, said: "There is nothing in the Turkish situation with which the American government has to do. If there are atrocities being perpetrated by the Turks, it is for the European powers to act, not us, and this will continue while the old Berlin treaty endures. In the next place, who is in the right? As I understand it the sultan is simply defending the integrity of his empire and he is a poor Christian who would deny him that much. It is not out of memory that we had a rebellion on our country. It is also to be remembered that we put it down, and no foreign country was allowed to interfere."

Hood's Pills

May Meet Predecessor's Fate

London, Aug. 27.—The Daily Mail's correspondent at Belgrade says King Peter is determined to suppress the military malcontents with an iron hand. On Tuesday three army colonels, two captains and a newspaper editor were condemned to death for participation in a plot which was discovered and rendered abortive. Despite this, however, the king is obviously in the hands of the recent regicides, who are causing a veritable reign of terror.

Rat Bite Proved Fatal

Cambria, Wis., Aug. 27.—David G. Williams, aged 63 years, who was bitten by a rat two weeks ago, died from blood poisoning which resulted from the bite. Mr. Williams was a member of the lower house of the last legislature. He served in the Civil war.

Defeat Will Not Dismay

New York, Aug. 27.—Sir Thomas Lipton said, in response to a telegram hoping that he would win today: "I have not lost hope and I shall fight and die hard. If I cannot win I will take defeat in the proper spirit."

Strike Lasted Many Months

Ashland, Ky., Aug. 27.—The strike at the sheet steel and iron mills here has been amicably settled. The strike was declared Feb. 6 last. It has been bitterly fought and several clashes between non-union men and sympathizers have occurred. For some months no attempt had been made to operate the mill. Nearly 300 men are affected by the settlement. The cause of the strike was a disagreement over the wage scale. Operations will be resumed at once.

Hungary Short of Recruits

Vienna, Aug. 27.—A hundred thousand Austro-Hungarian troops, whose three years' service expires in September, must remain with the colors until the end of 1903, in consequence of the Hungarian diet not passing the bill providing for the annual quota of recruits from Hungary. The order is a severe blow to the farmers.

Powers' Counsel Blames Youtsey

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 27.—For 8½ hours the jury trying Caleb Powers for conspiracy to murder Governor Goebel listened to the argument of counsel for the commonwealth and defense. The line of argument followed by Powers' counsel is that Henry Youtsey, of his own volition, did the killing.

Perhaps Robbed and Murdered

Tunkhannock, Pa., Aug. 27.—William Keyes of this place went to New York last week with, it is said, $2800 in his possession to bet on the yacht race. Word was received here yesterday that his body was found in the river at New York and that no money was found on his person.

Senator Gorman's Son a Winner

Baltimore, Aug. 27.—Colonel A. P. Gorman, Jr., son of United States Senator Gorman, was nominated by the Howard county Democratic convention for the state senate. Gorman is 30 years of age and begins his political career where his father began 30 years ago.

JUDGE BOSSON'S DECISION

May Stop All Sunday Amusements For Which Expenses Are Incurred

Chelsea, Mass., Aug. 27.—Judge Bosson gave a decision in police court here, which if it is later backed up by the supreme court, will put an end to nearly all Sunday amusement enterprises. The only way in which amusements could hereafter be operated on the Lord's day would be in violation of the statutes and with the consent of officers of the law to overlook the offense.

The decision was given in the case of E. L. D. Turner, who was charged with operating the show known as the Johnstown flood at Revere beach on Sunday, Aug 9. Turner had plenty of evidence to show that the amusement which he was operating was being run for the benefit of a charity, the Ladies' Benevolent society. He held that he had a perfect right to operate the place on the Sabbath, when he was serving as acting manager for the charity which he represented and was not the regular week-day manager. The point raised at the trial was as to whether the fact that money had been paid out of the receipts for the hire of the hall, water, rent, lights and other incidentals, violated the law which states that the proceeds shall be given to charity or not. The whole question in this case depended on the interpretation of the single word "proceeds" as given in the statutes.

Judge Bosson said he thought the word as used in the statutes meant the entire amount of money received and that it would, therefore, be unlawful to pay out of it for expenses. He then fined Turner $100. An appeal was taken and the defendant was held in $300 bonds for his appearance before the superior court.

Wonderful Show by Vesuvius

Naples, Aug. 27.—The people of Naples and the environs witnessed a remarkable spectacle at noon yesterday. One thousand feet below the central cone of Vesuvius, the volcano opened like a huge mouth, out of which belched a fiery stream of lava which ran down the side of the mountain. The eruption occurred without any warning whatever. There was no earthquake, detonation or rain of ashes; nothing but a clear stream of lava and red hot stones, which were thrown to a height of 700 feet, producing an extremely beautiful effect. The stream of lava, which is 15 feet broad, has covered a distance of 2700 feet.

Julia—"Haven't you heard anything of that great healer who effected such wonderful cures by holding people's hands?"

May—"No."

Julia—"Why, it is very interesting. Tom spent an hour last night in showing me just how the man held the patient's hand."

OH MY! OH MY! OH ME!

One of the Best Collection of Dahlias in New England.

At Residence of Mr. George F. Elcock.

One Hundred and Twenty-Five Different Varieties.

Lovers of flowers will be well repaid by a visit to West Quincy to inspect the flower garden of George F. Elcock on Copeland street. Passengers on the electric cars are often heard to make exclamations of delight as the car passes Mr. Elcock's residence.

While the view thus obtained is a pretty one, it needs a close inspection to fully appreciate his display.

In the centre of his two flower gardens are large cannas, each eleven feet high. Surrounding these are many geraniums and hundreds of dahlias.

Mr. Elcock's specialty is dahlias, and he undoubtedly has the best collection in New England outside of those who make a specialty of raising these flowers for exhibition purposes.

Mr. Elcock has 125 different varieties, all of which are imported, and were obtained from John K. Alexander of East Bridgewater, who captures prizes wherever he exhibits.

Mr. Elcock has dahlia blossoms of all sizes and colors, from the little pompon to the large show, fancy and decorative species. The largest he has is one known as the "Mrs. Charles Turner." It is a yellow, and its circumference is 21 inches.

He also has a very rare dahlia which he calls the St. Patrick. It is a very dark green blossom. To this he has grafted a Brittish red. This has resulted in producing a peculiar blossom. From a branch of the stalk there has bloomed a deep red flower the center of which is a dark green, from this there are three shoots each having a green blossom. This Mr. Elcock has named the Home Rule blossom, as the green is above the red. It is a novelty, and is probably the first of its kind ever grown.

Then he has the blossom called the American Flag. This shows the colors red, white and blue. Another thing in the way of a novelty, is the growing of seven different colored flowers on one stalk, the tinting on these being very delicate and handsome.

It is hard for one to tell which is the handsomest of those shown, for there is really no choice. At first one might think the "Gem of Beauty," a flesh colored flower, dark tipped, was the best, then the eye would light on a "Gold Sphere," which is a crimson flower with a gold back.

Then there is a soft pink, a pure white edged with lavender, a light or a dark orange, a salmon, a blush with a purple edge, a marguerite, a white striped with maroon, a plum, a sulphur yellow, a pale primrose, a yellow tipped with red, a cherry, a mauve, a deep velvety maroon, and so on through the list.

They are all handsome and when one is given a bunch of a number of the different varities he has a bouquet that for beauty cannot be excelled.

As stated above, Mr. Elcock has 125 varieties and at the present time he estimates that he has something like 4,000 blossoms. What makes the show all the more enjoyable is that he does not raise them as a business, but simply because he loves flowers, and his hobby is dahlias.

for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Undoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

VALUABLE COUPON

Cut it Out and Save Half at Chas. C. Hearn's Drug Store.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, proposes to save you money and if you will present the following coupon at his store, he will let you have a regular fifty cent package of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, containing 60 dose, at half price.

COUPON.

This coupon entitles the holder to one 50c. package of Dr. Howard's specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half price, 25c. I will refund the money to any dissatisfied purchaser.

CHAS. C. HEARN.

TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

He will go even further and will give with every package he sells his personal guarantee to refund the money if the specific does not cure. This is certainly a most unusual offer,—a reliable medicine at half price, with the further guarantee that your money will be cheerfully refunded if the remedy does not cure.

Anyone who is suffering from liver trouble, constipation, sick headache, indigestion, specks before the eyes, melancholy, or tired feelings, should take advantage of this offer. Mr. Chas. C. Hearn does not know how long he will be able to sell the specific at half price, for his sale has been something phenomenal, sometimes being obliged to order supplies two or three times a week.

As the dose is diminished after the first few days, a bottle, that you can obtain now for 25 cents, will generally last a month. And it costs you nothing if it does not cure.

THE OHIO DEMOCRACY

Choose Tom Johnson as Their Candidate For Governor

THE ONLY NAME PRESENTED

Clarke, a Lawyer, Will Endeavor to Wrest Senatorial Honors From Hanna—Bryan-Johnson Element Will Control National Delegates

Columbus, O., Aug. 27.—The Johnson program was carried out completely in the Democratic state convention. Although the opposition obstructed the proceedings with minority reports for some hours, the name of John L. Zimmerman was not presented for the gubernatorial nomination and every nomination on the state ticket, including Tom L. Johnson for governor, was made by acclamation. Even after the chair announced that the name of Mayor Johnson was the only one before the convention for governor, there were some dissenting Zimmerman votes on the motion to make the nomination unanimous, but the Zimmerman supporters subsided after the selections for governor and senator were made. The following ticket was nominated:

Governor, Tom L. Johnson; lieutenant governor, F. B. Niles; attorney general, F. S. Monnett; state treasurer, V. J. Dahl; auditor, C. A. Kloeb; commissioner of schools, J. H. Secrist; member board of public works, W. B. Jones; supreme judge, E. J. Dempsey. John H. Clarke of Cleveland was endorsed for United States senator.

The opposition, by various obstruction movements, kept the convention in continuous session for about seven hours. While minority reports were presented from the committees the only fight that worried the Johnson managers was on the senatorship. The only ballots, forced on the dominant element, were in that contest. The minority report on rules and order of business, which was intended to oust the endorsement of a senatorial candidate, was defeated by a vote of 211 ayes to 446 nays, which was considered a test vote between Johnson and Zimmerman, after all the contested seats had been decided in favor of the former.

On naming the candidate for senator, the Johnson supporters were divided among themselves. Mayor Johnson and former Congressman Lentz have been very close personally and politically for years, but an intensely bitter feeling now exists between them, at least on the part of Lentz, who openly accused Johnson with favoring for senator a man who had voted against Bryan.

Zimmerman had intended voting for Clark, the Johnson candidate for senator, as they said he represented their conservative views, but when Lentz opened a fight on Johnson on the senatorial candidate the opposition resumed its obstructive tactics and voted for Lentz for senator, thus driving the Johnson faction to the second ballot. After the first ballot the Johnson men made a terrific effort on the floor of the convention to name Clark on the second ballot and succeeded.

John H. Clarke, who will canvass the state with Mayor Johnson and other Democrats, has been a prominent attorney at Youngstown for many years, but now he is located in Cleveland, which city has the Republican as well as the Democratic candidates for senator and governor.

Next to the commanding presence of Johnson was the part of Clarke in the convention. He made two masterly speeches, one presenting the name of Johnson and the other in accepting the senatorial nomination. Mr. Clarke intimated that he would ask Senator Hanna for joint debates during the campaign.

The convention was as distinctly with Bryan on national as with Johnson on state issues. The supporters of both Temporary Chairman Saltzgaber and Permanent Chairman Goeke insisted that if the Democratic party is to change its policy to suit the times the change "must be made by the friends of the party and not by its enemies."

The result of the convention leaves the state committee, 18 to 3, in the hands of the Bryan-Johnson element for next year, when delegates to the Democratic national convention are to be selected.

Must Take Oath of Allegiance

Washington, Aug. 27.—An order from Public Printer Palmer has been issued to the heads of divisions in the government printing office to appear before a notary public in the office and take the oath of allegiance to the United States as subscribed to by clerks under the civil service law. Palmer issued the order at the suggestion of a government official whose name he declined to give.

SHAMROCK WAS BEATEN

From Beginning of Fourth Race With Reliance

CAPTAIN AGAIN BUNGLED

Greatly to the Advantage of the Yankee Seamen—Gap Between Racers Continued to Widen Until the Contest Was Declared Off

New York, Aug. 28.—With Reliance less than a third of a mile from the finish and Shamrock III hull down on the horizon, fully two miles astern of the gallant defender, the fourth race of the present series for the America's cup was declared off because of the expiration of the time limit of 5½ hours, as happened on Thursday, Aug. 20. Although, officially, it was no race, the defeat administered to the challenger was so ignominious that whatever lingering hope remained in the breast of the friends of Sir Thomas' boat vanished into thin air. Reliance's victory was in every way more decisive tan that of last Saturday. Outsailed, outpointed and outfooted, it was a procession from start to finish.

The Herreshoff wonder beat Shamrock hopelessly in the 15 miles of windward work, rounding the outer mark 12m. 30s. ahead of her, a gain in actual time of 11m. 20s. and down the wind she steadily increased her lead. The real race of the day was not against Shamrock, but the exciting struggle of Reliance in the last half hour to reach the finish line before the regatta committee fired the gun which should announce the expiration of the time limit. Had the wind freshened 20 minutes earlier than it did the cup series would have ended with three straight victories for the defender.

Fully as discouraging as the sailing qualities displayed by the challenger was the atrocious manner in which she was handled. The Yankee skipper again not only out-maneuvered his rival in the spectacular battle for position at the start, as he has done every time they have met, but worse still for the down-hearted supporters of Shamrock, Captain Wringe repeated his blunder of Tuesday. He crossed the line in the wake of Reliance with a handicap of 61 of the precious seconds for which Fife had sacrificed so much in sail spread for time allowance. Both, it is true, went over after the smoke of the handicap gun but, where both are handicapped, it is only the sternmost craft which actually suffers.

It was not a pleasant day on the water and the observation fleet which put out to sea to witness the race was hardly more than half as large as on the preceding days. It was notable, however, for a strange flag on the ocean, the combination French and Spanish colors of the St. Louis exposition, flying from the peak of the steam yacht Reva. There was a chill in the atmosphere. Low, wet clouds shut out the sky and the mist wreaths on the sea made everything look ghostlike and indistinct. The dark water of the ocean was as smooth as a floor and a light breeze of about four knots blew out of the southeast. The course was laid 15 miles dead into the wind and return.

At the end of the first hour Shamrock was beaten and the interest waned. After rounding the float for the run home and setting big ballooners, the wind died down and the towering clouds of canvas drifted lazily down an ocean lane a mile wide between the two divisions of the excursion fleet. Even in the light air it was astonishing how the defender slipped through the placid seas. The gap between her and the challenger steadily widened until two miles separated them. Half an hour from home, when the spectators had abandoned any idea that the finish line could be reached in time, the wind suddenly freshened and Reliance came bowling down at a merry clip. But the wind had come too late and when still a few hundred yards from home the gun on the tug Navigator boomed across the water.

The next race, which will be like the one attempted yesterday, 15 miles to leeward or windward and return, will be sailed tomorrow.

Lipton Reserved Decision

Sandy Hook, N. J., Aug. 28.—Both boats came up quickly to the Hook after the failure to finish and took up their anchorages. Sir Thomas, speaking of the affair, said: "I still have hope, slight though it is. Let us hope for a spanking good breeze Saturday. I called my friends around me this afternoon and was about to express my regret at my failure when I happened to look at my watch. Then I reserved dicision and I may never have to make that speech."

Mr. Iselin and Captain Barr declined to talk except that Mr. Iselin regretted that the wind was not sufficient to bring the boats in on time.

Kansas Rivers Rising

Kansas City, Aug. 28.—Heavy rains north and west of Kansas City have caused the Kansas and Missouri rivers to rise suddenly to unusual heights and the results may prove grave. The current is swift and it carries much driftwood.

The Massachusetts' Injuries

New York, Aug. 28.—A thorough inspection of the battleship Massachusetts at the New York navy yard showed that there are five breaks in the ship's bottom, but all comparatively slight, the largest being about 2½ feet by 3 inches.

Trouble on Shah's Hands

Berlin, Aug. 28.—The Christian Orient, a German missionary paper published in Berlin, prints correspondence from Teheran, alleging that the leaders of the Persian Mohammedan church have served notice on the shah that unless he purges the country of foreign religious and commercial influences the church will precipitate a revolution.

Powers Charges Persecution

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 28.—In the Scott county courthouse Caleb Powers spoke for two hours last night in his own defense, declaring his innocence of the charge preferred against him and pleading for his acquittal. He charged the officers of the commonwealth with political persecution. Powers will resume today.

An Overworked Actor

New York, Aug. 28.—Ernest Hastings, an actor, is under treatment in this city for a nervous breakdown. He recently completed an engagement of 2½ years with a stock company in San Francisco, during which time he learned over 85 parts. Two weeks ago he began rehearsing here as leading man in a play.

Longing Eyes on Fernando Po

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Major Morgen, the well known German colonial expert, asserts that the German government has already taken steps and is preparing to take further steps to insure the island of Fernando Po coming into the possession of Germany whenever Spain is ready to dispose of it.

REBELLION SPREADING

Battles In Close Proximity to Turkish Capital

GUARDS FLY BEFORE REBELS

Train Outrage Shows Strength of Insurgents and Weakness of Government Officials—Diplomatic Opinion Divided as to Its Effect

Sofia, Aug. 28.—The revolutionary committee at Adrianople has issued a manifesto to the Turkish beys assuring them that they need have no fear of attacks on their property, as the committee is only fighting for freedom from a government "which has become insupportable to Christians and Mussulmans alike."

Fights are reported from several districts around Adrianople. The insurgents are now besieging the town of Malketernovo. The Autonomye states that at Ziknishor, near Malkoternovo, after an engagement lasting 11 hours, the revolutionists killed 40 Turkish soldiers, and also burned the village of Hodgetalashnan because its Bashi-Bazouk inhabitants had terrorized the Christian population in the neighborhood.

Private telegrams from Constantinople state that the porte is greatly alarmed at the revolutionary outbreak in the vilayet of Adrianople, its proximity to the sultan's capital occassioning much more concern than the extensive insurrection in the more distant province of Monastir. The Turkish guards along the Bulgarian frontier have fled before the revolutionists, who are now in possession of all the villages around Malketernovo. The Turkish government is making the utmost efforts to suppress the rebellion in the vilayet of Uskub. Every available man has been called out, from the last lines of reserves to the rawest recruits, indicating the most complete mobilization possible.

The train outrage near Kulell Burgas will have, it is thought, a very damaging effect on the Turkish government, showing at once the strength of the insurgents and the weakness of the Turkish authorities, who, in spite of the warnings received days ago that the trains would be attacked, have proved themselves unable to protect the passengers. Opinion is divided in diplomatic circles as to the effect the incident will have upon the Macedonian cause. It is thought in some quarters likely to alienate the sympathy of the powers. On the other hand it is argued that the insurgents do not want sympathy but intervention, which may come all the quicker if they demonstrate that the porte cannot even protect its own railways.

The Macedonian leaders here are not disposed to offer any excuses for the train outrage. They assert that a state of war exists in Macedonia and that it is not in their interest that the train service should be maintained, as it would facilitate the movement of troops employed against them. They assert that the responsibility rests with the Turkish government, which insists upon the railways carrying passengers.

Forty Turkish officers have been ordered to return to Constantinople to answer for the outrages committed at Krushevo.

Not Hampered by Tradition

London, Aug. 28.—In the absence of any news regarding the murder of United States Consul Magelssen at Beirut, except that emanating from Washington, few papers comment on the incident. The Daily Telepragh says: If there is war in the Balkans the prizes will not fall to the Turk or his allies, even though victory should incline to their side. It is thoroughly characteristic of eastern politics that at the moment Turkey is doing penance for the murder of the Russian consul at Monastir some irresponsible fanatic should assassinate an American consul and bring yet another angry power knocking at the gate of Yildiz Kiosk. This time we know what will happen. The United States is not hampered by tradition in dealing with Turkey and will not be reduced to nerveless indecision by consideration of Austrian or Russian susceptibilities.

Europeans' Lives In Danger

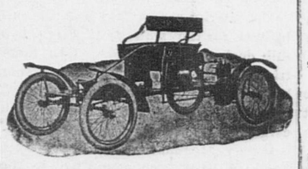

London, Aug. 28.—According to a dispatch to The Daily Mail from Uskub, the Turks are very bitter towards the Europeans, believing it to be their intention to drive the Turks out of Europe. The correspondent says he is convinced that any hostile action by any European power will be the signal for the massacre of every European in European Turkey. Another serious danger is the fear of an uprising in Albania, where there are now only 10,000 Turkish troops left.

Race of Lake Flyers

Chicago, Aug. 28.—In a 20-knot breeze, La Rita, sailing under the colors of the Chicago Yacht club, took the first series of three races being sailed on Lake Michigan for possession of the Sir Thomas Lipton cup. La Rita's time for the race, which was six miles in length, was 2h. 10m. 50s.

Got a "Trifling Contribution"

Paris, Aug. 28.—Former President Casimir-Perier has written an open letter denying all connection with the Humberts, except in the matter of receiving a trifling contribution for political work. He denies the reports that he sought the hand of a member of the Humbert family.

BOY KILLED.

Got in Front of an Electric Car.

Suicide of Out of Town Man at Park.

Men Injured at Power Plant and the Shipyard.

Earl, the 9 year old son of Mr. Eliphalet L. Beale of Chestnut street was instantly killed on Washington street, Thursday afternoon by an electric car.

The car was one of the largest owned by the company. It was on the Nantasket route and was due to leave City Square for Neponset at 4.20. It was in charge of Conductor Joseph Pitts and Motorman Charles Batson.

The spot where the accident took place was nearly opposite the Thomas Crane library. The car at the time was not going at full speed, as it was obliged to stop at a signal box at the corner of Temple street.

According to eye witnesses of the accident, and to those on the car, the motorman was in no way to blame, as the boy jumped directly in front of the car and before it could be stopped it had passed entirely over him.

The wheels of the car did not touch the body, his death being due to his head coming in contact with the machinery beneath the car, which is but a few inches from the ground.

That the boy became confused at the shouts of the motorman and others, there can be no doubt. He stood back to the car and therefore did not see it. Had he been facing the car instead of the street the accident would probably have been averted.

Passengers on the car all agree that the car was not moving rapidly and that the moterman did all in his power to avert the accident.

Patrolman Burrell was promptly on the scene and covered the body with a cloth.

Dr. N. S. Hunting viewed the body a few minutes after the accident.

The ambulance from the Police station promptly responded and took the body to Hall's undertaking rooms.

Charles Batson, the motorman of the car, is one of the oldest employes of the road, having been in its employ as a motorman for nine years. He has always been looked upon as a careful and cautious man.

In an interview with a representative of the Ledger after the accident Mr. Batson said:

"I had shut off the power and was coasting easily toward the signal box, on the corner of Temple street, at which I was to stop for the conductor to throw the signal block.

"Going down Washington street, toward Quincy Point, was a coal wagon. Suddenly, and without warning the boy came out, from behind the wagon, jumping backward toward the car.

"I immediately applied the brake and shouted a warning to him. The passengers on the car, and the driver of the wagon also shouted. For some reason he paid no attention to the shouts, but made a jump backward and landed between the rails just in front of the car.

"The fender struck him, just below the knee, and threw him onto it but he rolled off between the rails, and the whole car passed over him. He was probably killed by being struck by the wheel guard."

Mr. Batson was almost prostrated over the sad accident. The more so as he knew the boy well. He was one of the boys who always waved his hand to him when he went by on a car.

He was one who never ran after a car, or tried to steal a ride, as many boys do, but contented himself with remaining at a safe distance, and waving his hand.

Good Afternoon

Yesterday was "unlucky Thursday," with its accidents and fatalities, not to mention the unsatisfactory Cup race.

The tax rate of Essex was increased $4 this year. Property is getting a black eye everywhere.

The United Kingdom purchases 54 per cent. of the packing house products of the United States.

Two Quincy league base ball games tomorrow, also two yacht races, launch of the schooner Douglas, big lawn party, decisive Cup race, etc., etc. It will be a great day.

Gov. Bates recently scored a bull's eye at the camp of the Cadets, and Thursday he batted a home run in a base ball game at Pittsfield. The Governor is a success wherever he is placed.

At the Squantum Inn in this city on Wednesday Michael J. Murray was boomed for Mayor of Boston. Mr. Murray is an able gentleman and for a great many years has been a valiant worker for the Republican party. He should make a strong candidate.

It was on Aug. 29, 1824, seventy-nine years ago Saturday, that Gen. Lafayette visited Quincy as the guest of ex-President John Adams. It was a great day for the town, which then had a population of less than 2000 souls.

There was every indication when the first edition of the Daily Ledger went to press yesterday that the Cup race would be finished within half an hour, and that it would be almost a walkover for the Reliance, but about that time the wind dropped and the defender was unable to cross the line until about ten minutes after the time expired, while the Shamrock did not finish. Another race will be necessary to-morrow.

Possibly the electric car accident on Washington street might have been averted had the street car tracks been in the centre of the street. Serious and fatal accidents have now taken place at Revere road, Foster street and Temple street, and there will always be great danger as long as the cars run on the side of this thoroughfare. The street should be widened between Temple street and Revere road before the new government building is erected.

After all, the race suicide to which President Roosevelt objects is not a reasonable limit on the families of the poor but the unreasonable limit placed on families of the rich and comfortably off. The lone pampered darling of the man whose income could easily furnish educational and other advantages to seven or eight children, and the two children of the man who could easily afford to raise and educate four, constitute menace to the future of this country.

The Schooner Will Be Christened

By a Daughter of Hon. William L. Douglas.

Mrs. Marion Douglas Russell, daughter of Hon. William L. Douglas of Brockton, will have the honor of christening the six-masted steel schooner to be launched Saturday afternoon between 3 and 4 at the plant of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co. in this city.

The Douglas is an example of what the Fore River company can do in the way of quick contracts. It is only eight months ago since the keel plates were laid, and in that space of time this modern steel leviathan has been built almost to the point of completion. Although not quite so large as the Lawson, the Douglas will be able to carry a good-sized cargo, having a displacement of 7700 tons as against the Lawson's 8000.

B. B. Crowninshield, yacht designer, who also drew the plans for the Thomas W. Lawson, designed the Douglas. Her keel plates were laid Dec. 9, 1902, and since then the hull has been constructed on the "joggle-plate" plan, the plates and strakes overlapping alternately. The plates of the strakes are of three-fourths steel, riveted to steel ribs.

The bottom is built with compartments, having an inner bottom, and the distance between the two bottoms is 18 inches at the keel, lessening toward the bilges. Such an arrangement assures increased safety in case of serious injury to the outer bottom, since these compartments are all watertight; and in the event of a leak the inner bottom would keep the vessel afloat while repairs could be made.

The length of the William L. Douglas is 306 feet on the water line, or 339 feet and 6 inches over all; the beam, 48 feet, and the depth 29 feet and 9 inches. When fully loaded she will draw 24 feet of water. The stern is round, with a smooth counter and a clean run, and the bow is gracefully designed in order to meet the water with little friction. Bilge keels will make the vessel steady.

The six masts and bowsprit of the Douglas are of steel, only the topmasts being of wood, and the trucks will stand 120 feet above the deck. These spars are to set 25 sails, including six lower sails, six gaff-topsails, five staysails, four trysails, and four head sails. The total spread of canvas amounts to about 36,000 square feet.

These sails, as well as the necessary canvas covers and other canvases, are now being made in Gloucester in the loft that manufactured the enormous canvas suit of the Lawson.

The interior arrangements of the hull include for the stowage of cargo two full decks and the hold. Two large trimming tanks, rising from the inner bottom to the main deck, may be used for water ballast when not filled with cargo.

Roomy accommodations for officers and men have been permitted by the size of the vessel, those of the officers being in the high poop at the stern. The galley is on the deck in a large house.

Fourteen men will constitute the entire crew required to man the Douglas, for the labor is lightened by the use of steam power. The schooner will, in fact, carry a strong "steel crew" in the shape of four deck engines for hoisting sails and boats, raising the two five-ton stockless anchors, with their added weight of chain cable, and moving all heavy weights on the vessel.

The boiler which will generate the steam for these engines will likewise furnish the power for the steering gear and will heat the vessel, at the same time supplying the power for the dynamo from which the vessel will be lighted in all its parts.

The Coastwise Transportation company, for which she has been built, is the great sailing vessel syndicate directed by Capt. John G. Crowley of Boston and operating a large fleet of schooners along the Atlantic coast.

WILLIAM PANTON.

Once a Prominent Manufacturer of Quincy.

William Panton, one of the pioneers in the currying business in Quincy died at the residence of his son in East Milton this morning, his death being due to old age.

Mr. Panton was a man honest as the day is long, and one who was a hard worker. Few ever remember seeing him when he did not have his shirt sleeves rolled up and hard at work.

Yet he was unfortunate in business, due largely to failures of firms with whom he did business and by fires.

Mr. Panton was born in Montreal, Canada, in 1821. He came to Quincy when a young man, and engaged in the currying business.

When John Mulford gave up business on Hancock street and went away from town, Mr. Panton succeeded him, and carried on the business with William Dunbar. Later he carried on business alone until about twelve years ago, when he went to New Jersey and lived with one of his sons. He remained in New Jersey until about three years ago when he came back and has since made his home in Quincy and East Milton with his daughter and son.

Mr. Panton's establishment was located on Hancock street on the site now occupied by the Music Hall and Kincaide blocks. He was burned out by fire several times, and at the last of his doing business he was in the building now occupied by Mr. Warshaw on Hancock street.

He leaves three sons and a daughter.

Fairbanks Reunion.

The Fairbanks family reunion at Dedham on Thursday was very largely attended, fully twenty states being represented, and also foreign countries.

The grounds were decorated with flags and family designs in the family colors, old gold, blue and silver gray, including the coat of arms and motto, "Finem Respice" (Consider well the end.)

The forenoon was spent in inspecting the grounds and the old house and its treasures of colonial times. At noon a luncheon was served. The afternoon was devoted to business matters and speechmaking.

The following board of officers was chosen: Captain H. N. Fairbanks, Bangor, Me., president; Hon. W. H. Fairbank of Warren first vice president, Hon. J. W. Fairbank of Boston secretary, Hon. R. G. Fairbank of West Medway, Rev. F. J. Fairbanks of Royalston, Dr. Arthur W. Fairbanks of Boston, Mrs. Alice H. F. Dow of Braintree and Mrs. M. M. Allen of Walpole directors.

About $1,000 was collected toward the purchase of the old Fairbanks house.

In the evening there was a banquet in the vestry of Berkeley Temple, Boston. Senator A. S. Roe of Worcester and Dr. Gifford spoke of the early history of the family. Music was interspersed.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ Strangers from the country, in their endeavors to keep cool, come to New York—to the seashore; New Yorkers in their efforts to keep cool go into the country, away from the sun-baked streets. The change is good for all concerned, and as a natural and lucky consequence everybody is happy. The fact is thus established that it matters but little where we go or what we do, the change is what does us good. We get out of the rut, we view new scenes, do different things, eat different food, and our brain-wheels get to turning out new thoughts for we are putting into the hopper new grist. There is a world of benefit in just a change. It matters not whether the man on the mountain top comes down into the valley or the man in the valley goes up upon the mountain top; it is a new experience to both and the change is a tonic.—From "The World's Progress," in Four-Track News for September.

—Mountain climbing has cost the climbers some 150 lives already during the present season. The fact, however, need not discourage anybody from adventuring the new trolley line out at Blue Hill.—Boston Budget.

Catholic Centennial.

The Catholics of Boston are to celebrate Sept. 29 at Symphony hall, Boston, the centennial of the dedication of the first Catholic church in Boston. A special meeting of the New England Catholic historical society was held Thursday evening in the vestry of St. Cecilia's church to make arrangements. About 25 members, fully half the number being prominent Catholic clergymen, attended. Very Rev. William Byrne presided.

Grand Lawn Party.

The schedule of games to take place at the lawn party and field day of St. Mary's parish West Quincy, Saturday, August 29, are so arranged as to provide entertainment for afternoon and evening. The base ball game at 3 P. M. The rest of the sports at 5 P. M., with the exception of the tug of war, basket ball and quoits, which will be called at 8 P. M. These, with the Working Boys' band will make a very attractive evening.

Bricks Fell on Them.

Frank Di Cicco and Serverio Di Stazio of 6 Brackett street, two of the Italians employed on the new power station of the street railway at Quincy Point were severely injured on Thursday afternoon by having a pile of bricks fall upon them. Dr. Hunting was called and while the men are not dangerously injured they were sent to the City Hospital. Their injuries were about the legs.

Victim of Pickpockets.

Arthur Witham of New Hampshire, who is visiting on Crescent street, West Quincy, reported to the police Thursday night that he had lost five ten dollar bills somewhere between Neponset and West Quincy. The young man said he came to West Quincy from Revere beach and upon being questioned could not say where he lost the money as he did not miss it until he arrived at West Quincy. The police are of the opinion that he was touched by pickpockets at Revere beach.

Accident at Shipyard.

An Italian, whose name could not learned, was severely injured Thursday afternoon on the six-masted schooner W. L. Douglass at the Fore River plant. It is said that the man was at work in the lower part of the vessel when one of the compressed air reaming machines fell upon him, stricking him upon the head. How severely he is injured could not be learned. He was removed to the hospital at the works.

SUICIDE AT PARK.

A Brockton Young Man Who Was in Poor Health.

A young man, who was ater identified as John Vitzell, of Warren avenue, Brockton, committed suicide at Merrymount Park, Thursday afternoon, by shooting himself through the mouth with a revolver.

The weapon was a 32 caliber, and the ball passed up through the brain and lodged in the back of the head. Death was probably instantaneous.

The spot selected by the young man to take his own life was just in the rear of the backstop of the upper field, near the road which winds through the park, and was but a short distance from the sewer pumping station.

It was shortly before 5 o'clock that A. W. Daley was driving through the park, when he came upon the body.

He immediately notified the police and Chief Hayden and Inspector McKay responded with the patrol wagon. Dr. Ellsworth who had been called by telephone also responded, but as the man was dead he could do nothing.

Chief Hayden notified Medical Examiner Jones who arrived about 5.40, and turned the body over to Undertaker Hall.

Among the articles found upon the clothing of the young man was a bill from the clothing house of Samuel Fateless of Campello made out to John Vitzell, and it was immediately summised that was the unfortunate's name.

The police of Campello were communicated with and they had little difficulty in locating his friends.

Late in the evening a brother visited Hall's undertaking rooms and fully identified the young man as his brother. He said he had been sick for two weeks but had been at work during the past week, and he could assign no cause for his taking his life.

He was about 23 years of age, and unmarried. The body will be removed to Brockton.

Lost an Eye.

J. S. Smith of Rockland, for more than 30 years editor of the Rockland Standard, and for nearly 20 years postmaster of Rockland, had one of his eyes removed Wednesday at a Boston hospital. A few days ago it was found that one of the eyes had a detached retina and it was deemed best to remove it in order to save the sight of the other. He is one of the best known men in Plymouth country, and was at the time of his retirement the dean of the newspaper editors in the county in point of service.

An Animal Story For Little Folks

This Pig Went to Market

You have heard many stories about pigs and probably a story about this pig, for this is the one that went to market.

He was a funny little fellow, who was fond of fun, and because he liked to have a good time he got into trouble.

At the market he got his baskets filled with apples and potatoes and peaches and pears and berries and other good things that his mother had told him to get and then started for home.

He had not got very far when he met two other little pigs. One of them was flying a kite and the other was watching him.

"Oh, what great sport!" exclaimed our little pig. "How I should like to fly that kite!"

Then the other pigs said he could do so, and he set his baskets down and took hold of the cord upon which the kite, away up in the air, was pulling as hard as ever it could pull.

THIS PIG WENT TO MARKET.

"This is great fun," said he.

"Hold tight!" cried the other pigs.

"I will," said our pig.

After awhile he became tired, and he called the other pigs to come and take their kite, but they did not come.

What do you suppose had happened? Those two naughty little pigs had run away with his baskets.

When he got home there were tears in his eyes and his mother had a little switch waiting for him. You may be sure that the next time she sent him on an errand he did not stop on the way to fly kites or anything else. There is a time for play and a time for work. —Pittsburg Dispatch.

DROWNED IN BUNKS

Fate of Five Sailors and a Passenger on Schooner John Booth

Boston, Aug. 28.—With topmast smashed, rigging torn and deck rail broken, steamer H. M. Whitney docked at India wharf with the rescued captain of the three-masted schooner John Booth and one of her crew on board. While in the sound the Whitney ran into and sank the schooner, which was stone-laden from Long Cove, Me.

No time was given the sleeping crew to get out of their bunks. The schooner sank immediately, carrying down five of the crew and Joseph L. Gorham, a passenger.

The disaster occurred at about 10:15 at night. Captain Baker of the Whitney said that it was a very dark night. He acknowledged that the lights on the schooner were burning, but he said they must have been dim because they were not seen until the steamer had approached within a length of the schooner, and it was impossible to avoid a collision.

As the schooner was loaded with paving blocks, she settled quickly and was beneath the surface before the boats from the Whitney could get near her.

Pockets Lined With Money

Boston, Aug. 28.—The eyes of Lieutenant Bodenschatz of station 2 began to bulge when a drunk was being searched early this morning. The drunk was found comfortably sleeping in a doorway on Washington street. The first thing brought to the surface was a $50 bill, another and another. Literally speaking, he was lined with money, bills being handed out from every pocket, also a handful of silver and a gold watch. The total amount, not including a gold watch, was $495 and some odd cents. The man gave his name as Mr. Jones of Baltimore.

Would-Be Train Wreckers

Malden, Mass., Aug. 28.—Victor Mills and Ellsworth Crafts, 7-year-old boys of this city, have confessed to the police that they attempted to wreck a train at the Elm street crossing at Linden on Aug. 19. A tie was placed on the track just before an inward train passed by. The boys state that they wanted to see a wreck, and to cause one placed the tie across the rails. The police say no action will be taken in the matter, owing to the extreme youth of the boys.

Doherty Brothers Champions

Newport, R. I., Aug. 28.—By defeating W. A. Larned in straight sets H. L. Doherty completed the clean sweep which he and his brother have made in this country this season. Between them they hold both the singles and the doubles championships of the United States and England, as well as having won the Davis international trophy, without the assistance of any other player.

New Clue to Wilbur Clark

Beverly, Mass., Aug. 28.—A new clue to Wilbur Clark, the little boy abducted from Chebacco pond over a year ago, has been found, and Harry Clark, the lad's father, will go to an Indian camp in Maine where the child is thought to be. The police admit that they have heard of a new clue to the child's whereabouts, but decline to discuss it, as the clue was not found by them.

Norcross Receivership Ends

Boston, Aug. 28.—The Norcross Bros. company, for which receivers were appointed on July 22, are solvent. Counsel appeared before Judge Brown in the United States circuit court and asked for the discharge of its property from the receivership, and the petition was granted by the court, being consented to by all its creditors and the receivers.

Mishap to a Lineman

Somersworth, N. H., Aug. 28.—Harry Mitchell, a lineman, while working on an electric light pole came in contact with a live wire and was terribly burned under the left arm, severing an artery. His left hand and wrist were also burned. The current was cut off to rescue him. He is in a critical condition.

Clambake of Ye Olde Cockes.

Ye Olde Cockes, an organization of residents of Boston, had a special clambake at Rock Island, Quincy, on Thursday, says the Globe, the guests of the organization being E. M. Machin and M. Fisher of Birmingham, England, who had crossed the Atlantic for the sole purpose of partaking of a clambake. The committee in charge of the affair were Thomas Ward of Hyde Park, John Goddard of Boston and George B. Perry. A series of games, racing and other athletic sports followed the bake, and the vocal music was of the most voluminous character.

Red Men.

The great sachem of the Red Men of Massachusetts is William A. Floton of Westfield, who was elected at the great sun session on Thursday. William A. Jordan of Wollaston was elected great trustee for three years, and also appointed a special deputy of the great sachem.

The Munka Bride.

Here is a picturesque incident in the Munka wedding ceremony in India: The bride goes to a stream or well near by with her pitcher and, having filled it, raises it aloft on her head, steadying it with her hand. The bridegroom comes behind, as she turns homeward, and, resting his hand on her shoulder, shoots an arrow along the path in front of her through the loophole formed by her uplifted arm. The bride then walks on to where the arrow lies and picks it up with her foot, still balancing the pitcher on her head. Transferring it gracefully to her hand, she restores it to the bridegroom, thus showing that she can perform her domestic duties well, with hand and foot at his service. He in turn, by shooting the arrow in front of her, has shown his ability to protect her and clear her path of any danger that may beset it.

Eczema

How it reddens the skin, itches, oozes, dries and scales!

Some people call it tetter, milk crust or salt rheum.

The suffering from it is sometimes intense; local applications are resorted to—they mitigate, but cannot cure.

It proceeds from humors inherited or acquired and persists until these have been removed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

positively removes them, has radically and permanently cured the worst cases, and is without an equal for all cutaneous eruptions.

HOOD'S PILLS are the best cathartic. Price 25 cents.

FLAMES ON STREET CAR

Caused a Panic Among Female Passengers and Many Are Hurt

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 28.—Nine women were injured, three quite seriously, by jumping from a moving street car upon which flames were shooting from a controller. Mrs. Julia Mahoney, Mrs. Margaret Mulvey and Mrs. Annie Stevens were the most badly hurt and were sent to a hospital, but Mrs. Stevens was later sent to her home. The car was in charge of Motorman Lambert and Conductor Chase and was on its way to Newport. When a mile from the centre of the city there was a flash and a blue flame shot several feet into the air. A panic followed and the passengers, mostly women on their way to Island park, a summer resort, jumped wildly from the moving car and fell over each other on the pavement.

Motorman Lambert shut off the power instantly, breaking the connection, and the flames subsided. Ambulances and doctors were summoned and as the news spread rapidly through the city, hundreds of people gathered about the scene of the excitement. Six others besides those above mentioned were slightly injured and were sent to their homes in carriages.

Doctors Fought to the Death

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Dr. Schwartz, manager of the state sick insurance hospital at Muhlhausen, Alsace-Lorraine, killed Dr. Schloss, who was the leader of a strike movement on the part of the outdoor relief physicians at Muhlhausen, in a duel. The surviving principal and the seconds apparently tried to conceal the cause of Dr. Schloss' death, attributing it to blood poisoning, according to one report, and to an operation, according to another. The police took possession of the body as it was about to be cremated at Gotha, and the arrest of Dr. Schwartz followed.

New Industry For Canada

St. Paul, Aug. 28.—Canadian Pacific railway experts have copleted tests on the arid lands lying west of Calgary to determine their adaptability to sugar beet culture. The tests have shown that sugar beets can be made a profitable industry in lands hitherto considered worthless. The company will at once begin the construction of a water system that will make beet culture possible. Beet experts are to be sent into the country as soon as the irrigation works are completed to direct the first ventures in beet raising.

Shaw Plans a Vacation

Washington, Aug. 28.—Secretary Shaw is planning to leave the city soon and is putting the finances of the treasury in readiness should any unusual strain develop. It is believed that enough internal revenues and miscellaneous receipts have been kept in hand so that an increase of national bank deposits of considerable size might be made without wating for the daily receipts from those sources to reach a large figure. It is thought that his plans contemplated a possible increase of $40,000,000.

High Price For Middling Uplands

Memphis, Aug. 28.—The highest price that has been secured for middling upland cotton here in a number of years was obtained when Sledge & Norfleet, cotton factors, disposed of 114 bales of cotton of this grade at 13 cents a pound. This was an average of $65 a bale and brought the total price close to $7500. The cotton was sold to a domestic purchasing firm of local buyers and is to be shipped at once to domestic mills for use.

LESS THAN HALF CENT A DOSE.

Specal Prce Offer on Popular Remedy at Chas. C. Hearn's.

In these days of increased cost for nearly all the necessaries of life, it is particularly pleasing to find a chance to get what is of greater value than all else, Health, for a trifling sum.

Chas. C. Hearn, the popular druggist, through a special arrangement he has made with the Dr. Howard Co., is able to sell the regular 50 cent size of their celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia, at half price, 25 cents. As each bottle contains 60 doses, this makes the cost less than half a cent a dose.

So confident is Mr. Chas. C. Hearn that the specific will do all that is claimed for it, that he sells it on his own personal guarantee to refund the money if it does not cure. Out of the hundreds of packages he has sold, only two customers have asked to have their money refunded.

He will continue to sell the romedy in this way, and wants the Ledger to tell its readers that Dr. Howard's specific is absolutely free unless it cures. Even then, the cost is less than half a cent a dose, about 25 cents for a month's treatment.

Won't you call on Mr. Chas. C. Hearn, and hear what he has to say about this reliable remedy? 18-21-25-28

KILLING OF OUR CONSUL

Brings Further Trouble to the Ottoman Empire

ORDERS TO ADMIRAL COTTON

To Sail at Once With European Squadron For Beirut, a Syrian Seaport, and Enforce Demand For Satisfaction and Protection of Americans In That Place and Vicinity

Washington, Aug. 28.—Prompt and vigorous action is being taken by the United States government to secure the punishment of all persons implicated in the assassination of United States Vice Consul Magelssen at Beirut, Syria, Sunday last. Minister Leishman at Constantinople, who reported the fact to the state department, has been instructed by the state department to demand a thorough investigation of the affair and the punishment of those involved in the crime; and the European squadron, consisting of three warships, has been ordered to proceed immediately to Beirut to support the demands of the United States minister should this be found necessary.

This latter measure was determined upon as a result of conferences which have been held by telegraph and telephone between the officials here and the president at Oyster Bay. The latter felt that no time should be lost in dispatching Admiral Cotton's squadron to Turkish waters, and he gave instructions to acting Secretary Darling that immediate orders be given Admiral Cotton to proceed at once.

The president's determination to lose no time in getting the squadron to Beirut was also due in part to information received by acting Secretary Loomis of the state department last night from the president of the American Board of Missions at Boston, indicating that an attempt had been made to burn the Euphrates college building at Harpoot. This dispatch said:

"Information just received that an attempt has been made to burn the Euphrates college buildings. Conditions increasingly alarming. Great anxiety felt for the safety of American citizens there."

Acting Secretary Loomis last night cabled to Minister Leishman at Constantinople to make immediate demands on the porte to take adequate measures for the protection of all Americans at Beirut and to prevent any attack on the college buildings.

Admiral Cotton, who was directed yesterday to hold his squadron in readiness to proceed at a moment's notice to Beirut, cabled the navy department as follows, under date of Nice, France:

"Cable just received. Machias at Genoa for coal; Brooklyn has seven days, San Francisco 6½ days coal at 10 knots. Cannot exceed that speed with Machias. If squadron going west should coal at Marseilles. If east, at Genoa."

Admiral Cotton's instructions are to sail at once. It is probable he will go ahead to Beirut with the Brooklyn, leaving the Machias and the San Francisco to follow. It is estimated that the Brooklyn, going full speed, can reach Beirut within six days.

Acting Secretary Loomis received a rather remarkable cablegram from Minister Leishman last night in which the latter stated that he had called at the Turkish foreign office at Constantinople last evening to inquire about the assassination of the United States vice consul, and that the minister of foreign affairs emphatically denied any knowledge of the report. He also attempted to discredit it. The cablegram gave no other information. Under the circumstances the state department officials are inclined to believe that the Turkish foreign office is not in touch with the situation at Beirut. They do not attach sufficient importance to Minister Leishman's last message to cancel the order for the squadron to sail.

Acting under the instructions of the president that Admiral Cotton's squadron be directed to proceed immediately to Beirut, Mr. Darling cabled the admiral to this effect at Nice, directing him to go to Beirut at once. The president's instructions on this point will be carried out to the letter.

Mr. Magelssen was 30 years old. He was educated in the common schools of Minnesota and was a student of the Lutheran college at Decorah, Ia., for three years. For a time he was assistant city assessor of Sioux Falls, S. D., and also associate editor of a paper called The Echo, published there.

In the absence of particulars no motive can be ascribed for the crime and the state department officials have no means of suggesting a theory as to why the vice consul should have been killed. There have been no complaints about him or his work and the meagre cablegram conveys not the slightest suggestion of a cause for the crime.

Orders From Oyster Bay

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt last night issued orders that the European squadron, under command of Admiral Cotton, should proceed immediately to Beirut, Syria, to be in readiness to support any demand made by the United States on Turkey on account of the assassination of Vice Consul Magelssen. With Turkey in such turmoil as now prevails almost anything is likely to happen. With a view to considering the subject the more carefully the president and Secretary of State Hay have arranged for a conference at Sagamore Hill.

LONG ISLAND FALLS

Gain For Navy, Although It Loses Seventeen Ships

Portland, Me., Aug. 28.—The events and developments in the war game yesterday were the grand coup by the navy in the capture of Long Island in the forenoon, while the army made a spectacular play in the destruction of all the 17 opposing ships that attacked the coast defenses in the afternoon.

The navy, however, seems to have had a little the better of it, for, strange as it may seem, the capture of Long Island was considered more important than the destruction of the 17 vessels. Long Island has been declared out of the game until tonight at 9 o'clock and thus the big searchlights will not be working, which will be of almost inestimable value to the navy.

On the other hand, after sunset the destroyed warships went back into commission again. The Hartford fought with the fleet and, although a training ship, has been used as a cruiser evidently.

The movements Wednesday night and early yesterday were not of great importance. None of the big ships took part. Several of the gunboats and small cruisers tried to get landing parties on the various fortifications, but were repulsed.

The Jewish Colonization Scheme

London, Aug. 28.—It is the intention of the foreign office to instruct the British commissioner in the East African protectorate to facilitate in every way the work of the committee appointed by the Zionist congress to investigate the offer of the British government of a site for a Jewish colony. The foreign office regards the experiment as important. If it is a success the colony will undoubtedly grow and should a failure result the government reserves the right to reoccupy the land.

Alleged Immigrant Smuggling

Eastport, Me., Aug. 28.—George Maurie, an Assyrian merchant of St. John, and Louis Decourey, an Assyrian pedler of this city, are under arrest on a charge of smuggling Anastasia Dabageorgiu, a Greek, into this country. The latter also was taken into custody. Maurie is said to have smuggled into the United States large numbers of his countrymen who have been rejected by the board of immigration.

Winter to Wed Late Autumn

Taunton, Mass., Aug. 28.—George W. B. Leonard of this city will soon enter upon married life for the third time. He has applied for and received a marriage license from the city clerk and when he was asked his age he proudly gave it as 87 years. His bride-to-be is Mrs. Eliza J. Jellison of Wareham and her age is given as 72. Mrs. Jellison has been also twice married.

Germany's Tariff Problem

Berlin, Aug. 28.—Baron VonStengel, the new secretary of the imperial treasury, is quoted as saying that it will be necessary for him to find fresh sources of revenue, but he will wait until he sees what the new tariff produces and how the new commercial treaties work. The opponents of the baron are already calling him the "secretary of new Texas."

Priests Dislodged by Firemen

Paris, Aug. 28.—The expulsion of the Redemptorist fathers from their monastery at Les Sables d'Olonne was carried out after four hours' siege, when the barricades were forced and the fathers retreated to the roof, where they continued their defense until dislodged by streams of water from many fire engines. Many arrests were made.

Pope Confers a Red Hat

Rome, Aug. 28.—Cardinal Herro y Espinosa, archbishop of Valencia, had the red hat conferred on him by Pope Pius X. The ceremony was private and held in the papal apartment. The new cardinal, who was expected to die at the time of the conclave, was carried to the apartment in the late Pope Leo's sedan chair.

Candidates Evenly Matched

Jackson, Miss., Aug. 28.—Meagre and unofficial returns from less than a third of the counties of the state indicate that the race for the Democratic nomination for governor between Critz and Vardaman in the primary will be very close and the official count may be required to determine the result.

Ide to Be Vice Governor

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 28.—President Roosevelt announces that Henry C. Ide, at present a member of the Philippine commission, will be designated as vice governor of the Philippines in succession to General Wright, when the latter assumes the office of governor general.

Nothing to Do With Miller

Washington, Aug. 28.—Public Printer Palmer states that the order for the taking of the oath of allegiance by all employes of the government printing office was neither directly nor indirectly the result of the controversy between the Bookbinders' union and Assistant Foreman Miller.

Bulgarian Throne Is Shaky

Vienna, Aug. 28.—It is reported from Sofia that the police have discovered a tunnel leading under the palace of Prince Ferdinand. It is 50 yards long and, it is believed, was constructed with the intention of blowing up the place.

QUINCY DAILY LEDGER.

Vol. 15. No. 202. QUINCY, MASS., SATURDAY, AUGUST 29, 1903. PRICE TWO CENTS.

ANOTHER BIG SCHOONER LAUNCHED TODAY.

The Steel Six-master William L. Douglas which will Join the Thomas W. Lawson of the Crowley Fleet.

THE SEVEN-MASTED SCHOONER THOMAS W. LAWSON LAUNCHED AT QUINCY A YEAR AGO.

Long before the Daily Ledger went to press this afternoon the electric cars of both the Quincy Point and Quincy Neck lines were taxed to convey people to the launching at the Fore River shipyard. Many extra cars were run by the company.

Although the public were excluded from the Fore River plant, because of the large amount of work underway there were many points on the Quincy Braintree and Weymouth shores from which good views could be obtained.

As already reported in the Ledger the William L. Douglas is the only steel six-master ever built. Her length is 306 feet on the water line, and 339 feet 6 inches overall. Her beam is 48 feet, and her depth 29 feet, 9 inches. When fully loaded she draws 24 feet.

The six masts are of steel only the topmasts being of wood, the trucks being 120 feet above the deck. The spars set 25 sails, including six lower sails, six gaff-topsails, five staysails, four trysails and four head sails. Her total spread of canvas is about 36,000 square feet.

It is expected that the launch will be at 3.30 P. M.

POSTPONED.

Too Much Wind Today for the Cup Race.

Sir Thomas Lipton Not Anxious to Fight It Out in a Gale.

The race for the American cup to have been sailed today between the Reliance and Shamrock was postponed this morning on account of the weather conditions.

All day yesterday there was a terrific southeasterly storm off Sandy Hook with the wind blowing 35 miles an hour. Outside the sea was heavy and even the merchant craft were obliged to run for a lee.

Sir Thomas wants a good breeze but such weather is not desired, and neither did he desire to take the chances of having any of his crew killed or washed overboard.

This morning the committee started for Sandy Hook at 8 o'clock. They found a heavy sea running and the wind blowing from 20 to 30 miles.

During a portion of the race the wind and sea would run against the tide, making a nasty combination for long ended boats. Under such conditions both boats could get a severe pounding.

After considering these conditions the question was left to Mr. Lipton and Mr. Iselin, and they decided to call today's race off.

The course for today would have been fifteen miles to the windward and return.

The race will probably be sailed next Tuesday over the same course.

CLAMS AND ENTHUSIASM

Bring Forth a Witty Speech From Grover Cleveland

THE PROTECTION OF FISH

Of Greater Moment to Him Than Protection of "Our Hoary-Headed Infant Industries—Refers to Recent Nine-Pound Arrival at His Home

Buzzards Bay, Mass., Aug. 29.—For the first time since he became a member of the organization, former President Grover Cleveland was present at the 20th annual gathering of the Old Colony club at Mashnee island. After profuse apologies for his neglect of club privileges Mr. Cleveland paid a warm tribute to the work of the club, and to the art of angling of which the club is an avowed exponent. Others present included Joseph Jefferson, president of the club, Mayor Collins and Edward Atkinson of Boston. At the clambake preceding the diners in a receptive frame of mind and the speechmaking that followed the clams was productive of unconfined hilarity.

President Jefferson opened the postprandial fun with a witty speech, and introduced Mr. Cleveland, who said:

"It affords me great pleasure to be present on this auspicious occasion. My happiness is qualified only by the regret that in the past I have missed so many golden opportunities. However, whatever my shortcomings in the past, I am present today full of clams and enthusiasm for the club and anxious that its mission, the protection of fishing in Buzzards bay, shall be accomplished. There may be other objects towards which the energies of this club are directed, but I am willing to take out the benefit of my membership in fishing.

"I make no excuse for going fishing. I do not say as do some who go to the circus that I go to please the children. Some of my fellow-citizens scoff and jeer at my fishing. I am sorry to offend the good taste of these respectable friends but I go fishing because I like it, and I hope to continue doing so until the end of the chapter. As further evidence of my shamelessness, I am not afraid to say that I am more concerned about the protection of the fish in Buzzards bay than I am about the protection of our hoary headed infant industries. I am more concerned with the activity of the Old Colony club in furnishing myself and my friends with good fishing than I am with the policy of the next federal administration.

"It may be known to some of you present that a recent event in my domestic circle has added one to the population of the town of Bourne and increased by one the future fishermen of Buzzards bay. The newcomer has been weighed on the scales I use to weigh my fish, and weighed 9½ pounds. This means nine pounds, no more, no less."

In conclusion, Mr. Cleveland spoke affectionately of President Jefferson, and congratulated the members of the club upon the results accomplished by the organization. He complimented the officers and urged the members to support the officers enthusiastically. He said business was needed in order that what had already been gained should prove permanent benefit.

Mayor Collins followed Mr. Cleveland. He said: "I was a stranger and you took me in. When I came here I had no intimation that I should be expected to work my passage. I have no modern knowledge of fishing tricks, but I am glad to be among fishermen, and obtain instruction in fishing and fish-weighing. I have enjoyed myself immensely and only wish that I was a closer neighbor."

In conclusion Mayor Collins congratulated the club in having in its membership Mr. Cleveland, to whom he referred as "The most illustrious man in the United States."

Mr. Jefferson, at the request of others, repeated some lines sent to the club on the occasion of a former gathering.

Edward Atkinson then spoke briefly, as the day was well spent.

Did Not Report Outrages

Berlin, Aug. 29.—An army sergeant named Bishop has been sentenced to three months' imprisonment for neglecting to report the mitreatment of privates by Sergeant Breidenbach of the Eleventh infantry, who was sentenced to 3½ years' imprisonment for brutality. Breidenbach was charged with 1800 offenses.

Another Vesuvius Explosion

Naples, Aug. 29.—With tremendous detonations, heard for miles around, a new fissure opened last evening in the cone of Vesuvius, and from the new gap came pouring out tons of burning lava. The stream, however, encountered a deposit of lava from the previous eruption and has done no harm.

Crap Game Ends With Murder

Pittsburg, Aug. 29.—In a small shanty near here, two negroes fought a revolver duel in which Will White, one of the participants, was killed, and Bob Muts, his opponent, was wounded. The quarrel arose during a crap game. Muts escaped.

NEEDLEWORK DESIGNS.

One That Can Be Used to Advantage In Various Directions.

Needlework is always in vogue, and its beauty as a decoration in the home is always appreciated. Among the old time designs used in this dainty work there lingers an atmosphere of charm, and the colonial design shown in the accompanying illustration can be used in various ways. For chair backs and arms it is wrought on natural gray linen in colors of blue and green blended in solid shaded Kensington stitch, making in effect what we call iridescent work; berries in burnt orange in satin stitch, stems in outline in hunters' green and ribbons at base of the wreath in two shades of mahogany in tapestry stitch. This same design can be used in the corners of a square luncheon cloth, with plate and lap napkins to match, wrought in china blue linens or cottons or in all white on an unbleached linen. Four corners of a sofa pillow wrought in blues from the silvery to the metallic on a gray green or mahogany satin sheeting ground make a choice pillow.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Daughter and Father.

There are two things that can be done by a father for his daughter and that, if they were always done, would in the course of a single generation make our womankind approach a level which they have never yet reached. The first is to gain the confidence of his daughter in her earlier years, and the second is to keep it unimpaired and to perpetuate it. If he be his daughter's friend and chosen companion, sharing all her little confidences and imparting to her much of what he knows, with the intuition of a woman and the breadth and sanity of a man, the girl will grow up with a mind unlike the minds of many women in whom femininity verges upon fatuity. From close association with a father the young girl quite unconsciously acquires something of the largeness of the man's nature and loses something of the pettiness and narrowness of the woman's. His tolerant, genial spirit will moderate her tense emotionalism; his sense of humor will rid her of sentiment and imbue her with a sense of true proportion; his fun, his good comradeship, his affection and his knowledge of life will help to send her forth into the world strengthened and developed as no purely feminine influence could strengthen and develop her.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Whooping Cough.

Jacob Sobel gives the results of his own experience with the paroxysms of whooping cough treated by pulling the lower jaw downward and forward. Pulling the lower jaw downward and forward controls the paroxysms of whooping cough in most instances and most of the time. The method is usually more successful in older children than in younger ones and infants. In cases without a whoop the expiratory spasm with its asphyxia is generally overcome, and in those with a whoop the latter is prevented. It is as successful as any single drug, or even more so. Mothers should be instructed in its use, so that attacks, especially at night, might be arrested. The manipulation is harmless and painless. Its only contraindication is the presence of food in the mouth or esophagus. Patients thus treated are less likely to suffer from complications and sequelæ than those treated only medicinally. It is advisable to try this method in other spasmodic coughs and laryngeal spasms.—New York Medical Record.

Home Shampoo Breeds Earache.

"One reason why women are troubled with earache more generally than men is their method of drying the hair after a home shampoo," said a doctor. "They dry it with a fan, which is quite proper, but the way they use the fan is entirely improper. Instead of wielding that so as to send the wind through the strands of hair they manipulate it in such fashion that they blow a regular gale right into the ear, and the consequence is that for several days after the shampoo the cleansed locks clothe a head that is the seat of a mighty assortment of aches and pains. If, instead of the ears, the hair itself were made the center of the artificial cyclone, the drying process would be effected more quickly and a severe attack of earache averted."

Lip Soreness From Thread Biting.

Ladies who do a great deal of sewing frequently suffer a great deal from soreness of the mouth and lips and are often at a loss to ascertain the cause of the trouble. Half the time it is simply the result of biting off thread instead of using a pair of shears for cutting. In the case of silk thread the danger is quite marked, because it is usual to soak the thread in acetate of lead, partly to harden it and give it a good surface and also perhaps to increase its weight somewhat. If this practice is followed regularly and very much silk thread is used, the results

NEW SHORT STORIES

Du Chaillu's Ideal of Womanhood.

Perhaps the finest thing about the late Paul du Chaillu was his high ideal of womanhood and the obligations it imposed upon him. His convictions were chivalrous enough for the days of knight errantry, says a Paris letter.

He would stand bareheaded in the winter winds if conversing with a woman on the street, and he was constantly protesting against the breaking down of the old time standards of manners. His refined instincts and habitual deference kept him to the end very much of a beau in the best sense. There was nothing he enjoyed more than escorting a party of young girls to a matinee. "'Tis just like being in a flower garden," he would explain.

His weakest trait was bound up with his strongest. He was morbidly sensitive on the subject of his age. The short road to his good will was to compliment him upon his youthful appearance. One could count upon receiving a bit of candy a moment later, slyly drawn from his waistcoat pocket. There is no doubt that he was born much earlier than 1835, the year he assigned; but, as Helen Everston Smith, who met him in 1853, when, in her opinion, he was nearly thirty, has well suggested, his misstatements arose from misapprehension and not intention.

With his whimsical chivalry and vanity it is astonishing he never married. But he used to quote the fellow who said, "I would not marry a woman unless I respected her, and I could not respect a woman who would marry me." Once he remarked that, so far as women were concerned, his heart was like the Paris india rubber omnibus, in which there was always room for one more.

Indiscriminate Charity.

The late Joseph Merrefield of Baltimore was devoted to charitable work in that section, being a governor or executive officer in many institutions devoted to that class of work. He was, however, an ardent supporter of organized charity and an opponent of indiscriminate giving. Walking down

HE GAVE THE BOY TWO CENTS.

Charles street with a friend one day, the conversation turned on the work of the Charity Organization society.

"Never give alms on the street," Mr. Merrefield said. "It encourages pauperism," and so on, ad infinitum.

The News was just on the street. A newsboy calling the paper approached the couple. Mr. Merrefield gave the boy 2 cents and took a paper.

"Merrefield," remarked his friend, "look at the corner of that paper. It says, 'Price 1 cent,' doesn't it?"

"Why—er—yes. What of it?"

"Nothing, but you've justed started a poor soul out to the potter's field at a mad gallop."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Blackburn's Baggage.

On one occasion Lindsay, who succeeded Carlisle as a senator from Kentucky, was coming east with Blackburn. It was morning. The train was swaying and rocking through the Alleghany hills, precisely the hour, the motion and the place to remind a gentleman of Blue Grass genesis that he needed a stomachic. Lindsay, returning from the smoking room, was concerned to note that his colleague's countenance, usually so bland, wore a look of troubled gloom.

"What's wrong?" asked Lindsay anxiously.

"The worst thing in the world," returned Blackburn. "I've lost the better part of my baggage."

"Was it stolen, or did you leave it behind?"

"Neither; the cork came out."—Saturday Evening Post.

The Surgeon's Joke.

Dr. Robert F. Weir, the well known surgeon, some time ago hit on an experiment of curing a certain sort of facial swelling by hypodermic injections of a solution of indigo. He had thus treated a patient's face, turning that portion of it a violet hue, and was explaining the process to a group of fellow doctors when one of them asked:

"But, Dr. Weir, isn't the treatment very painful to the patient?"

"There's no way of finding that out," replied Weir after a glance at the sick man's bright blue face. "You see, he knows his troubles in violet."—New

WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

Prosperous Conditions Continue Despite the Decline In Securities

New York, Aug. 29.—Dun's Weekly Review of Trade says: There is still no indication of the depression in trade and industry that pessimists predicted would follow the decline in securities. Dispatches from all sections testify to the liberal distribution of merchandise and the disposition to prepare for greater consumption of all the necessaries of life, while the crops are making good progress, aside from some cotton districts in Texas. Trade is quiet at Boston, owing to the idleness in textile mills, although paper mills and shoe shops are busy. The number of buyers in New York is increasing and a heavy fall trade is anticipated.

There is sufficient business on the goods of New England shoe manufacturers to assure fall operation of machinery for several months. Buyers are now out of the Boston market after having sampled freely of next spring goods. New orders are still arriving, chiefly in supplementary lines of men' heavy shoes. Jobbers are now urgent for delivery of fall goods ordered some time ago, as wholesalers are behind with deliveries and retail stocks a running low.

Thus far the liberal jobbing trade in dry goods has not affected the situation at the cotton mills, where the percentage of idle machinery has increased New business is confined to imperative requirements.

Britannic's Great Record

New York, Aug. 29.—The announcement that the steamship Britannic is now on her last voyage, marks the passing of one of the most famous of the Atlantic steamships. She has just sailed from Belfast for Bremen, having been sold to be broken up. The Britannic was built in 1874 and soon after she was put in commission she reduced the time between Queenstown and Sandy Hook to less than seven days. She was considered a wonder in her day, not only for her speed but for size and luxury. She has used the engines and boilers which were put into her when she was built, never missing a day through accident or disability.

Seaman Charged With Abduction

Norfolk, Aug. 29.—Warants were sworn out here by the fathers of Blanche Montgomery and Hattie Story, both 19 years of age, charging Captain Lane of the schooner Massachusetts with abducting them. The Massachusetts sailed from this port for New York and it is charged that Lane carried the two girls off with him on the trip. New York police have been notified to arrest Lane immediately upon his arrival and hold him for requisition.

Thinks Open Door a Farce

London, Aug. 29.—The Pekin correspondent of The Times ridicules the idea that the Manchurian question will be settled by the opening of two Manchurian ports. All the approaches to Mukden are in the hands of the Russians, he says, while Ta-Tung-Kao is a small port without an anchorage, unapproachable within several miles by steamers of the shallowest draught and already open to trade under the international sea navigation rules.

Gladiator Beaten In Handicap

Hamilton, Ont., Aug. 29.—Dan McLeod defeated Tom Jenkins, the world's champion catch-as-catch-can wrestler, in a handicap match last night by rolling the big Clevelander over with a half Nelson and crotch hold. According to the articles of agreement Jenkins undertook to throw McLeod twice in one hour of actual wrestling time, McLeod to win the match if he secured one fall.

Dr Schwartz Released

Berlin, Aug. 29.—Dr. Schwartz, manager of the state sick insurance hospital at Muhlhausen, Alsace-Lorraine, who was arrested in connection with the death of Dr. Schloss, who was the leader of a strike movement on the part of the outdoor relief physicians at Muhlhausen and who was reported to have been killed by Dr. Schwartz in a duel, has been released from custody.

Actor Haworth's Sudden Death

Cleveland, Aug. 29.—Joseph Haworth, the actor, was found dead in a room in the Kingsley hotel at Willoughby last night. Death is supposed to have been due to heart disease. Haworth was born in Providence in 1855 but had made this city his headquarters for many years. He had been prominent in the theatrical world for 20 years.

Quartermaster Was a Smuggler

Manila, Aug. 29.—Captain Quartermaster Chamberlain, recently found guilty of bringing in unmanifested dutiable goods in packages addressed to prominent military officers and their families from the port of Hong Kong while he was acting as quartermaster on the transport Seward, was fined $500.

An Alleged $20,000 Swindler

New York, Aug. 29.—The detective bureau has received a telegram from Denver announcing the arrest there of William Herrman, who is wanted here to answer to an indictment charging him with securing $20,000 on worthless checks.

MAGELSSEN NOT KILLED

Report Arose From Error In Cipher Telegram

WAS SHOT AT, HOWEVER,

But Bullet Failed to Hit Intended Target—Situation Relieved of Embarrassing Features, but Our Warships Will Not Be Recalled

Washington, Aug. 29.—A decidedly new turn in the case of United States Vice Consul William C. Magelssen at Beirut, Syria, who was reported to have been assassinated last Sunday, developed last night, when it became known that the report was incorrect and that, although Mr. Magelssen had been shot at, he had not even been injured. This information came to the state department in a dispatch from Minister Leishman at Constantinople, who said the mistake in making the original announcement was due to an error in the transmission of the cipher dispatch from Consul Ravndal at Beirut in reporting the incident to the minister.

The dispatch from the minister was communicated at once to the president at Oyster Bay. Its contents were extremely gratifying to the officials of the government here, as it relieved the situation of its extreme tension and leaves the way open for an amicable and peaceable adjustment of the incident.

Acting Secretary Loomis declined to make public the text of Minister Leishman's dispatch, but he gave a summary of its contents. It shows that Mr. Magelssen had been shot at by some person at the time unknown to the officials, but that he had not been hit. The local Turkish officials were prompt to express their regret at the occurrence and were exerting themselves to apprehend the assassin, but thus far had been unsuccessful.

The minister's dispatch also said that Consul Ravndal had reported to him that some of the foreign consuls located at Beirut had reported to their governments that the situation at that place had become exceedingly unsafe; that this condition of affairs had existed for some time and that something ought to be done to relieve the tension. The opinion was expressed that the attempted assassination of Magelssen probably would bring matters to a focus, the attention of the Turkish government being drawn to the matter in this forcible way and some effort thus be made to avoid further trouble.

The latest development in the Turkish situation was discussed in official circles, where the view is held that the denial of the report of the killing of Magelssen relieves the situation of its immediate akward and embarrassing features but will not prevent our naval vessels continuing to the east. Minister Leishman in one of his dispatches to the department suggested that conditions were such that it might be well to have some American naval demonstration in those waters. Reports also have come to the government from the missionary interests of threatened destruction of their property at Harpoot and because of this Admiral Cotton will be allowed to proceed with one or more of his vessels to Beirut.

Acting Secretary Darling last night received a cablegram from the admiral dated Villefranche, saying that he had left that place with the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Genoa, on the way to Beirut.

To Safeguard Americans

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Aug. 29.—President Roosevelt was informed last night of the incorrectness of the report that Vice Consul Magelssen had been assassinated. The president expressed gratification that Magelssen had escaped without injury from the assault of the would-be murderer. He announced, however, that no change at present would be made in the plans of this government and that the European squadron, which he ordered to proceed immediately to Beirut, would continue to its ordered destination.

It can be said that the president and secretary of state both regard it advisable, in view of the present state of unrest in Turkey, to have American war vessels in Turkish waters.

For several hours President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Hay were in conference at Sagamore Hill. They discussed every suggested phrase of the situation in Turkey. At the conclusion of the conference Secretary Hay announced his intention of returning immediately to Washington.

The fact that Secretary Hay considers his presence in Washington necessary at this time indicates the serious view he takes of the Turkish situation. He had not expected to return to Washington for several weeks, but the developments in the Ottoman empire during the past few days induced him to come to Oyster Bay for a conference with the president, after which it was deemed desirable by both that he should return to Washington.

To Hold Services of Thanksgiving

Lacrosse, Wis., Aug. 29.—Information that Vice Consul Magelssen was alive and uninjured was conveyed to the family of the vice consul's brother, Rev. H. G. Magelssen, in this city last night and to the parents of the vice consul at Highland Prairie, Minn. Arrangements were made for a family reunion, and services of thanksgiving will probably be held in the Norwegian Lutheran church here and in the church at Highland Prairie, Minn.

330,000 IDLE SPINDLES

In Fall River Mills Which Are to Close Down Next Week

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 29.—The curtailment next week will include the Merchants No. 3 mill, Stafford, Cornell, Luther, Border City No. 1 and Bourne mills, in all 330,000 spindles, as against 292,000 at the beginning of this week. The curtailment in the yarn mills is decreasing somewhat, but it must go on in some degree, owing to the difficulty of securing the desirable grades of cotton at this time.

In Labor day week the curtailment promises to be very general, the King Philip, Osborne No. 1, Laurel Lake, Mechanics being a few of the mills which have already announced their intention to join the shutting-down movement in the short week.

The desire for curtailment is being lessened by the improved tone of the cloth market and the mills that have a little cotton on hand have been disposed to meet buyers halfway on present prices. The sales of goods thus far this week amount to 150,000 pieces, of which a small quantity was regulars sold at 3 3-8 cents, an advance of an eighth over the quotation of last week. The demand has been good this week, but sales have been limited in large measure by the unwillingness of mills to make contracts with new cotton apparently five or six weeks away. Manufacturers of regulars have declined contracts at 3 3-8 cents, the new quotation.

Hay Feverites In Session

Bethlehem, N. H., Aug. 29.—Will Carleton, the poet, addressed the 29th annual gathering of the United States Hay Fever association held here. He told his hearers that the way to cure pulmonary troubles was to inhale plenty of air, eat and drink moderately, and pay fewer doctors' bills. Rev. Samuel A. Harlow, president of the association, opposed the microbe theory and warned the association against drugs and doubtful experiments. Colonel Muckle denounced Turkish and Russian baths and treatment by electricity.

Alleged Silver Thieves Caught

New Haven, Aug. 29.—Local detectives believe that mysterious thefts of silver from the International Silver company's shops in Meriden have been cleared up by the arrest last night of John H. Booth of Meriden, an employe of the company, and Joshua Sutta, a manufacturing jeweler of this city, to whom Booth is said to have sold the metal. The silver company has sustained heavy losses of silver, the total being estimated at 3500 ounces. The police say they recovered nearly 700 ounces of silver.

Thieves Caught In Pawnshop

Boston, Aug. 29.—Bert Williams and William H. Smith were arrested in a pawnshop here, where they were trying to dispose of a quantity of silverware. In the rooms occupied by the men a large quantity of stolen property was found, and the police are confident that the arrests clear up a number of breaks in Boston and surrounding cities and towns.

No Pool Selling at Readville

Boston, Aug. 29.—Pool selling was stopped at the Readville track by the police of Dedham. As several of the state police were sent out by Chief Wade it was first thought that they were the ones instrumental in the act but later it developed that the local authorities were behind the movement.

Convicted of Murdering Policeman

Bangor, Me., Aug. 29.—In the case of William H. Albert, who has been on trial since Wednesday for the murder of Policeman Jordan, the jury retired at 4:14 last evening and at 4:51 returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. Albert will be sentenced on Monday.

Knives Flashed at Wedding

Webster, Mass., Aug. 29.—Anthony Poters and Martin Gretz, Poles, quarreled at a wedding in East Webster and, it is alleged, Gretz was stabbed three times in his left side by Poters. One of the wounds is near the heart and may cause death. Poters is under arrest.

Jackies Practice With Big Guns

Newport, R. I., Aug. 29.—Mortar target practice was conducted at Fort Adams when 10 of the 16 guns were fired at a six-mile target. Reduced charges of 60 pounds of powder with 800-pound shells were used. Some excellent work was done by the gunners.

Woman Gets Life Sentence

Fitchburg, Mass., Aug. 29.—Judge Pierce has sentenced Mary Ambler to the women's prison at Sherborn for life. She pleaded guilty to a charge of murder in the second degree of her infant child at Rutland by abandoning it to freeze the last part of January.

Convention Plans All Arranged

Boston, Aug. 29.—The call for the Republican state convention to be held in this city on Oct. 2 was sent out today. All state officers are candidates for renomination, and, it is said, there will be no contests in the convention.

American Murdered In Cuba

Washington, Aug. 29.—The state department is informed of the murder of Ira C. Bradley, near Holguin, Cuba. Bradley was a resident of California and had been trying to establish in Cuba an American settlement known as the "Bradley colony." The only motive ascribed for the murder was robbery, although Bradley was mutilated and badly beaten.

A Pennsylvania Cyclone

Connellsville, Pa., Aug. 29.—A cyclone passed over this section, lifting people off their feet and moving houses from their foundations. A woman was killed by lightning.

"No Recall" System

It Is Best, Says Starter Fitzgerald of Jockeys and Horses Better Behaved.

By C. J. FITZGERALD.
[Official starter of the Jockey club.]

The "no recall" system of starting, in my humble opinion, is very much better than the old time method universal before the introduction of the barrier, and I think the racing is much more enjoyable and the races more true to form since its introduction.

It equalizes chances, divides the responsibility, and an incompetent or careless trainer can no longer put the burden on somebody else's shoulders. If a horse is not properly schooled an owner should know where to place the responsibility, as ample provisions are made by the jockey clubs for the education of the thoroughbreds which sport silk on their courses.

Delays are much less frequent than formerly; in fact, a wait of half an hour or anything approaching it is unknown. Five or six minutes at the outset suffice to get a field under way, no matter how unwieldy it may be. Under the new system of starting owners and trainers realize that a bad acting thoroughbred is anything but desirable, and they hasten to apply the cure which is always at hand, for there are few horses that cannot be "schooled" into proper behavior at the barrier.

The jockeys of the new school are, as a rule, much better behaved than their predecessors, and the firm stand taken by the Jockey club last summer during my illness, when they suspended Burns and Bullman, had a most salutary effect. The sooner a rider realizes that he must be amenable to discipline and that no amount of influence is going to save him the nearer will the starting approach perfection.

If a rider keeps his mount straight at the barrier he cannot get away badly, barring always the chances of a bump or a cross in the first rush at the start. This, however, is one of the unavoidable contingencies which enter into racing, and it cannot be avoided.

Some riders have a natural talent for getting away from the post; others acquire it, and there are still others whose brains and hands do not move in complete and perfect accord, and they never get the knack of it.

The worst race I ever had anything to do with was the Suburban handicap of several years ago in which Banastar, ridden by Danny Maher, was left at the post. This horse had a habit of taking a stride or two and then sticking his toes in the ground and whirling to the left. He would be left at the post every time he started if a man did not know something of his characteristics. He could have been broken, but the "schooling" would have taken some time. His owner and trainer apparently preferred to take their chances on getting away.

In the Brooklyn handicap of that year, and which he won, Banastar spoiled six good starts by whirling and running the reverse way when the gate was raised.

CHRISTIAN ENDEAVOR.

Topic For the Week Beginning Aug. 30—Comment by Rev. S. H. Doyle.

Topic.—Our duty to the stranger.—Deut. vii, 7, 8; II Chron. vi, 32, 33. (Home missions.)

There is no more important problem before the Christian church of America today than that of dealing with the stranger or the foreigner in our land. The prayer of the church used to be, "Lord, open the doors of all lands to the gospel," and not only has this prayer been answered, but God has brought and is bringing to our shores thousands and thousands from other lands who are in serious need of the gospel of Christ.

The seriousness of the problem before the church today from the standpoint of the foreigner is evident when we take into consideration several important facts concerning our foreign population.

1. Their numbers. Our population in 1900, not including our insular possessions, was 76,303,387. Of this number 10,460,085 were foreign born and 15,687,322 were the children of foreign born parents. Thus every third person in the United States is either foreign born or the child of foreign born parents. Moreover, immigration is increasing instead of decreasing. It has averaged for the past five years about 10,000 a week, and it has been estimated that there will come to us this year 850,000 foreigners, an average of over 16,000 a week. What a serious problem confronts us from the standpoint of numbers alone!

2. Their character. The nations which produce the most undesirable classes of people are steadily sending larger numbers to us, while the best nations of Europe are more and more sending less immigrants to our shores. Formerly the best nations of Europe gave us their people, and to them we are indebted for much of our greatness. But today this is changed. While Great Britain, Germany, France and Greece are sending fewer immigrants, Austria-Hungary, Italy, and principally southern Italy, and Russia are sending us more. In the calendar year of 1900 we received 111,088 immigrants from Italy, 108,701 from Austria-Hungary and 92,486 from Russia, while in the same year there came from Great Britain but 49,532 immigrants, from the German empire 20,968, from Greece 4,664 and from France but 2,971. The worst nations of Europe are sending us their worst classes—foreign in speech, in customs, in religious beliefs and in character.

3. Their methods of settling in our land. The general tendency of the foreign element is to congregate according to nationalities in certain sections of our country, the chief places of segregation being our large cities, our great eastern industrial sections and the agricultural districts of the west and northwest. Thus our large cities have their "Little Italy," "Little Germany," "Little Scandinavia" and "Chinatown." Crowded together by the thousands, they live surrounded by squalor and confusion and by moral and spiritual degradation. In our great industrial and agricultural centers similar conditions exist. In the very heart of such an American commonwealth as Pennsylvania entire communities can be found where foreign languages are spoken, costumes worn, newspapers read, political and religious beliefs held and practiced.

The problems of such an element in our population are serious and great. These people must be lifted up or they will drag us down. Our social, political and Christian institutions are all endangered by their presence in our land. They must be Christianized and Americanized or their presence here will be a constant menace to our national welfare and Christian institutions. The church should measure up to its responsibility in this matter. Solomon prayed "concerning the stranger which is not of Thy people Israel," and so we should pray and labor for the salvation of the "stranger within our gates."

BIBLE READINGS.

A Cathedral and Its Chapels.

Dr. Clark says: "No one shall go beyond me in devotion to Bible study or in advocacy of better educational methods for the young people of our churches. I believe with all my heart, as you know, in the quiet hour of communion, in systematic and proportionate giving, in every effort for Christian citizenship and for the home and other similar lines of effort that have grouped themselves around Christian Endeavor as some one has expressed it, "like the beautiful chapels around a great cathedral."

English Methodist Endeavorers.

In England there are 55,605 Primitive Methodist Endeavorers, which is a gain of 4,806 over last year. Two hundred and one new Junior societies have been organized.

Dedham's tax rate is $15.80, the same as last year. The assessed valuation of the shire town is $10,657,625, an increase of $692,850.

Sea sickness has marred the pleasures of those who went out in the steamers from New York to witness the races. Perhaps this is why the reports have at times been delayed.

The many friends of Joseph Haworth, the favorite actor, will regret to learn of his sudden death at Willoughby, Ohio, last night. He was at one time a member of the Boston Museum stock company.

Ex-President Cleveland graced the Old Colony club with his presence at their annual dinner yesterday at Mashnee Island, and received an ovation.

Drift of Opinion.

☞ The selection of Portland as the point of the mimic attack of the naval forces of the enemy this week is based upon the theory that this harbor might be the key to an effective campaign against the northern Atlantic coast in case of actual war, and that an enemy realizing its possibilities as a base for operations along the coast would be apt to make their first assault upon it. However remote these possibilities may be, their recognition and the drilling of our fighting force to meet them removes them so much farther.—Haverhill Gazette.

☞ The report on trolley roads just issued, furnishes many details that assist in realizing the immense business done by them. The electric roads of the United States carried last year three times the population of the earth. They ran their cars 11 times the distance from the earth to the sun. They killed 1218 persons and wounded 47,429, which makes the war with Spain look like a small matter, so far as casualities are concerned. Their capital was more than double the amount of the bonded debt of the United States and their gross earnings for the year were nearly a quarter of a billion of dollars. They employed more than twice the number of men in the United States army. They paid over $13,000,000 in taxes.—Lynn Item.

☞ What is needed is a broader respect for constituted authority, enforced if need be, by the relentless exercise of military power. The law itself is but the expression of force, and its processes are effective only so long as there is a reserve force back of them to make them respected. Every usurpation of the law by the mob impairs the vitality of those legal processes which are the safeguards of our institutions, while on the other hand, every suppression of the mob by the vigorous assertion of force is a telling stroke for the supremacy of law and order. It is, then, upon the maintenance of a strong, self-reliant, efficient and always-ready military establishment, both state and national, in organization and character, that we must depend for the inculcation of proper respect for law, and for the preservation of our institutions. Such an establishment is the one trustworthy and effective barrier between the brutish anarchy of mob rule and social order. —Army and Navy Journal.

☞ The dramatic profession offers the most uncertain of careers to the young girl, even when possessed by the unquenchable fire which blazes a path through all the obstacles that lie before her between the gateway and the goal. It is for her to decide whether the game is worth the candle, and whether she is willing to make the sacrifice entailed upon her in so many ways by adopting a profession in which, in spite of her utmost efforts, she may fail to realize her ambition. But there are countless others who are drawn by the clamor of the stage and a corresponding glamor of temperament, to follow the disciples of Thespis lightly and without regard to the price they must pay if they would ever enter into the Thespian temple, and to these the foregoing story—a story of everyday occurrence, and one all too common—may serve as a check to their crude and unreal fancies — Corinne Parker in the September Metropolitan Magazine.

☞ The matter involved in the custom of tipping is not one of recompense at all. It is rather one of snobbery. The average man or woman does not tip from motives of charity. Painful as the admission may be, the fact remains that personal vanity is behind most tips. A man may delude himself with the notion that he is paying for better service. But he isn't. He is in realty parting with his coin in return for the humble smirk and the obsequious bow —or what passes current for them. He is purchasing the privilege of patronizing a fellow human being. He bartering for a public acknowledgment in pantomime of his superiority of clay. He feeds his stomach and his vanity at the one sitting, but pays the bills separately. The object of his munificence may or may not be worthy—of this he knows little and cares less. What he really seeks is the reputation of "quality," of affluence, and of being a "good fellow." These are the sweet morsels to his metal appetite—such as it is. Remove the snobbery and there would be no more tips.—Denver (Col.) Post.

Children Entertained.

About one hundred and fifty children held an outing at Houghs Neck yesterday as the guests of the Children's Metropolitan Outing Association. The children came from all parts of Boston from Sunday schools and societies.

They were not slum children, nor yet the class that are frequently favored with outings. The children gathered at Snow's wharf at 11 o'clock, and were soon aboard the boat bound for Houghs Neck. As the beach they were given a fish dinner at Norteman's, and the day was passed in playing about the beach, and in sailing in the bay.

The party was in charge of Miss Alice J. Hall, Dana W. Bennett, Frederic A. Claflin, Dr. George Hopkiss and Freeman O. Emerson.

The Naughaught.

Work is being pushed on the 96-foot steam launch Naughaught, that was launched at the works of the Hanley Construction Co. last week. She will have two 50-horse-power gasolene engines, which are now being installed and when completed she will be able to make an ocean voyage. She was built for Isaac G. Lombard a Chicago banker, and will be captained by George Lawson. Her engineer is Orrin C. Bourne. It is expected that she will be ready to sail by Sept. 15.

September Magazines.

The September number of The Metropolitan Magazine shows the mark of its new publishers. It contains no less than ten short stories, and several illustrated articles, besides the continuation of Maurice Hewlett's (who wrote "Forest Lovers") "The Queen's Quair," and Howell's "Letters Home." Sixty illustrations, besides the 16 full-page Portfolio of Portraits of stage people, make it a highly attractive number. The opening article is "The Sporting Spa—Saratoga," by Stephen Bonsal.

THE SNEAK THIEVES

Fellows Arrested in Boston May Be Much Manted Men.

Bert Williams and William H. Smith arrested by Inspector Cronin in a Boston pawnshop yesterday, are thought to be the fellows who made the break at Mr. Plummer's on Greenleaf street, and other places in this vicinity.

Inspector McKay of the Quincy force saw them at police headquarters and says they tally exactly with the descriptions furnished him.

The two crooks had lots of loot with them, and some of it may soon be identified. They are charged with the larceny of goods to the value of $500.

Smith is an old offender, says the Globe, and is now out on $1800 bail for breaking and entering and a "sneak job" at Cambridge. His photograph was taken at police headquarters some time ago. He also has a criminal record, but most of his crimes were committed in Maryland. He has also served terms in the Maryland reformatory when a boy.

Mrs. Herman D. Roberts.

The death of Alice Dennett Roberts, the wife of Herman E. Roberts of Braintree, came as a great shock to the people of the community and as a most genuine grief to her many personal friends to whom she had endeared herself by her sunny disposition, unselfishness and many kindnesses, prompted by a nature which grasped a great principle of true living, that the greatest happiness one can get to himself is found by making others happy. A cheery word always, a whole hearted friendship felt more strongly as one came to know her more thoroughly, a true devotion to her home, and an earnest willingness to do well that part of the world's work which came to her, made a short life, one well lived out and ready for the great reward.

Born in Kennebunk, Maine, she lived there during childhood and after graduation from the State Normal school at Gorham, taught in Maine and later in Massachusetts, after which she was married and five years ago came to live among us, identifying herself with the life of the town as a member of the Baptist church, The Philergians, The Pine Tree Club and other organizations; among whose members she will be greatly missed and kindly remembered.

At the early age of twenty-seven years she has passed on before us; but the Angel of Death came for her only a little sooner, and the great mystery of the hereafter, which she so fondly believed to be our grander destiny may already be revealed.

"Forgive my grief for one removed,
Thy creature whom I found so fair,
I trust SHE lives in Thee, and there
I find HER worthier to be loved."

Tall Hollyhocks.

Rev. R. B. Tobey writes from North Falmouth: My little girl called my attention to the statement in a recent issue to a hollyhock of which you make mention, measuring 9 feet 6 inches. The statement carried with it a challenge to show something taller. Well, here it is, grown in sterile Cape Cod soil.

In the garden of Hon. Francis A. Nye in this village can be seen several hollyhocks 10 feet high and taller, one measuring 10 feet 7 inches. The tallest he has grown this season measured 14 feet. Something more might be said of the brilliant display, artistically arranged of the many other varieties. But you ask only about hollyhocks.

Odd Fellows Temple.

The sovereign grand lodge of Odd Fellows at its seventy-eighth annual meeting in Baltimore in September, will consider a proposition to erect in that city a million dollar memorial building. Washington lodge, No. 1, of Baltimore, which was founded in April, 1819, and is the mother lodge in this country, originated the project last year. Thomas Widley, one of the five original founders, is buried in Baltimore. The order now has 1,300,000 members, and a contribution of $1 each would raise the required sum and more, but the Baltimore members fear competition from western cities which would like to have the proposed temple built within their borders.

Insured for $2,000,000.

L. Rodman Wanamaker, son of John Wanamaker, the eminent merchant of New York and Philadelphia, has taken out a policy in for $1,000,000, paying an annual premium of over $30,000. This makes him the most heavily insured man in the world, with the single exception of King Edward VII.

Mr. Wanamaker's total insurance is now $2,000,000.

Ask yourself WHY Mr. Wanamaker placed one-half this great amount with The Prudential.

Your business judgment will at once reply: "Because after full investigation and comparison, Mr. Wanamaker found that the company which could give him the best insurance for a given amount of money was The Prudential."

Nndoubtedly you will agree that Mr. Wanamaker does not pay over $30,000 per year except for most excellent reasons.

These reasons apply to YOU precisely as well as they do to HIM.

BRAINTREE.

Messrs. Roger Larkin, Chester Connell and Louis Howland left last Saturday morning for a week of camp life in Plymouth.

Miss Isabel Watson of Lynn who has been visiting her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George R. M. Bestick, returned home Wednesday.

Winthrop Burton celebrated his tenth birthday last Saturday by having a party. Cake and ice cream were served and a good time in general was enjoyed by all.

Mr. aud Mrs. Jesse Gifford of Taylor street received a baby girl named Thelma Ruth the twelfth of the month.

Mrs. C. F. H. Crathern and children were in Mason, N. H., when Rev. Mr. Crathern met with his painful accident in Maine.

Mr. and Mrs. Hinsman of Newtonville, former residents of this place, were in town the early part of the week calling upon old friends. They were much pleased at the business activity of the place and charmed with the Methodist church improvements. Mr. and Mrs. Hinsman were formerly worshipers at this church.

The convention of the Norfolk County Loyal Legions will be held at the Methodist church, in South Braintree, September 12.

Mr. William H. Minchin a letter carrier in Meriden, Conn., for over twenty-three years, accompanied by his wife are visiting their relatives in Braintree, Allerton and Needham.

Supt. J. A. McDougall was in town Wednesday to look after school matters.

Mr. Herbert Palmer of Middle street who received such a serious fall from his wheel, is able to be out.

A former resident of Braintree, Mrs. W. F. Farrell of Quincy, was in town Wednesday visiting old friends. With her husband and two children she expeets to move to Doyleston, Ohio the first of September.

Antietam Camp 32 have altered their plans for Labor day and will attend the division field day at Point of Pines. The Division has also invited the G. A. R., W. R. C., L. A. S. and D. of V. to attend.

Last week Saturday during the morning hours a lifelong resident of our town passed out of our midst into her heavenly home. She was born in Braintree and when 21 years of age married Mr. J. Marcus Arnold and to them one daughter came to bless their home. Mrs. Arnold was a very sweet singer and for a number of years sang in the Congregational church choir where she and her family worshipped God.

TODAY'S COURT.

The liquors seized from Lorenzo Cassece at Weymouth were forfeited.

The continued case of William B. Hussey of Milton, for breaking and entering and larceny from the house of Horace Hussey, was heard. He was held in $500 for the grand jury.

The continued case of Thomas Raleigh for concealing leased property at Quincy was heard. He was found not guilty and discharged.

The continued case of Jeremiah Cullinan of Quincy, who was to pay a fine of $15, was called and he was defaulted.

TELLING TREES' AGES.

Only Accurate Way Is Said to Be by Girth Measurement.

"The only accurate way to estimate a tree's age is by the measurement of its girth," said a botanist. "The counting of the rings of oxogenous trees can only be applied to such as are cut down in their prime, for these trees, when they begin to die, cease to add their yearly rings. Girth measurement is the only safe guide to the age of trees.

"Hence all over the world botanists have now for some years been measuring trees of known and unknown age, compiling thus a volume of statistics that will become more and more valuable as it increases in size.

"The yew is the longest lived of trees. Three feet a century, our statistics show, is its normal growth. According to this rule, the Fortingal yew of Scotland, which was fifty-six feet in girth in 1769, must have lived over 1,800 years. The Tisbury yew, in Dorsetshire, is thirty-seven feet in girth and should be, therefore, 1,200 years old.

"There is a table of the age of oaks that differs from this. It is not a very satisfactory table, but it was compiled from trees of known age, and therefore it is statistically very valuable. According to it, a 40-year-old oak had a circumference of 8 feet; 83 years, 12 feet; 100 years, 18 feet; 200 years, 20 feet; 250 years, 27 feet; 300 years, 33 feet."—Philadelphia Record.

Curly Shavings.

A shaving of wood curls up owing to contraction on one side and expansion on the other. This expansion is accelerated by what is known as the "back iron" or "cap iron" which is used in most planes.

The object of this "cap iron" is to break the shavings into short lengths and to prevent the "cutting iron" from tearing or splitting the fibers of the wood, which lie always more or less in a slanting direction.

The nearer the edge of the "back iron" is placed to the edge of the "cutting iron" the shorter the shavings are broken off. These are smooth on one side, and the serrations on the other correspond with the distance between the edges of the two irons.

All wood, too, is formed in circular rings, such as can be seen in the section of any tree trunk. It follows, therefore, that when the rings of wood are cut across, as they are to a certain extent in the act of planing, they are relieved from tension, and curl up in the endeavor to expand themselves.

Head Massage Saves Hair.

"The hairbrush is responsible for much of the baldness that we see," a barber said. "It irritates the scalp. It destroys the little, delicate, tender follicles of hair that are trying their best to get on in the world."

"What would you substitute for the hairbrush—the comb?" a man asked.

"By no means. I'd substitute rubbing with the hands—massage. A little massage morning and evening, with a shampoo once a week, would keep the hair in excellent condition. It would encourage new hair to grow, whereas the vigorous brushing that is so common scares and kills all the feeble new hairs as soon as they sprout out. The brush and comb should only be used to part and arrange the hair—for about half a minute, that is, daily."

Sarah's Gloves.

A family in the south had a coal black cook named Sarah, whose husband was suddenly killed in a quarry accident. For the time being her grief was allayed by the preparations for an elaborate funeral, and on the day of this event, so dear to negroes who desire to show their importance, she appeared before her mistress in deepest black, but on her hands were a pair of white gloves, such as soldiers wear at dress parade and guard mount.

"Why, aunty," exclaimed her mistress, "what made you get white gloves?"

Sarah drew herself up indignantly and said in the chilliest tones, "Don't you suppose I wants dem niggahs to see dat I'ze got on gloves?"—Lippincott's.

A Busy Day.

"Ebenezer, dear," cried the wife of the kindly old capitalist as he slouched heavily homeward in the dusk, with his toil worn hands begrimed with gold dust and his back bowed by heavy and laborious calculation, "hurry now and water the stock and then come in, dear, and we'll sit down cozily and cut coupons."

"And glad I will be to rest," sighed he. "I've been shearing lambs all day. Dum this life! Dodgast it anyway! I got half a notion to sell out and move away, I'm that tired out."

Ah, life is a hard problem.

His Private Zoo.

Smith—Come and go with me to the zoo.

Jones—No, thank you. I'll stay at home. My oldest daughter does the kangaroo walk, my second daughter talks like a parrot, my son laughs like a hyena, my wife watches me like a hawk, my cook is as cross as a bear and my mother-in-law says I'm an old gorilla. When I go anywhere I want a change.—Wasp.

Not Less Devoted.

"You used to sing 'Every Morn I Send You Violets' before we were married," said Mrs. Brimkin with a sigh.

"Yes," answered Mr. Brimkin, "but my devotion has taken a more practical form. Every month I pay the meat bill."—Washington Star.

Consoling.

He—Darling, I have lost my position. She—Never mind, dear. Think how small your salary was.—Town and Country.

Didn't Know That Trick.

"That's a werry knowing animal of yours," said a young cockney to the keeper of an elephant.

"Very," was the cool rejoinder.

"He performs strange tricks and hantics, does he?" inquired the cockney, eying the animal critically.

"Surprisin'!" retorted the keeper. "We've learned him to put money in that box you see up there. Try him with half a crown."

The cockney handed the elephant half a crown, and, sure enough, he took it in his trunk and placed it in a box high up out of reach.

"Well, that is very hextraordinary—hastonishing, truly!" said the green one, opening his eyes. "Now, let's see him take it out and hand it back."

"We never learned him that trick," retorted the keeper, walking away.—Glasgow Times.

Curious Irish Marriage Custom.

A curious old marriage custom, called locally "the settling," still survives in County Donegal, Ireland, and in the Scotch districts of Kintyre and Cowal. After the marriage has been publicly announced the friends of the couple meet at the house of the bride's parents to fix a suitable date for the marriage. A bottle of whisky is opened, and as each guest drinks to their happiness he names a date. When each guest has named a date an average is struck and "settling" is complete. Neither the bride nor bridegroom ever thinks of protesting against the date so curiously chosen.

Frankfort Death Houses.

In Frankfort the body of the dead is removed as soon as life is extinct to "leichen hausen" or death houses, where it rests until the first signs of decomposition appear. Such a death house consists of a warder's room, with five death chambers on each hand. A ring on the finger of each body is connected with a bell, and should one rouse from a trance that had been mistaken for death he could summon the warder. Since Frankfort has had death houses several young girls have been rescued from being buried alive. Munich has a similar system.

The Day Did Come.

His chest heaved convulsively, and the veins stood out upon his forehead. In his anger he advanced toward the other with outstretched fist. But by a strenuous effort he controlled himself.

"No matter!" he muttered savagely. "The day will come!"

Sure enough, at dawn the next morning faint streaks of gray penciled the east. Later, at its accustomed hour, the sun arose.

Thus was the prophecy fulfilled.

Under Water.

Ordinarily a diver is able to remain under water from one to two and a half minutes. James Finny, a professional diver, in London, stayed under water 4m. 29s. Professor Enochs stayed under water at Lowell, Mass., for 4m. 46s. Professor Beaumont of Australia made a record of 4m. 35s.

A LORD AND TWO LADIES

by Cyrus Derickson

Scotland Yard had a case on hand that needed to be handled with the utmost delicacy, and it was handed over to Inspector Jones. Jones was a red-headed, homely looking man, seemingly more fitted in every way to handle a crowbar in a quarry than to work up a delicate case in police matters, but as a matter of fact he was all finesse to his fingers' ends. This case was one wherein Lord Bathmore refused to pay his just debts to certain tradesmen. Some lords refuse to pay their debts because they can't raise the money to do it, but Lord Bathmore refused to because he denied the bills, though they were sent in by some of the most prominent jewelers in the trade. Not only did the young lord deny the bills and damn the people who sent them, but the daughter of Lady Jane Symonds and the wife of Sir John Bevis likewise denied certain bills incurred at the same time and while in the company of the lord.

When Inspector Jones came to interview the six anxious creditors, each of whom had been let in for at least £1,000, and some of them for three times that sum, they told plain, straight stories. Lord Bathmore had called in company with the ladies at a certain date. He needed no introduction, as he was well known, but he had introduced and thus guaranteed the ladies. In each instance they had been searching for birthday gifts, and nothing but the choicest and the best would satisfy them. That three people of title should call at once was enough to make a shopkeeper gasp for breath, and that the trio should condescend to select liberally of his stock and bear their purchases away with them made him weak in the knees for an hour afterward. Lord Bathmore's credit was good for £20,000 at any shop in London, and it was really too bad that the trio could not be induced to purchase three or four times what they finally selected.

The bills had not been sent until three months later, and they were almost a year old before the various firms dared to add that part payment would be a source of gratification. Then it was that the denials were made, and those denials put the creditors in a hole. It isn't considered proper form in England to serve a titled debtor as they serve a delinquent malefactor. He or she must be treated in a gingerly way until the last hope is gone. It was the flat denial of each one of the trio that sent the case to Scotland Yard and put Inspector Jones to work. It looked like a conspiracy, and it was possible that a trick had been played on the jewelers. It was four weeks before Inspector Jones made his first report, and it ran as follows:

"I find that all the purchases were made in the same week, though on different afternoons. I have had an interview with each debtor, and all deny the purchases. Indeed I have proofs that Lord Bathmore was in Paris all that week and that at least one of the ladies was out of town for the whole month. We must either believe that these three persons are liars and conspirators or that there has been a series of queer mistakes."

It was far longer before a second and final report was sent in. Inspector Jones did not believe the trio to be liars and conspirators, and he ran up against a stone wall at once. In each and every case my lord and his lady friends had been waited on by the head salesman or one of the house, and in each and every case was well known by sight. The jewelers couldn't be sure of the identity of the ladies, but that it was Lord Bathmore who honored them with his presence they were ready to take their affidavits. Inspector Jones begged to differ with them, but he realized that he had work on hand before he could prove his point. It made the case all the more difficult because it was a year old. As a beginning he visited the pawn shops, and after a long hunt he had the good luck to turn up a string of pearls that had been included among the purchases. But in the end it led to nothing, for the description furnished by the pawnbrokers failed to tally with the persons of the three accused.

Inspector Jones, without being able to advance anything but general reasons, got a further stay of proceedings. He had an intuition that he would drop on the right clew if given time, and the creditors reluctantly conceded that if they went to law and were beaten they stood a good chance of being mulcted in heavy damages. A year went by and the inspector seemed no nearer the end of his case. Then luck stepped in to aid him. Business of another nature called him over to Ireland, and one night he found himself hung up in a small town with only one thing to do to pass away a long evening. That was to attend a play to be given at the town hall by a second rate provincial theatrical company. Two short plays were billed, and between them Professor Fairfax was to perform wonderful feats of juggling and impersonate many well known characters.

The inspector attended, and his interest was only so so until the impersonations began. Then it quickened, and by the time the professor had turned himself into Lord Bathmore the detective was enthusiastic. There were the dress, gait, the voice and the gestures of my lord to a T, as any one who knew him must say, and the applause that followed was all that could have been hoped for. An hour later Inspector Jones was interviewing the professor in jail and saying:

"Now, then, my man, I've got you at last, and you might as well make a clean breast of it. I suspected a trick of some sort, but hang me if I thought an actor would have the cheek to do it."

The professor wasn't easy game, but it all came out at last, and it was a thing to excite admiration in its way. While playing under another name at one of the London music halls the professor had planned the affair. He excelled in the art of making up, no matter how bad his acting was, and having £100 to back his scheme he induced two actresses of his acquaintance to go in with him. He counterfeited Lord Bathmore so closely that he even entered one of the clubs and was addressed on the street. When he had tested his disguise he went shopping with the ladies, and the result was a haul of £8,000 of the finest jewelry. He would have doubled it had not the nerve of one of the women failed. The professor had a business head on him. Not one single article was pawned. The pearls had been stolen from one of the women and pawned by the thief. The idea was to let a couple of years go by before converting the plunder into cash. The three impersonators were arrested and the property recovered, and the trio are still playing at large if not overfastidious audiences in male and female prisons.

It Was Not a Lozenger.

The exception to the rule that funerals are among the most solemn of human customs occurred at a burial in a Quaker settlement.

An aged and highly respected man in the community died, and the funeral was largely attended. In a room filled with relatives and friends of the dead sat an old farmer, whose cough, like some of the ailments that afflict humans, was especially aggravated when the mourners were quietest.

He made several efforts to control the hectic spasms; but, being blunt in disposition and not the least self conscious, he did not realize that he had the nerves of half of the room on edge and consequently did not worry himself about stopping the cough. Much annoyed, but full of sympathy, a spinster lady, a neighbor, who sat behind him, plunged her hand quietly into an ancient reticule and, drawing out something in her hand, passed it to him, saying in a whisper, "Here is a lonzenger, John; it will stop thee from coughing."

The farmer took it rather indifferently, put it into his mouth, bit hard, then suddenly raised half a foot off his chair, with a wry face. Returning the "lozenger," he said in a voice heard throughout the room:

"Here! Thee should be less careless with thy shoe buttons. I have almost broken a tooth."—Philadelphia Press.

The Acanthus In Architecture.

Vitruvius, a Roman architect and engineer who flourished in the reign of Augustus Cæsar, tells the following story:

Callimachus, a Corinthian architect, was one day sitting, lost in thought, in a burial place just outside the city when his attention was drawn to the tomb of a Corinthian maiden of humble birth. The friends of the child had placed on her grave a basket of her toys, and this, covered with a tile to keep out the rain, was placed over an acanthus root.

The leaves of the plant had closely surrounded the basket until they reached the tile, when they had curved outward and downward very gracefully. This so struck the fancy of Callimachus that he set about imitating the figure. His attempts eventually resulted in the invention of the Corinthian style, in which the vase of the capital represents the basket, the abacus the tile, and the volutes the bending leaves.

The era of Callimachus is uncertain, but as the Corinthian column was used by Scopas, the architect of the temple of Athena Alea at Tegea about 394 B. C., he must have lived before that time.

The Value of Sunlight.

One of the greatest cures at the sanitariums established all over the country is the simple sun bath. The solar heat gives to the whole system a strength and vigor which no nourishing food can impart. It is so essential to our health and happiness that when it is taken away from us we become weak, run down and pale. But when we go out into the warm sunlight again new strength and health come to us. The sun bath is essential. Take it every day. Cut down the trees that are so close to the house that they obscure the sun and have every living room flooded with light. If one is forced to stay indoors all day try to get near the sunny window where the full effects of the sunlight can be felt. It will cure neuralgia, nervousness, faintness, weakness and a dozen other complaints. It will give color and beauty to the complexion by making the blood better and purer. The purest and prettiest complexions are those which are wind swept and sun browned during the summer time, and not those which come from a dark room.

Doings Among Thespians

The New Play "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and Its Strong Cast ⁘ Mrs. Cook's Career ⁘ Stage Talk.

Great interest is manifested by theater goers in the coming presentation in dramatic form of the popular books "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" and "Lovey Mary," both of which were written by Mrs. Alice Hegan Rice. Both books have been molded into a single play, which will be produced by Liebler & Co.

The cast decided on gives promise that the characters in the play will receive an interpretation that cannot help but appeal to audiences, and it is highly probable that "The Cabbage Patch" will forge into the list of coming successes.

Mrs. Anne Crawford Flexner is the dramatist of the books. She it was who dramatized "Miranda of the Balcony" for Mrs. Fiske.

Mrs. Wiggs, as has already been announced, is to be played by Mrs. Madge Carr Cook, the mother of Eleanor Robson. Mrs. Cook looks forward to making the hit of her life as the warm hearted, keen witted Irish woman. Mrs. Cook is known for two parts played with Amelia Bingham—her astonishingly acute and forceful portrayal of the scheming widow in Clyde Fitch's "Climbers" and for her mother of a widely different type in "A Modern Magdalen."

In the west Mrs. Cook has had a reputation for years as a brilliant stock actress, and it is not likely that her range is limited to women with hearts of flint. Her technical mastery of acting is so sound and thorough that if she gets the spirit of Mrs. Wiggs at all she must in the nature of things make a portrait which will cling in the memory.

Lovey Mary is to be played by Mabel Taliaferro. People who saw "In a Balcony" with Mrs. La Moyne and Otis Skinner will remember the quaint little idyl, "The Land of Heart's Desire," by W. Yeats, the Irish poet. If you saw "The Land of Heart's Desire" you cannot forget the elf child, played with remarkable poetic quality. That was little Mabel Taliaferro, whom all the actors who worked with her believed to be a born genius. She is big Mabel Taliaferro now, having gone to school since, but she is not out of her teens and has a face for poetry and gentleness and sweetness which recalls the time when Annie Russell's

MRS. MADGE CARR COOK.

Elaine sent all the town to their Tennysons and kept a preposterous play from "The Idylls of the King" alive.

Do you remember the first season that Herne played "Sag Harbor?" Do you remember the painter, Whitmarsh, whose quaint drollery fairly divided the honors of the performance with Herne? That was Will T. Hodge, who will play Mr. Stubbins. He has not had a really good part since, and if Mr. Stubbins comes out as well on the stage as in the book Hodge will be famous.

Helen Lovell, an actress who has done many good things, will play Miss Hazy, and there will be other talented people in the cast.

After his appearance in "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" Mr. Hodge will star in another company. Hodge's own play, "Doc Whitman," will be the medium of this plunge. When Lawrence McCarthy of the Boston theater was in New York a few days ago he arranged for the production of the piece at his playhouse in March.

The actor recently returned from England, where he arranged for the production of "Doc Whitman" after its Boston run. When London has had all it wants of it the play will come to New York and will tour America during the season of 1904-05.

"Doc Whitman" is of the type generally described as rural. The leading personage, to be acted by Hodge, is a veterinarian.

Stock companies are to be established this season in many cities which have not heretofore boasted of these permanent organizations, according to Walter S. Baldwin, who is to have three companies, one in New Orleans, a second in Buffalo and probably a third in Toronto, Canada.

"There is a demand for the permanent organizations," he said recently, "and there is nothing like giving the public what it wants."

Other cities to have stock companies are Rochester, N. Y., where a company at the Baker theater will be under the management of Owen Davis; Cleveland, where a German stock company is to be established, and Syracuse, N. Y.

In Chicago there will be stock companies at the American theater, the "old" Garrick; the Players' theater, Bush Temple, and the Thirty-first Street theater.

Nashville, Tenn., is to have two companies, and G. Walter Edwardes is now in New York engaging players for them. Memphis, Tenn., is also to have a company, probably under the same management as that in Nashville.

Harry Glazier will be leading man at the Empire theater, Toledo, and the following persons have been engaged for his support: Paul F. Anderson, Albert Dorris, Clara Knott, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph O'Mears. This company will play a season of fifty weeks.

At the Castle Square theater, Boston, there will be an almost entirely new organization, with the exception of Lillian Lawrence, the leading woman. W. C. Masson has been engaged to stage all the productions.

Ottawa, Canada, is also to have a stock company, and it is likely that in the new house A. J. Small is opening in Quebec a new company will be engaged for a run of several weeks.

Philadelphia will have at least five companies, one each at Forepaugh's,

WILL T. HODGE.

the Girard Avenue and the Standard, the Radcliffe company and one at the Grand Opera House.

Secretary McIntyre of the Actors' society says, "We are placing more actors with stock organizations than for several seasons."

AUTOMOBILE TOPICS.

A New Motor Club In St. Paul—Sahara Autos.

The St. Paul Automobile club has been organized in St. Paul, Minn., with fifty members, including some of the best known business men of the city, and officers have been elected as follows: President, Paul Gotzian; vice president, R. C. Wright; secretary, John Patterson; treasurer, Gustave Scholle.

Several women will join the club, as there are a number of women automobilists in the Minnesota capital. An automobile show is planned and the usual parades, club runs and race meets are to be held.

More serious objects of the club will be the protection of members from unjust and oppressive legislation and the securing of more boulevards and of speedways where automobiles may be driven for pleasure and speed testing.

Advices have been received from Cairo, Egypt, to the effect that tourists in Egypt will soon be able to cross the Sahara desert in a four mile an hour automobile specially constructed for traveling over sandy wastes.

The vehicle is said to accommodate forty passengers, and, while the speed seems absurdly slow, it is greater than that of camel transportation. The Egyptians in charge of the camel transportation of course are opposing the introduction of the automobile. The English government is now using motor vehicles for transporting troops in Sudan.

TROOPS ON THE MOVE

Likely to Be Hot Conflict In Adrianople District

TURKISH OFFICER'S ORDER

Said to Be to Annihilate Everything and Everybody Bulgarian When Insurgent Bands Appear—Rebels Attack Turkish Soldiers and Kill 150

Sofia, Aug. 29.—The porte is not losing time in adopting the strongest measures to suppress the outbreak in the vilayet of Adrianople. Makir Pasha, commanding the artillery, and Sadik Pasha, commanding the infantry forces, have started from Adrianople for the centre of the disturbances at Kirk-Kilisseh, near that place.

The Autonomye says the Turkish commander of the district of Seres has ordered his subordinates to kill and destroy everything and everybody Bulgarian immediately the insurgent bands appear. The Turkish population is fleeing towards Constantinople. Eight hundred men, women and children have gone to Basiliko, and the Turkish government is arranging to send them to Asia Minor.

A fierce fight has occurred at Passakui, 20 miles from Adrianople, where three Turkish battalions surrounded a body of insurgents. A second band of rebels came to the assistance of their comrades, who thereupon broke through the cordon, killing 150 Turks.

The Macedonian organization is reported to be planning a big movement. General Zontcheff is said to be organizing a body of 5000 Macedonians to cross the frontier.

The porte has communicated to the embassies of Austria and Russia a memorandum describing the doings of the insurgents in the vilayet of Adrianople.

The Macedonian committee has urgently appealed to Prince Ferdinand to show a greater interest in the Macedonian situation, saying if Macedonia is not soon liberated the position of Bulgaria will become excedingly critical.

The Dnevnik prints details of the train outrage near Kuleli Burgas. It says a package was placed in the restaurant car of the train at Budapest containing the bomb with a clockwork attachment which was timed to explode as the train was crossing the bridge at Maritza. It was intended to destroy the bridge and cut off communication between Adrianople and Salonica.

Loyal to the Government

Athens, Aug. 29.—Five thousand Macedonians demonstrated here as a protest against the action of the Bulgarian revolutionists. The speeches were moderate and no disorder occurred. A memorandum embodying the protest of the meeting was drawn up and will be submitted to the Greek government and the foreign legations here.

Ex-Mayor a Bad Man

Seymour, N. D., Aug. 29.—As the result of a quarrel on the street between former Mayor Mills and Policemen Reddinger and Baughman, Mills was shot and perhaps fatally wounded by the policemen. Reddinger was shot in the head and Baughman was shot twice in the side. Mills had been ordered home by the officers and resented it. He flourished a revolver, which was taken from him, and he then drew a knife. Later he went to his office and secured another revolver, returned and began shooting.

Twenty Soldiers Killed In Wreck

Rome, Aug. 29.—A railway accident has cut short the festivities and demonstrations in honor of the king and queen at Udine, where the sovereigns had gone to view the grand army maneuvers. Near Udine a train overflowing with soldiers collided with a freight train. Those on board were thrown in all directions and the coaches were broken up. Twenty soldiers and one captain were killed and 80 injured, many dangerously.

Blocked by Constitution

Bogota, Aug. 29.—The committee of three members of the Colombian congress which has been appointed to devise a plan which would save the canal treaty from rejection has not reported. It has not yet been able to obviate the difficulties presented by the constitution.

Powers' Fate In Jury's Hands

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 29.—The case of Caleb Powers was given to the jury last night, with directions to retire and consider it for an hour. An hour later the jury reported that no agreement had been reached and was excused until today.

A Lack of Wind

Chicago, Aug. 29.—After sailing half of the course yesterday in the race of the series for the Sir Thomas Lipton cup, the contest was declared off, as none of the 21-footers was able to finish within the time limit of three hours.

Unfavorable Racing Weather

New York, Aug. 29.—The wind off Sandy Hook this morning was east-northeast, with a velocity of 32 miles. It was raining and thick off shore, with a heavy sea running.

Fighting Students Imprisoned

Berlin, Aug. 29.—Two students named Ludwig Schmitt and Emil Mark have been sentenced to three months' detention in a fortress for dueling.

OUR CONSULAR CORPS

The Most Efficient In the World but Receive Poorest Salaries

Washington, Aug. 29.—Although congress failed to pass the bill providing for its reform, President Roosevelt has determined to take our consular service out of politics. Hitherto members of congress have looked upon the several hundreds of berths in the seductive foreign establishment as plums for their political friends and lieutenants. The service has been gradually improved in recent administrations, but had not yet come up to the president's standard.

There are now 327 posts in the service. While perhaps the poorest paid, it is looked upon as already the most efficient consular corps in the world. In the old days these posts were looked upon very generally as sinecures, offering a foreign life of ease to men with sufficient private fortune to admit of their mingling in society abroad. But the tidal wave of Yankee commercial supremacy has now beaten upon the shores of the farthest distant isles of the seas and nearly every American consulate is busy.

We hear little of the life at the more remote and isolated of the posts. From the Klondike to Cape Horn these scattered outposts of Yankee commerce are dotted over the globe. On the everytorrid equator line, in the very view of the pirates of the Oriental seas, or among the savages of the southern ocean, Old Glory flying from a flagstaff, an eagle and a shield in medallion over a doorway, guide the American traveler to an asylum where he may obtain succor or protection.

Our most undesirable consular post just now is that at Guayaquil, Ecuador, almost on the equator. Guayaquil has always been a "bad luck town," its three centuries and a half of history having been an endless chain of vicissitudes—war, pillage, devastating fires, earthquakes and pestilence.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Aug. 29.—Steamer Erin, loaded with railroad iron, is fast on a shoal near Sister light with her bow three feet out of water. Saturday the Erin struck a pier and sunk at Farran's point. She was raised by wreckers and passed up the St. Lawrence. The wrecking tug passed the shoal safely, but the Erin ran out high on the shoals. Three sailors with axes were cutting the tow line to the consort when a schooner struck the Erin, driving her farther onto the shoal. Robert McCay, a sailor, was caught in the crash and had his neck broken.

BIG CAPTURE VOID

Navy Thought It Achieved Grand Victory In the War Game

Portland, Me., Aug. 29.—At noon today the mimic war off this port since midnight Tuesday will come to an end and the several thousand men hurried to the defense of the city will be withdrawn from the harbor defenses. Yesterday's movements consisted of an engagement during which a landing party of 1800 men under Rear Admiral Coghlan captured all the stations and defenses of the cape and Spurwin. The marines and jackies landed almost at dawn and were engaged until afternoon, when they returned to the fleet, which had remained off Richmond's island all day.

Rear Admiral Coghlan believed he had achieved the grandest victory of the navy, but at 3:45 Lieutenant Jordan, in command of the engineer's corps at the Two Lights, was informed that the umpires had decided that no landing was effected by the invaders, as the men and boats had been put out of action before the landing was attempted. Therefore the capture of all the points on the cape, including the signal, searchlight and fire control stations at Two Lights, the defenses at Silver Springs and the searchlight at Pond Cove, was void, and they stand as if no attempt had been made at their capture. This left the immense searchlights in action for a demonstration last night.

Reports that the invaders were marching upon the forts and the city prevailed, but if such had been the intention, it was not carried out, the men returning to the ships at 3:45. The men standing at the entrenchments on Meeting House hill, three miles from the city, were re-enforced by 600 men from the forts in anticipation of an assault from the invaders or an attempt to march upon the city proper. The capture of this force would require more than 6000 invaders.

Zionists Make Changes

Basel, Aug. 29.—At the closing session of the Zionist congress it was decided that in future the congresses should be attended by 200 voting delegates instead of 100 as heretofore. The members of the business comittee were increased to 50.

Friends In Fatal Scuffle

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 29.—In a drunken scuffle for the possession of a revolver between Frank Fahey, aged 17, and William Williams, aged 23, Williams was shot and died in a few minutes. The men were close friends and mine workers.

Eleven Drowned In Squall

Gibraltar, Aug. 29.—Eleven men who were engaged in salvage work on the wreck of the steamer Irurakbat, near Tarifa, 15 miles from here, were drowned dyring a sudden squall.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Mommouth, Me., had a narrow escape from destruction. A wholesale conflagration seemed inevitable, but the loss will not exceed $4000.

The Buddhists are building many temples in the Hawaiian Islands and thousands are professing that faith. Some churches which were built for Christian Japanese have been taken over by the Buddhists.

—A Chicago doctor is said to have discovered a remedy for lockjaw, which he has successfully tested in a severe case of tetanus in South Chicago. The method of treatments is the injection of a solution of calcium and potassium salts. Now that the proper combination of salts to produce the desired results has been discovered, it is claimed that the treatment will be equally efficacious in cases of blood poisoning, snake bites, etc. It is to be hoped that the new remedy may prove to be all that is anticipated, but most people cling to the old adage of the "ounce of prevention" being better than "a pound of cure," and will keep away from toy pistols, snakes, and other death-dealing agencies.—Milford Gazette.

TOILET TIPS.

Don't forget to wash the dust from the eyelids every night before retiring.

Bran water, to which have been added a few drops of ammonia, is very beneficial for the complexion.

Don't use borax and rosewater to remove tan and freckles without putting on a little cold cream afterward, for borax makes the skin dry.

Much soiled hands should be rubbed with soap and then with bran. This will remove the dirt very quickly, and the bran will soften the water and keep the hands smooth.

For soft gums that bleed easily a few drops of myrrh added to the water in which the teeth are cleaned will be found excellent. Strength is of less importance in cleaning the teeth than thoroughness.

Charcoal, while a capital cleaner of the teeth, is seldom recommended by dentists. Not only is it untidy to use, but the particles have a tendency to get between the teeth and the gums, making the latter recede.

It is said that a lotion composed of two ounces each of rosewater, alcohol and glycerin, with one teaspoonful of borax, is a certain cure for blackheads. After bathing the face night and morning rub in with the hand.

Toilet Articles.

There are people who boast of their allegiance to one particular brand of soap or tooth paste, as if loyalty to toilet articles was a virtue as holy as patriotism or marital fidelity. It doesn't pay to be so steadfast. It is bad for the complexion. All beauty doctors who have not preparations of their own on the market say that it is. "The skin needs a change of food as well as the digestive organs," said one of these specialists. "No matter how good a soap or powder may be, the tissues of the face grow tired of the steady diet and need a change. The wise person gives them that change. The preparation substituted may not be a bit better than the discarded favorite—perhaps not so good—but the skin responds gratefully to the different treatment, and little eruptions and blemishes that are purely local and not caused by constitutional troubles soon disappear. After a little the old standby may be resumed, but always it will be well to switch off to something else at intervals if one wishes a tiptop complexion."

The Ideal Bedroom.

The bedroom should be provided with the essentials for healthful sleep and the daily sponge bath. As nearly as possible the room should be kept free from anything that would tend to contaminate the air. It should be as large as one can afford, and the windows so arranged that they may be opened at the top and bottom. If possible the floor should be bare and the rugs so small that they can be taken out of doors with ease for cleaning and airing. Everything about the room should be washable. The bed should be light and fitted with strong casters so that it may be readily moved. The springs ought to be firm and strong and the mattress of a kind that will not allow the heaviest part of the body to sink and so cause the sleeper to lie in a cramped position. Many people prefer a cheap, hard mattress next to the springs and a light one of hair on this. But any kind of mattress is better than one that is too soft. Above all, do not overfurnish the bedroom.

The Best Beautifier.

Happiness is a great beautifier. A pleasure thought refines the features and actually sweetens the whole personality. It makes the step lighter, the gait better, and also makes one more fit for her duties. Some women have an idea that only some very happy occurrence can produce pleasant thoughts. This is an erroneous idea as well as a selfish one, and it proves that there is precious little beauty of character. Pleasant thoughts are a part of ourselves—of our disposition and our ways—and come to us as noiselessly and beautifully as the sun bursts over the sea and reflects itself therein. The woman who thinks kindly and charitably of others, who sees a silver lining to every cloud, proves that the standard of her mind is high and pure and free from unhappy traits. It is in the power of every woman to make herself sweeter and nobler simply for the trying.

One Secret of Attractiveness.

Not all women can be beautiful, of course, but some phase of attractiveness is within the reach of all. It is an exceptional person who has not one "redeeming virtue" that can be cultivated, and volumes have been written on this subject. In this wisdom she is doubtless well versed and has tested the rules and regulations thoroughly with, perhaps, less success than she expected. The "secrets" have not divulged themselves and still remain inscrutable. But there is a secret that "works." It is not new, and to many it sounds rather prosy, but it really does pay, as all who have found it can testify. Cheerfulness and positive thoughts always pay, because they relax not only the mind, but even the muscles of the face. Try this secret and see for yourself.—American Queen.

The Bust Form.

Any woman who has much sewing done at home will find it greatly simplified if she adopts my plan. Fit a waist lining of some strong material and take it to any store where covered wooden bust forms are sold. Get one to fit the lining as near as possible, and when it comes home put the lining on it and pad out all deficiencies with cotton, and then sew up. In this way one can have an exact duplicate of one's own figure on which to fit and drape, and that tiring part of the work will then be diminished to the greatest possible degree. It is an excellent plan

MEXICAN INDIAN MAIDENS.

They Take the Initiative In Love Affairs and Do the Courting.

The custom of Mexico requires the Indian girl to do all the courting. She is just as bashful as the young swain whom she wishes to fascinate, but she has to take the initiative in love affairs. The young people meet only at the feasts, and after she has got mildly under the influence of the native beer that is liberally consumed by all she tries to attract his attention by dancing before him in a clumsy way up and down on the same spot. But so bashful is she that she persistently keeps her back turned toward him. She may also sit down near him and pull his blanket and sing to him in a gentle, low voice a simple love song, such as "Beautiful man to be sure." If occasion requires, the parents of the girl may say to the parents of the boy, "Our daughter wants to marry your son." Then they send the girl to the boy's home that the young people may become acquainted. For two or three days perhaps they do not speak to each other, but finally she playfully begins to throw pebbles at him. If he does not return them she understands that he does not care for her. If he throws them back at her she knows that she has won him. She lets her blanket drop and runs off into the woods, and he is not long in following her.—Carl Lumholtz in "Unknown Mexico."

Change of Air.

The quasi miraculous benefits which are associated with change of air in the popular belief are in reality derived when they accrue from change of environment, qua change of habits of life. In a great many instances the measure of benefit obtainable would be as effectually secured, and at much less expense, by mere change of habits, without the fatigue and inconvenience of change of domicile. The overwrought city clerk might advantageously take to driving a cab, while the cabman would find it a relief to discharge for a time the functions of caretaker of a deserted house. Many an overworked physician would experience a distinct improvement were he to qualify as chauffeur, with no other object in view than to cover space, and there are few domestic servants whose health would not be sensibly modified by a brief experience as milkmaid or gleaner should the season lend itself to that pursuit. The "literary gent," whose brain is sterile of new ideas, might recuperate his energies by usurping the role of a sick man and remaining in bed for a week or two.—Medical Review.

A Spider and a King.

On the ceiling of one of the rooms in Sans Souci, the world renowned palace of Frederick the Great in Prussia, is the painting of a huge spider with its web. The reason for this odd decoration is that one morning just as the king was about to drink his usual morning cup of chocolate in this room he turned aside for something, and when, a moment later, he took up the cup he noticed a small spider had fallen into it. Immediately upon giving an order for a fresh cup a pistol report was heard, and it was discovered that the cook had shot himself. The reason for this, it was later found out, was that he had poisoned the chocolate, and of course when a fresh cup was ordered he supposed his treachery had been discovered. It was in remembrance of this narrow escape that Frederick ordered a spider's web to be painted on the ceiling.

A Consoled Widow.

"Yes," said Coyote Jim, "we did make a mistake once, stranger, but we squared it up all right."

"How was that?" asked the tenderfoot.

"One day a feller come through town," explained the native, "riding two ways for sundown, an' somebody yelled he was a hoss thief. In course we rounded him up an' strung him afore we found he'd only stole a clotheshorse from his wife to trade for licker. But we held a meetin' right after, an' the widder got our washin' fer the next year, so she never lost nothin' by it, an' she got her clotheshorse back too!"—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Harry to Olive.

Tess—Harry Goodley is engaged to Olive Soberle. You've heard of it, of course?

Jess—No! The idea! I thought she was too much wrapped up in her temperance work to bother with matrimony.

Tess—It seems not. By the way, her engagement ring is quite appropriately inscribed, the very essence of temperance—"H2 O."—Philadelphia Press.

Experienced.

"What is the first thing to be done in case of fire?" asked the professor.

"Sue the insurance company," promptly answered the boy at the foot of the class, whose father had been burned out once or twice and appeared to have made a good thing of it.

Her Ideal.

Slimpurse—You say you are not in love with any one else, but you are in love with an ideal. Perhaps I can in time approach that ideal.

Miss Beauti (regretfully)—I'm afraid not. He is a character in a fairy story. Everything he touched turned to gold.

Value Wanted.

BOSTON AMUSEMENTS.

KEITH'S THEATRE.

With the Fadettes orchestra withdrawn, the bills at Keith's for some time to come will probably be of the "all variety order," although occasional sketches will be frequently introduced. Special attention is being directed to the coming of Ned Weyburn's minstrel misses, which the vaudeville folks evidently look upon as something very out of the ordinary, the date being set as Sept. 14. For the week beginning Aug. 31, the most noted entertainer will be Charles T. Aldrich, comedy juggler and burlesque magician, who has not been seen on the local stage for several seasons. He will be remembered as an extraordinarily funny and skilful chap, and he promises some new feats on this occasion. A few of the others in the same bill are Kelley and Reno, grotesque acrobats, who will be new to Boston; the Avon comedy four, a quartet of funmakers and dancers who have never been at Keith's before; Belle Veola, a vocalist and contortion dancer, also new, and Prince Kokin, the most graceful Japanese illusionist and wonderworker who has ever visited this country. An entire change of motion pictures is made each week, and Director Peck of the regular house orchestra promises some excellent music to offset the withdrawal of the Fadettes.

CASTLE SQUARE THEATRE.

The summer season at the Castle Square Theatre ends with the coming week and the regular fall and winter season follows immediately beginning Monday, Sept. 7th. For the final attraction of the summer season the selection made is the American comedy "The Wife," by Belasco and DeMille, which has not been seen in this city for several seasons. Mr. J. H. Gilmour concludes his limited engagement with the Castle Square company in this production "The Wife" has always been considered one of the most successful efforts of its authors, and teaches in an interesting way a good lesson to husbands, wives and young people of fickle temperament. A strong attraction has been selected for the opening of the fall and winter season and the company engaged promises to be of notable ability, with Lillian Lawrence as leading lady. The usual distribution of souvenir boxes of chocolate bonbons will be made at

NO CHANGE IN PLANS

American Fleet Will Anchor In Turkish Waters

TURKISH MINISTER UNEASY

Says That Revolutionists May Think American Sympathy Is With Their Cause—Administration Insists Upon Adequate Protection of Americans

Washington, Aug. 31.—Other than advices from Admiral Cotton announcing his departure with the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Beirut, there are no developments in the Turkish situation so far as Washington is concerned. No additional information has come from United States Minister Leishman, Secretary Hay saying he had not heard from our minister to Turkey since Saturday morning. The orders to Admiral Cotton to proceed to Beirut will not be cancelled, it is authoritatively stated, unless the president so directs. Such an order at this time, however, apparently would not avail anything, as the admiral is now on his way to Turkey.

That Chekib Bey, the Turkish minister, is manifestly perturbed over the situation of affairs in Turkey is fully realized here. His uneasiness over the presence of an American fleet in Turkish waters lest it be taken by the revolutionists as an evidence of the American government's sympathy with their cause, it is thought, will not be a strong enough reason for its withdrawal. The administration regards it as a sacred duty to see that adequate and prompt assistance and protection should be given American interests in the disturbed region, and for this reason feels justified in having the warships sent to Turkey.

Contrary to expectations Chekib Bey did not arrive in Washington last night from his summer home at Sayville, L. I., and inquiry at the leading hotels failed to disclose that he had telegraphed he was coming. A number of dispatches are awaiting his arrival here. Presumably some of them are from Constantinople. Secretary Hay will grant the minister an audience today if he comes to the city.

With the departure of the cruisers Brooklyn and San Francisco for Beirut yesterday, as announced by Admiral Cotton to the navy department, the entire European squadron is now on its way to the Turkish seaport, the gunboat Machias having left Genoa Saturday. The cruisers are much faster than the gunboat and Admiral Cotton cabled that he expected they will reach Beirut by Friday next.

Minister Leishman has been instructed by cable to notify the Turkish government that it must keep the peace, and that it will be held to a strict accountability for any lawless acts toward American citizens.

The American consuls at Beirut and Harpoot report, Minister Leishman cabled, that while the Americans in those places are in danger of suffering from an uprising at any time, the situation was not as grave when the dispatches were sent as earlier reports indicate.

Russian Battleship Launched

St. Petersburg, Aug. 31.—The battleship Slava, which is one of the largest vessels in the Russian navy, was launched at the Baltic yard in the presence of the czar and the royal family. The Slava is of 13,600 tons displacement, 16,000 horse power and 376½ feet long. She has an armor belt of 9.4 inches and carries an armament of 4 12-inch guns, 12 6-inch guns, 20 3-inch guns, 2 3-pounders and 6 1-pounders. Her speed is to be 18 knots an hour. Her crew will number 740.

Largest in the World are the mills where Pillsbury's Best Flour is made. Their capacity is thirty thousand barrels a day.

SENTENCED TO DEATH

Caleb Powers Announces His Intention to Appeal Again

Georgetown, Ky., Aug. 31.—Caleb Powers, formerly secretary of state of Kentucky, was convicted for the third time of the murder of Governor Goebel and sentenced to death. At his two previous trials, which were reversed by the court of appeals, he was sentenced to life imprisonment.

Powers received the verdict without emotion. When the jury went out he was sitting, chatting with friends, and aside from glancing up as the jurymen filed out, made no move. After this cursory glace he turned to his companions and resumed his conversation.

"Its an unjust verdict, not warranted by the evidence," declared Powers "I shall certainly appeal again."

It has now been more than three years since Governor Goebel was murdered in the state house yard at Frankfort. Ten persons were arrested for his murder, including some of the most prominent Republicans in the state. Ex-Governor Taylor is now a fugitive from the state, practicing law at Indianapolis. Efforts have been made to secure his extradition to Kentucky, but without success.

Confessions of a most sensational character have been made by Henry Youtsey, Wharton Golden, Robert Noakes and others who were implicated in the plot against Goebel.

A Great Labor Project

Pittsburg, Aug. 31.—According to President Buchanan of the International Bridge and Structural Iron Workers it is planned to amalgamate the six powerful structural trades into a mighty national building trades council of 600,000 workmen and the absorption by these six of the smaller building trades such as the granite cutters, marble polishers, stonecutters, etc. One meeting to further this object has been held and another will be held at Indianapolis on Oct. 7 to perfect the organization.

Suspicious Circumstances

Attleboro, Mass., Aug. 31.—The body of Mrs. Ann MacDonald, aged 63, was found at her home here covered with blood and showing several bruises, while three men who were discovered in the house were unable to explain their presence. The woman lived alone and her relatives feared foul play, but the medical examiner pronounced death due to alcoholism. He was unable, however, to explain the cause of the bruises. The three men found in the house were held for examination.

Robbers Commit Double Murder

Chicago, Aug. 31.—Without a word of warning two men were killed and two others wounded by highwaymen at the barns of the Chicago City Railway company at an early hour Sunday. The shooting was done by three men who escaped after securing $3000. Three of the men who were shot were working in the cashier's office and the other was a motorman asleep in the outer office. Four men have been arrested on suspicion of being implicated in the crime.

Oil Barge Lost

New York, Aug. 31.—Captain Rubelli of the Standard Oil company's steamer E. L. Drake reports the loss of the schooner-barge S. O. Co. No. 91, which was being towed from Port Arthur with a cargo of petroleum. Heavy weather was encountered on the coast and the barge began leaking, finally breaking away from the steamer. She drifted ashore near Little Egg harbor, N. J. The crew of eight men was taken off and brought to port by the Drake.

More Alleged Silver Thieves

Wallingford, Conn., Aug. 31.—More arrests have been made by the officers who have been investigating the thefts of silver bullion and silverware from the International Silver company. Three boys have been taken into custody. In each case the charge is that of larceny. The other persons arrested in connection with the investigation are John Booth at Meriden and Edison A. Monroe at New Haven.

Hunt's Visit to Hanna

San Juan, P. R., Aug. 31.—The Republican leaders here say Governor Hunt's visit to Senator Hanna was to settle the admission of Porto Rican delegates to the Republican national convention, to arrange for answering the Democratic attacks on Porto Rico and to discuss the possibility of running Governor Hunt for the vice presidency.

Succeeded In Killing Herself

New York, Aug. 31.—In a supposed fit of insanity Mrs. Kathleen Johnson, 30 years old, attempted to kill her 7-year-old daughter by cutting her right wrist with a carving knife, and then slashed her own left wrist and her throat with the same weapon, inflicting injuries from which she died. The little girl will recover.

DECISIONS KEPT SECRET

Result of Army and Navy Maneuvers Forwarded to War Department

Portland, Me., Aug. 31.—The joint army and navy maneuvers have been concluded. The combined north Atlantic fleet, commanded by Rear Admiral Barker and accompanied by Admirals Sands, Wise and Coghlan, sailed Saturday evening to the westward for target practice off the New England coast, and the defenses of the harbor were withdrawn rapidly.

While Admiral Barker has referred to certain decisions rendered by the navy umpires and observers he declined to make public the substance of the decisions, and the definite results of the maneuvers will not reach the public for many months, if they ever do, it is stated. The detailed reports of the eight umpires and 22 observers will be forwarded to the war department and there carefully compiled. A board of arbitrators was appointed, two for each service and the fifth by agreement between the army and navy commanders. Naval observers for the forts and military observers for the ships also watched the operations. The reports of the umpires, observers and commanding officers will afford the basis for decision by the board of arbitration.

Jewelers' Strike Threatened

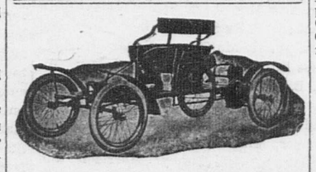

Providence, Aug. 31.—A general strike among 252 jewelry factories in Providence and vicinity, Attleboro and North Attleboro, Mass., is threatened, and unless a settlement of pending differences can be reached 6000 hands may go out. The union's principal demand is that a working day of nine hours be substituted for the 10 hours labor operatives in all of the shops are now doing, and that 10 hours' pay be given for the nine hours. This demand the manufacturers have emphatically refused to grant, and they also ignore any right of the union to make such a request.

Railways In Receivers' Hands

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 31.—Charles M. Thayer and John A. Hall have been appointed receivers for the Worcester and Southbridge Street Railway company and the Worcester, Rochdale and Charlton Depot Street Railway company, with full power to operate those roads. The appointment was made by Chief Justice Mason of the superior court after a brief hearing of the petitioners for a receivership for the roads. The receivers are under $100,000 bonds each.

Too Free Use of Revolver

Lowell, Mass., Aug. 31.—Antonio Carneso, 19, was arrested in Dracut upon the charge of shooting Thomas Brick. Brick is seriously wounded, but will probably recover. A boy named Eaton was also hit in the leg by a bullet from Carneso's revolver, but was not seriously wounded. Carneso is said to have become angered at some remarks made by the young men, which he believed were intended for him.

THE WOLLASTONS LOSE, WHILE THE QUINCYS WIN.

MERRYMOUNTS WIN.

And Are Now Tied With Wollastons for Second Place.

The local rivals, the Wollastons and the Merrymounts, met Saturday in the Quincy league, and the latter pulled the former from first place in the league and both are now tied for second place. The Wollastons commenced the run getting in the second, but the Merrymounts scored 4 in the third and led from that time, winning by the score of 6 to 2.

Fountain of the Wollastons had a big record, causing 16 strike out, but at the same time the Merrymounts got 13 safe hits including three 2-base hits, and one 3-base hit.

While Kolson of the Merrymounts struck out only 11, he allowed only eight safe hits, seven singles and one for three bases.

Both nines fielded well as the summary shows:

RATHER ONE-SIDED.

South Quincys Defeated by the Quincys 7 to 1.

The South Quincys were able to make but six scratch hits off Dunn on Saturday and it was an easy victory. Dunn not only kept his opponents down but he made three safe hits himself, one for two bags.

The Quincys made 15 safe hits with a total of 21 and won handily by the score of 7 to 1. The victory puts them into first place in the league.

No person shall dig up, cut, break, remove, deface, defile or illuse any building, structure, fence, sign, bush, plant, turf, rock, or other thing herein, belonging to the Commonwealth, or have possession of any part thereof; but this rule shall not prohibit the picking of wild flowers and edible berries in reasonable quantities for personal use.

RULE 3. No person shall throw any stone or other missile; or have possession of or discharge any destructive weapon, firearm, firecracker, torpedo or firework; or make a fire; or throw or place upon the ground a lighted match, cigar or other burning substance; or post, paint, affix or display any sign, notice, placard or advertising device; or, except with written authority from said Metropolitan Park Commission engage in business, sell, or expose for sale, or give away any goods, wares, or circulars; or set a trap or snare; or injure or have possession of any wild animal or bird; or injure or disturb any bird's nest or eggs.

RULE 4. No person shall solicit the acquaintance of or annoy another person; or utter any profane, threatening, abusive or indecent language or loud outcry; or solicit any subscription or contribution; or have possession of or drink any intoxicating liquor; or play any game of chance; or have possession of any instrument of gambling; or do any obscene or indecent act; or preach; or pray aloud; or make an oration or harangue, or any political or other canvass; or display a flag or banner; or move in a military or civic parade, drill or procession; or lie down upon a bench or go to sleep thereon; or play any musical instrument except by written authority from said Metropolitan Park Commission.

RULE 5. No person shall ride or drive an animal not well broken and under proper control; or ride or drive an animal or vehicle faster than ten miles an hour or coast with a cycle or sled down any hill.

RULE 6. No person shall have or allow a vehicle for carrying merchandise, or a vehicle in use for carrying merchandise or articles other than the equipments proper for a pleasure vehicle, or a hearse, or any vehicle in a funeral procession, except upon a traffic road, or to gain access by the shortest way from the nearest street to the front entrance of a house facing on the Reservation.

RULE 7. No person shall ride or drive an animal or vehicle except upon the driveways, or upon other than the right hand side of the road except when passing another animal or vehicle, or past an animal or vehicle except to the left thereof, or across a road unless the right of way is given to all other animals or vehicles, or by the side of more than one vehicle; or ride a cycle past an animal or vehicle going in the same direction without sounding a bell; or hitch a horse or other animal to a fence, tree, bush or shrub.

RULE 8. No person shall stop an animal or vehicle so as to obstruct a parkway, boundary road or driveway, or a sidewalk or crossing thereof, or so as to prevent the passing of other vehicles, or otherwise than lengthwise with a parkway, boundary road or driveway and close to the sidewalk thereof.

RULE 9. No person having charge of an animal or vehicle shall neglect or refuse to stop, place, change the position of or move said animal or vehicle as directed by a police officer.

RULE 10. No person having charge of an animal shall allow the same to stand without some proper person to take charge of the same, except that an animal hitched to a place provided therefor, or to a weight of not less than twenty pounds, may be allowed to stand unattended for not more than five minutes.

RULE 11. No person in charge of any animal other than a dog, shall allow it to go upon the Reservation unless such animal be used for pleasure travel on a way or place provided therefor.

RULE 12. No person shall bathe except in a proper costume and at places designated therefor, or loiter or run about or lie upon the beach or shore in bathing costume.

RULE 13. No person shall refuse or neglect to obey any reasonable direction of a police officer.

Any person violating any one of the above rules is liable to a fine of twenty dollars for each offence.

The reservations, parkways and roads under the control of the Metropolitan Park Commission are public property and it is the duty of every person to see that the above rules are observed, and to call the attention of the police to any violation thereof.

Good Afternoon

It is reported that a coal mine employing 3,000 men will shut down tomorrow for and indefinite time, claiming an over crowded coal market. Another evidence that the coal barons intend to crowd the people further.

PASTOR OF ST. JOHN'S

The Rev. John J. Coan Has Been Appointed.

Rev. John P. Cuffe, who has been connected with St. John's church for 21 years and who has had charge of the church since the death of Rev. Francis A. Friguglietti made his farewell address to the congregation on Sunday.

Rev. Mr. Cuffe goes from St. John's church to the Sacred Heart church at Atlantic which has recently been made a parish.

Before taking formal leave of the parish, he announced that Rev. John J. Coan, treasurer of St. John's seminary of Brighton, had been appointed pastor of the church, and that he would be present at all masses next Sunday to greet his new parishioners.

Rev. Fr. Coan is a native of Malden. Here he received his early education in the public schools. He then entered Boston college, graduating in 1884. He then entered St. John's seminary at Brighton, and was ordained in 1888. His first assignment was as curate to St. Paul's church, Cambridge, where he remained nine years, or until his appointment seven years ago as treasurer of St. John's seminary, in which capacity he has served until his appointment as pastor of St. John's church.

Rev. Fr. Coan is spoken of very highly by those who know him, and St. John's church is to be congratulated in having so able a pastor assigned to it.

In saying farewell Rev. Fr. Cuffe was visibly affected. He said that the Quincy parish was his first assignment after being ordained. The impression he received of the place and people upon coming here were of the pleasantest kind, and that they had not changed in the long years that had passed.

He thanked the people for the many kindnesses which they had shown him, and paid a tribute to the late pastor under whom he had served.

It was some consolation to him to know that he was not going from the city where he had made so many treasured friends.

In closing he urged the people of St. John's parish to unite with the new pastor, to give him all the encouragement possible, and so, together bring about the best results possible. For himself, he would never forget St. John's church or its people.

TODAY'S COURT.

John Dayton was arraigned for assault on an officer at Weymouth. A plea of nolo contendere was accepted and he was discharged upon the payment of costs.

The continued case of Lyman Stacy for larceny at Quincy was called and he was found not guilty and was discharged.

William H. Mulligan was fined $3.

VERY SMOOTH LAUNCHING

Big Steel Six Master Glides Slowly Into the Water.

Probably Ten Thousand People Saw the Great Event From Various Points.

Daughter of William L. Douglas Christened the Big Schooner.

To Quincy belongs the honor of creating the first and only seven-masted steel schooner, and the first and the only sixmasted steel schooner ever built. The former was named Thomas W. Lawson and was launched a year ago. The latter was named the William L. Douglas and was launched on Saturday last.

Both were built at the yards of the Fore River Ship and Engine Co.

The launching Saturday was most successful in every way and was witnessed by thousands. The announcement that the general public would not be admitted to the yards served to send the greater part of the crowd to Quincy Point and North Weymouth, but Hayward grove was really one of the best places.

The new Quincy Point bridge was black with people as was also the North Weymouth shore and New Downer Landing. In the river into which the Douglas took her first plunge were hundreds of row boats, launches, and sailing craft, and as the Douglas slid gracefully into the water the air resounded with the shrieking of steam whistles and cheers from a thousand throats. The Douglas was bedecked in flags of the international code, the union jack, national ensign, and large pennant with name "William L. Douglas."

The Lawson went off with her masts all steeped but the Douglas only had two temporary masts from which the flags were strung.

On the ground at the bow of the boat a temporary platform had been erected, and on this were the christening party. It included: Mrs. Marion Douglas Russell, the sponsor, a daughter of William L. Douglas, for whom the vessel was named. Also Mr. and Mrs. Douglas, Harry Russell, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pinkham, Mrs. John E. Drake, Fred Drake, Herbert Drake, Miss Rose E. Drake, Frank Sherburne, Arthur P. Starrett, Fred Bradford, Charles Jermey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Shaw, Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Gouder, Captain and Mrs. John G. Crowley, W. L. Condite, Miss Mary E. Marden, Miss Emma Packard, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Shaw, Miss Ruth Packard, Miss Susie Talbot, Rev. and Mrs. W. H. Morrison, Edgar Jermey, Miss Edith Mann, Arthur Warren, W. H. Baynard, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pope, J. P. Povennice, T. J. Kennard, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Richmond, Miss Hattie Cooper, Miss Blanche Howard, C. H. Dillaway, Jr., Harry Morrison and Captain A. M. King.

The bottle of wine with which the good ship was christened was encased in white silk. From the neck was three long streamers of silk ribbon, red, white and blue. On the red ribbon in letters of gold was "Quincy, Massachusetts, Aug. 29, 1903," on the white, "Marion Douglas Russell;" and on the blue, "Schooner William L. Douglas."

Mrs. Russell who christened the vessel was gowned in white and wore a picture hat of roses. Just before the christening, souvenirs were presented to the guests. These consisted of little silver plaques, upon which was a picture of the Douglas.

It was just 3 o'clock when a shrill whistle sounded, and the next instant there was the sound of a hundred hammers at the wedges, which continued for a couple of minutes, and a little later the heavy vessel was lifted a little more. Then there was a lull until 3.30 when the signal was given to drive home the wedges which raised the vessel from the blocks that supported the keel.

The blocks under the keel bound a little and had to be split off with wedges, so that it nearly 4 o'clock when the men at the saws began to saw through the two timbers at the head of the runs that held the vessel from sliding into the water.

At three minutes past four o'clock the vessel started, and thirty seconds later had taken her first dip and was riding gracefully in the water, and her five ton starboard anchor was dropped.

As the vessel started, Captain Crowley said "She is going, hit her now." Mrs. Russell brought the bottle with a crash against the bow, and the wine ran down the stem. In her excitement Mrs. Russell forgot to give the vessel her name until she was well down the ways.

She also allowed the bottle to fall from her hand among the workmen below.

After the vessel reached the water a tug hauled her around to the fitting out dock. She will be ready for sea in about a month and will engage in the coal-carrying trade between Norfolk and Boston.

The Douglas is 306 on the water-line, 339 feet 6 inches over all, and 48 feet beam with a depth of 29 feet, 9 inches. Her displacement is 7,700 tons and when loaded will draw 24 feet. After the launch she drew only eight or nine feet of water.

Her equipment will require 15,000 feet of Roebling charcoal wire rope weighing 30,000 pounds; 11,000 fathoms of Plymouth Manila cordage and 4,000 pounds of hemp fittings for the wire, all of which was furnished by the Lincoln-Dillaway Co. of Boston who also furnished the materials for the seven master launched last year.

The keel of the Douglas was laid only last December, and the Fore River Ship & Engine Co. did a prompt as well as creditable job.

The cost of the Douglas will be $220,000.

Stacey Not Guilty.

L. S. Stacy, the young man who was before Judge Avery last Saturday charged by an Italian with larceny of certain articles from the office of George Paterson on Canal street, and was found not guilty and discharged. It appeared in evidence that the defendant had received permission to take the articles in question for temporary use and had no intention of depriving the owner of them. Mr. Stacey was accompanied by a lot of his friends and business associates who were ready to stand by him to the last. They wanted to institute proceedings against the complainant for malicious prosecution, but their lawyer advised not giving the matter any further publicity. Mr. Stacey is engaged in the granite manufacture in West Quincy.

Big Jump.

Louis Guertin of Weymouth made a running broad jump of 22 feet 8 inches on Saturday at the Charlesbank gymnasium, and holds the world's record.

—The annual session of the grand lodge of Massachusetts, I. O. O. F., will be held at Odd Fellows' Hall, Boston, Thursday, Sept. 3, at 9 A. M.

What It Costs
... AND ...
What It Pays

are two values of newspaper advertising that the merchant has to consider. But the most important thing is

WHAT IT PAYS.

The merchant can get space in papers of small circulation and little influence for a little less money than the same size space would cost in the DAILY LEDGER and the QUINCY PATRIOT.

DOES IT PAY

to throw away the certainty of the profitable returns which are sure to LEDGER and PATRIOT advertisers, because it costs less to advertise in a cheaper paper?

ADVERTISE.

CHANCE OF WIND

Favors the Reliance in Position.

Is Now Gaining on the Shamrock.

Expected that Yachts Will Finish within Limit.

Again today the Shamrock is trying to get a leg for the America's cup, but if the Reliance wins no more races will be necessary as she has already won two and it is best three in five.

The windward course is being sailed as on Aug. 20 and 22.

Early in the morning it was thought it would be necessary to make another postponement, because of the weather conditions, but the gale abated and the atmosphere cleared some.

Wind E. N. E.

10.30 A. M.—The wind is E. N. E. and blowing 8 knots. The race will be sailed, but the start may be delayed.

Preparatory Signal.

New York, 11.30 A. M.—The preparatory gun just sounded, to start at 11.45.

Time at Start.

11.50 A. M.—The unofficial time at the start was:

Reliance at	11	45	20
Shamrock at	11	45	34

Shamrock to Windward.

11.55 A. M.—Both yachts crossed the line on the starboard tack, the Shamrock to the windward. At 11.50 both tacked to port.

Small Lead.

12.10 P. M.—The Reliance is leading by five yards. Both are now on the starboard tack.

Over Four Miles.

12.15 P. M.—The yachts have sailed about four and one-half miles of course. Reliance still leads.

On Port Tack.

12.25 P. M.—Yachts continue on port tack, the Reliance to windward.

No Gain.

12.35 P. M.—The Associated Press says Reliance is holding lead, but is making no preceptible gain.

Wind Lighter.

12.45 P. M.—The wind appears to be getting lighter.

May Not Finish.

12.50 P. M.—Wind has dropped to five knots. Yachts are about 20 miles from the New Jersey shore; the Reliance about one-half mile to windward.

Shamrock Gaining.

1 P. M.—The Associated Press says wind is now but four knots per hour. In a light air the Shamrock seems to be sailing the faster.

Down Fine.

1.05 P. M.—The Reliance has lead of about one sixteenth of a mile.

Eight Miles Covered.

1.15 P. M.—The observer on the Neversink thinks the Reliance has covered about eight miles of the course and leads about a quarter of a mile.

Half a Mile.

1.20 P. M.—The observer at Edgemere, Long Island, where the boats are sailing, says the Reliance had a lead of half a mile at 1 o'clock.

Both Together.

1.25 P. M.—Marconi system reports that the both boats crossed the starting line together at 45 minutes, 26 seconds past 11 A. M.

Another Race Probable.

1.30 P. M.—Wind is getting lighter and lighter. Doubtful if the yachts will reach the turning mark.

Heavy Sea.

1.40 P. M.—The Associated Press reports a heavy sea. Both boats are pounding badly.

More Wind.

1.45 P. M.—Wind has shifted to North and is now six knots per hour.

To Windward.

1.48—The shift in the wind has put the Reliance more than a quarter mile to windward of the Shamrock.

This with the one quarter lead makes the Reliance three-quarters of a mile ahead.

Before 2.30.

1.55 P. M.—If wind holds the yachts should turn the outer mark between 2.15 and 2.30 P. M.

Mile Ahead.

1.58 P. M.—The observer at Edgemere says the Reliance is one mile ahead, and four miles from outer mark.

Gaining.

2.00 P. M.—The Associated Press says the Reliance is a mile and one-half ahead.

Headed for Mark.

2.05 P. M.—Both yachts have tacked and are now headed for the mark.

—The Cruiser Cleveland will be tried tomorrow over the Cape Ann course.

—It is a rather curious illustration of the many-sided nature of the race question that the distinction of being the first woman bank president should have gone to one of the darker sisterhood. To be sure, it's only a Penny Savings Bank, but it leads the procession toward another big field of emancipation.—Massachusetts Ploughman.

—Postmaster Gen. Payne has decided to make the experiment of employing baggagemen on trains which are not provided with mail clerks to take charge of and deliver open newspaper mail. This decision has been reached after much consideration and in response to a petition filed by many of the leading newspaper publishers of the country who asked the postoffice department to provide facilities for distributing open bundles of papers along the lines from trains which carry only closed pouches.—Hyde Park Times.

WILD GOOSE CHASE

Police Called to the East Milton Line

Because Man Took a Tomato.

A Farmer Who Should be Taught a Lesson.

For a time on Sunday it was thought in police circles that the mysterious daylight burglar had been cornered, and that soon he would be safely lodged behind the bars at the police station.

The event that inspired this feeling was a telephone call received at the police station Sunday afternoon from a woman who in an excited voice said, "Send the police to the corner of Adams and Beale streets. We have caught a desperate burglar in the act, and are holding him until the police come. Please hurry."

A flying hitch was made to the patrol wagon and a squad of officers were soon on their way to the scene. The big white horse that draws the patrol wagon was put on the run, and as the wagon went tearing through the streets, people thought something unusual must have happened.

When the wagon arrived at the scene a woman put her head out of the window and pointing to the barn said "The robber is in there, please hurry."

The officers made a dash for the barn and upon their arrival found an inoffensive looking man on the barn floor surrounded by three men with hay forks held so that if he moved he would get pricked.

One of the farmers uttered a sigh of relief upon seeing the officers and shouted "Here he is, Mr. Officers." "We saw him come across the land and stop and pick up a tomato and he ate it right on our land."

A sickly smile played around the mouth of the officers, who asked if they wanted the man arrested for taking a tomato?

"Well, we saw him eat it," said the farmer.

"Are you willing to appear against the man in court?" asked the officers.

"Well no, I don't suppose I'd want to do that, but I just wanted to teach him a lesson, so thought to give him a scare and I sent for the police. I guess we'll let him go now, but we are much obliged to you for coming over."

What the officers said as they took their departure would not look well in print."

HIS EIGHTY-FIRST.

Capt. Charles N. Hunt Observes His Birthday.

Capt. Charles N. Hunt reached his 81st birthday on Saturday and observed the event by entertaining a few friends at his home off Hancock street in the evening.

A substantial lunch was served, and while smoke from the fragrant cigars rolled heavenward the party listened with pleasure to the Captains recital of some of the many incidents during his life in the army, as a constable and as a fish and game warden.

Capt. Hunt is a native of Scituate, where he was born Aug. 29, 1822. He was a son of Nathan and Catherine Hunt. His father was lost at sea two years after Capt. Hunts birth, and a little later Mrs. Hunt with her children moved to Quincy.

On leaving school he learned the granite cutters' trade, at which he worked for many years. Later he learned the stone masons business, and was engaged in building sea walls along the New England coast.

At the breaking out of the Civil war he enlisted in Co. H, 4th Mass. Infantry, commanded by Col. A. B. Packard. He received an honorable discharge at the end of his enlistment and returned home. Later, when President Lincoln issued a call for three years' men, he enlisted in Co. H 30th Mass. Infantry, and was commissioned first sergeant. Shortly after he was made a captain of his company and held the position until the close of the war.

After the war he returned home and resumed his trade as a stone mason until 1882.

He was elected a constable in 1847 and has held that office ever since, with the exception of the years he was in the army. For the past eighteen years he has been a deputy fish and game warden.

CITY BREVITIES.

Dr. F. S. Andrews has returned from his vacation.

St. Mary's lawn party has been postponed until Wednesday.

Mrs. George S. Burr has returned after a short visit to South Framingham.

Miss Florence Adele Lander, of the Daily Ledger force, is enjoying a week's vacation.

Scores of base ball games should reach the Ledger office early in the morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Parker of Clive street are receiving congratulations on the birth of a daughter.

Estella, the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Porter of Spring lane, is confined to her home with pneumonia and malaria.

The East Norfolk Christian Endeavor Union will hold a lawn party on the grounds of the Congregational church at Braintree, tomorrow evening.

Jack Bainbridge, W. E. Dewhurst, Dr. Clayton Marstin and others who have been cruising the past week in a launch, returned Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. George D. Langley, who have been resting at Durham, N. H., for the past four months, have returned to their home on Washington street.

Mrs. Emma Baker, who underwent an operation in a Boston hospital a few weeks ago, is rapidly improving, and has been moved to her home on Palmer street, Germantown.

The funeral of little Earl Beal, the victim of the car accident, was held Sunday afternoon from Bethany chapel, the Rev. E. N. Hardy officiating. A quartette from Hingham sang. There were many floral offerings, and a large attendance of friends.

The newly organized Crescent A. A. ball team defeated the Monroe Juniors of Boston on Saturday by the tune of 8-3. The features of the game were the battery work of O'Donnell and Chester of the visitors, the pitching of Pratt who struck out 16 men and the playing of R. Ford and P. Avery for the home team.

HANDICAP RACE.

The Marvel, Thelma, Omeme, and Betty B Win.

A club race of the Quincy yacht club was held Saturday in a strong easterly breeze that made reefs necessary.

In the first class it was a close race between the Marvel and Argestes and the former won by 43 seconds on actual time, which was however increased to 2 minutes and 7 seconds on corrected time.

In the second class the Clara withdrew after the start, leaving the Thelma to finish out alone.

In the twenty-one footers the Omeme and Cleopatra, the two old rivals had it again, the Omeme was out defeating the Cleopatra 4 minutes and 8 seconds on actual time.

Arthur Cavanagh was out in his new boat, May G. She behaved well in the strong wind but finished last.

In the special one-design class it was a close race between the Betty B. and Ethel S., the former winning by 36 seconds.

Sunday Remarkably Cold.

Sunday was the coldest August day in Quincy for eight years or more, and at the same time a most disagreeable day. The noon temperature was 58 degrees, and it ranged between 56 and 60 all day. In fact it was colder than any July day since 1895. It would be necessary to go back to June 24 this year to find as cool a day, and we did not have as cool a day last fall until Oct. 10, and there were nine in November that were warmer.

FAMINE APPREHENDED

Would Turn Macedonian Population Into Wild Beasts

SOME FRESH OUTBREAKS

Ambassadors and Consuls Appeal For Warships—Even Turks Talk of Murdering Foreign Consuls as a Mean to Compel Foreign Intervention

London, Aug. 31.—The Salonica correspondent of The Daily Mail describes the situation in Macedonia as being one of the utmost gravity. The insurgents are everywhere increasing in numbers and holding their own against the Ottoman soldiers. Anarchy reigns supreme, the vast Turkish army being completely out of control and eating up the country. In a few weeks famine must ensue, causing untold misery. Any outrage in the city of Salonica now would turn the Turks into soldiers and the populace into wild beasts. The country west of the River Varda towards the vilayet of Monastir is expected to rise daily.

The Times correspondent at Salonica gives a similar account to that sent by The Daily Mail correspondent of the ill concealed terror prevailing in that city and the fears that some incident may precipitate an indiscriminate massacre. Commerce, he says, is paralyzed and a famine is apprehended. The ambassadors and consuls recently appealed to their governments to send warships, but the desire to avoid the appearance of encouraging the insurgents seems to be held of greater importance than precautionary measures for the protection of Europeans. Hence the vessels have not been sent. Preparations for an approaching insurrection in northern Macedonia are rapidly progressing, but the day of the outbreak has not yet been fixed.

Among the Turks themselves, continues the correspondent, a growing body professes to be ready to support European intervention to remedy the desperate condition of affairs and even talks of murdering the foreign consuls as a means to compel foreign intervention. There is no lack of sensational news from the interior, but all the reports are conflicting and confusing.

There is much interest and anxiety regarding the fate of Klisura, which has long been besieged by the insurgents. According to the latest reports, a large body of Turks sent to raise the seige has gained an important victory.

From Salonica come reports of new risings. At Monastir the insurgents are said to be masters of the situation. Telegrams from Adrianople declare that the insurgent bands are continuing their ravages.

At the moment that the porte is asking Belgium to supply officers for the Macedonian gendarmy, the Swedish ambassador at Constantinople has notified the Turkish government that unless they receive their pay immediately the Swedish officers now at Uskub will leave the country.

Many wounded Turkish soldiers have been brought into Salonica from Uskub, Seres and Monastir. The Turkish troops are reported to be greatly discouraged and many deserters have been thrown into prison.

In Sympathy With Macedonians

Belgrade, Aug. 31.—Thousands of people gathered in the Theatre square yesterday afternoon and demonstrated in sympathy itwh the Macedonians. Several well known politicians condemned Turkish misrule, appealed to in sympathy with the Macedonians in their struggle for freedom and declared that Servia, Bulgaria and Montenegro ought to occupy and rebuild the Turkish empire. The meeting adopted a resolution calling on the government to intervene on behalf of the Macedonians.

Thousand Bulgarians Killed

Salonica, Aug. 31.—The Bulgarian insurgents sustained a severe reverse at Smikovo Friday, 1000 of them being killed. The insurgents, to the number of 3000, occupied a position on a height which was stormed by six battalions of Turkish troops commanded by Servel Pasha. After losing 1000 of their number the Bulgarians fled in the face of the heavy Turkish artillery fire. The Turkish losses were insignificant.

Troops Were Celebrating

Constantinople, Aug. 31.—It appears that the report by the Austrian consul at Uskub that a detachment of troops discharged heir rifles at the Austrian consulate there arose from the circumstance that a party of Albanian reservists, on leaving Uskub station in a train, fired in the air, as is their custom on joining the colors, and the Austrian consulate happened to be close to the station.

Leishman Wants Ships Recalled

London, Aug. 31.—A dispatch from Constantinople to the Exchange Telegraph company says it is understood that after an interview with Foreign Minister Tewfik Pasha, Minister Leishman requested Washington to recall the United States European squadron which has been ordered to Beirut.

Authorities Get a Move On

Constantinople, Aug. 31.—Since the representations made by Minister Leishman regarding the attempt on the life of Vice Consul Magelssen the authorities at Beirut are displaying a marked activity in their efforts to find the culprit.

An Unexpected Tragedy

Bellaire, O., Aug. 31.—During a disturbance between the striking machinists and those still working, Fred Williams, a non-union man, was pursued by strikers. Williams ran into a ferryboat, the gangway of which broke with his pursuers. Anthony Halloran and William Pracht were drowned.

To Look For Missing Explorers

Brest, Aug. 31.—Steamer Francais, with the Antarctic expedition under Dr. Jean Charcot, which will endeavor to find Nordenskjold's missing expedition, has sailed. Professor Nordenskjeld's south polar vessel Antarctic has not been heard from for considerably over a year.

Hanna Able to Be Out

Cleveland, Aug. 31.—Senator Hanna, who was taken suddenly ill a few days ago in his office, is much improved and will try to go to his office today to attend a political conference with state leaders.

Killed by Live Wire

Bangor, Me., Aug. 31.—Augustus Fogg, aged 56, a trimmer employed in the city light department, was killed while trimming a street light. He came in contact with a high power wire and fell from the cross-arm to the pavement. Death was instantaneous.

WANTS A SEA OUTLET

Basis of Canada's Fight on Alaskan Boundary

CLAIMS TO SMALL INLETS

Counsel For United States Holds Opposite View, Separates Canada From Arms of Ocean and Puts Gold District Under American Jurisdiction

London, Aug. 31.—Secretary of War Root, ex-Secretary of State Foster, Hannis Taylor and Judge Dickinson arrived at Liverpool on the Celtic for the meetings of the Alaskan boundary commission, which will open in London Sept. 3. They were received at Liverpool by Mr. Petherick, assistant United States dispatch agent, on behalf of the American embassy. The party came directly to London and on their arrival here were met by Secretary Carter of the United States embassy.

The commissioners are already familiar with the facts of the cases on both sides, which were filed several months ago. At the first meeting of the commissioners the Americans and Canadians will submit their briefs, which will be a condensation of the facts and arguments regarding the interpretation of the treaty. The commission will then announce the day on which the oral arguments will be heard.

The documents have not yet been made public, but it is learned that the whole controversy centers upon Canada's effort to acquire an outlet to the sea. It is known authoritatively that the Canadian agent asserts that under the Russo-British treaty of 1825 the line properly crosses numerous inlets, including the headwaters of the Lynn canal. The contention seems to be that the inlets less than six miles wide situated in the disputed region belong to Canada.

United States Counsel Foster vigorously opposes this view, holding that the treaty clearly places the line 30 miles inland, following the sinuosities of the coast, and thus separates Canada from all the arms of the ocean and puts Porcupine creek and the gold district under American jurisdiction.

The American representatives are confident that their position is unassailable. The commissioners expect that the complete consideration of the entire case will take less than two months and that even should the commission fail to render a majority award the facts will be clearly established. This will lead to an easier settlement in the future.

Secretary Root intends to take advantage of the recess between the filing of the briefs and the oral arguments to witness the British army maneuvers.

Shipwrecked People Rescued

New York, Aug. 31.—In a strong northeast gale eight miles off Highlands, N. J., schooner Henry P. Mason struck, it is believed, a submerged wreck, and sank. The crew and two passengers of the schooner took to the vessel's small boat and after being buffeted by the heavy seas for several hours were rescued by Captain Paterson and the Sandy Hook life saving crew, who were towed out to the boat by the New York Yacht club's committee boat Navigator.

L'quor Dealers Oppose Law

New York, Aug. 31.—The Liquor Dealers' association of New York have passed resolutions denouncing Mayor Low and announcing that the association has determined to enter the municipal campaign this year as a non-political body to oppose the election of its enemies and espouse the cause of its friends. Police Commissioner Greene was also denounced in the resolutions.
